"Well," said Mr. Williams, dubiously, "I will confess that I thought so, too, but the fellow reminded me of all these things, and, sure enough, I remembered that they were necessary. But just a few weeks and they will all be paid for, and then every time I shave after that it will be clear profit. Think of saving that much money for the benefit of the baby," and Mr. Williams gathered his offspring up and rapturously kissed him.

The next morning Mr. Williams started in on the work of economy. He procured a handglass and hung it to the wall, only to find when he began operations that the glass was invariably on the wrong side of the light and his hand always shaded his face. His lather seemed to be reluctant and watery also, but those were minor evils which would be remedied if he only had time, which he didn't, for his train was due to leave in half an hour. He lathered on in a liquid way for several minutes, and then opened hostilities with his beard.

There is no cause for description of the horrible half-hour which followed. Men who have never learned to shave and who try it know how the thing works, and nobody else would credit a fraction of the true story. Mr. Williams discovered new angles in his countenance—angles never before revealed to human eye. He found that his razor, although sharp enough to perform almost any miracle in mowing, positively balked at his two-days-old stubble, and when he did succeed in chopping off a dozen spikes at a sawing sweep it was a victory achieved through floods of blood. He pulled the razor and pushed and worked it cross-wise and gave it every motion to which the arm is a possible contributor, and every moment a new smarting sensation was the register of a new "pinking." But it was not until he had worked his way down from the cheek to the chin that the full measure of his contract occurred to him. There the blade, defied by the stumpy beard, lunged and plunged and the uprooting sensation was continuous and fearful.

But he was game, and ten minutes after his train had left he rushed from the house, pretending to be in too big a hurry to catch the next train to stop to kiss his wife.

The next day Mr. Williams tried it again.

He made another effort the following day.

On the fourth day Mr. Williams sneaked into his former shop in Chicago, and, approaching his favorite barber, said: "Ed, I have been shaving here so long I thought I'd bring my mug in. And while I was at it I concluded to buy an entire outfit for you to use on me. Here's the razor and the strop."

He hoped that Ed would not know the truth, but the barber, looking at his harrowed face, understood. When Mr. Williams had gone the other barbers gathered around in an awed fashion to look at the razor.

Mrs. Williams is a wise woman. So wise that she has never mentioned the Little Victor Educational Fund since the day of its incipiency.—Chicago Record.

Roast Turkey with Giblet Sauce.

Select a fat young hen turkey. Singe and wash. Fill with rich bread or cracker dressing, well seasoned, and if liked, two onions may be finely minced and added to the dressing. Stuff both body and breast with this. Lay the turkey in the basting pan and pour two cupfuls of hot water around it. Bake slowly but steadily, basting frequently. Allow from 10 to 12 minutes a pound, if the fowl is a young one, but 15 or more if it is an old, tough one. To make the giblet sauce, boil the heart, liver and gizzard in two quarts of water for two hours. Take up, chop fine and return to the gravy with a spoonful of flour. Season with salt and pepper, and pour in the pan in which the turkey was cooked, and stir, and serve. Serve this sauce in gravy boat.—Ladies' World.

A Matter of Business.

Servant (from next door)—Please, mum, missus sends her compliments, and will ye be so kind as to sing and play the piano this afternoon?

Lady—Why, certainly. Tell your mistress I'm glad she likes it.

"O, it isn't that, mum; she's expecting the landlord, and she wants some excuse for asking for a reduction of the rent."—Boston Globe.

Poisons engendered by food fermenting in a dyspeptic stomach are the direct cause of rheumatism, gout, bronchitis, liver and kidney complaints, asthma, pneumonia and many nervous ailments.

These results are prevented by the use of the Shaker Digestive Cordial, a remedy discovered and prepared by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, N. Y. It is in itself a food and has power to digest other food taken with it. Thus it rests the diseased stomach and finally masters the worst cases of dyspepsia. It acts promptly and fresh strength and increase of weight soon follows. The first dose, taken immediately after eating, abates the pain and distress so dreaded by dyspeptics. Trial bottles—enough to prove its merit—10 cents.

For Your Protection.

Catarrh "cures" in liquid form to be taken internally, usually contain Mercury or Iodide of Potassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by cold and damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages. Cold in the head, if repeatedly neglected, results in catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug.

A DISGUISED ENEMY.

Chronic catarrh often makes its approach in disguise. Before a person knows it, he may become a victim of chronic catarrh. Its onset may be gradual, its development insidious, and at last the victim finds himself in the clutches of a tenacious disease. A slight cold, a tendency to sneeze, a puffiness in the nose and head, fullness or crackling in the ears, stringy mucus in the throat, slight cough or wheeziness, snoring during sleep, any one of these symptoms should be regarded as a warning. What can be cured in the beginning in a week or two, by using Pe-ru-na, if allowed to become chronic, may require months of faithful treatment. You had better take Pe-ru-na now, for by and by you may be obliged to take it a long time in order to get well. Pe-ru-na is the remedy for catarrh. Almost everybody knows that by hearsay and thousands know it by blessed experience.

The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, Ohio, are sending Dr. Hartman's latest book on chronic catarrh and climatic diseases of winter, free of charge—64 pages instructively illustrated.

The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run down, he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but doesn't feel just right" he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of a way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means, nine cases in ten, the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect and supplies rich, red blood to all the tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

UNABLE TO MAKE THE CHANGE.

Predicament of the Cashier of a Downtown Resort with His Cash Register.

There were three in one party and two in the other. They were standing before the white-aproned dispenser of refreshments, says a Chicago exchange, and one of the three invited the entire party to have something. The dispenser dealt out the order of the three, took the dollar offered in payment and handed back 35 cents in change. The other two, standing a short distance away, were not served, as there was a mistake on the part of the cashier. The bill amounted to less than a quarter according to the refreshments served the three. The host examined his coin and then looked surprised and grieved.

"I gave you a dollar, he said.

"Was it a dollar? How much change did I give you?"

"Thirty-five cents."

"Well, I will have to wait until somebody buys. I don't dare open the register, as there is a false balance on it. Every time I open it it means a purchase charged to me. Sorry, but we will have to wait."

The man to whom the change was coming stood by and waited until the cash purchase was made before he could get his money. He was the only one in the party who did not enjoy the situation. He remarked, gloomily, that he never had much use for cash registers, anyway.

A CUNNING CONVICT.

His Tortured Himself in Order to Get Placed on the Sick List.

A case showing great cunning and perseverence, as well as tolerance of much self-inflicted pain continued for many months, is worth telling, says Chambers' Journal. The convict was most determined and resourceful in his efforts at malingering. He began by running a piece of copper wire into his knee, by which he nearly lost his leg. He then produced a number of sores round the knee joint, and kept up a great degree of swelling and inflammation by means of a rag and thread pushed into the wounds. Upon the discovery of this he took to introducing lime below the skin. On another occasion a bandage was found firmly bound round the man's thigh, the result being, in medical phraseology, "extensive swelling and lividity of the thigh."

The doctor ordered his limb to be enveloped with a large piece of gutta-percha so as to checkmate the prisoner's malpractices. The latter, however, by means of a strip of sheeting, and the skewer to which part of his dinner was attached, formed a tourniquet, and by it compressed his leg so much during the night as to quite neutralize the medical treatment it had received during the day. The imposture was at length detected by an order of the doctor to expose the limb outside the bedclothes to the view of the officer day and night, and from that hour progress was toward complete recovery.

ORCHARD PRUNING.

Don't Go at It as Though You Were Cutting Cord Wood.

Don't get a crazy fit and go into your orchard with an ax and cut and slash the branches off and think you are pruning, says H. E. Van Deman. Every stroke with a tool on a tree is a stroke at its life, unless very wisely made. There need be no elaborate or stylish method of pruning adopted. Common sense is a good guide, but if a person judges his knowledge of pruning by the amount of brush he makes, he is sadly lacking in common sense, and should never be allowed to prune.

All dead or sick branches should come off, all that cross or chafe each other should be relieved by the removal of the one which can best be spared. Do not cut great open spaces in the tree tops and so let in too much hot sunshine and injure the limbs that have been used to being shaded. It is dangerous to prune cherry trees at all; they are rarely benefited by so doing, but are often injured. Train old orchard trees to have low, broad heads, which will shade the trunks, lessen the purchase of the winds, and make more convenient the gathering of the fruit.

All soups can be preserved in a good condition for some days by taking great care, when freshly made, to skim well, and to remove every particle of fat from the surface. The broth should be kept in a very cool larder and uncovered; in very hot weather it should be strained every day, and poured into a perfectly clean vessel.—Albany Journal.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB 19, 1897.

The committee is progressing finely with the soliciting work for the Lima Northern, and the HERALD is in hopes to be able to soon report the fact that the full amount is raised.

In the days of "Billion Dollar" Congresses and 33 million a year deficits, it is refreshing to look backward for even a few years to the "Good Old Times," when public debts were promptly paid and public expenditure was cut according to the cloth. Through the kindness of John Heck the HERALD copies the following from the Danville (Penn.) Intelligencer of Dec. 26th, 1834. Read this and then reflect how public affairs are going on at the present time.

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.—We have neglected, in consequence of the press of other matter, to lay before our readers an epitome of this document.—We learn from the Report the following particulars, in reference to our national fiscal concerns:

The actual receipts into the Treasury for the first three quarters of the year 1834, have been	16,324,717 94
The receipts of the fourth quarter of the year, are estimated at	4,300,000 00
Total.	$20,624,717 94
Balance in the Treasury on the 1st January, 1834,	11,702,905 31
	$32,327,623 25
The expenditures of the whole year are ascertained and estimated to be	$25,591,390 91
Which will leave a balance in the Treasury, on the 1st of January, 1835, of	$6,736,232 34
All the disbursements during the present year, on account of the public debt, will have been for principal	$5,964,774 93
Interest,	195,142,63
Total.	$6,161,071 56

It is announced in the Treasury Report, that the national debt, which at one time amounted to $127,000,000, will be totally extinguished on the 1st of next month.

There are many more articles in this old paper of interest o which the HERALD will make use in the near future.

Mrs. Maggie Myers,

Williamsport, Ind., writes: "I suffered for months of severe stomach troubles, caused by indigestion and constipation. My trouble seemed almost unendurable. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin of Armstrong & Swank and as soon as I had taken its contents I was like a new person, and I now feel better and weigh more than I have in years." It is sold in 10c, 50c and $1,00 sizes at Orr & Temple.

FIRST ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

And Institute, Held at Sutton's Opera House.—Great Show of Birds and Large Crowd in Attendance.

To the systematic and earnest efforts of a small band of enthusiastic admirers of poultry, strong in the faith that this industry properly conducted will return a satisfactory dividend, are the people of this community indebted for one of the finest displays of the different varieties of the popular and practical breeds ever seen in the county, as well as an interesting program composed of valuable papers by persons of ripe experience, covering the several branches of this great industry which to the masses is underestimated. To C. A. Waldron more than any other one person no doubt belongs the lion's share of credit for this grand exhibit, for he conceived the idea and worked constantly and tirelessly to have it materialize, but he was ably assisted by the following "chicken cranks," as they term themselves:—J. D Shull, Abner Wilson, Jebiel Davidson, Miles Baldwin, H. D. Cutting, Lewis and Will Waldron, all of whom responded nobly to every demand upon them. From their united efforts resulted this first poultry show and institute, far surpassing in interest and extent the highest anticipations of the most sanguine.

The collection of fowls would have been a credit to a regular show for fancy breeders and demonstrates the fact that the farmers are beginning to realize the importance of raising fowls for profit, that nothing pays better for money invested and that it costs no more to keep good fowls than poor ones.

There were over seventy coops arranged around the room representing fowls up in the hundreds. During the day an immense throng of people inspected them. Some admired this variety, while others chose that—certainly, the most critical could be suited. The different exhibitors booked many orders for eggs and in this way were recompensed for their labor. We cannot speak of each variety so will give the names of exhibitors and the varities shown:

Andrew McHenny, York— Blk. Minorcas, S. C. Brown Leghorns, Blk. B. Red Games, Bronze Turkeys, Embden and Toulouse Geese, Rouen and Aylesbury Ducks, Fan Tail Pigeons.

A. Middlebrook, Clinton—Partridge Cochins.

Ed Clapp, Evans Lake—Pekin Ducks.

M. A. Ladd, Springville—Silver Laced Wyandots.

J. E. Brainard, Springville— S. C. White and Brown Leghorns.

C. W. McNeil, Newburgh—S. L. Wyandots.

P. A. Montaghe, Adrian—White, Barred and Buff Plymouth Rocks, and exhibited some choice Capons.

A. P. Southworth, Adrian—Buff Plymouth Rocks and S. C. White Leghorns.

The following exhibitors' postoffice address is Tecumseh:

Mrs. Will Waldron—White Plymouth Rocks.

Jebiel Davidson—Light Brahmas.

H. W. Stevens—Barred P. Rocks.

C. A. Waldron—Barred P. Rocks, S. C. B. Leghorns and Capons.

C. H. Ives—S. C. B. Leghorns and Silver Spang. Hamburg.

L. M. Waldron—Houdans.

B. P. Anderson—B. P. Rocks.

Miles Baldwin—B. P. Rocks and S. C. B. Leghorns.

Mrs. J. D. Hayward—B. P. Rocks.

E. C. White—Blk. Minorcas and Blk. Hamburgs.

B. S. Waring—S. C. B. Leghorns.

C. A. Hooten—S. C. B. Leghorns and S. S. Hamburgs.

James VanAntwerp—S. L. Wyandots.

Wm. Kyle—Buff Leghorns, Buff Cochins, White Crested Blk. Polish.

F. Kolkleisch—B. P. Rocks, Buff Leghorns.

Geo. Mattison—Buff Leghorns, B. P. Rocks.

H. Pattison—Blk. Langshans.

Chas. Lowry—Partridge Cochins.

J. Shurtz—Blk. B. Red Games, Red Dominiques.

James K. Cook—Blue Smokeball Games, Cuban Dominiques, Red Piles, Blk. B. R. Games, Red Pile Muffs, Blk. R. Muffs, White, Black and Yellow Jacobins and Carrier Pigeons.

Jimmie Waldron—Doves.

Floyd Elliott—White Pit Games and B. B. R. Game Bantams.

Bert O'Hara—B. B. R. G. Bantams.

Donald F. Wright—Buff Pekin Bantams, B. B. R. Game Bantam and Fan Tail Pigeons.

Willie Hanley—B. B. R. Game Bantams.

Forrest Macham—Grey Duck Wing Bantams.

In the evening the opera house was filled with an earnest and appreciative audience to listen to the literary and musical program. The former consisted of able papers on the different branches of the poultry industry and the latter, though wholly instrumental, was an agreeable change and was nicely rendered by the performers. The following papers were read:—

"Eggs in Winter," Abner Wilson, Tecumseh.

"Raising Turkeys," Mrs. Henry Calhoun, Manchester.

"Farmers' Wives and the Poultry Business." This paper was written by Mrs. Priscilla Plum, of Reading. She being unable to be present, it was read by Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Tecumseh.

"Broilers from Eggs to Market," Arthur E. Mosher, Onsted.

"Poultry on the Farm," Mrs. Smith Munger, Clinton.

"Artificial Incubator and Brooding," A. P. Coddington, Tecumseh.

They were all practical and instructive, covering the whole ground. The music was furnished by Viva and Elmer Mellon and Ora Gillespie. This institute will undoubtedly stimulate the interest in poultry and the people will look forward to the next institute with great pleasure.

John Wanamaker is to build a church in Philadelphia to commemorate his escape from fire.

Mrs. Rose Abbitt.

The death of Mrs. Rose Abbitt, the Lilley House laundress, which occurred at her rooms over the Central market Sunday evening, was a shock to her friends as but few knew she was ill. She was not feeling well the first of the week but supposed it to be only a hard cold so continued to perform her accustomed duties until Wednesday evening when she gave up and went to bed, never more to rise from it. The disease, pneumonia, had become firmly seated and, she being very fleshy, all medical skill seemed powerless to stay its hold and she rapidly grew worse until the end which came as the bells were tolling for evening service.

Rose, as she was called by both young and old, whose maiden name was Kellar, was born in Germany April 23rd, 1841. Coming to this country when but a child, she settled at Adrian. When but 15 years of age she married a gentleman by the name of George Tyler and removed to Chicago where he died two years after of cholera. She then returned to Adrian where in the course of time she married Daniel Abbitt. This marriage did not prove a happy one and in a few years they separated. Most of the time for over twenty years she has been a resident of this place. Formerly she did cooking exclusively. In that capacity she was employed by some of the former proprietors of what is now the Central House, also cooked for S. Erskine, and the late Frank Silvers when they kept hotel in Clinton and for Mr. and Mrs. Will T. Eccles when they conducted a restaurant here. For the past eleven years she has done laundry work at the Lilley House.

In whatever capacity employed she was thorough and faithful, possessed of a tender heart and generous nature. Notwithstanding her secluded and busy life, she made many warm friends. One trait of character she possessed in a marked degree, that of seeing the good qualities of others instead of their faults, and if she could not speak well of a person she had nothing to say. She was ever ready to do an act of kindness to the sick and needy and many hearts have been warmed and homes brightened by her kind ministrations. During her sickness she had every care and attention.

The funeral was held in the lecture room of the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon and was attended by a large number of acquaintances and friends. There being no known living relatives, those connected with the Lilley House supplied their place. The floral tributes were fine and testified in strongest terms the esteem in which she was held. Rev. J. P. Varner officiated and his remarks were most appropriate and comforting.

High School Happenings.

English II are studying Webster's orations, which they appear to enjoy hugely.

Tom Owens and Charlie Williamson made the A room quite a long call Friday afternoon.

Edward Hoag visited the A room in company with his brother, Harold, who is a student here, yesterday.

Mrs. Gerow and daughter, of Chicago, called on the grammar grade music classes yesterday afternoon.

Messrs McKinnon and Smith visited the grammar department of the High School Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Secor of the West Branch school was absent today to attend the county examination of teachers at Adrian.

Ollie Jones was summoned by telegram to her home at Ottawa Lake Monday morning. It is hoped she will be able to return soon.

The botany class numbers 38 this year. Germination of seeds and the study of buds are claiming the most of their attention at present.

The sophomore class organized Monday night after school with a membership of nearly forty. The officers elected were president, Frank Morgan; vice pres., Leon Rosacrans; sec., Anna McClure; treas., Florence Temple.

One of the window panes in the eighth grade room, got dirty last Wednesday—so dirty in fact that one of the boys felt that it was his duty to wash it. For lack of anything better he took a snowball. Chief result, a new window pane. There were several minor results unnecessary to mention.

The senior class held a business meeting last Friday night, at which it was decided to alter the usual program of the graduating exercises by having a speaker. This will lighten the work for both teachers and pupils, and causes much rejoicing. The speaker selected will probably be C. A. Fulton, of Detroit.

The Junior class drove over to the Raisin Valley Seminary in two loads Wednesday night to use the telescope and gaze on the heavenly bodies. Mr. Kellogg went along to keep every one straight. The journey there was shortened by the efforts of the gentlemen who composed rhymes for the edification of their fair partners, in which the words "moon" and "spoon" were most noticeable. They saw the stars, the moon and came pretty near seeing the sun too, but decided they had better not wait for that.

There is a repopt going the rounds that Uncle Charley Spafford was "held up" on a railroad train the other day for ten dollars. For Uncle Charlie we denounce the whole report as an malicious lie. Uncle Charlie set the first stick of type ever put up for the HERALD over 40 years ago, and has not had ten dollars all at one time since.

The spacious home of J. D. Shull was filled last evening with a large company of the members of Beer's Post and the Relief Corps. It was in the nature of a surprise, and was successfully executed, Mr. Shull not having an inking of the affair, although his wife had been consulted. It was a social event, and fine refreshments were served.

Master Fred Waring is meeting with great success selling Bishop Fallow's great book "Home Beyond." Fred says every one who looks at the book gives him their order. See "ad" in this issue.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hicks was invaded Tuesday evening by a large company of members of the Eastern Star. Although their coming was unknown to the worthy couple they were none the less welcome, and the evening was delightfully spent. Refreshments, choice and dainty were served by the invaders. P. S. McKinnon, in behalf of the company, at an opportune moment, presented Mrs. Hicks with an elegant Eastern Star pin, as a slight token of their esteem. Mrs. Hicks left yesterday morning for an extended visit with Mrs. H. Snell in Washington, D. C.

Morton Burlingame and Frank Chilson were the guests of Guy Davidson at his home in the country Tuesday for dinner. The folks being away, Guy was chief cook and bottle washer and the boys pronounce him a No. 1 caterer.

Howard Whelan came over from Detroit Thursday night intending to return Saturday morning but remained over Sunday and was accompanied home by his mother Monday, who will make her son John and family a visit.

The Misses Winnifred Ross and Margaret Knapp, of Adrian, who remained after the party, the former a guest of Viola Shull and the latter of Lena Hardenburg, returned home Sunday night, Hal Knapp and George Cochran driving over for them in the afternoon.

Rev. C. M. Brown and John J. Orr went over to hear Prof. DeMotte at Adrian Saturday night and the following went over Sunday afternoon to hear his address to the students:—J. H. Smith, John Anderson, Bert Day, Fred Hermann, J. J. Orr, Vern Smith, Ralph Orr, Fay and Albert Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jehiel Bramble, assisted by about thirty of their friends, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on west Chicago street, last Saturday. It was a happy occasion and it is hoped this worthy company may live to enjoy many more anniversaries of that happy event.

Fred Aldrich, wife and Wilson, went over to Brooklyn Friday for a visit with his father, P. W. Aldrich. Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Jones and Leo, Mrs. George Teachout, E. L. Church and C. D. Keyes drove over and were the guests of Mr. Aldrich for dinner at the Cosmopolitan. The day was pleasantly passed and all returned home at night.

Friday evening about twenty gentlemen and ladies, friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Paxson, made them an impromptu visit, as Al was to leave the next day for Piqua, Ohio, where the family will soon join him and make that hustling city their home. Although Mrs. Paxson knew that some of Al's most intimate friends were coming, she supposed they were to be gentlemen only, so that when the company walked in, it proved a surprise to both of them. The evening passed only too quickly, and while all felt it a pleasure to be there, the occasion was one where pleasure and sadness were mingled equally.

John Hendershot returned the last of the week from Port Clinton, Ohio, where he was called by the critical condition of his son Serville, who, a short time before, had his hand hurt at the Electric Light Works, where he was employed, necessitating the amputation of one finger. Blood poison resulting, his case became serious, and it was thought necessary to amputate the hand in order to save his life. Mr. Hendershot reports an improvement in his son's condition and it is now thought the hand can be saved. Serville had a fine position and was doing nicely. His friends, while realizing his misfortune, rejoice that his hand will be saved.

There were three papers read at the Monday Club Feb. 15th on the subject of "Literature": Mrs. P. W. A. Fitzsimmons gave a history of Frederick the Great and his influence on literature. Mrs. A. Lewis furnished a character sketch regarding the German author Lessing and his writings. Mrs. Milburn Keyser closed the program by describing the "Origin and Rise of the Drama."

Bender, the magician and ventriloquist, occupied the boards at Sutton's opera house Monday and Tuesday evenings and delighted his audience with his marvelous acts. As a magician he is fully equal to the late Herrman and may rightly be termed "Wizard". In his musical specialties he proved himself master of the xylophone as well as the violin. On the latter his trick playing and imitations were fine and out of the ordinary style. As a ventriloquist he is undoubtedly without a rival and in this act held his audience spell bound. He demonstrated fully his capacity to entertain, unassisted, an audience a whole evening, a difficult thing to do.

The following interesting story from the Toledo Blade is made more interesting from the fact that after a long and tedious contest the suit was won by our townsman, F. B. Wood, as attorney:

Four important decisions were rendered yesterday afternoon by the circuit court. In the case of Wesley Thurstin, administrator, against the heirs of Frederick Bissell, deceased, the decision of the lower court is affirmed. This case is full of peculiarly interesting features. In 1870 Frederick Bissell, a well-known citizen of Toledo, died. Several months before his death, he made a will in which he directed that certain valuable farm property should be held in trust by a nephew, Edward Bissell, the executor of his estate. Edward was instructed to pay the income from the farm each year to Leverett Bissell, a brother of Frederick, during the life of Leverett. The will also gave Leverett power to bequeath the farm property to whomsoever he designated, at the time of his demise. But Frederick especially stipulated that no part of his estate whatever should go to the children of Sidney Bissell, another brother. Time passed on and Leverett died, leaving the property to his wife. In his will Leverett provided that the property should go, after his wife's death, to his heirs who were living at the time the will was made. A few years after her husband's death, the widow of Leverett passed away. As the couple had no children, among the heirs left was the child of Sidney. Sidney's child contended that Leverett, having full title to the property, could lawfully will it to him, regardless of Frederick's wishes in the matter. But the Common Pleas court held that they could not legally come in possession of the property and the Circuit court takes the same view of the case.

Little Regie Blachford had a narrow escape from serious injury last Friday. Mr. Blatchford had prepared a place for the children to slide down hill near the the house. One of Dr. Lombard's young sons was over playing with Regie, and they were coasting. A wagon loaded with coal, for the electric light plant, came along as Regie came down on his sled, the driver, not thinking the sled could reach the track, made no effort to turn aside and it resulted in one wheel passing over the boys left hand. Fortunately the snow was quite deep, otherwise the hand would have been crushed. The little fellow was plucky and never a cry escaped him, even when the hand was examined by the physican. Although badly bruised no bones were broken, and the hand will soon be all right.

Some of the lady friends of Miss Elvia Tallman, who formerly resided west of town but now lives south of Adrian, have for some time contemplated paying her a visit and at the same time enjoy a sleighride. Monday was the time settled upon and about 5:30 p. m., from the home of Fred Shepard where all congregated, a jolly company of eleven with well laden baskets started on their mission. Nothing occurred to mar their pleasure. A bountiful supper was served about 9 p. m. and they reached home in the wee small hours, having enjoyed themselves every moment of the time. The following were the participants: Mesdames Fred Shepard and Bert Waring and the Misses Lulu Jones, Margaret Haire, Anna Cutting, Grace Hillman, Florence Mize, Lillian Welliver, Emma Hall, Ida Rector and Lizzie Lowry.

A Sad Death.

Wm. Weld, who has been working for Asa Howe on the Aten farm northeast of here, met with a tragic death Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Howe was helping a neighbor and young Weld was cutting wood. After dinner he took his rifle with him to the woods. The Smith boys were hauling wood from the St. John farm near by, and towards night Weld went over where they were. As they all were starting for home Weld said "Wait till I get my gun." Reaching for it and drawing it toward him the hammer caught and the gun was discharged, the ball staiking his left breast and coming out above the right. He exclaimed, "Boys, I'm shot; goodbye," and fell on his face to the ground, dead. No inquest being deemed necessary, the body was brought to the home of his mother in Brownville where the funeral was held this afternoon, Rev. J. P. Varner officiating.

The death of this young man is peculiarly a sad one. The family, consisting of mother, two sons and a daughter, came to this place from Toledo late in the spring. Will, who was 21 years of age, was a dutiful son and the main support of the family who are in strightened circumstances and his untimely death falls with crushing force upon the mother, brother and sister. They have the sympathy of all in their sad affliction.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

A Secret Worth Knowing.

When one observes the ill-dressed women to be seen on the streets daily a person is led to think that their most common fault is carelessness in matching shades. Better take a contrast if you cannot get an exact match, but in London, at least, patience will always secure what is wanted; if one shop does not have it, another will. Harmonies in dress are more effective at all times and in better taste than contrasts; thus, if you have a pink evening dress try rather to get gloves of just the same pink than of white kid or of tan. Again, if you have a hat with a red or a blue flower, and are buying a dress that you are likely to wear with it, get something with a spray or line repeating that very tone of red or blue; this applies to every color. Strike a note in each costume, however, simple, and keep to it. The cheapest gown, if all the details are studied, will cost no more and will surpass in effect something at thrice the price. — Chicago Chronicle.

Apricot Toast.

A good way to make apricot toast is to slice down a milk roll about one-half inch thick, and fry these slices in butter till of a golden brown; meanwhile turn the liquor from a tin of canned apricots into a delicately clean pan, add one ounce of powdered sugar and a wineglassful of sherry or liquor, as you please. Place a half apricot on each slice of fried toast, cup side uppermost, place a kernel in each cup, pour the sirup, etc., which should have boiled up, over the apricots and toast, place a teaspoonful of thick cream into each apricot and serve hot.—St. Louis Republic.

The average age of doctors is much higher than that of any other calling—it is no less than 56. Their great pull consists, no doubt, in their opportunities of observing what treatment is most efficacious with their patients. A certain physician is said by James Payn to have let this particular cat out of the bag to one to whom he was paying marked attention. "I am very much interested in your case," he said, "because I have the same complaint myself; and if this medicine really does you good I shall try it."

A CLOSE CALL.

Michigan Was in Danger of Losing Her Electoral Vote.

Discovery of a Fatal Defect in the Election Law—Gov. Pingree Has More Trouble Over Appointments.

(Special Correspondence.)

Lansing, Feb. 15.—One of the laws passed by the last legislature came near causing the loss of Michigan's vote in the electoral college. After the formal canvass and announcement of the vote in congress last week, it was made known that the vote of Michigan had been in great danger of being declared void. This state of affairs was due to the law passed at the last session which prescribed the duties of county canvassers, but makes no provision for canvassing the vote for presidential electors, although it repeals all other laws on the subject. The defect was noticed by a number of republican officials and party leaders, but the discovery remained a secret locked in their breasts. The question of legality was not raised, and it is apparent that the oversight in the law was not seen by the democratic state committee. The present legislature will amend the law.

It is intimated that some of the anti-Pingree men in the senate contemplate the introduction of a resolution for the appointment of a legislature committee to investigate municipal affairs of Detroit as conducted by Mayor Pingree during his various administrations. It is doubtful if such a plan could be pushed through the house, even though sanctioned by the senate.

Gov. Pingree's pet scheme, which involves the removal of the state capital to Detroit, is not seriously considered by the legislature. A joint resolution submitting to the people an amendment to the constitution increasing the salary of the attorney general from $800 to $2,500 per annum was before the house, it having previously passed the senate. The measure requires the attorney general to reside in Lansing. A motion was made to substitute the word Detroit for Lansing and another to insert "at the capital" in place of the word Lansing, but both were unanimously voted down.

The breach between the senate and the governor has been visibly widened by the feeling created in the upper house over the appointments of ex-Gov. Luce, of Coldwater, as a member of the board of control for the Ionia house of correction, Rev. Morgan Wood, of Detroit, as a member of the state board of charities and corrections, and Fred H. Case, of Three Rivers, as inspector general. The republican senators seem backward about confirming the appointments, inasmuch as Case was editor and proprietor of a free silver paper during the late political campaign, and Luce's stand on the money question was also distasteful to many. The nomination of Thomas F. Marston, of Bay City, as a member of the state board of agriculture, and of F. M. Stuart, of Hillsdale, a member of the board of control of the state public school at Coldwater, were confirmed.

A stringent anti-trust measure has been introduced in the house. It is intended to prevent monopolies in articles of general necessity. It declares illegal any contract or combination in the form of a trust whereby competition is destroyed in the supply or price of any article or commodity of common use for the support of life and health for the purpose of advancing prices. The penalty for conviction is a fine not to exceed $5,000 or imprisonment not longer than one year, or both.

A bill introduced by Representative Gustin, of Alpena, is one of the most radical measures ever presented. It takes the selection of the supreme justices from the hands of the people, and makes them appointees of the governor. They are to have one term of ten years, and cannot be reappointed. Gustin's plea is that the measure would remove the justices from the influence of politics. It will require a constitutional amendment to put the project into force.

Gov. Pingree has been honored by having a post office bear his name. An office has been established with this title in Sanilac county, five miles north west of Cass City, with Philip Mark as postmaster.

A straw which indicates an adverse wind for the equal suffrage bill was the recent action in the senate, when, by a vote of 25 to 4, further consideration of the bill providing for the appointment of two women on each of the boards of control of the state insane asylums, was indefinitely postponed. The bill passed the house unanimously at a recent session.

The economical streak in the house has lead to the introduction of a bill abolishing the state geological survey.

Bills appropriating $40,000 for the relief of the Ontonagon fire sufferers, permitting the sale of quail purchased in another state, providing for a reformatory for women, and making the education of the blind compulsory, were introduced in the house Monday.

A very important bill was noticed in the house Monday, intended to prevent a sacrifice in case of mortgage, sheriff's and chancery sales. It provides for the appointment of three disinterested persons as appraisers upon the property by the circuit judge for that county. It also provides that no such real estate or any interest thereon shall be sold for less than two-thirds of its appraised value.

Populist members of the house on Tuesday gave notice of bills declaring null and void all contracts calling for the payment of money in gold.

A joint resolution was introduced Tuesday providing for an amendment to the constitution prohibiting anyone not a taxpayer voting on propositions to raise money by taxation. The claim is made that in some portions of the state regularly organized companies of non-taxpayers force enormous taxes on property owners. It is also proposed to prevent assessors from overvaluing property so that large sums may be raised.

Bills were introduced Tuesday providing that female patients in asylums for the insane shall be treated by female physicians; requiring all hunters to pay an annual license fee of one dollar, and providing that a special record of all farm mortgages and discharges of mortgages on farm property be kept in each county.

Among the bills introduced and noticed in the legislature last week were the following:

To prohibit the use of any except the English language on bills of fare; compelling railroad companies to give first-class passengers seats in parlor cars when all seats are taken in regular coaches; to amend the tax law by exempting musical educational associations the same as library and charitable institutions; to repeal the law for the collection of social statistics; for a permanent forestry commission; to abolish days of grace; to prohibit manufacture and sale of cigarettes; appropriating $15,000 for removal of obstructions from Kalamazoo river; providing for establishment of a normal school for southwestern Michigan at Benton Harbor, and appropriating $25,000 therefor; to prohibit payment of money by a debtor to a laborer in any saloon or place where liquor is sold; for the incorporation of mutual integrity companies for the purpose of insuring to employers the integrity of their officers, agents and employes; appropriating $25,000 for the establishment of a homeopathic college at Detroit; for the election, by direct vote, of railroad commissioners; prohibiting the unlawful wearing of G. A. R. and Loyal Legion emblems; requiring life insurance companies doing business in Michigan to invest 40 per cent. of the gross premiums received in the state in real estate securities.

TO FINISH ST. MARY'S CANAL.

Great Water-Power to Be Carried to Completion.

Detroit, Feb. 15.—Charles E. S. Osborne, of Sault Ste. Marie, state game and fish warden, has returned from Washington with the information that a company has been organized to complete the canal of the St. Mary's Falls Water Power company at an expense of nearly $3,000,000. Mr. Osborne says that there are interested in the new enterprise the great Cramps ship-building firm of Philadelphia, the Chicago Gas company and others, which are to locate the works on the new canal. The Cramps propose to establish a lake ship-building industry at the falls. There are interested in the project the Shipley Trust company and various Chicago and Philadelphia capitalists, who are now more or less concerned in the Lake Superior Power company on the Canadian side. The new syndicate is getting ready to let contracts this spring for the completion of the canal, with a 60,000-horse power capacity.

FOR A MANUFACTURING TOWN.

Chicago Capitalists Make Heavy Investments in Water Power.

Menominee, Feb. 17.—Wallis K. Cook, of Chicago, together with other capitalists, has secured 1,400 acres of land on either side of the Menominee river at White Rapids, 30 miles above this city, and now controls that water-power. The purchase of the last parcel of land was completed Tuesday. The land was purchased from a dozen or more parties, including some of the heavy lumber operators here and at Marinette. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $75,000. By harnessing the rapids, a 50-foot head can be secured, giving a 10,000 horse-power. Negotiations are now pending for the purchase of the site by a large paper mill syndicate and a town site will be platted at once. Work on the dam and log sluice way will begin this winter.

Sunday Closing at Saginaw.

Saginaw, Feb. 15.—The Anti-Saloon league inaugurated a crusade against the saloon men at this place Sunday. Every church in the city united in the formation of a local branch of the National Anti-Saloon league. "Spotters" watched the rear entrances of all saloons, but the liquor men had been warned to keep closed and not a back door was open. The authorities are in sympathy with the saloon element and will give the leaguers no assistance.

Want the Policeman Arrested.

Decatur, Feb. 13.—Petitions are being circulated in Allegan county asking the authorities to issue a warrant for the arrest of Joseph Lawyer, a policeman, on a charge of murder. Several days ago Joseph White, while resisting arrest, was shot and killed by the officer, who was exonerated by a coroner's jury. Lawyer has disappeared.

Will Assess Stockholders.

Lansing, Feb. 12.—Receiver Foster, of the People's savings bank, has petitioned the circuit court for permission to make an assessment of 100 per cent. on the stockholders. The petition will be granted and he will proceed at once to enforce payment. Even this, it is feared, will not suffice to pay the depositors in full.

Took Poison.

Traverse City, Feb. 15.—Henry Baldwin, aged 43, killed himself Saturday night by an overdose of opium. He stole quietly into the Cutler house unobserved and went to bed. His body was found at noon Sunday. He had considerable property and leaves a mother, brother and sister, who live in Wichita, Kan.

His Wish Gratified.

Zeeland, Feb. 11.—John Lamers, aged 80, had often expressed a wish that he and his wife, aged 82, might die together. He dropped dead of heart disease half an hour before her funeral Tuesday. They came from the Netherlands to the Dutch colony in 1847.

Orangemen to Meet.

Niles, Feb. 13.—The funeral of Dr. F. H. Berrick, who on Tuesday last succumbed to a stroke of paralysis, was held in this city Friday under Masonic auspices.

HORTICULTURE.

BRACING FRUIT TREES.

An Explanation of the Tripod Method and Its Advantages.

In the accompanying sketch, which represents a newly planted tree, ten feet in height, there is shown one of the most effective braces that can be provided for a subject of this size. It consists of three light oak or other stakes, about five feet in length, driven into the soil, tripod-like, each two feet away from the tree, and with the right slant to just meet the trunk with the end, as at a in the engraving. Here a piece of matting is wound around the trunk to protect it from the ends of the several stakes, which are then secured to the trunk, and to one another by means of tarred cord or by wire. Such a tree is held perfectly secure. Surely it is giving the subject the rational care which is its due in the crisis of transplanting.

To make this lesson of the tree's security the more impressive, I show a side sketch at b which indicates the bad predicament into which newly planted trees not rarely get. When I say that I have seen unstaked fall planted trees literally blown from the ground before spring, this present sketch need not be looked upon as fanciful. It represents, in fact, quite a common state. Not only does the injury come from a general loosening up of the roots and their displacement, but an opening is made around the trunk which will fill with water, which may cause damage in one of two ways; first, water that follows readily down the root hastens the softening process of the soil, and further aids the loosening of the roots; second, to have water stand next to the bark, which in case of a sudden freeze up is turned to ice, may work serious harm to the bark throughout.

The advantages of this tripod method of staking trees over the single stake plan are several; first, the tree is held more firmly in place than is possible to be done with the use of but one stake; secondly, these stakes are not driven into fresh earth, but into that just outside of the hole that was excavated and filled in during the planting process.

This method of staking is suited to trees in almost any situation. In the street, for instance, by having two of the stakes enter the soil at the curb, and these spread a little farther apart than the distance to the other stake, the tree may be brought within a foot and a half of the curb (and it should never be closer). It is at once apparent how easily the tripod may be made to serve as a tree-guard against horses and dogs by running wire, held in place by staples, horizontally from stake to stake around the tree. The first wire may be a foot above the ground to admit of the lawn mower passing underneath; above this they might be three or four inches apart.

The plan here illustrated is best suited to trees ranging from six to twelve feet in height. In the case of transplanting larger trees (except in the street) the same plan may be modified by substituting the use of wire for the stakes. In that event the stays may be attached higher up in the tree than when stakes are used; even among the branches, say at two-thirds the height of the tree, provision being of course made for attaching the wires both in the tree and at the ground. In the tree two iron half-bands fitted with L ends and short bolts should be made to tightly encircle the trunk at the proper height. To this completed band the wire stays are attached, extending to the ground. Here they are made fast to three stout stakes driven into the ground at equal distance apart and some feet away from the tree. Ordinary fence wire will answer very well for the purpose. If the trees are quite large the wire may be doubled.

Some one may say that the stakes, wires and the work involve expense. This is true, but the outlay is a mere trifle as compared to the cost and value of the tree.—Elias A. Long, in American Gardening.

Care of Young Orchards.

Peach trees are not adverse to heavy soils, but they must be well drained. Many Colorado peach orchards flourish in adobe soils. All fruit trees feel the force of drought and other hard conditions, as do grains and vegetables, and require care accordingly. Intense cultivation of young orchards makes a vigorous growth of the lateral roots, sending them deeper into the ground, insuring a hardier life to the tree. After overhauling the old orchards it may be well to give them some of the same treatment.—Farmers' Union.

Poultry manure mixed with dry earth is a good top dressing for the lawn.

ART OF GETTING ON.

Have a Definite Knowledge of Some One Thing.

I recall with shame how earnestly and how vainly a well-wisher of mine, an eminent publisher, tried many years ago to impress this fact upon my mind: "You will succeed," he used to say, "as soon as you produce what somebody wants; but not so long as your merit is only that of a woman who is struggling." In common with a great many other women not brought up to work, I had a vague sort of idea that my misfortunes were a passport and would gain me an income, says a writer in Lippincott's. Let me assure every woman similarly placed that they never will. Sympathy is readily awakened, but it is in the nature of things short-lived. Respect for effort earnest and continued is a much better ally. In an experience ranging over many years, I must honestly say that every time I have failed it has been through my own ignorance and incompetency, and that my success has been built upon failures many and severe. The best equipment that either men or women could have is definite knowledge, if it be only of one thing. The first question I ask of those who come to me for advice is: "What can you do?" If the answer is, as it almost invariably proves to be: "Anything," my heart fills with despair for the applicant. In the money-making world "anything" means "nothing." It is overrun with a vast army of incapables ready to rush in and undertake "anything." What is needed is some one who can do something as opposed as to anyone who can do anything. Competency is the only equipment that is worth anything nowadays.

JOSEPH M'KENNA.

The California Judge Will Be the New Secretary of the Interior.

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—Judge Joseph McKenna, of Suisun, has been selected for secretary of the interior in President-elect McKinley's cabinet and he has accepted.

Joseph McKenna is a native of Pennsylvania, having been born in Philadelphia August 10, 1843, and in 1855 removed with his parents to Benicia, Cal. He received a good education in the public schools of Philadelphia and at the Benicia Collegiate Institute, now St. Augustine col-

Port Huron, Feb. 6.—Judge Beach has decided for the state against H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y. The case involves the title to an island of 1,500 acres in Saginaw bay. It was first tried before Judge Swan, of the United States district court, who held in favor of Mr. Warner, but afterward sent back to the state court on the ground of jurisdiction. The case will now be taken to the United States supreme court. The verdict will affect the title of about 8,000 acres of land at St. Clair flats.

FARM AND GARDEN.

DURABLE FARM GATE.

Can Be Put in Place for About Three or Four Dollars.

The gate depicted herewith is made wholly of wrought iron. It is 2 feet 11 inches wide, the two outside pickets are 3 feet 2 inches long, and the center is 3 feet 9 inches long. The two horizontal bars, the diagonal brace and pickets are of flat iron, ¾ of an inch wide and 3-16 inch thick. The horizontals are doubled together, an eye being formed at the doubled end and space left for the pickets. The latter are slipped in between the two thicknesses of the horizontals and riveted in place. The lower horizontal is 5 inches above the bottoms of the pickets, and the upper one is 2¼ feet higher. The rivets extend through all three thicknesses of iron, far enough to be headed down. The diagonal brace is also riveted to the pickets, as shown.

The spring latch is 18 inches long, of ¼ inch flat iron, 5-16 inch thick, bent and riveted at its lower end to one of the pickets, as shown in the engraving. The hinge bolts are of ⅝ inch round iron, with an eye turned at one end, and a thread cut the entire length. The length is governed by the thickness of the post, through which they should project something more than 1 inch. A nut is run up on each clear to the eye, the bolt is then slipped through the hole in the post and a second nut turned on snugly. A rod of round ⅜ inch iron is cut 3 feet long, an eye turned at one end, and the gate, having been placed in position, this rod is slipped through the eyes of gate and bolts, and the gate is duly hung. An iron catch on the opposite post completes the arrangement. The gate may be left to swing freely either way, or an iron stop may be screwed to the post beneath the catch as illustrated. The cost of such a gate is about $3.50. — Rev. W. Gossett, in Farm and Field.

COW PEA CULTURE.

Can Be Grown on Any Soil That Is Not Too Wet.

The bunch varieties are the ones which are best adapted to growing for hay or ensilage, while the runners and trailers are valuable for soiling purposes or for turning under as green manure. The length of season required for maturity also varies greatly, the bunch varieties, as a rule, requiring only a very short season. The feeding value of cow peas, either green fed as hay, or preserved as ensilage, is very high, being considerably above that of red clover. Cow peas require a deep, rich, sandy loam, although, because of their strong root system, they are adapted to grow upon almost any soil which is not too wet. The ground should be well prepared and the seed should not be sown until the soil is thoroughly warmed. Cow peas, by the means of the tubercles on the roots, gather large amounts of nitrogen from the air, and also pump up large amounts of valuable mineral fertilizers from the subsoil. When the stubble is plowed under after the crop has been removed, these valuable fertilizing elements—potash, nitrogen and phosphoric acid—are left in the surface soil for the use of succeeding crops. At the Rhode Island experiment station the total crop of green vines per acre was 35,000 pounds, containing 137 pounds of nitrogen, 109½ pounds of potash, and 31.2 pounds of phosphoric acid, and the additional quantity estimated to be contained in the roots was 17¾ pounds of nitrogen, 10 pounds of potash and 3.15 pounds phosphoric acid. — Jared G. Smith, in Farm News.

ELECTRIC PLOWING.

German Agriculturists Are Very Much Interested in It.

The Germans are very much in earnest about electric plowing. Their National Agricultural society has arranged a prize competition among power-driven plows, intended specially to encourage and develop the application of electric power to the working of plows and other agricultural implements. In the trials non-electrical plows will also be tested, so that a comparison may be made of the relative efficiency of the different systems. Only plows will be tested, as it is considered that the power could easily be applied to other implements with but slight alterations. Special attention will be paid to the conveyance of the outfits from field to field. One prize of 3,000 marks and another of 1,000 marks will be given for the best plow driven by any kind of power, and there will be a special prize for the best electrically driven plow. A piece of heavy and a piece of light land will be assigned for tilling to each competitor. Points will be given for (1) the time taken for the plowing; (2) the weight of earth moved; (3) the consumption of fuel by the motor; (4) the power consumed between the motor and the plow; (5) the cost of the plowing, including fuel, water, lubricants, attendance, repairs, interest and depreciation.

Look over the tools in good season and see that they are in a good condition for work.

OUR PROVISION TRADE.

Holland Gets the Largest Share of America's Surplus Products.

The exports of American hams amounted last year to 130,000,000 pounds, valued at $12,000,000, and 103,000,000 pounds of this total were sent to Great Britain. The other countries with which there was considerable trade in American hams were Canada, Cuba and Belgium. The exports of bacon to Europe last year amounted to 425,000,000 pounds, of the value of $33,000,000. More than three-quarters of the product was sent to the United Kingdom, and among other countries Brazil took an important place, with imports from this country of 20,000,000 pounds, Germany following with 8,000,000, Canada with 7,000,000, Cuba with 6,000,000 and France with 4,000,000.

The exportation of lard is still another important item of American commerce, amounting last year to 510,000,000 pounds, of the value of $34,000,000. In the consumption of this article of American export the supremacy of the United Kingdom is less marked than in ham and bacon, for, although 200,000 pounds, about 40 per cent. of the total, went to England, Germany was a consumer to the extent of 120,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent. of the total. France followed with 32,000,000, Cuba with 26,000,000 and Brazil with 13,000,000 pounds. In this particular item of exports, as in other items, Cuba as a market for American produce has lost its importance since the outbreak of the Cuban war, and furnishes each month a steadily diminished market.

The exportation of fresh beef amounted last year to 225,000,000 pounds, of the value of $19,000,000, and substantially all of this, except an infinitesimal portion sent to the West Indies, was taken by Great Britain. In the exportation of salted beef from the United States to foreign countries one-half only was sent to the United Kingdom, the balance being distributed among West Indian islands, Germany, Canada and South American countries, the amount exported to Cuba amounting to less than $1,500 worth in a year.

A very large market for American tallow, the exportation of which increased enormously last year, was found in France, to which 8,600,000 pounds were sent. Germany took 6,700,000 pounds; the Central American states, 3,000,000, the West Indian islands, exclusive of Cuba, Porto Rico and Hayti, 1,250,000, and Mexico, 1,800,000. The United Kingdom, at the head of the list in tallow, as in other articles of produce in the provision trade, took 18,000,000 pounds, or about 40 per cent. of the total American exportation. More than two-thirds of the exports of American canned products of meats and provisions were taken by Great Britain—40,000,000 pounds of the 60,000,000 pounds exported. Germany took 7,500,000 pounds, France, 5,400,000, and Africa 1,500,000; 1,300,000 pounds were sent to Canada and 700,000 pounds to Asia and Oceanica, being the article of American commerce which, it would seem, is most widely diffused among the countries of the earth. There is, practically, no exportation of American mutton, and very little of fresh pork. The American exportation of canned salmon amounted last year to 21,000,000 pounds, and the American exportation of oysters amounts to about $600,000 a year.

inches long for back end, making box 4x6x23 inches inside. Hang the door in front end, arrange treadle and trigger as shown, using a couple of tacks in bottom of trap for the treadle to rest against when tilted. The treadle can be taken out for repairs when needed. A and B are made of wire; door and treadle of half-inch lumber. Dotted line D shows position of door when down. E shows track of lower edge of door when lifting to position F. A couple of staples will hold wire B in position. When the rabbit steps on treadle T, it pulls the wire B out of C, letting door fall. For door hinges, use wire nails with heads cut off, and driven into edge of door. Holes made in sides with gimlet larger than nails, to work easily, and not bored quite through.—Ohio Farmer.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

Charcoal is beneficial to hogs.

Care and fertilizers make the farm.

If there are any old ewes in the flock feed them ground feed.

Convert cheap grain into meat and send to market in that way.

A sheep well fed and cared for will shear more and better wool.

To make the most of it give the stock your personal attention.

Corn and oats mixed makes a better ration for sheep than corn alone.

During the winter is a good time to plan out the farm and the fencing.

Keep a watch on the stock and see that they do not become infested with lice.

Do what is necessary to be done, well, so that it will not be necessary to do over.

No animal should be kept that in some way will not pay for its food and give a profit.—Farmer's Union.

THAT LITTLE ROOM, TOP FLOOR.

Our dream came true, and we own—we two—
The beautiful home we planned
In the old glad times of the sweetest rhymes,
When I sought your fair, white hand—
When my heart's request was to build a nest,
"Next thing to Heaven!" I swore;
And it was, for oh, Love dwelt, you know,
In that little back room, top floor.

It seemeth well we here should dwell,
And settle us down and sup,
And sing our lays to the good old days
When we could not settle up.
"With thanks" came back my rhymes, alack!
And our hearts were sometimes sore
When the landlord sent for his past due rent
Of the little back room, top floor.

Like a fleeting year it seems, my dear,
But I know it was long ago,
For, your tresses now are no more fair
Than they were at the time—you know—
(The months my bride in a cold, deep pain,
I used to serve us more—
They were sold to stay the wolf away
From the little back room, top floor.

The gods have brought the gifts we sought,
For we own our vine and roof;
But my heart still strays to the strange, sweet days
When the Muses held aloof.
And my thought's fleet ship makes many a trip
To a far-off golden shore,
While I steal the themes for all my dreams
From that little back room, top floor.
—Nixon Waterman, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

SOCIETY AS IT IS.

Characters: Frank Blair, a husband; Mrs. Blair and Alan Kemble, friends; Laura Kemble, a wife.

Scene: Veranda at "Nolleys," Blair's country residence. Time: After lunch. Temperature 80 degrees in the shade. Mrs. Blair and Alan Kemble are discovered in wicker chairs.

Kemble (glancing at the tennis court)—What energy! but there, at 20, one is willing to play tennis under any conditions. Myself, I am—

Mrs. Blair (fanning herself)—I should say, 40, if you are a day.

Kemble (starting nervously, but recovering himself quickly)—I was not meditating any reference to my age, but for the sake of accuracy, if you will refer to your Browning Birthday Book, you will discover that I was 33 on the 1st of April last.

Mrs. Blair (doubtfully)—Thirty-five!

Kemble—The perfect age! In the full bloom of manly—of manhood!

Mrs. Blair—Thank you! If I desire an impression, I will consult Laura.

Kemble (hastily)—Do no such thing. No man is a hero to his—wife.

Mrs. Blair (laughing)—Look at those dear old sillies!

Mrs. Blair—I draw the line at playing chess with Blair.

Kemble—Chess is Laura's pet nuisance.

Mrs. Blair—Nuisance?

Kemble—Yes, it is a cultivated vice. I do not play myself, but being a perfect husband—

Mrs. Blair—A man who periodically realizes that a wife may possibly have a wish she would like gratified.

Kemble (treating the remark with the contempt he thinks it deserves)—But, being a perfect husband, I do not care that she shall pine away for want of her favorite recreation. This is the sole reason of my coming to the "Nolleys" so often.

Mrs. Blair—You mean it is why I tolerate the frequency of your visits. We are of mutual assistance to one another.

Kemble—Exactly.

Mrs. Blair—"A week's chess for Frank" scribbled on my mental diary completely subdues any feeling that he may have been hurt by my—

Kemble (murmuring)—Neglect.

Mrs. Blair (frowning)—Compulsory attendance to the demands of social life.

Kemble (enthusiastically)—And Laura, she is such a quiet little thing, with perfect simplicity of taste! She cares little for the glamor of a London season, much preferring her country home, and completely happy in the society of her—

Mrs. Blair (quickly)—Now, Frank, he would positively go nowhere unless I made—unless he thought it would give me pleasure.

Kemble (who wanted to have finished his sentence)—I wonder what a man of his disposition saw in you?

Mrs. Blair—Probably what a man generally sees in the woman he falls head over ears in love with.

Kemble—In that case, nothing; his powers of perception are temporarily removed.

Mrs. Blair (with a becoming blush)—You cannot expect me to fathom the mystery.

Kemble—I suppose not. Anyhow, you are fortunate; he is a good chess player.

Mrs. Blair—How should I know? I have only played a few games with him—soon after we met.

Kemble—Ah! I remember your infatuation for the game that week; the next you were engaged.

Mrs. Blair (thinking it is time to change the subject)—Frank thinks Laura a sensible woman.

Kemble—I have a fairly good opinion of her myself.

Mrs. Blair—And it is so convenient that they agree so well; the old dears are simply started with chess, a microscope or cribbage, and we are left entirely free to—

Kemble—Discuss politics.

Mrs. Blair—And the agricultural question. Not one little bit of anxiety. I can even have girls like Alma Stafford in the house.

Kemble—Yes. Laura and Blair give absurdly little trouble.

Mrs. Blair (thoughtfully)—They would not have been badly matched.

Kemble—Ridiculous! Married people should never be of a similar temperament. They would wish to be always together. When is a woman to know what perfect freedom is unless it is when she is married?

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 1st day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Charity Gallatin, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Rachel Gallatin administratrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of Administration thus far incurred have been fully paid, and that she is now ready to close said estate and to render her final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to the statute in such case made and provided, that she may be discharged and her bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 1st day of March next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1886 Samuel Lauzelere of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Adrian, county of Lenawee, Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plot in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith C. Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1886, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 586.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty four dollars and fifty one cents ($ 31 51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage the premises above and in said mortgage described, or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the east front door of the court house in the City of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8, A. D. 1897.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Give young trees good protection and good cultivation.

The safest plan is to plant a few fruit trees every year.

When not mulched, the winter is a good time to manure all kinds of small fruits.

In the winter when the ground is frozen hard is the best time to transplant large trees.

Feed the trees and fruit plants with an application of manure or wood ashes scattered evenly.

The demand now is for quality rather than quantity in all kinds of farm products, especially fruits.

Use wood ashes in the orchard or coal ashes on heavy clay land. Both are too valuable to be allowed to go to waste.

In pruning, cut close to the body of the tree, cut smoothly and then cover the wound with some kind of paint or varnish.

It is claimed that, as a rule, varieties of strawberries that have the most vigorous and healthy foliage are the least productive.

There are few if any kinds of fruit more easily raised or more highly prized than the different varieties of raspberries. By planting in rows sufficiently far apart to cultivate they can be grown with very little trouble.—St. Louis Republic.

Starting an Osage Hedge.

A hedge is both useful and ornamental, and also adds value to the farm. In starting a hedge, it should be protected by a fence until the plants have become of sufficient height to turn stock. Osage orange, with its prongs, can be made to keep the smallest animals out of a field if it is properly attended to during the first three years of its growth. The plants should be cut back severely, or partially cut, and the branches interwoven, a process which is tedious but necessary if a close hedge is desired. The only objection to hedges is the fact that they "draw" the land and require trimming every year, but they are cheaper than fences and will last for many years.

BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY

Governor Pingree Thinks Michigan Should Try It.

WOULD MAKE MUCH MONEY BY IT.

What the Governor Said on the Subject a Few Days Ago to Our Lansing Correspondent—Barbers of the State Want Legislation—Lee's Bill for the Execution of Murderers by Electricity—Other News of Interest from Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 18.—Governor Pingree is very much interested in the bills providing a bounty for beet sugar of Michigan production. He believes that the bounty is the proper way of getting this industry started, and has no doubt whatever that it will be a great thing for Michigan. He is convinced that there is money in it, and says that the state that makes the start is the one that will reap the greatest benefit. He is not altogether sure that this sugar beet industry does not afford a solution for the much-vexed convict labor problem. In conversation with your correspondent a few days ago he said:

"Wouldn't it be a good thing for the state to set the ball rolling by establishing a beet sugar plant. Let it be located in the heart of that section of the state which needs developing and which promises the best returns in the way of sugar beets. The farmers would then have a sure market for their crops and would be encouraged to make their land yield the best possible returns. What if a beet sugar plant does cost several hundred thousand dollars? It would be a permanent and growing investment. Not only that, but it would pave the way for a permanent and growing industry which has never been tried by the farmers of Michigan, and would cause worthless lands to yield handsome returns. My experience has been that the people never kick on the outlay of money in the way of permanent investments which are sure to yield good returns. It is the frivolous and useless expenditures that they protest against.

The Purchase of Belle Isle.

"I have had nearly eight years' experience in Detroit, and make this statement advisedly. Take the purchase of Belle Isle, for instance. That cost us $381,191. That's a big sum of money, but the people of Detroit would not sell the island for $10,000,000. Even as times are now we could get $5,000,000 for it, enough to pay the entire bonded indebtedness of the city and leave us a balance of $1,500,000. Not a very bad investment was it? And yet some people howled when it was made. You don't hear any howl now, though. So it would be with the beet sugar factory, in my opinion. If the state established such a plant it would not only provide the convicts with work in which they would not compete greatly with free labor, but the farmers would be furnished with a market for their crops at a good price.

"I believe in the convict farm idea, too. That was mentioned in my message to the legislature. There is no reason why these convicts could not be set to work farming in stockades. Let them build the stockades out of logs or lumber just as the prison stockades were built during the war. I was in two of them for a long time and I know something about them. Then when it was not the proper season for farming, the convicts could replace the temporary stockades with overhanging brick walls, and we would have something permanent. We build at all seasons of the year now, winter as well as summer, and there is no reason why this building could not be done when it is too cold to farm.

Best Work for Convicts.

"The state has use for all the farm produce the convicts would raise, so that competition with the farmer would be reduced to a minimum. They might do a good deal of experimenting in the way of raising various crops not now raised in Michigan, and give the Michigan farmer the benefit of the experience thus gained. This would have a tendency to raise the standard of farming in Michigan, and with such a raise would come better prices for the better produce. People have always got to depend on the farms for what they put in their stomachs. There is nothing temporary about the farming industry, and for this reason it is one of the very best kinds of work the convicts can be put at."

Again, referring to the sugar beet industry, Governor Pingree mentioned the marvelous growth of the industry in Germany, France and other foreign countries where the annual production of beet sugar has assumed enormous proportions. He expressed himself in favor of paying a bounty of 1 cent per pound for all beet sugar manufactured in Michigan, such payment, however, to cease whenever the congress shall provide a bounty for the country generally. He also thought it might be well to fix in the bill the minimum price per ton Michigan farmers should be paid for their sugar beets.

The committee on state affairs in the house has reported a substitute for the Dudley beet sugar bill. The substitute provides a bounty of 1 cent per pound to manufacturers, $5,000 being appropriated for this purpose for each of the ensuing two years. The bill also provides a minimum price of $4 per ton to be paid to Michigan farmers for their beets.

Barbers Want Legislation.

The barbers of the state are after legislation this year. Two years ago a number of Detroit barbers came out here and secured the enactment of a law requiring that all barber shops be kept open on Sunday. Now the same fellows are sick of their bargain and want the law repealed. The indications are, however, that they will have to get along with the law as it is. Another tonsorial proposition calls for the creation of a state commission to be composed of three members to be appointed by the governor. This is to be known as the state tonsorial commission. The bill provides that it shall be a misdemeanor for any person to shave or cut hair for pay in Michigan who does not hold a certificate from the commission to the effect that he is qualified to do this work. The fee for a certificate is $5. By the terms of the bill the commission is to have sole power to determine the qualifications necessary, and may require the applicant for a license to undergo such an examination as it sees fit to prescribe. This bill was indorsed by the Michigan Federation of Labor at its annual meeting held here in December.

Execution by Electricity.

The fact that there are nearly 100 life convicts being supported by the taxpayers of Michigan led Representative Lee of Lapeer to give notice early in the session of a bill prescribing death by electricity for persons convicted of murder in the first degree. Mr. Lee has been ill at his home for the past fortnight and for this reason the bill has not yet been introduced. It doubtless will be, however, before the constitutional limit of fifty days provided for the introduction of bills expires on the 25th inst. There is no reason to believe that the bill will pass. Some ten years ago the late Congressman Ford of Grand Rapids, who was then a member of the legislature, succeeded in getting a hanging bill through the house, but it was killed in the senate. That is the nearest this state has ever come in over two score years to killing its citizens who are found guilty of murder in the first degree. Such a bill has been introduced at nearly every session since then, but the number of its supporters diminished rather than increased. Representative Chamberlain, who led the opposition to the bill two years ago, is of the same opinion still, and says that the Lee bill will be promptly killed. It will probably be news to most of the citizens of Michigan, as it was to me, that this state has never, by an act of the legislature, abolished capital punishment. The popular idea for years has been that this mode of punishment was abolished by law years ago, but such is not the case. The statute still provides that when a person is sentenced to death he shall be dispatched by hanging, and the death penalty is still provided for persons convicted of treason. It appears that the only abolishing that has been done is that the revision of the laws in 1846 simply left the provision that death should be by hanging, but neglected to provide that such penalty should be visited upon other than persons convicted of treason. Chief Clerk Miller, who has just completed the compilation of the laws of Michigan provided for by the last legislature is authority for the statement that Michigan has never repealed the death penalty.

All Kinds of Bills.

The constitutional limit within which bills may be introduced will expire on the 24th inst., and the indications are that the record of two years ago will be equalled if not surpassed. The bills thus far introduced cover pretty much everything imaginable, but there is yet plenty of time for the appearance of any number of measures which the ordinary individual has not yet even dreamed of.

It is a fact, too, that unless the legislators make a spurt the present session will last well along into the summer, for it must be admitted that no considerable amount of business has been accomplished thus far. The members generally concede that the record is not one which they can "point to with pride," and Uncle Ben Colvin, the white-haired member from Saginaw, very forcibly informed his fellow members in open session a few days since that if they continued to sit there and squander the people's money by doing nothing, it would not be very long "before one-half of us will be in jail and the balance in the poor house."

The Liquor Question.

Both sides propose to have an inning on the liquor question, but there is every reason for believing that the anti-saloon element will be able to carry whatever measures they determine to put through. A number of restrictive measures are in the course of preparation, but none have yet been introduced. One of these provides for a uniform tax of $750, which would be an increase of $500 over the present tax. Another will propose a tax ranging from $500 to $750 according to the population of the place in which the business is carried on, and the closing of saloons in all parts of the state at 9 o'clock at night. Then there will be the anti-saloon league bill to extend the provisions of the local option law to cities, townships and wards. On the other hand the saloon men have had notice of bills permitting them to secure bondsmen anywhere within the county, instead of being restricted to the city or township as by the present law; also to permit them to keep their places of business open on all except religious holidays. The days they most desire to do business are Fourth of July and Labor day. It hardly seems probable from the make up of the two houses, more especially the lower house, that the liquor men will be able to secure any concessions whatever.

Consternation Among Candidates.

The action of President Cleveland in signing the order abolishing the Detroit pension agency caused considerable consternation here where each of the numerous candidates for pension agent had friends working in his interests. These candidates were ex-Senator O. A. Janes of Hillsdale; Gad Smith of Marquette, George W. Crawford of Big Rapids, Colonel William A. Gavett of Detroit. Ex-Auditor General Stanley W. Turner was also frequently mentioned in connection with the office. Several of the candidates had friends among the legislators industriously securing signatures to a petition in their behalf, but this work ceased abruptly when the president's order was published. These candidates are now very much in the situation of the group of small boys who were watching a more fortunate youngster as he disposed of a very large apple. After they had begged for bites, without success, until all hope of securing them had vanished, they united in an appeal that they be given the core, but were waved aside by the young autocrat who gave them to distinctly understand that "there ain't going to be no core."

There is much speculation as to whether President McKinley will revoke his predecessor's order with reference to the pension agencies. Those who hope that he will point to the fact that President Harrison established a precedent by revoking Cleveland's order discontinuing the agency at Augusta, Me. The consensus of opinion, however, is that the present order will be permitted to stand, the plea that it is in the interest of economy being too strong to ignore under existing financial conditions.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

Interesting Gossip from All Sections of Michigan.

Hart sends out a report that peach buds of the early varieties have been killed in that vicinity.

Veen Marvin, a woodsman of McBain, was killed by a falling tree, leaving a widow and one child.

An insane patient at the Pontiac asylum, aged 42 years, committed suicide by hanging himself with a pair of suspenders.

Constable Lawyer, who shot and killed Farmer White, near Hopperton, Allegan county, was exonerated by the coroner's jury.

State Oil Inspector McMillan reports the net receipts of his office at $11,623.75. The inspection was 25,900 gallons less than in 1895.

Kalamazoo celery growers propose to form a combination to lessen competition by refusing to sell young plants to growers outside their district.

A seven-year-old son of Charles Grennell, a farmer of Pine Lake, Ingham county, died suddenly. There is suspicion of poison and the stomach has been sent to Ann Arbor for analysis.

The citizens of Grand Marais desire to form a new county to be named after Gov. Pingree. The proposed district would inclose Grand Marais, Seney, Germfask and Deere Park. It would have 3,500 people, and comprise portions of Alger, Luce and Schoolcraft counties.

Many Berrien county farmers and growers of small fruits are planning to engage in the extensive culture of melons for the city market this season. One grower last year raised 50 acres of Osage melons and shipped over 10,000 crates to Chicago at a higher profit than is made on many other kinds of fruit.

There is no cloud without its silver lining. The Grand river has been overflowing its banks and causing much anxiety to the citizens of Portland for some time past, but it has, in doing so, given the river front such a thorough cleaning as it has not had for many years, carrying away all kinds of rubbish which has been accumulating.

Hostile to Silver Democrats.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 16.—Chairman W. K. Shelby, of the sound money democratic state committee, issued a formal call for the state convention in this city March 3 Monday, and it is stated that all voters in sympathy with true democracy and the Indianapolis platform will be entitled to seats. It is expected the attendance will be large, and the national chairman, W. D. Bynum, will deliver an address. The call is thoroughly hostile to the silver democracy, and says: "In our ranks is the place for every man who wants to be considered a democrat; and does not not want to become a populist."

Well-Known Lady Dead.

Manistee, Feb. 11.—At 2:30 Wednesday afternoon Evelyn Peters, wife of Hon. Richard G. Peters, of this city, died after a sickness of several years. Mrs. Peters was 64 years old last summer. Her life was almost entirely devoted to benevolence and charity, her influence and work having been very powerful in the works of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, of which organization she was an active and honored member. Evelyn hall at Bay View and Union hall in this city are monuments of her generosity.

Queer Cave Discovered.

Kalamazoo, Feb. 12.—Harvey Wolf discovered a cave about ten miles southeast of here while hunting. It is eight feet square and five feet deep and contains evidences of having been used as the abode of men many years ago. In one corner fires had been built, there being an opening in one corner beside the nearly covered place of entrance. There were queer pottery and cans in the den. It had probably been the home of mound builders. A cherry tree had grown in the earth that covered the cave.

Appropriations for Michigan.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12. — The house committee on appropriations has finished the sundry civil appropriation bill for the next fiscal year. Michigan appropriations are: Two thousand dollars for an additional Range light, Grand Marais harbor; completing two revenue steamers on the great lakes, $200,000; completing the improvement of the channel connecting the great lakes, $1,000,000; improving the waterways from Keweenaw bay to Lake Superior, $400,000.

Will Escape Trial.

Decatur, Feb. 13.—The case against ex-Cashier John L. Kleckner, of the broken Citizens' bank at Edwardsburg, for alleged embezzlement of $15,600, has been dropped by the directors on his bondsmen paying $7,000. The stockholders will be assessed $9,000 to pay depositors in full.

Congratulate Alger.

Detroit, Feb. 16.—Gen. and Mrs. R. A. Alger were tendered a reception at the Detroit club Monday evening in honor of the general's appointment as member of the cabinet. The leading people of the city joined in the congratulations offered.

Famous Infidel Dead.

Buchanan, Feb. 12.—Joseph Coveney, an old resident, aged 92, died Thursday. Coveney was famous as an infidel, having erected a $3,000 monument in the cemetery here covered with inscriptions that caused great excitement at the time.

Centenarian Frozen to Death.

Decatur, Feb. 15.—Mrs. James Nuby, 104 years old, was found frozen to death at her home in Arlington township, where she had lived alone for nearly 50 years. She was supposed to be the oldest person in southwestern Michigan.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 12. — L. W. Prague, of Greenville, has been brought out as a candidate for department commander of the G. A. R., and this boom will be actively pushed from now on.

MARVELOUS CURES!

—BY—

DR. W. C. WAKLER,

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon of Detroit, Mich., formerly of New York, will make the following regular monthly visits:

TECUMSEH

Lilley House

Friday, Feb. 26

Adrian, Thurs., Feb. 25.

The most successful method in Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consultation and Examinations Free to All.

Dr. Walker will not Treat any Unless There is a Possibility of a Cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected and many diseases or complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will describe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: I was sick for many years, my case was known for miles around, was helped to Doctor Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration.

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Mr. Wm. Redman says also, that he had been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catrrrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

FAVORS REFORM.

Bill to Adopt Civil Service Methods in This State.

A Synopsis of Its Provisions—Fight Between the Governor and Senate Continues—Pingree Will Not Withdraw Luce's Name.

(Special Correspondence.)

Lansing, Feb. 22.—A civil service bill has been presented in the house. It will affect all cities of over 20,000 population and all counties of over 100,000 population. It provides for a nonpartisan state civil service commission to consist of three members, appointive by the governor and to be confirmed by the senate, each to draw a salary of $2,000 per year and expenses. The commission and governor are to draft rules for classifying the service, and it is made the duty of the commission to as rapidly as possible bring all offices, places and employments in the public service into the classified service. The bill exempts from the service elective officers, officers confirmed by the senate, the heads of any principal department and their deputies and secretary and stenographer of the governor and mayors. An appropriation of $10,000 is asked for the carrying out of the law.

Gov. Pingree has won the first round in his fight with the senate over his nominations, two of his appointees having been confirmed. The vote was far from unanimous and the discussion in executive session was heated and protracted. The nominations confirmed were Fred H. Case, of Three Rivers, as inspector-general, and A. C. Bird, of Oakland, as member of the state board of agriculture. Two more nominations are still hung up and Gov. Pingree in an open letter has refused to act on the suggestion that he withdraw the nomination of ex-Gov. Luce for a place on the prison board. He says Luce's exceptional qualifications are conceded and that they are in no wise impaired by his position on the silver question. He proposes to force the senate to act on the nomination.

The fight between the governor and the senate has been further intensified by the introduction of a bill requiring the executive to send in his nominations to fill vacancies during the legislative session. If such nominations are not made before the final adjournment of the legislature the incumbents are to continue in office until the next session. It is believed that Gov. Pingree has decided to wait until after the senate adjourns, and then to name Prof. Bemis, formerly of the University of Chicago, to be commissioner of labor.

A large number of new bills are directed at corporations. One of them seeks to repeal the special charters of the Michigan Central and Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad companies, and another provides for the taxation of express companies, the rate being one dollar on each $100 of gross earnings in Michigan.

A special committee of five will be appointed by the house to investigate and report on complaints of violation of the law governing freight charges by railroad companies. Correspondence has been had with aggrieved shippers and the committee will go into the subject thoroughly.

Bills making sweeping reductions in official salaries have been noticed in the senate. They make a cut of $1,000 a year in the salaries of supreme justices, and from $300 to $500 in those of the heads of bureaus and deputy state officials. The maximum salary of department clerks is fixed at $720, a reduction of $280. A proportionate reduction is proposed in the pay of employes of the house and senate. A still further saving is sought to be made by a board which provides that during the next two years no state publications, except the laws of the present session and the red book, shall be printed.

A bill was introduced into the lower house of the legislature Friday morning by Representative Peters, of Ishpeming, which, if it passes, will enable the pugilists to pull off their mills in Michigan. It legalizes fighting with five-ounce gloves under the auspices of athletic clubs in buildings owned by the club, or which they have occupied for one year.

The latest freak bill to find its way before the legislature was introduced Tuesday night by Representative Donovan. It provides for a tax on bachelors, who are required to pay a tax of $25 a year for the ten years between the ages of 35 and 45.

A bill for the purpose of wiping out department stores has been introduced in the house. It classifies the lines of business which may be carried on in one establishment and groups certain classifications which may be included in department stores. These are to pay a license fee of $500 a year, and a heavy penalty is provided for violations of the law relative to the lines of goods that may be handled.

A proposition has been made to amend the constitution so as to make the regents of the university subject to legislative direction. At present the board cannot be coerced to act in any matter against its judgment.

Among the bills noticed or introduced in the legislature last week were the following:

Providing for a state board of health commission; providing a license fee for persons operating threshing machines; providing for examination of all corporations by the commissioner of banking; prohibiting killing deer in the lower peninsula; prohibiting pool selling; prohibiting the practice of vivisection; providing a bicycle corps of the Michigan national guard, to be armed with rifles; providing for the enactment of the Georgia anti-trust law; amending the liquor law so that saloons may be kept open on all holidays except Thanksgiving day and Christmas, and empowering councils of cities to fix the hours during which saloons may do business anywhere from four o'clock in the morning until 12:30 at night; amending liquor law, making retail license $750 and wholesale license $1,500, to provide that no person employed in a newspaper office shall be compelled to disclose source of information; to provide for the display of United States flags over school buildings; to prohibit the keeping open of photograph galleries on Sunday; to provide for the inspection of trees, shrubs, vines, etc., imported from other states; to prohibit the shooting or hunting of wild game on Sunday and providing for a penalty therefor.

EMMETT.

REPUBLICANS MEET.

The Convention at Detroit Nominates a Ticket.

Detroit, Feb. 24.—More than 1,000 delegates were present when Chairman Ferry rapped to order the state republican convention on Tuesday, called to nominate a justice of the supreme court and two regents of the university. Chairman Ferry introduced Gen. R. A. Alger as temporary chairman. The next secretary of war was greeted with great enthusiasm. He urged Michigan republicans to set the pace and make a mark in this state election for coming elections.

After adoption of the report of the committee on credentials Tuesday afternoon the resolutions committee reported briefly, congratulating the country on the victory of last November, reaffirming the last national platform and reasserting that the triumph of republican principles would restore the country to that condition of prosperity which it always enjoyed under republican supremacy. The resolutions also commended the present state administration.

Judge Long, of the supreme court, was renominated by acclamation, as was also W. J. Cocker, of Adrian, for regent of the University of Michigan.

The struggle of the day came on the nomination of a second regent of the university. There were several very warm nominating and seconding speeches. The advocates of the re-election of Regent Barbour, a gold democrat, argued that since their candidate last year sacrificed political preferment to follow the banner of McKinley, and since he had rendered distinguished service to the university, he should be the convention's choice. They asserted that the republican party, at this time especially, could afford to be generous to a gentleman of undoubted talent who was willing to run upon the St. Louis platform.

The other speakers declared that they were sent there as republicans to nominate republicans. They opposed fusion in any form and declared that if patriotism had, in the cases of some democrats, risen above partisanship it was commendable, but that such virtue should be its own reward. It was asserted that if the new congress did its duty such men would be opposed to its action and six months hence might be fighting the republicans.

The candidates named were: Levi L. Barbour, Detroit; E. D. Nelson, Ironwood; Joseph R. McLaughlin, Detroit; James M. Wilkinson, Marquette, and Charles D. Lawton, of Van Buren county.

The first vote by counties resulted: Barbour, 372; Nelson, 154; McLaughlin, 247; Wilkinson, 132; Lawton, 189; necessary to a choice, 548. The second ballot gave Barbour, 362; Nelson, 70; McLaughlin, 303; Wilkinson, 40; Lawton, 301. The third ballot narrowed the contest to Lawton and McLaughlin, but the former made such gains that all the delegates went over to him and Lawton was declared the unanimous nominee.

Before adjournment resolutions were enthusiastically adopted thanking President-elect McKinley for Gen. Alger's appointment to the cabinet.

NEW OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Meeting of the State League of Republican Clubs.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23.—The Michigan League of Republican clubs held its annual convention at the Cadillac hotel here Monday afternoon, about 300 delegates being present. The report of Secretary Meginnity showed that at the present time there were 349 clubs in the Michigan league, with a membership of 30,000. The following officers were elected: President, E. N. Dingley, of Kalamazoo; vice president, Grant Fellows, of Hudson; treasurer, Frank S. Waite, of Sturgis; secretary, Bingley R. Fales, of Detroit. Delegates to the National League of Republican clubs were also elected by districts.

Editors at a Banquet.

Detroit, Feb. 24.—Michigan editors were handsomely entertained Tuesday night by a banquet tendered them by the proprietors of the Hotel Cadillac. An exquisite menu was served. Over 500 members of the Michigan Press association and ladies, with many other Detroit newspaper men, enjoyed the dinner. Theodore E. Quinby, editor of the Free Press, was the toastmaster, and there was a long list of responses, including an impromptu response by Judge Albion W. Tourgee, of New York.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Closing Session of the Fifty-Fourth Congress.

Measures of Importance Presented in Both the Senate and House—A Daily Summary of the Proceedings.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The immigration bill now goes to the president, the last legislative step having been taken in the senate yesterday by an agreement to the conference report on the bill. It adds to the classes of excluded aliens all persons over 16 years of age who cannot read the English language or some other language—except that admissible immigrants may bring with them, or send for, illiterate parents or grandparents (over 50 years of age), wives and minor children. It also prohibits from employment on public works aliens who come regularly or habitually into the United States for the purpose of engaging in any mechanical trade or manual labor, and who have not made declaration of intention to become American citizens. A favorable report was made on the bill to prevent conspiracies to blacklist. The credentials of Senator Morrill (rep., Vt.) for his sixth senatorial term from the 4th of March next were placed on file.

Washington, Feb. 19.—In the senate yesterday the bill to extend the use of the mail service, providing for using a patent postal card and envelope with coupons attached, was passed, and the arbitration bill was further discussed. A motion to postpone further action until March 5 was offered by Senator Nelson, but no action was taken.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The open session of the senate yesterday lasted for only half an hour. Two conference reports on pension bills were agreed to—one giving $50 a month to the widow of Gen. Stoneman, and the other $75 a month to Gen. Julius H. Stahl. In executive session the arbitration treaty was discussed, but no result was accomplished beyond voting down a motion to postpone further consideration of the treaty until March 5.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The Indian appropriation bill was discussed in the senate on Saturday, but no action was taken. A resolution offered by Senator Cameron (rep., Pa.) extending sympathy to the government of Greece in its intervention to free the people of Crete "from the tyranny of foreign oppressors, and to restore peace, with the blessing of Christian civilization, to that distressed island," was unanimously adopted.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The annual senatorial observance of Washington's birthday by having his farewell address read took place yesterday in the presence of a large audience, Senator Daniel (Va.) being the reader. The remainder of the day was occupied in the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill, which was not concluded at the time of adjournment.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The senate made slow progress yesterday on the appropriation bills, disposing of only one item of the Indian bill. A resolution was adopted asking the president for information as to the death of Dr. Ruiz at Guanabacoa, Cuba.

The House.

Washington, Feb. 18.—In the house yesterday the conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was adopted.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The general deficiency bill ($8,438,937) was reported in the house yesterday. In the case of Hopkins vs. Kendall, from the Tenth district of Kentucky, Hopkins, the republican contestant, was seated.

Washington, Feb. 20.—In the house yesterday the time was occupied in discussing the general deficiency bill. At the evening session private pension bills were considered.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The time was spent in the house on Saturday in discussion of the general deficiency bill, which was not finished. A favorable report was made on the senate bill for an international monetary conference.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The house passed the general deficiency appropriation bill yesterday and began the consideration of the last of the money bills, that providing for the naval establishment, 16 of the 48 pages being completed.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Most of the session of the house yesterday was spent in consideration of the naval appropriation bill. A bill was passed, after several members had declared the civil service law a humbug, giving the governors of territories the power to remove as well as to appoint certain territorial officers. A resolution was introduced directing the president to demand of the Spanish authorities in Cuba the immediate restoration to liberty of every American citizen, native born or naturalized, now imprisoned by them in the island of Cuba.

A HOPELESS CASE.

BY CLARA MULHOLLAND.

"It will pinch me sore, Lydia," said Mr. Waddilove, sadly. "Things are in a bad way with me just now, and it will be a great expense."

"We must make sacrifices sometimes for the sake of our children, James," replied his wife, severely. "I wonder you could hesitate for a moment."

"Do you? Well, don't, and I can't see the necessity for such a move. Why shouldn't the girls be happy at home? Why should they require a season in London? What good will it do them?"

"Had I not spent those two months in town with Aunt Susan long ago, James, I'd never have met you."

"Humph," he granted, "how do you know? You were my fate. I'd have met you somehow."

Mrs. Waddilove shrugged her shoulders and smiled; then, folding her arms upon her lap, sighed heavily.

"I'm not a believer in fate. I put my faith on opportunity."

"Well, who knows, an opportunity may arise."

"Here? In this quiet country place, where no man comes from year end to year end? Impossible. Miriam and Selina are 23 and 22. They are pretty, fair, attractive girls, but their youth is passing, and if they go on as they are doing, they must live and die unknown and unsought. We shall have three old maids to provide for—"

"Poor little Madge, too. Well, you do look far ahead. The child is barely 18."

"O," with a quick decision, "she is a hopeless case. A plain girl like Madge is as well in the country as in town. Fate or opportunity would do little for her. But the others are different."

"Very," he said, grimly. "So you would not take Madge to London?"

"Of course not. She will keep house and look after you."

"Yet she would enjoy the theaters and the various sights. At 18—"

"It would be a waste of money to take Madge, and she is quite happy at home."

He smiled, and the expression of his face changed; his eyes grew soft and tender.

"Thank God, yes. And Madge and I will be very happy together."

"She was always your favorite; so it's a good thing you are not likely to lose her."

"Yes," thoughtfully, "and yet, if anyone came to know her and her sweet, bright nature, he—"

"Don't be afraid. Sweet natures don't count for much nowadays. Beauty or money is a necessity. As Madge has neither—"

"Poor little girl. Then the love of her old father must suffice. When do you think of going?"

"At once," Mrs. Waddilove cried, rejoiced to find him give in so easily. "Lady Grantley has a ball on Thursday, Mrs. Townley one on the following Monday, and more are sure to turn up. As soon as Miriam and Selina are seen invitations will pour in. They will both be engaged before the end of the season, of that I am certain."

II.

The Manor house was flooded with sunshine. Every window was wide open, and every room full of the scent of roses, the perfume of new mown hay.

Mrs. Waddilove and her two handsome daughters, Miriam and Selina, had been gone some six weeks, and as yet showed no signs of returning. Madge and her father had grown accustomed to their absence, and felt no very strong desire to see them come back. They were the best of friends, these two, and perfectly happy in each other's society.

In the presence of her mother and her good-looking sisters, Madge had been shy, quiet and reserved. But alone with her dear old father, whom she adored, the gayety of her heart asserted itself, her whole nature expanded, and she became what she had never been before—a merry, laughing, bewitching little maiden.

"With such a pair of dancing dark eyes, and such a bright, happy face, who could call my Madge plain?" thought her father one day as he watched her flit backwards and forwards among the roses. "But I'm glad she did not go to London. Somehow, the world might rub off the bloom—bring sorrow to her loving little heart—and I want her to be happy always."

Across the lawn came one of the gardeners in hot haste.

"If you please, sir," he said, pausing in front of his master, "there's been an accident, just at the gate—a gentleman thrown from his bicycle by a—"

"Dear me, dear me, is he hurt?" cried the old man, starting up.

"I'm afraid, sir, he's sprained his ankle. He seemed in pain."

"He must come in, Madge," he called. "Madge, get the vinegar, bandages; there has been an accident. I'm going to bring the man in. Get everything ready."

"Yes," answered Madge, and, laying aside her roses, she ran into the house.

III.

Three weeks later Madge strolled beneath the lime trees, a tall, fair man by her side.

"You are walking better to-day," she said. "I think your ankle is almost well."

He sighed and dug his stick into the sward.

"I fear so."

Madge laughed merrily. "How ungrateful! And surely a sprained ankle is not a pleasant thing?"

"It has been a piece of real good fortune to me," he replied, earnestly, "for through it I made the best friends I ever had—you and your father."

"I'm glad you think so, and I assure you," looking up with a bright, sweet glance, "father and I feel it was a lucky accident for us, Gilbert. We have had a pleasant time since you came to us."

"And I? O, Madge, if you could only realize what it has been for me! Since my father and mother died, when I was nine, 18 years ago, I have known little but loneliness; and I came down to the Warren for the first time since I came of age, never guessing the delightful neighbors I should find there. That evening I went out on my bicycle to while away an hour, when luck, in the shape of a clumsy van, bowled me over in front of your gate. But now the happy time is at an end, and I feel that I must go home."

"Yes," Madge sighed, "I suppose you must. And, you see, perhaps it is just as well. Mother and the girls are coming back, and then things will be different."

"But you will be the same?"

"I?" blushing and dimpling. "Not quite; everyone, even the dear old dad, changes when they are about. You see, our positions are not what they are when far away. We are no longer master and mistress. We go nowhere, see no one, speak when we're spoken to—"

"O, Madge!" He reddened and looked at her in dismay. "That's rather much. But I'll tell you what—you and your father must come and pay me a long visit. My home is charming. I've got servants and horses, and—and everything to make you happy, and we'll have all our nice time over again."

"It—it sounds delightful. But," her lips trembled, "mother would not allow me to go. You see, I am not out. I am the youngest. Miriam would go. She's the eldest, and very handsome, with a tall, slight figure, fair hair, blue—" Her eyes filled with tears. "O, you—you will surely like Miriam, and—and forget your poor Madge."

"You know I won't," he cried, vehemently. "And I don't want Miriam, and I don't care whether she's handsome or not. I want you. And, what's more, I'll insist upon your coming."

Madge gazed at him in open-eyed astonishment.

"You don't know mother, Gilbert," she said, solemnly. "Not one of us dare turn the word with her, and if she told me—"

"But if it—if it—if the Warren was to be one day your home," he stammered, catching her hand and drawing her towards him. "If—O, Madge; we have known each other three whole weeks. We have spent hours of the day together, we have talk over everything. You know me, all about me, bad and good, and I know you"—his voice shook with emotion—"and I love you."

"O, Gilbert," she gasped. "Gilbert."

"My darling, I have startled, alarmed you. But if you could love me—be my wife?"

"Poor, plain little me?" She raised her eyes, then turned them quickly away, her face crimson, her whole frame trembling, her heart full of a new-sweet joy.

"To me, as you stand thus and always, you are beautiful, for I love you above everything on earth. Madge, answer me."

"Yes," she whispered low; "yes"—then laid her face upon his breast.

The following afternoon, some three or four hours earlier than they were expected, Mrs. Waddilove, Miriam and Selina arrived at the Manor house.

As he stood watching his men stacking the hay, Mr. Waddilove was informed that his wife and daughters had come home, and, without an instant's delay, he hurried to greet them! The three ladies were tired after their journey, and answered his various inquiries with but scant courtesy. Then, as Madge did not appear to welcome her, her mother became extremely irate.

"My dear, she has gone for a walk," her husband said, soothingly. "She—she will not be long."

"A walk alone at this late hour? You are a strange person to have charge of a young girl, James. I suppose Madge has done exactly as she pleased while I was away? But that will soon be changed. Out for a walk alone—"

"She is not alone, dear," he began, knowing full well she was with Gilbert, and wondering how he should break the news of her engagement to her mother. "She's with—a friend."

"Well, this sort of thing must be put a stop to."

"Yes, yes, of course. But have you any news for me, Lydia?"

She glared at him. "None," she answered sharply.

"Then your time has been wasted. The opportunities were of no avail? Miriam and Selina have made no conquest."

"You are rude, Mr. Wadd—. And I am glad the poor girls have gone upstairs."

"I don't mean to be rude, dear. I am content to keep my daughters at home. I was only following up the conversation that led to your going to London. I believed in a sweet, bright nature, and fate. You put faith in what you called beauty—and opportunities. Without boasting or in any way annoying you, I wish to say, without taking any credit to myself, that my idea was the right one; that here, in our home, Madge and I have been more successful."

Mrs. Waddilove flounced over to the window.

"Pray explain—"

She stopped abruptly and put up her pince-nez, as a slim little girl in pink cotton walked across the lawn in close conversation with a fair, blue-eyed man.

"Madge?" she cried. "And who, pray, is her companion?"

"That," he said, hurrying to her side, "is Gilbert Hastings, the wealthy young owner of the Warren, and our Madge's affianced husband."

"Good heavens." She sank into a chair with a cry. "But—but be generous, James. Do not triumph over me too much."

He took her hand and pressed it to his lips.

"Nothing, my dear, is farther from my thoughts, and I am very glad that you have come home to rejoice with me at our child's great happiness."—London Sketch

Is it "overwork" that has filled this country with nervous dyspeptics?—that takes the flesh off their bones, the vitality from their blood, and makes them feeble, emaciated and inefficient? No. It is bad cooking, overeating of indigestible stuff, and other health-destroying habits.

The remedy is an artificially digested food such as Shaker Digestive Cordial. Instead of irritating the already inflamed stomach, the Cordial gives it a chance to rest by nourishing the system itself and digesting other food taken with it. So flesh and strength return. Is not the idea rational? The Cordial is palatable and relieves immediately. No money risked to decide on its value. A 10c. trial bottle does that.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

A DOCTOR'S VISIT.

Dr. Hartman's Free Visit to Every Family in the United States.

How can that be? you ask. How can Dr. Hartman visit every family in the United States? This is the way: This little article goes into every home. Every one has the privilege of reading it. Through this article Dr. Hartman speaks to every family. He asks if any in this house is sick. If so, would you not like to consult me as to the nature of your disease and its treatment? If you would like me to do so, I will give your case careful attention. I have a large institution and many assistants and am in a position to detect the nature of diseases where they could not possibly be detected by the ordinary physician. If you want to consult me just write me and give a description of your case and I will answer you free of charge, giving you full directions for treatment. This is the way Dr. Hartman makes a free visit to every family in the United States. He has just called on you. Do you wish to consult him? Or you may send and get a question blank to fill out if you prefer. All letters received by him are strictly confidential. Have you catarrh of the head, throat, lungs, stomach or any other organ of the body? If so, write to him at once. He will send you directions for treatment without charge.

If you desire, you can send for a free copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh and the other climatic diseases of winter—64 pages instructively illustrated. Sent free to any address by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

For Your Protection.

Catarrh "cures" in liquid form to be taken internally, usually contain Mercury or Iodide of Potassa, or both, which are injurious if too long taken. Catarrh is a local, not a blood disease, caused by cold and damp weather. It starts in the nasal passages. Cold in the head, if repeatedly neglected, results in catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 26, 1897.

The time has now come when the people of Tecumseh must decide whether they wish the Lima Northern to come to Tecumseh or not. The surveyers are now at work in and about Adrian and grading will commence inside of two weeks. Even the iron has been purchased for the 68 miles between Adrian and Detroit. Now, as before stated, do the people of Tecumseh desire the road or not? The HERALD has heard rumors about the village that, as Adrian has secured her bonus and the promise of the road, it would come to Tecumseh anyway and on account of these rumors a representative of the HERALD has taken steps to find out if possible the exact state of affairs, and with authority, can state the case as follows: The extension of the Lima Northern will be built from Adrian to Detroit and at once. The route is being determined upon as fast as possible. Tecumseh must raise $8,000 or she will not get the road. A party of men, headed by E. R. Smith, of Clinton have said to the railroad men "Come with your road to Clinton and we will raise you $8,000." The company have given their proposition no consideration and will not do so until the people of Tecumseh decide they cannot raise the money and do not care for the road. The HERALD claims that Tecumseh needs the road. A direct line to Detroit should enable us to compete with Adrian, Hudson and Britton in paying prices for farm products which item alone will more than pay the bonus in one year. During the construction the merchants of Tecumseh should reap a good harvest and get back much of the money necessary for them to subscribe. The benefits of the road cannot be enumerated in this column. The damage it would do Tecumseh to cut us off and start a town west of us is too serious to even be considered. The committee is now at work and will, it is trusted, meet with a proper reception, that their work may be finished quickly as the matter must be settled within 10 days.

A LETTER FROM AFRICA.

Dr. W. N. Fowler Writes Interestingly About the Dark Continent.

Goree, Cape Verde, Africa.
Jan'y 14, 1897.

Thinking that perhaps some of my friends might be interested in my trip to Africa, I send you a letter that I hope will interest some of them. We will drop anchor in about an hour off Goree, the first place of stopping on the African coast. But to commence at the beginning. We took passage on the steamship Benguela on the 30th of December from Liverpool. The trip down the Irish Channel was smooth and full of interest. We had on board with us an Englishman and a Welchman who were thoroughly acquainted with the coast, and they pointed out to us the Great Orms head and other points with which we were historically acquainted and were glad to see. When we arrived at the mouth of the channel we found a storm raging outside, and the captain of the ship thought best to anchor in a little bay behind Holly Head. There we lay all night, losing eight hours of time. Next morning the storm was still on, but we weighed anchor and were off, and for the first four days we had a very rough voyage, and if any of your readers want any points on seasickness, I think I can give the desired points. Such misery; but now that I have recovered we will let it all pass.

The first four days were uneventful ones except for the pounding of the boat upon the sea, but on the morning of the fifth day out we ran into a Spanish sailing vessel loaded with pine from Brunswick, Ga., U. S. A., and although she was not injured any to speak of, her crew deserted her and set her on fire in order to get the insurance. Our captain was very much put out about it, but he took the crew to Funchol, the capital of Maderia Island, where they were ungrateful enough to try to arrest our ship for running into them, but we got away early in the day before any legal business could be done. Funchol is a Portugese town situated in a little bay at the base of a mountain 6,000 feet high. The town is quaint and old, the houses are built of stone and plastered over on the outside, the roofs are tiled, the streets are narrow and paved with cobblestone, there are no wheeled vehicles, but I rode from the quay to the hotel in an ox sled drawn by two oxen, a boy to lead and a man to urge the patient beasts along. I was surprised and delighted to find an English hotel very neat and clean and the people most accommodating. I was shown out to the garden and never before have I enjoyed God's blessings as I did after my eight days of sea voyage. We visited the cathedral, which was built in 1590, and took a ride upon the cogwheeled railway to the church of the Lady of the Mount and came down in the sleds which slide in a paved roadway making the three miles in about fifteen minutes. We also went to the market which is very interesting. Here the farmers bring in one little pig about one-third grown, leading or rather driving it with a string tied to its leg, they come in and sit and visit and if no one comes along who wants Mr. Pig they take it home and come again next day. No one hurries in this climate, nature provides abundantly for them in producing three crops a year of all kinds of grain and vegetables, and the climate is so mild that a very little expense provides them with clothing and cigarettes. There were strawberries in the market and roses, the most beautiful I ever saw, were everywhere.

Our next stopping place was at Santa Cruz, in the islands of Tenerif, one of the Canary group. This is a small town on the bay of Santa Cruz. The day was Sunday but the only way you would have known it was by keeping account of the days. On ship board and in these towns there is no Sunday; the religion is Catholic and they conform to the creeds of the church, and Sunday is the same as any other day. The ship was unloaded as soon as possible, and while the boat was discharging cargo we went ashore and took a look around town. We went to the old Spanish cathedral, where we saw two English flags that were taken from Lord Nelson at the time he tried, unsuccessfully, to take the island during the Spanish and English war. They are very proud of the capture, though the flags are only flags taken from one of the landing boats which had been deserted on the beach. It is amusing and often annoying to try to make yourself understood by these natives who cannot speak a word of English, but we generally manage to get what we want before we give up. There are no docks at these places and the landing of the cargo is done by what is called a lighter. A very large row boat, rowed by four natives, takes the freight from the boats, and if a passenger is to land he, with his baggage, is lowered into a boat and taken ashore where he is immediately taken in charge by a custom official.

I must not close without mentioning the ever present beggar and soldier. You do not get your feet on shore before a hand is thrust in your face asking for alms. Some bright little chap who understands a little English will hear you say, "I wonder where the postoffice is," and he steps up and answers your question and if you give him a few coppers he will be your interpreter all day. And the soldier with his red trousers, blue coat and green gloves, is everywhere. Our trip from Vera Cruz was pleasant and delightful. We divide the time between walking back and forth on the deck, pitching quoits, telling stories and writing letters, and taken all together the time passes very pleasantly. I have spent a large portion of my time in the study of Africa and find it very interesting.

We are going ashore this afternoon at Dakar, a Mohammedan town over on the mainland. The natives here show some Arab blood in their countenances but they are very black. This is the first place where we have seen the black man of Africa. From the boat I can see the long line of white sand which characterizes the African coast, also the line of scattering palm trees. Dakar, where we go ashore, is at Cape Verde, the most western point of land of the continent of Africa. It is under the control of the French government but the people are Mohammedan in faith. After discharging cargo there, we steam away again down the coast for Sierra Leone, from which place I may be able to send you another letter.

Respectfully yours,
W. N. FOWLER, M. D.

Milburn Keyser was over to Charlie McNeil's Wednesday. On going to his carriage at a rapid pace, he came in contact with a wire clothes line he failed to see, which caught him in the mouth. When he gathered himself together he was minus a tooth, others loosened and had a badly lacerated mouth.

At the village caucus held at the council building last evening, the following ticket was nominated:—

President—Alfred James.
Clerk—James H. Elliott.
Trustee, two years—Charles Eldridge, John Heesen, Henry Heesen.
Trustee, one year—J. J. Orr.
Assessor—James A. Boyd.

The election is Monday, March 8th.

There were two papers given this week at the meeting of the Research circle on the subject of Mohammedanism in Egypt. Mrs. Weller gave one, "Mahomet and his Religion," and Mrs. Wood discussed "The Influence of Mohammedanism. The miscellaneous topic for the evening was "Peculiar Traits in the Vegetable Kingdom," very ably given by Mrs. Avery. Both sections of the circle met with Mrs. Kellogg yesterday afternoon to enjoy a number of Egyptian photographs.

The largest house of the season greeted the Royal Hand Bell Ringers at the opera house Monday evening. As bell ringers the company was a grand success, the tone of their bells perfect and execution faultless. The vocal selections and readings were poor and the remarks of the conductor could have well been dispensed with. Still the musical part was good enough to overbalance these short-comings and kept the audience well pleased. The committee did not receive a sufficient number of applications for tickets to warrant them in securing Prof. DeMott.

The study of German literature was continued at the Monday Club February 22nd. Three papers were read on this subject: Mrs. Levi Hayden read a paper arranged by Miss Camilla Mead, regarding the German author, Herder, and the "'Sturm and Drang' ('Storm and Pressure') Movement in Literature"; Mrs. H. S. Waring gave the Faust legend; Mrs. Warner compiled a biography of that remarkable genius among writers, Goethe, also compared his Faust with those of Lessing and Christopher Marlow, the English composer of dramas.

There will be third degree work at Masonic Temple tonight.

Miss Gertrude Howell was home from the Normal conservatory over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Zellars and daughter, Myrtelle, of Jackson, visited Jerome Bowen's family from Friday until Monday.

The Monday Club is very pleasantly conducted by Mrs. Angie B Smith during the absence of their highly esteemed president, Mrs. C. A Wright.

Abner Wilson has accepted an offer from D. E. Smelzer & Co., the well-known commission house of Kansas City, and will start next Thursday for the Pacific coast to superintend their "Ocean View Celery Ranch" at Santa Anna, California. He leaves his celery business here in good hands—his brothers Henry and Andrew will hustle the business. Adam Mull, who has been with him for the past two years, will have charge of the home farm. Mr. Wilson, or "Ab" as he is familiarly called, has always been one of our enterprising farmers. About fifteen years ago he commenced market gardening on a small scale and soon increased his plant to one of the largest around here. Six years ago he formed a partnership with his brothers, Henry and Andrew, and bought a celery farm at Sand Lake crossing, which, by careful and efficient management and personal attention, they have developed from a wild state of nature to one of the finest celery farms in this section of the country. They shipped 34 cars of celery last year. Ab was in New York last winter for this same firm and this new engagement speaks volumes for his ability and fitness for the position, and D. E. Smelzer & Co. are fortunate indeed in securing his services.

High School Happenings.

Mrs. Wm. Jordan called on the seventh grade Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Alice Brown, of Homer, was the guest of Floy Spencer Thursday in the ninth grade.

Janitor Robinson is holding his head high as a result of the arrival of a young daughter at his home.

The pupils of the West Branch gave an interesting Washington birthday exercise Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Ethel Turner, of Hudson, who is visiting among her friends here, was a visitor in Miss Hartbeck's room Wednesday afternoon as the guest of Miss Ina Jackson.

An eighth grade examination for pupils of district schools will be held at the Central Building Saturday, Feb. 27, commencing at 9 o'clock. Miss Bullock will be in charge.

Miss Fannie Keavy, who went to her home in Detroit for over Sunday, made a miscalculation and got left Monday night. As a result she had to miss her forenoon music classes and it is doubtful who felt the worst about it—Miss Keavy or the unfortunate pupils.

Hearts.

The second of a series of six parties to be given by 14 ladies assisted by an equal number of gentlemen, was given by Mrs. L. P. Tribou and Miss Hartbeck at the home of the former last evening. The feature of the evening was hearts. Hearts were played, the souvenirs were hearts, partners were secured by means of "busted" hearts joined together once more. Hearts throbbed in the "Spoony" corner and every one was delighted with their hearty good time. Into what these entertainments will develope is quite a matter of speculation. Two ladies entertain and their program of entertainment is a secret until participated in by the company. One pleasant novelty followed after another last evening until the guests nearly forgot to go home, so charmed were they with their delightful entertainment.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

ELY'S CREAM BALM is a positive cure. Apply into the nostrils. It is quickly absorbed. 50 cents at Druggists or by mail: samples 10c. by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York City.

FUSION EFFECTED.

Democratic, Populist and Silver Conventions at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 18. — The state convention of the silver democrats, silver republicans and populists was held Wednesday to select a candidate for justice of the supreme bench and a regent of the university. The middle-of-the-road populists under the lead of John O. Zabel, of Monroe, refused to fuse and held a convention and nominated John O. Zabel for justice of the supreme court and Robert McDougal, of Hillsdale, and M. O. Graves, of Petoskey, for regents.

The conference committee labored three hours before agreeing on terms, and finally reported that the democrats be given half a vote and the populists and free silver men each a quarter of a vote, and that the democrats have the justice and the others have the regents. The silver men, the democrats and some of the populists accepted this scheme.

The fusionists adopted resolutions which reaffirmed the Chicago platform; declared that the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of sixteen to one was the paramount issue and the only solution of the present business depression; opposed the retirement of the national paper money and replacing it with notes issued by banking corporations, and declared that W. J. Bryan was the greatest living exponent of Jeffersonian principles, the true friend of the people and the logical standard-bearer for democracy in 1900. The convention then took a recess till evening. At the evening session the following ticket was nominated: Justice of the supreme court, George L. Yaple, St. Joseph county; regents of the university, Stanley M. Parkhill, of Shiawassee, and Thorn Rupert, of Livingston.

Farmers Protest.

Battle Creek, Feb. 20.—The amendment to the state game law now before the legislature, which proposes to prohibit the killing of rabbits, has aroused the ire of the farmers in this county, and they are preparing petitions against it. The farmers say that the rabbit is the greatest pest of to-day, and if not killed with gun and ferret that they would destroy everything on their farms. They are particularly destructive to young fruit trees, one farmer having several hundred destroyed by the pest.

Must Be Citizens.

Jefferson, Mo., Feb. 23.—The legislature has enacted a law which prohibits persons performing the marriage ceremony in the state who are not citizens of the United States.

GALLERY GODDESSES.

A Class of Femininity Peculiar to the National Capital.

Girls Who Spend Most of Their Time Listening to Speeches While Congress Is in Session — Some Historic Flirtations.

[Special Washington Letter.]

Strangers in Washington study the statesmen in the senate and house of representatives. They like to hear speeches and argumentative dialogues. The capitol guides sit beside visitors in the galleries and tell them the names of the statesmen who are speaking.

Newspaper men and others who are daily at the capitol have more pleasure in studying the people in the galleries than in hero-worshiping the statesmen on the floor of either house of congress. It is strange that women, who are not supposed to know much about politics or statecraft, should come in such numbers to the capitol on all occasions.

Writers who delight in sarcasm, quips and jests, rather than in accurate portrayals, have said that women in Washington are attracted more by the brass buttons of the young officers of the army and navy than by anything else masculine in this city. There is an element of truth in the assertion, but our ladies have some higher ambitions than the slurring statement would indicate. Senators and members of the house of representatives come in for a large share of the attention of the fair sex. Three-fourths of the audiences of congress are made up of women and often there are few others in the galleries. Except a few strangers and a section of the colored population, who find the public galleries comfortable as a sleeping place, few men listen to the proceedings of the house and senate. For some reason the senate, while not entirely neglected, is not as popular with the gallery goddesses as is the house. It may be because the senators are older and less gallant, though there is surely gallantry enough in that decorous body of sages. But in the house there are a great many young men, and a few of the youngest and handsomest are unmarried. This may account for the preference that is shown that branch of congress. There are always women in the galleries known as the "speaker's gallery" and the "member's gallery," though often there is not a man to be seen anywhere above the floor of the house.

During the very cold weather many unemployed colored men go to the capitol, take seats in the warm galleries, and, having no appreciation of the forensic discussions, go to sleep and sometimes snore so that the watchmen or door-keepers awaken and eject them. But despite their indigence and bathless condition these poor fellows are American citizens, and they have as much right in the galleries of congress as any of our prosperous merchants, manufacturers or millionaires. No cards of admission are required to the "gentlemen's gallery" or the "ladies' gallery," as the signs over the doors read; but cards are required of those who would enter either of the galleries reserved for representatives and senators.

The southeast gallery of the house of representatives faces the entire membership on the floor. The congressmen have but to lift their eyes above the dead level of their desks, and their thoughts above the dead level of dreary legislation, to behold a vision of loveliness, and they often do lift both their eyes and thoughts. Even before the hour for the meeting of the house, the fair habitues of this gallery come tripping through the corridors, singly and in pairs and ride up in the elevator with the assembling statesmen, and then take their places in the gallery, smiling down on the most attractive branch of this great government. The women who have business with the statesmen, or make any pretense of having business with them, keep to the lower corridors or sit in the corner in statuary hall, which has been set aside and furnished as a waiting-room. Those who go to the gallery are there for entertainment or instruction.

They are usually there for entertainment, and many a serious flirtation has started between the girls in the galleries and the representatives on the floor. Several years ago a congressman from California exchanged glances, smiles and signals with a gallery goddess, and finally he went to the gallery, seated himself by the girl, was welcomed and became the most ardent, attentive and affectionate of lovers. Just before the close of the session of congress the statesman received a card from the brother of the lady and a lively meeting was held in the speaker's lobby. The brother gave the congressman 24 hours to marry the girl, under threat of death. The entrapped congressman left town that night, declined a renomination, retired to private life and has never since been in Washington. He was a brilliant fellow with intense ambition, but he fell away out of sight politically because of his flirtation with a gallery goddess.

In the galleries, however, there are many women who are diligent students of legislation and human nature, taking a broad and sweeping view from the gallery elevation. Some look upon the entire aggregation of talent on the floor with undivided admiration, but most of them are hero worshipers, each having one or more favorites whom she holds in esteem above all the rest. In this assemblage of goddesses who sit in judgment there are almost as many factions as there are goddesses, and it has come to be well understood among them that any thoughtless expression either of praise or of censure of any particular statesman, uttered above a whisper, is liable to fall upon offended ears and provoke a mild controversy or an avalanche of ugly looks of resentment.

There are many old women and children and strangers within Uncle Sam's gate in this gallery from time to time, but the preponderance is of mature youth, with beauty, style and gay and tasteful toilets. Occasionally a note finds its way from the gallery to the floor, or from the floor to the gallery, and now and then a statesman will sit in the gallery and instruct one of these fair students in the mysteries of statecraft. It is a fact of note among well-informed people that notes and signals once passed between a woman in the gallery and a statesman on the floor previous to 1880, the statesman being one of the leaders of the house of representatives, who subsequently attained a high and proud position; a man who to-day sleeps the sleep that knows no waking, and in history his name is pure and noble. Well, let it be so, for the sake of his children unto the third and fourth generation.

The designing girl of the gallery is a type unto herself. She is modest enough not to attract attention when she does not want to do so, and she is sufficiently independent to attract just as much attention as she wants. She smiles sweetly upon the elevator man and always has a pleasant word for the man who tends the gallery door. She knows nearly every member on the floor by name and is acquainted with his most marked characteristics. She is fully capable of discussing a knotty parliamentary problem, and knows each day what is expected to come up. It is very interesting sometimes to quietly sit in the gallery and hear the chatter of the girls. They talk in stage whispers about the appearance and characteristics of the men on the floor of the house and they pretend to know how each statesman will vote on any pending bill. They also affect to know which are the most cordial and gallant among the members and when they can best spare time to go to lunch. The gallery goddess may not be beautiful, but she is sure to be attractive, and, whether she dresses plainly or richly, you can depend upon it she is always stylish. She is a session girl. No one knows what becomes of her when the session closes, and when the new session begins she is as punctual and as numerous as the claimants who never die and never get old.

Strange as it may appear there are scores, if not hundreds, of new faces in the gallery this year; and they are drawn hither by the hope of office, in spite of the fact that the civil service law acts as a complete barrier to their ambitions. Wives and daughters have come with aspiring husbands and fathers. They frequent the galleries at the capitol. At first they are sedate, but soon they fall into the custom and habits of those around them; that is to say, a majority of them do. The office seekers who are already here are they who expect to receive distinguished recognition; but some of the seekers after chief clerkships are making their appearance, too. After inauguration day the class will be largely augmented; but the women folk cannot look down from the galleries upon the statesmen, because congress will not be in session after the 4th day of next March, unless the president should call an extra session.

If the mothers of Washington knew what pitfalls there are in the capitol building there would be fewer girls seen there. But everybody supposes that the capitol, where the laws of the nation are made, must be a safe place for man, woman or child. But it is not the best place for misses in their 'teens to go. There are women there in the marble corridors who would lead angels astray if opportunity were given them. Little girls learn of them the first lessons which lead them in later years to become gallery goddesses.

The truth is seldom written. This is the nearest approximation to the whole truth that has ever been printed. It is needless to further elaborate the situation.

Not in Stock.

An English pitman was asked by a friend who was very bow-legged to buy, when next in town, a pair of stockings for him. On the following payday the pitman entered the shop of a well-known hosier to make the purchase. The shopman was most obliging, but having shown the intending purchaser nearly every pair in stock, he at last thought it time to ask for a more minute description of what was required. "I've shown you nearly all we have," said he, "and I'm sure our stock is second to none. As we've hitherto given satisfaction to all classes, it is strange that we can't suit you." "Well," said the pitman, "what I want is a pair of bowlegged ones."—Strand Magazine.

STRAWBERRY TESTS.

The Varieties Most Suitable for Profitable General Cultivation.

At the recent meeting of the Ontario Experimental union, held at the Agricultural college, Guelph, Ont. (Canada), Prof. H. L. Hutt, the experimenting horticulturist of the institution, gave a report on the results of the recent experiments with strawberries grown on the college grounds. He has observed an extra growth of plants as a result of the careful removal of the blossoms the first season. This only confirms our old experience, that in order to secure the heaviest crop the second year (which is the main and usually the only fruiting year, as strawberries are handled by good growers), we have to adopt the practice of preventing all fruit setting the same season that the bed is established. Then in order to have a full crop, we must have full matted rows. With varieties that are good plant-makers, like Wilson, Crescent, Haverland, Bubach, Warfield, etc., we have no difficulty in securing the full stand of plants, in an average fair season, even if in starting the bed we put the plants two feet apart. This is the distance which Prof. Hutt recommends for planting such sorts, while 18 inches is as much as poor plant-makers should be spread apart in the row at the start.

Next, for a heavy yield, we want the heavy yielders. Among them, Warfield was found to be at the head. Afton is much like it. Warfield has a good leaf and a very firm berry. Haverland is one of the best for home cultivation. Bubach was the 18th, and Crescent the 29th, in the order of best yielders. Haverland was found at the head in general health and power to resist rust. Among the perfect flowering sorts (those named all being pistillates), Saunders was found first in productiveness and vigor. Prof. Hutt prefers to grow the imperfect and perfect bloomers in alternate rows, in order to insure full fruit setting and therefore best yield. The question is what varieties to plant together. Haverland was the first to show bloom. Van Deman, a perfect-flowering sort, is also an early bloomer, and might be used to furnish pollen for the other. Lovett's Early and Gandy bloom soon after these, and, in a pinch, might be used for the same purpose. Haverland and Warfield are among the earliest to give ripe fruit. Rio stands second in the list, although it stands 43d in the order of yield. Michel's Early stands third for early, and gives a large yield for an early sort, but the fruit is small and soft. Warfield stands fourth for earliness, and is the great berry for the west, and for heavy land and plenty of moisture, but seems not so good for light, dry soils. Among the latest varieties, Prof. Hutt mentioned Edgar Queen, Equinox and Mrs. Cleveland. — T. Greiner, in American Gardening.

lower and upper branches, while the flaring form of the trellis accommodates the spreading top. A dozen of such trellises, strongly made, will prove exceedingly satisfactory in the garden, and will last many years if carefully used. Do not wait till they are wanted next summer, but get a sufficient number of them ready now, when other work is not pressing, and store them in a barn or under a shed. —Orange Judd Farmer.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Any soil that is too damp naturally to produce healthy trees should be avoided.

Vacant places in a young orchard can be filled with trees, but not so with an old one.

Early potatoes, pease, onions and lettuce are the first crops to be put into the ground.

If only well-rotted and thoroughly-fined manure is used the garden can hardly be made too rich.

Lime is one of the best materials to apply to get rid of the white grub in the strawberry beds.

Wood ashes and poultry manure make the best fertilizers for onions. They can both be used as top dressing.

It is a good plan as well as an interesting experiment to try a few new varieties every year on a small scale.

When onions are to be raised from seed all reasonable care should be taken to sow the seed at the first opportunity.

Strawberry plants that are well mulched are least affected by sudden change of weather. The mulch also prevents the plants from beginning to grow too early in the season and lessens the risk of their getting killed by late frosts.—St. Louis Republic.

Buy Only Reliable Makes.

Buy only reliable makes of fertilizers. Even in Connecticut, where fertilizer inspection has been carried to such a high degree of perfection, more than one-third of the nitrogenous superphosphates and guanos sold last year did not fulfill the manufacturers' guarantee. Nearly one-third of the special manures also proved to contain less than the amount of plant food guaranteed by the manufacturers. All this simply emphasizes the importance of buying from reliable dealers who are able and willing to back up their guarantees.—American Agriculturist.

EXPIRES ON MARCH 4.

Fifty-Fourth Congress Soon to Pass Into History.

In Future Years It Will Be Known as the Congress Which Has Not Accomplished Anything to Speak Of.

[Special Washington Letter.]

The Fifty-fourth congress has made its history, and is a thing of the past. By constitutional limitation it expires on the fourth day of March, when the new executive administration begins.

This fact is not generally known, and the people do not study political affairs as they ought to do. There are thousands of our people who do not know what the congress is, nor how it is composed. The young people who study the constitution in our schools know very well that the congress consists of a house of representatives, numbering 356 men, who are elected by a direct vote of the people; and a senate, composed of 90 members, who are elected by the legislatures of the various states. There are now 45 states in this union, and each state is entitled to two senators. Therefore there are 90 senators.

The congress is composed of two houses, or legislative assemblies, called the house of representatives and the senate. This fact ought to be known to every one; and yet I have shown intelligent people the senate chamber in the capitol building, and then shown them the house of representatives, and afterwards had them ask the startling question: "Now, where does congress meet?"

The fact that the general public does not take general interest in congressional proceedings was thrust upon me last summer, when one of my cousins came here from Pennsylvania and spent a few days in the national capital. He was riding along a prominent thoroughfare with me on an electric car, and I pointed out a large hotel, saying: "Tom Reed lives there."

"And who is Tom Reed?" inquired my cousin, and the inquiry almost took me off my feet.

We who live in Washington and know all of the public men of the land are prone to assume that everybody knows them, and understands them as we do; but in that we are mistaken. My cousin is a hard-working young man, and has a bank account. He does not drink nor use tobacco in any form. He reads the newspapers, and is generally well informed. And yet, he didn't know who Tom Reed is.

Under the circumstances it is only fair for me to assume that some of my readers do not know who Tom Reed is; and hence is it not improper to say something about him at this time.

Thomas Brackett Reed, of Portland, Me., is speaker of the national house of representatives. Out of the 356 representatives of the people of this great republic, he has been selected as the leader of the house of representatives, and has been elected to the position of presiding officer; and that position is known as the speakership. Contrary to general belief, the speaker does not make speeches. He seldom appears on the floor of the house of representatives, but usually comes into the large hall of the house just as the hour of 12, noon, approaches, and, taking the big gavel in his hand, strikes the desk in front of him with a heavy stroke which resounds throughout the large hall, and says: "The house will come to order. The chaplain will offer prayer."

Everybody arises and stands while the blind chaplain delivers an invocation. After that the journal of the preceding day's proceedings is read and approved, and then the usual daily business proceeds. But the speaker makes no speeches. He simply presides.

Everybody in Washington knows who Tom Reed is, and nearly everybody knows him by sight. He is fully six feet tall, broad shouldered, inclined to be fat, and has a very large head. For ten years he has been recognized as the leader of the republicans in the house of representatives. He was the speaker of the Fifty-first congress, but during the Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses the democrats had control of the house of representatives, and Charles Frederick Crisp was speaker.

When the Fifty-fourth congress convened the republicans had a majority, and they elected Tom Reed without opposition in his own party. When the Fifty-fifth congress convenes in special session, on the 15th of March, the republicans will again elect Tom Reed, and he will have no opponent in his own party. The democrats, being in a minority, will nominate some man for the honor of the thing, but Tom Reed will be elected, because his party has a majority of the house.

But this letter is not to be about Tom Reed alone. What I want to talk about is the congress, the Fifty-fourth congress which is just passing into history. It is the least valuable of any congress which has come and gone during my many years of residence in the national capital. When it began, and Tom Reed was elected speaker, he made a few remarks to the representatives, saying: "The Fifty-first congress was noted for what it accomplished. This congress will be noted for what it does not accomplish."

That was a plain notification from Speaker Reed that he would not permit congress to do anything. The speaker has all power over the house of representatives. He appoints the committees, chairmen of the committees, and the other officials who have charge of legislation. No member of the house of representatives can make a speech or accomplish anything whatever without the consent of the presiding officer. He may shout "Mr. Speaker" until he gets hoarse or loses his voice, but he cannot make a speech, or call up a bill, or do anything legislative, unless the speaker chooses to grant him recognition. From this brief statement you will understand that the speaker has power but little less exalted than that which is placed in the hands of the president of the United States. He is practically the autocrat of legislation.

NELSON DINGLEY, JR.
(Author of Dingley Tariff Bill.)

Knowing things as we understand them in Washington, you may well imagine that I was shocked when my cousin from Pennsylvania stated that he had never heard of Speaker Reed.

Well, speaking of the Fifty-fourth congress, which is expiring, it may be proper to state that it has done nothing worthy of mention. It has been a do-nothing congress, and when it has gone there will be no flowers of memory placed over its bier. The reason that nothing was accomplished by the congress is very plain. There were several candidates for the presidency in the congress, and all of them inclined to the belief that it would not be good politics to make too much of a record just before the meeting of the national convention.

Tom Reed, of Maine, aspired to the presidency. Senator Davis, of Minnesota, was a candidate, Senator Cullom, of Illinois, wanted the nomination. Senator Allison, of Iowa, was regarded as a likely candidate. Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, put up his lightning rod, hoping that presidential lightning might strike it. All of them are good men, and all of them patriotic citizens; and yet their combined judgment was that the Fifty-fourth congress ought to do nothing but pass appropriation bills.

Early in their first session President Cleveland startled these statesmen with a patriotic message on the Monroe doctrine, because of complications concerning the Venezuelan boundary question; and congress promptly appropriated $100,000 for the expenses of a commission to investigate that subject. The result has been an acknowledgment of the Monroe doctrine by Great Britain, and the peaceable solution of the Venezuelan boundary question. Beyond that one patriotic act the Fifty fourth congress has accomplished nothing of value to the country.

Of course you know that every congress exists for two years only. Since we have had 54 congresses, each being of two years' duration, we multiply 54 by two and ascertain that this republic is exactly 108 years old. It is just 108 years since George Washington became the first president of the United States. Inasmuch as the president serves four years, and each congress lasts but two years, every president must deal with two congresses. President Cleveland dealt with the Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth congresses; and President McKinley will deal with the Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth congresses.

The Fifty-fourth congress, which expires at noon on the fourth day of March, did nothing of practical value for the country, but much is expected of the Fifty-fifth congress, whose existence begins at noon on the fourth day of March. That congress is expected to enact a revenue bill, or a tariff bill, which will bring relief to our depleted national treasury. No congress within a generation has been confronted with such grave responsibility. Will they sow the wind and reap the whirlwind? Will they sow good seed on fertile soil? And in addition to questions of that character concerning the portents of the future everyone will be inclined to ask: "What shall the harvest be?"

Politicians of adverse beliefs and desires will hope for confusion to the incoming congress. Patriots, regardless of party affiliations, will pray that the incoming congress may be guided by wise and country-loving counsels, and bring about such legislation as will bring relief to our suffering people, even if prosperity shall not immediately dawn upon us.

Of only one thing can we be sure enough to make a prediction. There will be no general legislation during the extra session of congress. Speaker Reed has already announced that he will appoint no general committees; and nothing can be done without the regular committees to formulate the work. He says that the house shall do nothing but enact the Dingley tariff bill; and then sit here and await the action of the senate on that measure. That is the declared determination of Tom Reed; and he seems to be the boss of the situation. With these facts before you, everybody can guess the outcome of the present congress, as well as I can; and it is all guesswork anyway.

ENTERING THE GARDEN.

Make It Easy for the Women and Children of the Family.

The garden gate is often neglected. Often it is a large gate to admit a double team with plow or wagon. More often it is a pair of bars that must be climbed over, let down or crowded through.

If the gate to your garden is like either of these described it would be a good idea to make a pair of steps as shown in the accompanying illustration. It can be easily made with a few inch boards and short bits of 2x4 scantling or stakes cut from the wood pile.

Many farmers have fields surrounded by wire fences. These fields are often crossed on foot, and many a step saved by avoiding the entrance gate; this is especially true in the winter time when the children are going to school. The wire fence is no respecter of clothes, and many a little girl is made sad by tearing her bright new gown while trying to get through one, and many a weary mother sighs as she takes up the rent trousers of the boy who was "getting over the fence and got caught." To save these tears, to save time, to save the strength of the fence, build a pair of steps as indicated by the illustration wherever a well-trodden path leads across (through) a wire fence.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

CHICORY IN INDIANA.

A Montgomery County Farmer Tells of His Experience with It.

Last spring I bought five cents' worth of chicory seed and planted it in my garden. This fall I dug four bushels of chicory roots. As I had never seen any of the stuff before, I did not know what to do with it, but hearing it was a substitute for coffee, concluded to try an experiment. I washed the roots carefully, sliced them into thin strips, took them to a heading mill and put them into a box used for drying heading timber. In three days they were as dry as powder. I ran them through a little hand bone mill, which took me about 15 minutes, and found I had over a bushel of chicory meal. This meal my wife roasts or browns in the stove, the same as green coffee, but it takes a much shorter time.

It is not a complete substitute for coffee, but if used with it cannot be detected from the pure article. We use two-thirds chicory and visitors declare they cannot tell it from pure coffee. I think it should be largely used, as coffee is not healthful, if medical authority is to be believed, but chicory never was known to have any bad effect unless used in excessive quantity, when it sometimes results in dysentery. Again coffee is expensive while chicory costs but very little. What I raised from five cents' worth of seed will last a large family five years. Let some of our wide-awake farmers in each community try it and it will not be long until a large coffee bill will be cut off from almost every family. The only trouble will be the drying of the roots, which must be done thoroughly, yet almost every town has some apparatus by which it can be done. It can be ground in an ordinary coffee mill.—Orange Judd Farmer.

How Plants Acquire Food.

The director of the New Jersey experiment station says: The legumes, a class of plants which includes the various clovers, peas, beans, vetches, etc., differ from other plants in being able, under proper conditions, to acquire their nitrogen from the air, and can, therefore, make perfect growth without depending upon soil nitrogen. On the other hand, the various grasses and grains are not only dependent upon soil nitrogen, but they must have an abundance during their most rapid period of growth in order to attain their maximum development. For the latter class of plants favorable results are secured from the proper use of nitrogenous manures, while for the former class the application of nitrogenous manures simply results in supplying an element which could have been secured quite as well by the plant itself, without expense.

How to Care for Plants.

To keep plants free from insects one of the best remedies is tobacco. Take a small package of strong tobacco and pour over it boiling water. When cool the plants should be set into the mixture and washed, leaves and all, besides being thoroughly soaked with it. Another remedy is a strong soapsuds made of carbolic soap and water. Plants must be kept clean if they are to be healthy. The leaves should be washed occasionally in order that the dust may be removed. The leaves are the lungs of the plants, and of course they cannot perform their work correctly if pores are obstructed by dust.—Farm and Home.

A Great Aid to Farmers.

A map of the farm, with each field numbered, and its size, quality of soil, etc., specified, will be a great aid in keeping track of the year's transactions. How few really know the expense of each grown crop the past year, what their cows, pigs, sheep and chickens have paid, etc.? This is an important matter and should not be neglected. It is a poor business man that does not know what he raises at a profit, and what at a loss.—Colman's Rural World.

LEE TO QUIT.

Cables to Secretary Olney That His Resignation Is on the Way.

New York, Feb. 24.—A dispatch to the World from Washington says: Fitzhugh Lee, consul general of the United States at Havana, has resigned, but has been requested to remain at his post for a time at least. A cablegram from Gen. Lee has been received at the state department announcing that he has forwarded his resignation by mail steamer. Secretary Olney replied to this almost immediately, urging Gen. Lee to withhold his resignation until something could be done, and declaring that his retirement at this time and in such a manner "would cause untold trouble."

A Severe Blizzard.

Houghton, Feb. 24.—A blizzard of unusual severity is being driven in from the northwest. Traffic is at a standstill on county roads and city streets are nearly impassable. Considerable snow is coming down and there is now six feet of snow on the level in parts of Houghton and Keweenaw counties.

Gladstone, Feb. 24.—A blizzard from the northwest is raging here and fears are entertained for the fishermen on the bay. Over 12 inches of snow has fallen in two hours.

Gave Himself Up.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 24.—Charles B. McCloy, wanted in Michigan for embezzling $8,000, surrendered to United States Marshal Baldwin Tuesday. He was assistant cashier in the Second national bank of Bay City, Mich. He fled from the town and has been traveling around the world since. The money has been spent.

Appointed to West Point.

LETTER FROM LANSING

News Gathered from Among the State Lawmakers.

AMENDMENTS TO THE TAX LAW.

The General Committee on Taxation Fairly Swamped with Bills—The Detroit Single Tax Club Has a Bill Before the Legislature—Unexpected Streak of Economy Causes Fear and Trembling in Official Quarters—To Reduce Officials' Pay.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 23.—In his report to the joint prison boards at their meeting here last week, Warden Van Evera of the Marquette prison gave a very amusing account of his first year's experience as a farmer at the prison. Not being a practical farmer himself, the warden placed the garden in the hands of a farmer from the southern part of the state, who had been unfortunate enough to be convicted of the crime of setting fire to another man's barn. The convict was an intelligent fellow, and so the warden employed no superintendent of farming that year. His experience was extremely unfortunate. He could not understand why the cabbages did not grow nor why the other garden truck did not prosper, and the most thorough investigation failed to reveal the reason until about the time the farmer was disharged at the expiration of his sentence. Then it was that Warden Van Evera learned that his farmer convict entertained the idea that the state was perpetrating some sort of an injustice upon him, and in order to square the account to the satisfaction of his conscience he had pinched the tender cabbage plant just below the surface of the ground, and had practiced upon other portions of the crop other tricks known only to the practical farmer. Of course it took all summer to realize the results of this kind of farming and the effect was extremely depressing upon the warden, who frankly admits that farming at the prison that season may justly be put down as a failure.

Financial Result Unsatisfactory.

The next year panned out a little better, a fairly good crop being harvested. The crop, however, consisted mostly of potatoes, and as they were worth but 10 cents per bushel that fall the financial results, after the practical farmer in charge of the farm was paid, were not all that could be desired. Indeed the produce raised could have been bought that fall from the farmers for about one-half what the prison farmer's salary amounted to. Last year the net results were much better, the average earnings of the convicts employed on the farm being 11 cents per day, but the warden does not think that agriculture at the Marquette prison is either a practicable or desirable outlet for convict labor.

No bill thus far introduced has created more discussion than that of Representative Adams, of Kent, which proposes a most radical reform with reference to real estate offered at sheriff's sale to satisfy a mortgage. It is designed to save the mortgagor from losing his entire property, which may be mortgaged for only a small portion of its value, because of his inability to overbid the mortgagee who, of course, limits his bid to the amount of his claim. The measure provides that in all cases of mortgage sales, etc., the circuit court shall appoint three disinterested persons to appraise the property to be sold, and that in no instance shall it be sold at less than two-thirds of its appraised value. The objection to this bill is that the money loaner has some rights which cannot, it is contended, be thus legislated away. It will be readily seen that should his claim not amount to two-thirds of the appraised value and should no one see fit to bid that sum for the real estate, he would have no way of collecting the money due him and to which he is legally and morally entitled. Here would be a case of the state wiping out one's possessions with a vengeance.

Attempt to Pass a Single-Tax Bill.

Four attempts have been made to secure the passage of a single tax bill, but none of them has been successful. The first proposition to exempt the products of human labor from taxation was made by Representative Judson Grenell, of Detroit, in 1887, but the bill never left the hands of the judiciary committee of the house, although it was argued before that body. Two years later Representative Wettlaufer, of Detroit, introduced a similar bill, the application of which, however, was confined to the city of Detroit. This measure was reported out without recommendation, and in committee of the whole the introducer advocated it in a speech which attracted much attention. Four years ago a committee endeavored, without success, to induce the commission which drafted the blanket charter bills to incorporate in them a local option single tax provision. This year a bill drafted by the Detroit single tax club has been introduced by Representative Stoneman, of Wayne, but it is not believed that it will make much progress.

The general committee on taxation is fairly swamped with bills proposing an amendment to the tax laws. They propose all sorts of schemes, and most of them will never see the outside of the committee room. The state tax statistician truthfully says that whether taxes are high or low depends upon the people themselves. He furthermore says that while much complaint is made of the excessive state tax, yet it is exceedingly small when compared with what the people vote on themselves in the shape of county taxes. He believes in an inheritance tax and salaries tax law, citing numerous instances of state employes who draw comfortable salaries from the public treasury, but who do not pay one cent of taxes. They do not own a dollar's worth of real estate, and although they share in the benefits of taxation to the extent of their entire income, yet they pay nothing towards such benefits.

Would Tax the Professions.

The tax statistician also calls attention to the fact that 3,000 are annually educated at the university at a cost of $300,000 to the state, but nothing to themselves. He would remedy this state of affairs by taxing professions so every person who graduates in a profession should contribute to the expense of carrying on the educational system of the state.

This reference to the university suggests the fact that that institution will ask for appropriations in addition to the one-sixth mill tax, despite the fact that all the farmer organizations of the state have resolved that it should be restricted to the revenue from the latter source. It is asserted, and the assertion is susceptible of easy demonstration, that the quarters of the law department, which is more than self-sustaining, are wholly inadequate. The contemplated special appropriations include money for a new library, so that the present library can be transformed into recitation rooms, etc. An annex to the hospital is also needed, and it is desired, in the interests of economy and greater efficiency, to install an electric lighting plant. These improvements will cost, in the aggregate, about $100,000. It is extremely doubtful if they will be provided for. The senate might possibly consent to the additional appropriations, but it is not at all probable that the house would do so. The bill making these appropriations has been introduced by State Senator Mason.

Cuts in the Pay of Employes.

There is great trembling in official quarters over the unexpected streak of economy which the final rush of bills has demonstrated exists in the senate. The particular bill on which the officials and clerks are casting anxious eyes was introduced by State Senator Wagar. It is by far the most sweeping salary-reducing measure ever introduced in the Michigan legislature, beginning with the justices of the supreme court and going clear through the list, taking in every official whose salary is not fixed by the constitution. The bill proposes to cut the salary of the supreme court justices from $7,000 to $6,000, and fix that of circuit court judges, judges of the superior court of Grand Rapids and of the recorder's court of Detroit at $2,500. This would cut the salary of the last named official squarely in two. Instead of fees variously estimated at from $6,000 to $10,000 per year, the clerk of the supreme court is to have a salary of $2,000. The office of deputy commissioner of the state land office is abolished, and the salary of deputies to other elective state officials, except treasurer and superintendent of public instruction, is reduced from $1,800 to $1,500, as is that of the private secretary to the governor. The salary of railroad and banking commissioner is reduced from $2,500 to $2,000, and that of labor and insurance commissioner from $2,000 to $1,500. At present the maximum salary which can be paid the ordinary clerks in the various departments is $1,000, and most of these employes are paid the limit. The Wagar bill fixes this maximum at $720, the auditor general being allowed four chiefs of divisions at $1,000 each. At present these chief clerks in all departments receive either $1,100 or $1,200. The number of clerks to be employed in the several departments is materially reduced. Senator Wagar figures that his bill will effect an annual saving in excess of $50,000.

Pingree Nominations.

Although the senate confirmed the nominations of Colonel Fred H. Case of Three Rivers for inspector general, and A. C. Bird for member of the state board of agriculture, the fight between Governor Pingree and that body is as intense as ever. If there has been any change in the situation it has been for the worse. The nominations of ex-Governor Luce for member of the Ionia prison board, and of Rev. L. Morgan Wood of Detroit for member of the state board of correction and charities, are still hung up, and there is no telling when they will be disposed of. It is freely predicted, however, that when that time comes it will be found that Wood, at least, will not be confirmed.

The breach between the governor and the senate widened very perceptably last Friday when Senator Covell introduced a bill designed to defeat a purpose which has been attributed to the governor, and which it must be confessed, there is some reason for believing he entertained. Since Dec. 31 the terms of a number of members of various state boards have expired, and but few of the vacancies have been filled. The term of Labor Commissioner Morse will expire March 1, but thus far no one has been named to succeed him. The theory of the senators is that, because of the treatment which his nominations thus far made have received at their hands, the governor has decided to send in no more until after the final adjournment of the legislature. Then, under the present law, he can name whomsoever he pleases and the appointees can qualify at once and hold until the legislature meets in 1899.

Bill by Senator Covell.

In order to prevent this Senator Covell has introduced a bill providing that when vacancies occur on state boards or in state offices previous to or during the session of the legislature, nominations to fill such vacancies must be made before the session adjourns. If the governor fails to make such nominations within the prescribed time, then the hold-over officials are to continue in office until the next regular session of the legislature. It is not unlikely that this bill will pass the senate, but the chances are against its going through the house.

Great things are expected of the special committee of three appointed by the house last week to investigate the charges of violations of the law governing freight rates on the part of railroad companies. Complaints of discrimination have been received from all sections of the state, and for several weeks the farmers' organization of the legislature has been gathering evidence on this point. The special committee has been given power to subpoena witnesses, examine books, etc., and it proposes to go into the subject exhaustively. Inasmuch as a majority of the committee are recognized Pingree men, who are in accord with the governor's railroad programme, it may be expected to tear up the turf to a considerable extent. The vote of 47 to 36 by which the house refused to reconsider the vote by which it was decided to appoint this committee was especially pleasing to Governor Pingree. It showed that within four of a majority of the members of the house were in favor of advancing his project, and enough of his friends were absent when the vote was taken to make up the difference. The situation in the senate is different, however, and it is freely predicted that no anti-railroad legislation of any consequence will pass that body.

JAMES V. BARRY.

Major McKinley will, at the time of his inauguration, be 54 years of age. Nine presidents entered the White House at an earlier age—Grant at 47, Cleveland at 48, Garfield and Pierce at 49, Polk at 50, Fillmore at 50, Tyler and Arthur at 51, and Lincoln at 52.

Residents Moving Out.

Cincinnati, Feb. 24.—The Ohio is still rising at the rate of three inches an hour and has been since 11 a. m. Tuesday, before which four inches an hour had been the rate for several hours. At 11 p. m. 54 feet three inches was the stage. Reports from all up river points are that the heavy rains of the past 24 hours have left all tributaries at overflowing banks and sending vast volumes into the Ohio. Unless there is a sharp freeze to stiffen the water-soaked ground it is estimated by river men that a 60-foot stage is almost certain. The great tobacco warehouses on Front street, are full of water to the first floor, but the stock had all been safely removed. The wharf boats at the public landing are tied up almost at the Pan-Handle railroad tracks.

In Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 24.—At Jackson, the Kentucky river broke three log booms, letting out 5,000 logs. Abe Reed, colored, was drowned while trying to save them.

The town of Farmer is under water. Fifty thousand logs have been lost in the Big Sandy valley. The mountain streams are full of wrecks of cabins and barns of the mountaineers. The Ohio is still rising, with 22 feet on the falls, but no serious danger is apprehended, owing to the cold wave which arrived Tuesday.

Two-thirds of the town of Corbin is under water. The damage is estimated at $25,000.

The damage from the flood in southeastern Kentucky is estimated at $200,000. The Kentucky river rose 40 feet in two hours and swept everything before it. The Cumberland river destroyed all property in the bottom lands of Harlan county. James Tyree was caught in Powell river and drowned.

Salyersville, East Point and Abideen are almost entirely submerged. The lower portion of Maysville is under water. At Bristol, Tenn., a flood poured down the valley, and but for the blowing of alarm whistles several families would have perished. Damage, $20,000.

Capitol Grounds Under Water.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 24.—There is fully six feet of water in the capitol yard. Every newspaper in town is submerged. The Gazette got out a small edition on a job press giving the stage of water. Electric light and gas plants are both under water. The only lights in use are oil lamps and candles. It is impossible to estimate the damage in the upper part of town. A bureau for the relief of the flood-sufferers has been opened. The water is falling, but a second rise is reported coming. Business is almost entirely suspended. Telephone connection is broken and scarcely a business house is open. The post office now occupies an island.

The village of Sinclairville, W. Va., opposite Cumberland, is under water. George Ashey and his team of horses were drowned near Westernport Monday afternoon. A number of cattle belonging to farmers above Cumberland have been drowned. Small houses are being anchored with ropes.

Great Distress.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Feb. 24.—The Ohio and Kanawha rivers at this point have reached an alarmingly high stage, and the gravest fears are entertained. The water is rushing over the rivers' banks, flooding the lowlands. Hundreds of families living on the river banks are homeless, seeking shelter and aid. The city relief committee is rendering what help is possible to prevent starvation. The severe cold weather adds to the distress of the unfortunate. The farm lands up the Kanawha river are completely flooded, and the destruction to farm property is appalling. Great suffering and distress exist among the farmers, who are left without any means of subsistence from the loss of their crops. Several persons are reported drowned.

The Floods in Pennsylvania.

McKeesport, Pa., Feb. 24.—Both the Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers at this point have overflowed their banks and the streets and all the houses in the lower portion of the city are inundated. All the mills and factories in the flooded district are submerged and operations suspended. Several houses have been moved from their foundations and many stables and outbuildings have been carried away. No lives have been reported lost, but narrow escapes have been made by people who have been removed from second and third stories of their homes. The situation is serious and the loss in this city alone it is now believed will reach $200,000.

Wife Murderer Hanged.

Akron, O., Feb 23.—Ex-Judge R. W. Sadler, aged 41, died of injuries received in a runaway. His skull was fractured

LITERARY NOTES.

The only complete and accurate account of the life of Lyman J. Gage, Maj. McKinley's choice for Secretary of the Treasury, has been written for the March Review of Reviews by Major Moses P. Handy, who describes the leading traits of Chicagos first citizen in a twelve page illustrated article, written in Major Handy's usually felicitous style.

Ex-President Harrison has written of "A Day with the President at His Desk" for the March Ladies' Home Journal. The article is said to be singularly interesting in the detail with which it describes the wearisome routine of the President. A feature of the article that will have a timely interest to those ambitious to serve the country under the incoming administration, describes very fully how the President makes appointments to office. "A Day with the President at His Desk," is unique in being the first time that the daily life of the President has been described by one who has filled the exalted office.

Prior to 1875 there were only half a dozen greenhouses in the country making a business of raising plants for the market, and most of these were devoted exclusively to flower-culture. The cut flower trade in New York began to assume considerable importance eight years ago, and to meet the ready demand for the flowers in the middle of winter, greenhouses quickly sprang up in the suburbs. The cost of construction decreased, and the expense of propagating the flowers was proportionately reduced, making the business very remunerative to the growers. A new era in flower culture was inaugurated. Enormous glass houses were erected in the country and where a few dozen men were formerly employed, thousands soon sought and obtained profitable work.—George E. Walsh, in March Lippincott's.

The approaching end of the century is fitly commemorated in Harper's Magazine by a series of illustrated articles by Dr. H. S. Williams on the progress of science during the past hundred years. The March number treats the "Astronomical Progress of the Century," and deals with the advances made, owing to the perfection of the telescope and the marvelous application of the spectroscope, in our theories of the universe—the birth, death, and resurrection of worlds and of solar systems. Those critics who complain that the present age is lacking in imagination, and that the present decade is fin de siecle, would do well to consider what the end of the century has brought us in the way of science and philosophy. The theories of the latest astronomers unfold fields of imagination more wonderful than the cosmography of Dante or Milton, and the philosophy to which they inevitably give birth is profounder and more deeply significant than that of Thomas Aquinas of John Calvin.

RULERS CHANGE.

Mr. Cleveland Retires and Mr. McKinley Becomes Our President.

Descriptive Account of the Inaugural Ceremonies---The Great Parade.

Full Text of President McKinley's Address—His Policy Is Clearly Outlined.

Must Stick to Gold Standard Until International Bimetallism Is Obtained.

Calls a Special Session of Congress to Meet March 15—Vice President Hobart's Address.

Washington, March 4.—The nation greets its new ruler, President William McKinley. The nation bids godspeed to its past ruler, Private Citizen Grover Cleveland, who for the second time has retired from its service as its chief executive and has again entered upon a private career. At noon to-day William McKinley, of Ohio, took the oath of office as president of the United States for the term of four years which is to come to an end March 4, 1901.

A few minutes before Mr. McKinley assumed the duties of his high office Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey, in the presence of the senate and house, took the oath of office as vice president of the United States, becoming by virtue thereof ex-officio presiding officer of the senate. This function took place quietly in the senate chamber.

A Grand Spectacle.

The spectacular features attending the inauguration were, if anything, more imposing than any which have been witnessed at former like ceremonies. The inaugural parade was composed of between 40,000 and 50,000 men taken from the ranks of the military, naval and civic organizations. Fully 20,000 people were massed in front of the senate wing of the capitol and witnessed the administration of the oath to President McKinley and listened to his masterly inaugural address.

At night the gorgeous inaugural ball was given in the pension building, the immense promenade and dancing floor being packed with participants. At night also occurred the grand pyrotechnical display and illumination of the city.

Mr. Cleveland and Mr. McKinley rode side by side to and from the capitol. They had dined together at the white house on Tuesday evening and had lunched in each other's company on Wednesday.

The Decorations.

Most effective were the decorations in which the city had clothed itself in honor of the occasion. Public buildings, business blocks and private residences were gayly and attractively attired with the national colors entwined in almost every conceivable shape, while thousands of flags floated from every desirable point. The reviewing stand in front of the white house, from which President McKinley and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and a host of distinguished personages witnessed the procession, was a handsome pavilion—an architectural creation in white and gold.

Down Pennsylvania Avenue.

No other boulevard in the world could have afforded so grand a thoroughfare for the passage of the parade than did Pennsylvania avenue. For fully a mile it presented an uninterrupted view from the white house to the capitol. At every available point along the avenue great stands had been erected, and these were occupied by the enthusiastic populace, whose cheers and other manifestations of applause were continuous. A force of mounted policemen kept clear the space allotted to the marching thousands and prevented injury to the more venturesome of the spectators. Every building on the line of march was draped in bunting of the national colors and every window and point of vantage was occupied. The beautiful stars and stripes were everywhere seen, with other appropriate banners and emblems. In addition to these festive decorations, 50,000 miniature United States flags had been gratuitously distributed by the committee of arrangements. These were exhibited at all available points and were waved with enthusiasm as the two presidents and other known public men rode by. At least 100,000 throats voiced a continuous welcome from the time the procession started until the capitol was reached, and these vociferations were still more enthusiastically echoed on the return trip.

McKinley Goes to the White House.

During the forenoon, escorted by the senate committee, President-elect McKinley drove from his temporary quarters at the Ebbitt house to the executive mansion to pay his respects to the retiring president. He was received and welcomed by President Cleveland and his cabinet in one of the handsome state apartments. Then the two distinguished men descended the white house steps and together entered a four-horse carriage, Mr. Cleveland sitting to the right, and, amid the booming of cannon, the clatter of cavalry, the deep, hoarse rumble of artillery, the measured tread of many columns of infantry and the blare of innumerable bands, the march to the capitol began. In another four-horse carriage following the president rode Vice President-elect Hobart and the senators deputed to escort him to the scene of his future duties. Then, in a long stream of carriages, came the distinguished guests. The president's personal escort was Troop A, of Cleveland, O., 80 cavalrymen mounted on coal black chargers and, still more interesting, a detachment of grizzled veterans from the Twenty-third Ohio volunteers, Maj. McKinley's old regiment.

HOBART TAKES THE GAVEL.

THE PARADE.

Formation of the Escort to and from the Capitol.

The inaugural parade was given under the leadership of Gen. Horace F. Porter, who was the grand marshal, with a strong force of aids. A rough total of the number of regulars and militia soldiers and sailors in line shows an aggregate of 11,000 to 12,000. The escort of President McKinley numbered about 5,000. The civic organizations are estimated at about 12,000. The escort to the president from the executive mansion to the capitol was the first division of the parade forces. The escort from the capitol to the executive mansion was composed of one military and one civic grand division, subdivided into divisions and brigades. The final arrangement for the escort from the white house to the capitol provided for a parade in the following order:

Platoon of Mounted Police.
Governor's Island Band.
Grand Marshal Horace Porter, staff and aids.
Gen. Wesley Merritt, United States Army, Marshal of the First Brigade.
Battalion of United States Engineers.
Seventeenth Infantry.
United States Foot Artillery.
Regiment of Marines.
Battalion of Seamen.
Battery of Light Artillery.
Squadron of Artillery.
Troop A, of Cleveland, O., personal escort to the President-elect.
President Cleveland and President-elect McKinley in their four-horse coach.

VICE PRESIDENT HOBART.

Detachment of Veterans of the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteers.
Vice President-elect Hobart and the Senate Committee of Arrangement.
The Senior Admiral of the Navy.
Col. Cecil Clay, Marshal of the Second Brigade.
District of Columbia National Guard.

Escort to the White House.

At the conclusion of the inaugural address by President McKinley the first division, which formed the escort to the capitol, marched north along the east front to the capitol, thence west to First street and out in Pennsylvania avenue past the white house, countermarching on K street to the place of dismissal at Fourteenth and K streets.

Immediately after the grand marshal and his staff came Troop A, then the president, the detachment of veterans of the Twenty-third Ohio volunteers, and the presidential party in carriages. The military grand division was composed first of the regulars under Col. John S. Poland, and there was a full representation of the artillery, marines, seamen, infantry, light artillery and regular artillery. The second brigade was made up of the District of Columbia national guard and the whole of the military division was under the command of Gen. Wesley Merritt.

The second grand division of the parade embraced militia from other states. It was under the command of Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, and was subdivided into several brigades. The first in the order of their marching included Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland. In the second brigade New York, Virginia, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Vermont and Kentucky. The third brigade included Ohio, Illinois, Texas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the colored troops of Washington city. The third division of the brigade was made up of veteran organizations, commanded by Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard, United States army, retired. The first brigade included the department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic. In the second brigade were the Union Veteran legion, the Union Veteran club and other organizations of old soldiers. The civic grand division of the parade, which was one of the most striking features of the afternoon, was under command of B. H. Warner, of Washington city, with aids from each state of the union. It was divided into divisions, the first of which was commanded by D. D. Woodmansee, president of the National League of Republican clubs. This embraced political organizations from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia and Maryland.

Commanded by Governors.

In the second division, commanded by J. Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, were more political clubs from Maryland and others from the District of Columbia, Virginia, New York, North Carolina and Kentucky. The third division of the civic parade had as its marshal Congressman J. A. T. Hull, of Iowa, and embraced the political clubs from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Florida and West Virginia. The military representatives of the different states were commanded by the governors, accompanied by their full staff. Gov. Tanner and his staff, with the Illinois military, was assigned to the third brigade of the second division. The Illinois political clubs marched in the first brigade, commanded by Warren P. Sutton, of Michigan, of the third division of the civic section of the parade.

Salvos of Artillery.

A national salute of 21 guns was fired when President Cleveland left the white house in company with Maj. McKinley for the capitol and another salute of 21 guns announced that they had entered the capitol. One gun was fired when Maj. McKinley took the oath of office and a national salute of 21 guns at the conclusion of the inaugural, when President McKinley and Mr. Cleveland began their return march to the white house, and the same number of guns when the tour was made.

HOBART INAUGURATED.

Vice President Takes the Oath in the Senate Chamber.

While the procession was wending its way to the capitol both houses of congress assembled in the senate chamber. The joint assembly was presided over by the retiring vice president, Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois. There were also present the eight justices of the United States supreme court and the diplomatic corps, headed by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador. Promptly at noon President Cleveland and President-elect McKinley entered the chamber, the entire body rising and remaining in this position until they had been shown to the seats set apart for them. After a few words of farewell to his associates by Vice President Stevenson he pronounced the senate of the Fifty-fourth congress adjourned sine die. Then the extra session of the Fifty-fifth session, called by President Cleveland to meet at noon on March 4, commenced. The late vice president made way for his successor, Mr. Hobart, to whom the oath of office was administered, after which he made a brief address. He then proceeded in his turn to swear in such as were present of the 30 senators whose terms either of election or reelection began contemporaneously with that of the president.

TAUGHT HER A LESSON.

She Probably Found a New Place for Hiding the Key.

The other day a very estimable lady came to town to do a little shopping, says the Atlanta Constitution. Of course the key was put under the doormat so that her son, whom she expected to return before her, could get in. In her absence a tramp, who had been hanging around the place a number of days and had caught on, boldly went into the house, got some of the choicest viands out of the pantry, put them on the table and pitched in. He also found a bottle of wine that revived his spirits. He did not expect anyone there for a number of hours and so he took it easy.

In the meantime the lady of the house having finished her shopping returned home and, seeing the front door unlocked, expected to find her son inside. Imagine her horror when she opened the dining-room door and saw sitting at her table the rustiest-looking tramp that ever vied with his companions in accumulating dirt on his epidermis. The lady was dumfounded. In the silence that followed the tramp coolly remarked: "Madam, I shall become scarce, now, ez I've eaten enuff. All I kin give yer back fer this good meal and wat I want ter say ter yer is that yer ought to find a new hidin' place fer yer key. I won't charge yer nothin' for this advice." With that the tramp departed.

HE SAID "POKE AND BEANS."

The Failure of a Georgia Man to Pass Himself Off as a Yankee.

Joe Cavan, who has had a whirlwind experience in the south and west, said to the crowd, in the presence of the New York Sun reporter, in the same old place, the uptown hotel:

"My advice to you all is, be natural. Do not try to deceive people with your affected talk or in your clothes. You will be certain to show the cloven foot somewhere. I was at a dinner once in St. Louis. It was given by Gov. Marmaduke. Before we had given our orders, for at a western dinner every man has the privilege of saying what he wants, the governor asked one of his guests where he hailed from. One was from Tennessee, one from Illinois, one from California. The east was not represented, so I handed in my card from Vermont. Just then the waiter passed the bill of fare, and my ruling passion asserted itself. 'Poke and beans,' said I, in my natural voice.

"'Cavan,' said the governor of Missouri, vehemently, 'you're from Georgy. No man from Vermont ever said "poke and beans," and your scheme of passing for a Yankee, sub, is reprehensible, and will cost you the wine.'

"I have sailed under my own colors ever since."

Defenses of Gibraltar.

Since the invention of long-range rifle guns the fortress of Gibraltar, in every sense of the word, controls the entrance to the Mediterranean, for at the narrowest part of the strait there are only 18 miles between Europe and Africa, and the guns of the fortress can deliver shots and sells if necessary on the African shore. The military authorities of Gibraltar, however, do not depend upon the guns of the fortifications for blocking the Mediterranean, for at Gibraltar there is always stationed a fleet of powerful ships which can be called into service to assist in defending the strait against the naval forces of a foreign power.

RECORD IS BROKEN.

Bills and Resolutions Introduced at Lansing.

PROSPECT OF A LONG SESSION.

Unless a Decided Improvement in Haste Is Made the Legislature May Drag Along Until August—Dudley Beet Sugar Bounty Bill Passed by the House—Bills Providing for Reduction of Salaries—Petrowski's Liquor Bill.

Lansing, Mich., March 3.—The present legislature has broken one record and, unless the statesmen comprising that body speedily acquire a hustle and work it vigorously they will make another, which will not be calculated to please their constituents. The first record relates to the number of bills introduced, and the prospective one to the length of the session. When the constitutional limit of fifty days during which bills could be introduced was reached last week, the files contained a total of 1,839 bills and joint resolutions, an excess of 133 over the number introduced two years ago when the high water mark was reached. Each house smashed the record, the totals for the senate being 540 bills and twenty joint resolutions, and for the house 1,232 bills and forty-seven joint resolutions.

An examination of the files by gentlemen who have been connected with the legislature for many years, warrants the statement that if there is any subject not treated or of any reform not provided for in the vast number of bills now awaiting consideration, no one has yet discovered what they are. Every good or cranky notion that ever entered any one's head has found expression in one bill or another.

Session May Last Till August.

The unusual number of bills introduced suggests the thought that the legislature has not been making remarkable haste in disposing of its work, and unless a decided improvement is shown in that regard, the session will drag along until the 1st of August. The danger of this is all the graver because so many of the bills are in the line of decided innovations and are likely to provoke prolonged discussion. The governor's reform bills alone are sufficiently numerous and important to furnish work for an ordinary session.

A very pleasant feature of the present session is the social side which is being cultivated to a greater extent than ever before. More than the usual number of legislators have their wives or daughters with them and are keeping house. They constitute quite a colony and are much given to social pleasures. Lieutenant Governor Dunstan and Speaker Gordon have each entertained at two very enjoyable card parties, and these, in addition to numerous informal gatherings, have served to make the winter pass very pleasantly.

The most important measure that has thus far passed either house received a majority vote in the lower house last Friday. This was the Dudley bill providing for the payment of a bounty for beet sugar of Michigan production, mention of which was made in these columns a fortnight ago. The unanimity of the vote in the house augurs well for the fate of the bill in the senate, although it is probable that it will meet with greater opposition there.

No Limit to the Aggregate Bounty.

The bill came up for final passage in the house late Friday afternoon when but 64 members were present. The vote stood 57 for the bill and 7 against it. As passed it provides for a bounty of 1 cent a pound, such bounty to be paid for seven years unless the federal government should offer a bounty, in which case Michigan is to cease paying one. There is no limit to the aggregate bounty to be paid in any one year, an amendment to make the limit $30,000 having been voted down. Some of those who opposed the bill thought that there was danger of the amount becoming so large as to become extremely burdensome, but the friends of the measure cited the experience of Nebraska and California, each of which pays a bounty, as proof that this need not be feared. If the bill passes the senate it will be promptly approved. Governor Pingree having long since declared himself to be in favor of it.

Homeopathic Department of University.

Although a bill to coerce the regents of the university into removing the homeopathic department of that institution to Detroit has been introduced in the senate, it is not unlikely that it will not be pushed to a vote. The bill was introduced at the request of the legislative council of the State Homeopathic Medical society, and it provides that the one-sixth mill tax for the support of the university shall not be available unless the removal is made. Some such coercive measure was necessary in view of the fact that the supreme court has declared that the law ordering removal, which was passed two years ago, cannot be enforced, the regents being a constitutional body whose discretion in conducting the affairs of the university cannot be supplanted by the discretion of the legislature or any other body. The council had the bill introduced on the understanding that 90 per cent. of the members of the homeopathic profession in the state favored removal. A few days ago, however, Professor Copeland of the homeopathic department, met the members of the council here and asserted that fully 75 per cent. of the profession were in favor of letting the matter rest this year. At his suggestion the council decided to make another canvass of the profession before deciding whether to push the bill to a vote. If Professor Copeland's claim is sustained the bill will be permitted to die in the committee.

Reduction of Salaries.

A number of bills on the files of each house provides for reducing the salaries of public officials, most all classes of public servants being included in their provisions. It is a noteworthy fact, however, that every reference to the salary of the attorney general is made with a purpose of increasing it, and both houses have very wisely voted to submit to the people at the election in April a proposition to amend the constitution so as to increase the salary of the attorney general from $800 to $3,500 per year, with the further provision that that official be required to reside in Lansing during his term of office. The fact that there was but one vote recorded against the submission of this proposition shows that those who have looked into the matter are convinced that the state will annually save a large sum of money by increasing the salary. The fact of the matter is that the attorney general cannot afford to abandon his practice entirely and take up his residence in Lansing and devote his entire time to the duties of his office for an annual stipend of $800. Furthermore, no one expects him to do so. The result is he is compelled in order that he may earn in private practice sufficient to support his family, to employ assistant counsel in many cases at the expense of the state. This counsel comes high, and the annual amount thus paid out amounts to several times more than the proposed increase. If the taxpayers of the state know when they are presented with an opportunity to do a good piece of business for themselves they will see to it that this proposition is ratified at the polls.

In the Interest of Good Butter.

A bill which has been defeated at several previous sessions of the legislature, although its passage was asked for by all the farmers of the state, bids fair to become a law this year, it having already passed the senate by a decisive vote, notwithstanding the fact that the upper house has been the rock upon which this class of bills has heretofore split. The bill in question prohibits the coloring of butter substitutes so as to make them resemble genuine butter. It is, of course, opposed by the manufacturers of oleomargarine, who were successful in killing it two years ago, although there was not a pound of oleomargarine manufactured in Michigan. The oleomargarine lobby, has, however, thus far signally failed this year, and with the great number of farmers in the house it is altogether probable that the action of the senate will be there concurred in. An effort was made in the senate to amend the bill to prohibit the coloring of inferior butter so as to resemble the better article, but only five votes were recorded in its favor. The farmers and creamery proprietors assert that the passage of this bill will materially increase the price of genuine butter in Michigan—a consummation the farmers have long been wishing for.

State Board of Health.

A bill was introduced in the upper house last week similar to the one defeated two years ago, which provides for the reconstruction of the board of health. The board is one of the most valuable institutions supported by the state, and it would be a calamity if it were either abolished or its functions curtailed. Its members are citizens who have made special study along lines with which the board has to deal, and they give a vast amount of their time to the duties without charge.

The pending bill provides for the repeal of the law of 1873 establishing the present board and substitutes therefor a state board of health commissioners, to be appointed by the governor within thirty days after the passage of the act, and to consist of seven persons, six of whom shall be physicians of at least five years' practice, and one of whom is to reside in the upper peninsula. A secretary at $2,000 and four clerks at from $800 to $1,200 per year are provided. Outside these salaries the annual appropriation for the support of the board is limited to $2,000.

As an entirely disinterested citizen, save only so far as the best interests of the state are concerned, and as one who has closely watched the work of the board and its results for the past decade, I venture the assertion that if the legislators consult their constituents' welfare they will kill this bill. The entire health board system might better be abolished and the whole amount it costs saved, for the bill provides a system which would be able to accomplish nothing of a practical nature. Further than this the legislature should not molest so important a department.

Regulation of Liquor Traffic.

Representative Belknap has some very radical ideas with reference to the regulation of the liquor traffic, and he has embodied these ideas in a bill. This measure provides that in incorporated villages of less than 1,000 inhabitants the license fee shall be $600; in cities of more than 1,000 inhabitants, $700; and in places of more than 10,000 inhabitants, $900. The fee for selling liquor at wholesale is fixed at $1,000, and for both wholesaling and retailing, $1,200. It takes away from city and village councils and township boards the right to permit saloons to be kept open later than 9 o'clock at night, and provides that they shall be closed promptly at that hour.

A liquor bill which was introduced by Representative Petrowski, who conducts a saloon in Detroit, provides that all druggists shall take out a retail liquor license. Mr. Petrowski maintains that many druggists sell more spirituous liquor as a beverage than the saloon keepers do, and he believes that they should be required to pay for the privilege. A third liquor bill increases the uniform tax to $750, and still another permits boards of supervisors, by a majority vote, to suspend the operation of the general liquor law in their respective counties so that local option may prevail, and provides for the holding of an election every two years on the local option proposition.

Discrimination in Freight Rates.

The committee appointed to make an investigation into the charges of discrimination in the matter of freight rates has selected John N. Foster of Ludington, clerk, and is already at work. The investigation will be exhaustive and will occupy the full thirty days alloted the committee by the house. It has been discovered that the special charter of the Michigan Central road provides that which gives that company the privilege of fixing its freight rates as high as those of certain New England roads, but no higher, and further provides that such rates shall be determined by a committee consisting of the secretary of state, auditor general and attorney general, either individually or collectively. Not withstanding this provision the officials named have never in the history of the state, so far as can be ascertained, taken any action in regard to these rates, and the present officials had no knowledge that this was a part of their duties. It is doubtful if any of their predecessors did, the requirement being buried up in the voluminous charter of the company. The latter has always been permitted to fix its rates unmolested by any state authority. A great many shippers who have or think they have grievances against the railway companies will be summoned to appear before the committee, and the companies will also be heard in their own behalf.

Evanescent Reputations of Persons Who Flitted on the Stage.

"Theatrical reputation is the most evanescent of all glories of life," sadly observed the old actor, drawing his last summer's overcoat around him a little tighter, according to the New York Herald.

"That's so," responded the agent, "and nothing reminds one of this more than an acquaintance with the bill-rooms of the old theaters about the country. You know they have a way of posting up bills and lithographs in the bill-rooms—that part of the theater in which the bills are laid out, and which is the lounging place of the traveling agents, the billposters, advertising men, etc., and preserving a sort of record of the celebrated actors, companies and scenes that have been at that particular house. Sometimes this is done systematically, with an idea for general pictorial effect, and then looks very pretty. But more often it is the freak of some billposter, who slaps up a full length figure, or a lithograph head, or something grotesque, the whole collection forming a curious and sometimes nightmarish jumble.

"In the older bill-rooms will be seen pictures of bygone favorites of the American stage—of many persons who were famous the other day and who today are quite forgotten. They are usually represented in their favorite costume and part. Some of these were the rage but a few years ago—drew big salaries and had everything their own way. There are women who actually queened it over the whole country—made thousands and drank champagne and wore a princess' diamonds. Why, their very names are forgotten! I am not an old-timer, though I'm familiar with the stage, and I tell you I've been actually startled suddenly to come across these pictures on the bill-room walls, and to be thus reminded what they had been, and to be set to thinking what had become of them!"

SHE WAS THRIFTY.

One Woman Made $2,200 with a Threshing Machine.

A woman thresher is a novelty—that is, outside of the schoolhouse or home. And the one in question is a genuine thresher of the golden grain of the northwest, says the Minneapolis Journal. She came into one of the Minneapolis farm machinery houses the other day to make her final payment on her machine. This was startling and marked her as a woman of business capacity; for the man who makes a full payment on a thresher this season is regarded as an exceptionally good man. That the lady in question had a business head is further evidenced by the fact that she succeeded in "working" the manager of the establishment for $2.50, the amount of her fare home.

She innocently told him that to pay her bill in full would take every cent she had and she must take out enough to get home. While the manager gently demurred at receipting the bill in full with this discount off, she ingeniously hinted that it would cost more than $2.50 to send a collector after the balance, and he tumbled to the situation as gracefully as possible. Mrs. Thrasher (or perhaps it is Miss) said that she had made $2,200 out of her machine and had 187 stacks of grain to finish this winter, which she proposed to do if the snow was hub deep. Considering the fact that many machines are being taken back on mortgages this year, no one can successfully maintain that a woman is not adapted to this new field for woman's activity.

TUPNS OUT BESSEMER STEEL.

Oxide Successfully Extracted from Rock by Edison with the Use of Electricity.

When Thomas Edison began experimenting with electricity as a means of extracting iron oxide from rock a shiver ran through the spinal columns of iron mine owners. Then the matter was forgotten and the public heard nothing more about magnetic separators until a few days ago, when the news came out that the method was not only perfected, but that by it 5,000 tons of bessemer steel were being turned out every day at Edison, N. J. Mr. Edison has been developing his newest discovery quietly, and now his smelting works and their appurtenant buildings cover many acres among the Jersey mountains. The rock is blasted out of open quarries, 5,000 tons at a time, and carried by enormous electric cranes to rollers which crush the largest bowlders as if they were lump sugar. After passing through a series of these rollers the fine rock falls past 700 magnets, which extract the ore, sending it along to the furnaces almost free from extraneous matter. From the furnaces the ore issues in nuggets of bessemer steel ready for the mills.

The Russians.

The Russians are believed to have originated from the Slavonian tribe called the Roxilani, about the Christian era. At a later date they were also called Muscovites, from Moscow, their leading city. The state was founded by Ruric, 862 A. D. Russia was a duchy until 1157, when it became the grand duchy of Wladimir, remaining such until 1328, when it was called the grand duchy of Moscow. The Russian rulers began to call themselves czars in 1462. Peter the Great assumed the title of emperor in 1689.

Curious Natives.

The Benozy, who occupy a densely wooded country among the hills of Bemaraha, jump from tree to tree just like monkeys, and are not easily followed, inasmuch as their territory is exceedingly rocky. They are very timid, and it is said that they die of fright when captured.

GREASING THE ELEPHANTS.

The Park Rhinoceros, Too, Coated Twice a Year with Neatsfoot Oil.

Twice a year the elephants and the rhinoceros in the Central park menagerie get a coating of neatsfoot oil, which is thoroughly rubbed in with the palm of the hand. The oiling and the manipulation cleanse the skin, remove the dead skin, and open the pores, freshen the animals up, and improve their health, and they seem to like the process. The oiling is done only in the spring and summer; if done in the winter the animals would be likely to take cold from it.

The rhinoceros at the park is in good condition and lively, and rather frisky for so big a brute. Sometimes it steps about with a step that is very much like a dancing step, and likely to surprise one who sees it for the first time and has been accustomed to regard the rhinoceros as an animal always slow and lumbering in its movements. When the rhinoceros' cage is cleaned out, which is done daily, the keeper first attracts the great creature to one side with a tempting mess of food. Then he slips a noose of rope over the animal's horn and settles it down around the neck and makes the other end fast around a bar or two of the elephant's cage adjoining. This is done to keep the rhinoceros from pitching into the keeper if it should take a notice.

The same precaution is taken when the rhinoceros is oiled. The elephants, however, kneel at the word of command. It is not necessary to plant a ladder against them in order to reach the upper part of their sides in rubbing in the oil.

Sanity Proved by X Rays.

A Hamburg young man has just had his sanity proved by the Roentgen rays. He declared ten years ago that he had a bullet in his head, which he fired into it trying to commit suicide. He complained of pain, and, as he attacked his keepers and the doctors could find no trace of a wound, was locked up as a dangerous lunatic. The Roentgen rays have now shown the exact place of the bullet.

To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield Iowa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield Ia., Aug 18 1896. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would'nt now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

AT THE CAPITAL.

President-Elect McKinley Arrives at Washington.

No Display Marks His Appearance—Farewell Address to His Neighbors at Canton—Scenes Along the Route.

Canton, O., March 2.—Maj. McKinley's home city gave him a grand ovation yesterday upon his departure for Washington, and he addressed them as follows after arriving at the depot:

"My Neighbors and Friends and Fellow-Citizens: On the eve of departure to the seat of government, soon to assume the duties of an arduous responsibility, as great as can devolve upon any man, nothing could give me greater pleasure than this farewell greeting—this evidence of your friendship and sympathy, your good will, and, I am sure, the prayers of all the people with whom I have lived so long, and whose confidence and esteem are dearer to me than any other earthly honors. To all of us the future is as a sealed book, but it be can, by official act, or administration, or utterance in any degree add to the prosperity of our beloved country, and the comfort and well-being of our splendid citizenship, I will devote the best and most unselfish efforts of my life. (Loud and continuous applause and cries of 'We know you will, major.') The assumption of the chief magistracy is of such grave importance that partisanship cannot blind the judgment or accept any other considerations, but for the public good of all, to every party and every section. With this thought uppermost in my mind, I reluctantly take leave of my friends and my neighbors, cherishing in my heart the sweetest memories and the tenderest thoughts of my old home—my home now, and I trust my home hereafter, so long as I live. I thank you, and bid you all good-by." (Tremendous applause).

Along the Route.

The whole country was ablaze from Canton to Washington, and there were hundreds of people at every station to see the train bearing the president-elect go by. At many places in Ohio huge bonfires were blazing and every factory near the railway was illuminated and sending forth a succession of blasts from its whistles. A flash of lights and the cheers of enthusiastic people were continuous. Western Pennsylvania was as wide awake as eastern Ohio.

Arrival in Washington.

Washington, March 3.—William McKinley entered Washington as a private citizen, and as quietly and unostentatiously as any private citizen could under similar circumstances. At the request of the president-elect there was no military or other display on his arrival. He walked through the crowd at the railroad station and, entering the carriage awaiting him, was driven to the Ebbitt house, the hotel at which he made his home in Washington while a member of congress. That was the entire programme attending his appearance in the capital city as the future president of the United States.

Flowers for the Engineer.

The procession proceeded very slowly and with dignity. Maj. McKinley had one hand thrust into the bosom of his long frock coat, while in the other he carried a large bunch of white carnations. Mrs. McKinley, looking somewhat tired and careworn, also carried carnations. Doffing his silk hat pleasantly to everybody who saluted him Maj. McKinley walked along toward the crowd outside the gates, eagerly awaiting him. He bowed to the train crew, the dining-car servants, the porters and others who were on the platforms and at the windows of the train. When the engine was reached the procession halted a moment while the president-elect handed the engineer the carnations he had been carrying. This made everybody in the vicinity look happy, but none so happy as the begrimed throttle handler, who fairly blushed through the soot on his face.

The gathering about the Ebbitt house was larger than at the station. Fourteenth street and F street, at the Ebbitt house corner, was thronged with the greatest assemblage about the ladies' door on Fourteenth street, where a squad of policemen gave the impression that the president-elect's entrance would be made there. But the carriage containing Maj. and Mrs. McKinley drove around the corner to the main door on F street. Cheer after cheer went up from the crowd from the time the president-elect was sighted until he disappeared inside the hotel. Mr. Hanna was there waiting for him. The greeting of the chairman of the national committee was brief, but hearty. He hurried Maj. and Mrs. McKinley through the lobby to an elevator, and, quicker than one can tell it, the new president and his wife had disappeared from public view.

Reaches the Capital.

Washington, March 3.—The special train bearing Vice President-elect Hobart and party arrived at the Baltimore & Ohio station about 3:25 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. There were no special demonstrations attending Mr. Hobart's reception. They were met by the district reception committee. The vice presidential party included Hon. Garrett A. Hobart, Mrs. Hobart and her son, Hon. John W. Griggs, governor, and Mrs. Griggs; Gen. William S. Stryker, adjutant general, and Mrs. Stryker, and other members of the governor's staff, several accompanied by the ladies of their families.

Report Denied.

London, March 2.—A dispatch to the Central News from Madrid says the report that Gen. Weyler has resigned the governorship of Cuba on account of the failure of the home government to consult him in the matter of the release of Julio Sanguilly is untrue.

More Moslems Slain.

London, March 1.—The Sunday Sun has a dispatch from Athens saying that 300 Moslems were killed in a battle that occurred Saturday near Retimo. The dispatch adds that the Moslems retreated, leaving the Christians masters of the field.

Internal Revenue.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The monthly statement of collection of internal revenue shows that during January the aggregate receipts were $11,142,442, a decrease of $245,073 from the collections for January, 1896.

MAY GO ABROAD.

Maj. McKinley Said to Have Selected Some Foreign Ministers.

New York, March 1.—A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald says that President-elect McKinley will probably make the following appointments:

Bellamy Storer, of Ohio, first assistant secretary of state.

John Hay, of Ohio, ambassador to Great Britain.

William F. Draper, of Massachusetts, or Horace Porter, of New York, ambassador to France.

Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, minister to Mexico.

John A. Roche, of Illinois, minister to Persia.

John Russell Young, of Pennsylvania, minister to China.

William McKinley Osborne, consul general to London.

Perry S. Heath, of Indiana, or Chairman Gowdy, of Indiana, consul general to Paris.

WILL COERCE GREECE.

Must Withdraw Her Troops Within Six Days.

London, March 3.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that the diplomats on Tuesday presented an identical note to M. Skouzes, minister of foreign affairs, demanding the evacuation of Crete by the Greek forces within six days, under a threat of coercion. The note informs Greece that the powers are agreed upon two points, first, that they will not allow Crete to be annexed in any form at present, and, second, that they are prepared to endow Crete with a complete scheme of autonomy. The powers express the hope that Greece will respect their decision. The correspondent adds that he is assured by the highest authority that Greece will reject the ultimatum.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27.—The National Baseball league season will open on the 22d of April except in Boston, where there will be one preliminary game April 19, which is a local holiday. The champions will have Boston as the attraction for the opening days; Brooklyn will play in Washington and New York in Philadelphia. In the west St. Louis will have the Pittsburgh team for the opening day; Louisville will have Cleveland and Cincinnati will entertain Chicago.

THE BICYCLE RACE.

Schinneer Wins at the Trial of Endurance at Chicago.

Chicago, March 1.—Fred Schinneer, the Bohemian, and a resident of this city, won the six days bicycle race at Tattersall's, which ended Saturday night at 10:05 o'clock. The final contestants and the distance they covered were as follows: Schinneer, 1,788 miles, 4 laps; Miller, of Chicago, 1,764 miles, 1 lap; Asbinger, 1,737 miles; Lawson, the "Terrible Swede," 1,707 miles, 1 lap; Hansen, 1,603 miles, 3 laps; Iliff, the legless rider, 461 miles.

Weyler's Latest Edict.

Havana, March 3.—Capt. Gen. Weyler has issued an edict bearing date of Sanctl Spiritus, February 25, authorizing the Spanish troops, local guerillas and citizens to capture all stray cattle roaming in the fields and then use them for the consumption of the troops and residents of the town.

Against the Cigarette.

Chicago, March 2.—The city council passed a law last night to take effect at once that dealers in cigarettes must pay an annual license of $100 to the city treasury, and that no cigarettes can be sold within 200 feet of a schoolhouse.

Refused to Interfere.

Washington, March 2. — President Cleveland has refused to interfere with the sentence of Joseph Dunlop, editor of the Chicago Dispatch, convicted of sending obscene literature through the mails.

Rockefeller's Generosity.

South Hadley, Mass., March 3.—The faculty of Mount Holyoke college announce the gift to the college of $40,000 for a dormitory by Hon. John D. Rockefeller, of New York.

Death of a Millionaire.

Ex-Gov. Long Accepts.

Boston, March 3.—Ex-Gov. John D. Long announces that he has accepted the naval portfolio in President-elect McKinley's cabinet.

A RECORD BREAKER.

Resume of the Work of the Fifty-Fourth Congress.

Some of the Leading Measures Passed —No Public Building Bills—Appropriations Are in Excess of $1,000,000,000.

Washington, March 1.—The Fifty-fourth congress will be held remarkable, principally for what it has failed to accomplish. In one respect—in the number of bills and resolutions introduced—it was a record-breaker. In the house alone over 10,400 bills and 3,100 resolutions were introduced and referred to various committees. Only a fraction of these passed the house and fewer still became laws.

The principal business of the congress, aside from the passage of the appropriation bills, was limited to the first session, the net results of which were the enactment into law of the bills creating the commission to determine the true divisional line between Venezuela and British Guiana; prohibiting prize fighting in the territories; permitting appointments in the army and navy of former United States officers who served in the rebellion; making one year's residence in a territory necessary for a divorce; incorporating the National Society of the Daughters of the Revolution; defining the penalty for interference with railway trains and persons riding thereon and substituting salaries for fees to United States marshals and district attorneys.

In another respect the Fifty-fourth congress was remarkable. This was its failure to pass a single bill providing for public buildings. The house calendar contained 100 bills of this class, including the senate bill for a custom house in New York city. Speaker Reed, however, in his determination to reduce the expenditures to the lowest limit consistent with the necessities of the government, set his face sternly against all legislation of this character.

Notwithstanding this circumstances the present congress is the third in American history in which the appropriations have exceeded $1,000,000,000. If, it is claimed, these appropriations be deducted from the sum total the aggregate for the past two years would be little in excess of $1,000,000,000.

No effort was made at the present session to call up the bills admitting Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma to statehood. The "sound money" men in the house were a practical unit against the admission of any territories which are likely to send advocates of free silver to the senate. Among the bills which passed the house but have not been acted upon in the senate are the Morse bill to prevent the selling of liquor in the capitol; the Brosius bill permitting the establishment of national banks with a capital of $20,000 in towns of 4,000 inhabitants, and the Loud bill to reclassify second-class mail matter.

The ways and means committee gave a series of hearings during the early weeks of the session, and remainder of the time was occupied by the republican members in formulating a new tariff bill. This will follow the general lines of the McKinley law of 1890 and will be reported to the house at the beginning of the extra session of the next congress.

Much of the time of the senate has been consumed in the discussion of questions relating to our foreign relations, and while no positive action of any kind has been taken, many columns of the Congressional Record have been filled with speeches on these topics. Cuban resolutions have been introduced and pressed for action by the score, but, beyond precipitating debate, nothing has been accomplished. A treaty with Japan has been ratified, putting into immediate operation the clause of the treaty of commerce and navigation negotiated two years ago. The general treaty of arbitration with Great Britain, after being fruitlessly considered for two weeks, went over until the next session. The Alaskan boundary treaty with Great Britain has not even been considered in committee. The Nicaraguan canal bill, which was debated for several weeks, was on the point of final passage with a comfortable majority in front of it when the protest of the minister representing the Greater Central American Republic was received.

Ohio Revenues Increase.

Columbus, O., March 3.—Returns received by Auditor of State Gilbert of all the counties in the state show that Ohio has 9,118 saloons, a decrease of 1,180 since last July. The total received by the state as its share of the tax for the first year of the new law, increasing the tax from $250 to $350, is $1,014,994.71.

The Debt Increased.

Washington, March 2.—The public debt statement issued yesterday shows that the debt increased $4,592,137 during the month of February. The cash balance in the treasury was $864,336,167. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $1,012,600,454.

The Government Deficit.

Washington, March 2.—The receipts and expenditures of the United States during February were: Receipts, $24,400,997; disbursements, $28,796,056, which leaves a deficit for the month of $4,395,059. Since July 1, 1896, the aggregate deficit is $48,135,441.

Abolish "Fast Days."

Concord, N. H., March 3.—The legislature has followed Massachusetts and passed a bill to abolish "fast day" and to make April 19 a legal holiday to be known as "patriots' day."

Big Clothing House Fails.

Chicago, March 1.—The clothing house of Willoughby, Hill & Co., one of the oldest in the city, went into the hands of the sheriff with liabilities of $198,859.

Prohibits Convict Labor.

Bismarck, N. D., March 2.—The house has passed senate bill No. 1, which prohibits convict labor in this state. The bill goes into effect at once.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February A. D. 1896 Samuel Larsclere of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee, Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plat in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1896, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 556.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.50) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8 A. D. 1897

SARAH C. ROGERS Mortgagee.

G. R. Gillespie, Attorney for Mortgagee.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 11th day of February in the year one thousand, eight hundred and ninety-seven.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of David VanTyne deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Law ence M. VanTyne, a son of said deceased praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament and codicil of said deceased and that administration of said estate may be granted to him, petitioner, the executor named in said instrument or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of March next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered That a copy of this order be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated December 30 1893, executed by John McLain and Jennie McLain, his wife, of Macon, Mich. to Brockwell J. Rector, of Tecumseh, Mich which mortgage was recorded in Liber 139 of Mortgages on page 332 on the 7th day of July, A. D 1894, and whereas the amount claimed to be unpaid upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of Four thousand three hundred and eighty-seven and 6-100 dollars damages and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to secure the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale, and pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the court house in the City of Adrian in said county of Lenawee on the 25th day of March, A. D. 1897, next at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows:

Situated in the township of Tecumseh Lenawee County, Michigan, and described as the south half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-three of town five south of range four east, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated December 16, 1896.

Michigan Baseball League.

Detroit, March 2.—A state baseball league was formed here Monday night, Owosso, Saginaw, Bay City, Port Huron, Kalamazoo and Jackson going in. The limit is $600 per month for each club, exclusive of manager's salary, with a $200 guarantee put up. W. H. Mumby, of Owosso, was elected president. Other towns want to come in and make an eight-club league.

Sues for a $40,000 Commission.

Grand Rapids, March 1. — Don J. Leathers began suit in the Kent circuit court against John Canfield, of Manistee, for $40,000. He claims to have negotiated the sale of Canfield's $1,000,000 tract of timber to the Thayer Lumber company in Missaukee county and the suit is to collect his commissions.

Two wealthy Hebrews of Bagdad now own all that remains of the ancient town of Babylon.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

An Interesting Budget of News from Many Localities.

Many horses in southern Cass county are affected with glanders.

Wages of Iron Mountain firemen and policemen have been reduced ten dollars per month.

Benzonia fruit growers deny the report that buds in that vicinity have been injured by the cold weather.

Chief of Police Hart, of Kalamazoo, has been suspended for allowing continual violations of the liquor laws.

Capt. Andrew Roddy, of Beaver Island, died at Charlevoix recently from a wound received in a church feud 20 years ago.

Citizens of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph are talking over the project of connecting the two cities with a $5,000 drawbridge.

Gratiot county grand army comrades have organized an association for the purpose of erecting a soldiers' monument at St. Louis.

South Haven is having a midwinter building boom, with the prospect of many new business structures to be erected in the early spring.

A new industry to give employment to about 25 men the year round, is one of the probabilities of Traverse City. It is a factory for making veneering.

A factofy will be established at Gaylord for the preparation for the market of flax fiber. The flax necessary will be raised by the farmers in the vicinity.

The upper peninsula of Michigan is hereafter to constitute a separate district of the Salvation Army with headquarters at Marquette. The first officer in charge of the new district is Adjt. Gully, of Chicago.

A receiver has been asked for the Consolidated Street Railroad company of Saginaw. The company, it is alleged, uses light rails instead of heavy ones to the injury of the pavement, and the city commenced suit for back taxes.

Steps are being taken to organize a theatrical circuit embracing Sault Ste. Marie, Marquette, Ishpeming, Marinette, Escanaba, Ironwood, Ashland, Houghton and Calumet. The manager of the Soo opera house will book the attractions.

Pupils in the St. Louis schools are prohibited from using tobacco in any form or cigarettes, or having either in their possession on the school grounds or elsewhere during school hours. The board of education will suspend any pupil who disobeys this edict.

SUSPECT A WIFE OF MURDER.

Detroit Police Believe Mrs. Schorn Is Responsible for Two Deaths.

Detroit, March 3.—Nicholas Schorn, formerly a saloonkeeper, and his stepson Matthew, aged ten, were found dead at noon Tuesday in their home on Brewster street. Mrs. Schorn asserted that the deaths were due to coal gas. The fact that Mrs. Schorn occupied the same room with her husband and that the son slept in another room at once caused doubt of the asphyxiation, and as the woman's story was otherwise contradictory she was arrested on suspicion of having caused the deaths. She states that she was unable to arouse her husband all the morning and that not until noon did she discover that both he and her son were dead. The police have taken charge of the premises.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

A Michigan Man Who Has Reached a Ripe Age Celebrates.

Niles, March 1.—Dr. William B. Sprague, of Coldwater, this state, on Saturday celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary. Mr. Sprague is a native of New York, and his claim to distinction is that he has lived under the administration of every president of the United States. His nerves are quite steady, which is proven by the fact that he still shaves himself. He has not been out of the house since election day, when he was taken to the polls in a carriage.

Survives a Remarkable Accident.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 27. — William Findley has his spine cut in two and still lives. He was operating a portable sawmill a few miles north of town and, slipping, fell back down on the saw, which penetrated his vitals to half its diameter, severing the spine. A surgeon was hastily summoned, the wound was dressed and the victim was brought to town. The chances for his survival are considered about even.

Owosso, Feb. 27.—Hugh Campbell, a farm laborer, blew out the gas at the National hotel and was found dead in bed by Ben Slade, the hotel clerk. When taken to his room he was asked if he knew how to turn out the gas and said about the house that would be improved by being painted. Painting is not the hard work it used to be. You can get just the color you want, mixed, ready to use, and no matching of colors, no fussing, no trouble. Open the can, stir the paint, dip in the brush and go to painting. In the time it took to mix paints, by the old methods, you can now have the work well finished.

One kind of paint will not do for a house, table, buggy and a bath tub any more than one kind of cloth would answer for all sorts of clothing.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS are made for all purposes. Not one paint for all surfaces, but a different paint for each surface.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS FAMILY PAINT is made for cupboards, shelves, baseboards, etc. It has an oil finish that can be washed. It is made in twenty-one colors.

Our booklet "Paint Points" is a good thing for you to have. It tells many interesting things about paints—good and bad paints. It tells what to paint and how to paint it. It is free. A postal will bring it.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MARCH 5, 1897.

On the first and last pages of this issue of the HERALD will be found the full account of the inauguration of President McKinley at Washington yesterday. Also the complete text his address and portraits of his cabinet. The morning dailies of this date give no better report, and such accounts are made possible by the fact the HERALD is printed all at home. The "Patent inside" weekly subscribers, as usual, will wait till next week for their news.

Yesterday, Wm. McKinley was made President of the United States by the usual inaugural ceremony, and now the men who voted against him and worked to defeat him at the polls, will unite with his friends in proclaiming him "Our President." Such is the custom of this country and such the patriotic feeling, that should harm come to the chief executive his enimies at the polls would be among the first to fight for his safety and that of the country. The weather was all the participants could desire and the splendor and pomp of the whole undertaking, commencing with parades and exding with the ball, were the grandest ever witnessed at an inauguration. It is to be hoped that the president will at once call the long-talked-about extraordinary session of congress and that the matter of tariff will be settled for four years at least. The manufacturers of this country care little what the tariff legislation shall be, only that it shall be settled.

Last fall, before election, the HERALD was very positive in its statements concerning representatives in the Michigan Legislature who voted against the farmers and with the corporations on the bogus butter question. It is evident that Representatives Camburn and Edgar saw the "Handwriting on the Wall" for since the commencement of the present session no stone has been left unturned that this oleomargarine matter should be taken up. Senator Jibb has been interested and there is little doubt but that the proper legislation may now be enacted. A newspaper serves its subscribers and the public generally well only when telling the truth in a candid manner. The HERALD had nothing personal against Mr. Camburn, but did dislike his half and half ways about the oleomargarine question, told him the truth and the result is he is now working for instead of against his constituents.

Miss Lillian Hughes was arrested Tuesday morning on the charge of theft and taken to Adrian. It seems that while employed in the family of John Monaghan, at Sand Lake, a sum of money mysteriously disappeared and she was suspected of taking it. Upon being interviewed she confessed and her arrest followed. It is sad that a bright, pretty girl should wreck her life in this manner.

The program at the Monday club, March 1st, combined literature, music and art. Mrs. B. S. Hudson read about the poet Schiller; Mrs. Elmer Andrus turned our thoughts from prose and poetry to the "Evolution of Modern Music" confined to the "Bach and Wagner" period. Mrs. Annie Smith read a paper prepared by Mrs. George Merritt, giving us a glimpse of Paul Potter (that well known artist among the old Dutch artists) and his wonderful paintings and etchings which have delighted the art lover for the past two centuries.

Isabel Case is recovering from tonsilitis.

Jessie Mills has been quite ill this week.

Miss Lizzie Lowry is the guest of friends in Detroit.

Miss Hartbeck spent Sunday with Manchester friends.

Cards are out announcing the marriage, next Thursday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, of Miss Gertrude Sweet and Mr. Fred Harrison.

Misses Gertrude Bray and Bessie Auchampaugh, of Adrian, were guests of Tecumseh friends the last of the week and attended the hop Friday night.

Usher Matthews, of Grand Rapids, was in Tecumseh Wednesday over two trains. He came to see his sister, Mrs. Paxon, before her removal to Piqua, O., but was one day too late.

Nelt Aten entertained about a dozen of his friends at his home on Kilbuck street Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served and all had a good time.

Subjects in the Universalist church Sunday: Morning, by request, "The Might-have-been of Human Life." Evening, "Virtue and Vice, a Comparative Study." Sunday-school after morning service. Y. P. C. U. devotional meeting at 6 p. m. Topic, "Loyalty to Our Church."

The following embryotic operatic stars, Ben Pulver, Mert Burlingame, Ed Coddington, Will Elliott, Vern Smith, Raynor Brewer, Art Lee, Roy Hughes, Harry Moore, John Gaston, Geo. Tiffany, Jim Elliott and John Nyland, were out serenading last evening. They filled the air with music sweet. They were out for a good time and no doubt had it. They made Rome howl.

J. H. M. Campbell and Miss Maude B. Mitchell were married in Adrian last Monday, and the cards announcing this fact were received by many of their Tecumseh friends Wednesday morning. Both parties are highly respected young people, well known in Tecumseh, and the HERALD wishes them much joy. John is now proprietor of the Clayton Record and is making the paper a credit to the village.

It was with much regret that the HERALD chronicled some weeks since that Karner Bros. contemplated moving their shoe stock from Tecumseh to Blissfield, and with an equal amount of pleasure we are now permitted to say that the Blissfield deal is off and the firm and store will remain. Karner Bros. are good merchants, straight business men and every one is much pleased at their latest decision.

Mrs. Margaret Mudgett, of Franklin, who has been wasting away from consumption for the past two or three years, was released from her sufferings Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock, aged 66. She was a sister of James Shurtz and had resided many years on the farm where she died. Three sons survive her, Alonzo, Myron and Tobias. The funeral was held at the house at 2 p. m. today, attended by Rev. J. P. Varner, and her remains placed in the cemetery here.

The Wit and Wisdom club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Slayton at their pleasant home on Pottawatamie street Monday evening and, while it was a regular meeting with its customary program, there were additional features which made the session of more than ordinary interest. Many of the members appeared in the dress of colonial times and many of the costumes were unique and attractive. Mrs. C. M. Brown and C. F. Field presented choice papers, the former on Chicago's poet, Field, and the latter on Darwin. Light refreshments were served and the evening was one of rare social enjoyment.

The two sections of the Research Circle met at the pleasant home of Mrs. L. M. Kellogg, Thursday, Feb. 25, and spent the afternoon with photographs and descriptions of Egyptian scenes. Mrs. Kellogg's collection is well chosen and she entertained the ladies with carefully selected and aptly fitting readings concerning the sights represented by the photographs, between the Delta of the Nile and the second cataract. The Circle continued its study of Egyptian history at its last meeting with special reference to two of its great rulers. Mrs. Crosby read a paper written by Mrs. Burridge on "Mehemet Alee". Mrs. L. Barnes gave the "History of the First Khedive Ismail." The miscellaneous topic, "Lower Forms of Animal Life," was treated by Mary Louise Burridge and illustrated with blackboard sketches.

Citizens' Caucus.

At a caucus held at the council building Wednesday evening the following combination ticket was nominated:

For President—J. H. Smith.
" Clerk—Albert Conger.
" Treasurer—Geo. W. Knapp.
" Trustees—Samuel Catlin, Martin Zimmerman, Elijah Ames and Charles Smith.
For Assessor—Jehiel Davidson.

J. H. Smith and Geo. Knapp positively decline to run and it is probable some of the others named may also decline to allow their names to be used.

High School Happenings.

Luina Wiggins has returned to school after an absence of several weeks on account of illness.

Miss Ethel Turner, of Hudson, was an A room visitor Wednesday afternoon as the guest of Ina Jackson.

Ollie Jones returned Monday morning but only to get her books as she will not re-enter school before the opening of the spring term.

Lena Arnold's seat in the A room is vacant this week owing to the death of her father, W. J. Arnold. Lena has the deep sympathy of all her schoolmates.

Miss Nannie Kyle is confined to her home this week by a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Mrs. Ellsworth Cairns is filling her place in the grammar department.

Ella Paxson and Grace Austin visited among their friends in Miss Bullock's room Wednesday. It was Ella's farewell visit as she goes to her new home in Piqua in a few days.

The class in plane geometry took their final examination this forenoon and will commence solid geometry Monday. Needless to say the fourteen members comprising the class are going 'round with anxious hearts.

At Rest.

Wm. J. Arnold, who had a severe attack of hemorrhage last week Thursday, continued to grow weaker until 4:35 Monday morning when his life's work was brought to a close. His birthplace was Adrian. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Arnold and was born October 9, 1854. At the age of 29 he came to Tecumseh and in company with his brother Charles purchased the Frasier bakery to which they added a saloon. In 1880 they built a new store adjacent to the one they occupied to which they transferred their saloon fixtures. Something like nine years ago he purchased his brother's interest, since which time he continued to run them alone, occupying the rooms on the second floors for living apartments until two years ago when he built a fine home on Logan street. About twenty years ago he was married to Caroline Lehn, of Manchester, who has ever been a most devoted wife. To them was born one daughter, Lena, aged eighteen, who was his pride. Besides these, two sisters and the aged parents survive him. The funeral was held at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Adrian, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and remains placed in the Arnold family lot.

Mrs. Martha Camburn.

Mrs. Martha Camburn was born in Covert, Seneca county, N. Y., on the 26th of November, 1835, and died at her home in Macon, Mich., February 13, '97.

She came with her parents to this state in the spring of 1849. On the 6th of September, 1855 she was married to Spencer Camburn, with whom she journeyed until August 31, 1886, when death removed her beloved companion. She was left with three sons and two daughters, all of whom survive to mourn the loss of their mother.

For 37 years Mrs. Camburn has lived on the old farm where her death occurred. Prosperity rewarded the arduous labors of herself and her companion. Since his departure, she, aided by her children, has conducted the affairs of the place with marked success. She was a woman of strong intellect, moral sense and character. Her reading was well selected and of considerable breadth, and gave her food for mental and moral growth. For 45 years her religious affiliations were with the D. R. church. But in her heart there was always a very warm place for, and sympathy toward, Methodist doctrine and polity. Her death, so many years before the three score and ten line was reached, is exceedingly sad, and our reconcilliation is found only in the fact that the providence of God may all work for our good. The funeral services were conducted at the family residence by Rev. D. H. Ramsdell, and were attended by a large concourse of neighbors and friends

Misses Helen Camburn and Maggie Biddle, who have been working in Ann Arbor for some time, returned home the first of the week.

The S. S. convention held in the D. R. church Wednesday was largely attended and proved a complete success. We trust that much benefit may be derived from it and the good work may continue till our Sunday-schools be greatly improved.

Did you ever stop to think what indigestion really means? It means simply that your stomach is tired. If our legs are tired, we ride. The horse and the steam engine do the work. Why not give your stomach a ride, that is, let something else do its work. Foods can be digested outside of the body. All plants contain digestive principles which will do this. The Shaker Digestive Cordial contains digestive principles and is a preparaiton designed to rest the stomach. The Shakers themselves have such unbounded confidence in it that they have placed 10 cent sample bottles on the market, and it is said that even so small a quantity proves beneficial in a vast majority of cases. All druggists keep it

Mr. J. W. Martin, a prominent citizen of Cave Hill, Ky., states: "I suffered with neuralgia for about ten years. At times I was nearly dead; could not sit, lie nor stand; my teeth came loose, and I gave up all hopes of recovery. Doctors failed to benefit me. One bottle of Lightning Hot Drops effected a complete cure, and I have never had a touch of neuralgia since." For sale by Orr & Temple, Tecumseh and Ridgeway.

CAPITAL REMOVAL.

Friends of the Plan Have Not Yet Given Up.

Gradually Moving Toward That End —Measure in Detroit's Interest Not Likely to Be Presented at This Session.

Lansing, March 3.—The total number of senate bills at this session is 540; house bills, 1,232. Last session senate bills numbered 316; house bills, 1,113. Among the entire lot presented it is surprising to most people that not one provides for submitting to the people the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the removal of the capital of the state to Detroit. There has been so much talk of this matter, and the project having the backing of so long a list of Detroit business men, to say nothing of the fact that it was favored by Gov. Pingree, it is a matter of comment that no measure was introduced. However, this situation of affairs is not an indication of the death of the proposed scheme. The first step toward bringing the capital to Detroit is really contained in the amendment to the Detroit charter introduced by Col. John Atkinson, which contemplates raising the limit of bonded indebtedness for Detroit from two to five per cent. Col. Atkinson, in talking about his bill id: "We must first have something to offer the people in order to induce the moving of the capital. When we have provided a site in Detroit for the capitol building and made other arrangements we can come to some future legislature and ask them to submit to the people the proposition to make the metropolis the capital of the state."

The national building and loan associations are making a determined fight against the bill placing them under the supervision of the state banking department. Two years ago a law was passed requiring them to make reports to and be subject to examination by the secretary of state. Now they protest against the repeal of this law before even the first annual report required by it has been made. In the event of its repeal, however, the associations ask that a new department be created for their supervision, claiming that as they are rivals of banks, the banking department would be prejudiced against them. The indications are that the law requiring that real estate mortgages be taxed will be repealed, the senate committee having so recommended. It is claimed the law has not only driven a vast amount of capital out of the state since its enactment several years ago, but that in nearly every instance the mortgageor is required to pay the tax.

The proposal to annex Isle Royal to Keweenaw county would make the English syndicate owning it pay its just share of taxes. At present the vaulation is $100,000, when it is known to be very rich in copper. The island is 46 miles long and one of the largest in the lakes.

The most important measure thus far passed by either body is the bill offering a bounty of one cent per pound for beet sugar of Michigan production. An effort made in the house to amend the bill so as to make $50,000 the limit of bounty to be paid in any one year was unsuccessful. The bill requires that such bounty shall be paid for seven years from the time the act takes effect.

The manufacturers of oleomargarine and other substitutes for butter were given a hard blow when the senate passed the Jibb bill prohibiting the coloring of these products to resemble butter. The bill is now sure to become a law.

The house special committee on violations of the law on railroad freight charges has decided that a circular letter shall be sent to shippers in districts where it is supposed that discriminations have been made in rates, asking the shippers for information.

The house committee on state affairs has reported favorably the bill providing for women physicians and attendants for women patients in insane asylums.

A bill base been introduced in the house to make large department stores unlawful. It provides that all articles usually sold at retail shall be divided into 72 classes and the classes divided into 12 groups. A merchant can sell only the articles enumerated in a particular group.

Representative Bates has introduced a resolution in the house calling for a committee of five from the house to investigate and report upon the circumstances connected with the recent pardon of a convict named Wixom from Jackson prison. It is asserted that Gov. Pingree has had his confidence abused by those upon whom he had a right to rely, and that this investigation will develop certain unsavory facts.

The latest measure in which the governor is interested requires annual reports to be made by transportation companies of all kind, gas and electric lighting companies, covering their organization, capitalization, shareholders, volume of business, number of employes, earnings, expenses and every other item of business. These reports are to be made to the state bureau of statistics, which the bill creates. It is proposed to stop the practice of private individuals engaging in the banking business under a corporate title, and also to require all private bankers to submit to inspection and supervision by the state banking commissioner.

The first attempt by the legislature to pass a bill prescribing a penalty for women who wear large hats in places of entertainment was made Tuesday and failed. But 44 votes were cast for the bill, 51 being necessary to pass it. The vote was reconsidered and another attempt will be made when fewer members are absent.

The senate has decided to make an investigation of the soldiers' home in view of the numerous complaints by old soldiers who have lived there, and provided for the appointment of a special committee of three with full power to make the investigation exhaustive. The inquiry will cover the management, payment of salaries, plan of purchasing supplies, care of inmates and general discipline. Senator Jibb, who introduced the resolution, said he did so at the request of Gen. Shakespeare, commander of the grand army.

A bill to increase the revenues of the state increases by one per cent. the rate of taxation assessed against the gross Michigan earnings of all life and fire insurance companies transacting business in the state. This will increase the total revenue from this source 50 per cent.

INHUMAN TREATMENT.

Charged Against Parents of an Adopted Girl.

Grand Rapids, March 3.—The examination of Henry Wilson and wife began in the police court Tuesday morning on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder. The victim is their little five-year-old adopted daughter, who is now at a hospital with little prospect of recovering from her injuries. The case is one of the most atrocious of the kind that has ever come to the surface here, and the interest in it was manifested by a crowd that could not get into the courtroom to hear the testimony at the examination. The child was taken to the hospital last week by a physician called in by the foster parents, who became alarmed when the little one did not revive from a faint. Her body was covered with bruises and scars.

The Wilsons admitted punishing the child, but attributed the injuries to a fall downstairs. The maximum penalty for the offense with which the prisoners is charged is life imprisonment. The crowd around the police court was not only large, but angry, and as the patrol wagon arrived from the jail with the prisoners there were demands that they be lynched. The prisoners cowered down into the wagon, pale and trembling, and the wagon was driven into the police station building with all speed and the doors closed to keep the crowd out. No testimony was taken Tuesday morning, but the examination will begin Friday. At the jail Wilson is kept separate from the other prisoners lest they do him violence.

THROWN OUT OF COURT.

Suit to Oust Pingree as Mayor Fails Because of a Technicality.

Detroit, March 1.—The suit brought by D. W. H. Moreland, a member of the board of public works, to oust Mayor Pingree from office was decided in favor of the governor-mayor Saturday by the circuit court on a technicality. Moreland's contention was that when Pingree became governor he vacated the office of mayor. The court did not touch upon this point, but held that Moreland, as a private citizen, had no right in court, and should have brought his suit in the name of the attorney-general. The case will be heard in the supreme court March 9.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Fred Baker, attorney for Mr. Moreland in the case against Mayor Pingree's claim of right to hold the office, sent quo warranto papers to Attorney-General Fred A. Maynard at Lansing Monday and also mandamus papers requiring the common council to order a special election for mayor. Mr. Maynard refused to sign them at once. He said that there were some legal matters to be cleared up first. He will hear arguments on those points.

Death of Prof. Swain.

Buchanan, March 2.—Prof. Arthur J. Swain, superintendent of public schools, died at five a. m. Monday. Prof. Swain was born at New Hampton, N. H., June 19, 1836. He prepared for college at the famous Exeter academy, and graduated from Hamilton college, N. Y. He was married at Exeter in 1866. For 11 years he held important positions in the schools of New Hampshire, later going to Albany, N. Y., and was afterward professor of Greek and Latin in Syracuse (N. Y.) university. He came to Michigan in 1882.

Miners Buried Alive.

Ironwood, Feb 27.—Two miners were buried in C shaft in the Newport mine at ten o'clock Friday night, the room in which they were working caving in and burying them under hundreds of tons of ore. Their names are Matt Matson and Dominick Reghatti. The body of the latter was soon recovered, but it will require several days' work to reach the place where Matson's body is supposed to be. Matson leaves a family, while Reghatti was a single man.

Receiver for a Church.

Bay City, Mich., March 2.—Judge Maxwell has issued an order appointing the sheriff receiver of St. Stanislaus Polish cathedral (Catholic) property. It is valued at $150,000. The sheriff is directed to take immediate charge in the name of the bishop and to arrest all persons who come upon the premises. The order is a knock-out blow for the rebellious faction of the church.

Plant to Make Bleaching Powder.

Decatur, March 2. — Michigan capitalists are planning to establish at Midland an extensive plant for the manufacture of bleaching powder by a newly discovered process. At present the market is controlled by a British syndicate and none is made in this country. The proposed plant is to cost $500,000 and the building will cover 13 acres.

Will Try Pingree's Plan.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 27.—The Anti-poverty League will try Mayor Pingree's potato patch scheme in this city. They have secured 40 vacant lots in the southern part of the city, and will secure as many more as possible and assign them to poor people to work. It will not be a municipal enterprise.

To Build a Smelting Plant.

Houghton, Feb. 26. — The Quincy Mining company intends to erect a smelting plant of its own on Portage lake to cost between $75,000 and $100,000. Work will begin next spring and the plant will be ready for operation in 1898.

LA GRIPPE.

Some Recent Reports Concerning the Ravages of this Prevalent Disease.

Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving letters from all parts of the United States from people who have suffered from la grippe or are suffering from it. The Doctor's remedy, Pe-ru-na, is found to be of great value in the treatment of this disease. N. N. Coons, Monmouth, Ill., writes: "Last fall I was taken with la grippe, and was unable to do my work. I consulted several of our best doctors but found very little relief. I saw one of your advertisements and concluded to give your Pe-ru-na a trial. I bought two bottles and was surprised at the good it did me. I used it all and bought six more bottles and was soon able to go back to my work. I think your Pe-ru-na is an excellent medicine and I have recommended it to others." Geo. W. Norman, 2531 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., was also cured of la grippe with Pe-ru-na.

Many cases of cures of la grippe are recorded in Dr. Hartman's latest book on chronic catarrh and catarrhal diseases. This book contains 64 pages, instructively illustrated. It will be sent free for a short time by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

RIDICULOUS SECRECY.

Every New Administration Seems to Revel in It.

Office-Holders, When First Clothed with Authority, Forget That They Are the Servants of the People.

[Special Washington Letter.]

The new administration is like all new administrations. It is secretive. Administrations come and go, but they all begin in a maze of mystery. The political complexion of the administration makes no difference. The subordinate officials make fools of themselves with equal facility, whether they believe in free trade, free silver, high protection or yellow dollars.

Twelve years ago Postmaster General Vilas, Attorney-General Garland, and all the members of Cleveland's cabinet, gave orders to their messengers, chief clerks and civil service clerks to be careful to give out no information to newspaper men without first getting permission to do so. As a matter of fact, the clerks knew what should be given out as news and what withheld far better than the new cabinet ministers could possibly know; for the cabinet ministers had much to learn about executive affairs.

Eight years ago the cabinet ministers of the Harrison administration came into their places of dignity and power, and they at once ordered secrecy concerning administrative affairs. Legitimate items of news were hidden away, for no other reason than that the cabinet ministers did not know their own business, and were groping slowly into new channels.

Four years ago, when the second Cleveland administration began, the secretiveness of the officials was more than usually dense and exasperating. It was caused largely by holdover republican clerks who wanted to ingratiate themselves with the new bosses, by pretending to closely guard important executive secrets. Of course, after six months of experience in every administration, the cabinet ministers learn their business, and are more communicative with the newsgatherers. But, four years ago, there was a density of secrecy that was as maddening as it was unnecessary.

For example, there are approximately 4,000 presidential post offices, with salaries running from $1,000 to $8,000. The postmaster at each of these places holds a commission for four years; and at the expiration of four years a successor is appointed. The prominent democrats in every state wanted to know when these commissions would expire, in order that they might intelligently plan for their turn at office-holding. Acting under the advice of an old holdover republican employe, Postmaster-General Bissell declared that this information should not be given out. This angered the newspaper men, and they tried to get the information anyway. Each man had his own experience at that time. I can only narrate my own:

HON. JOHN SHERMAN,

I was representing the Detroit Tribune, and sent to that paper a complete list of the presidential postmasters for Michigan with the date of the expiration of each commission and the salary attached to each office. As the representative of the St. Paul Dispatch I sent that paper a complete official list covering Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. To the Des Moines Register I sent the complete list for Iowa and Nebraska.

When those newspapers arrived in Washington copies were laid before the postmaster-general, and he was very wroth. He was anxious to find the clerk in his department who had given out the forbidden lists. If he could only find out all the particulars he would make some discharges, and teach his clerks a practical lesson of subordination. But he could not find out how the information was obtained.

Having formerly been employed in the post office department, I was familiar with the working of the great postal machinery, the manner and method of appointments, the bookkeeping system, and all that sort of thing. I knew that the sixth auditor of the treasury kept duplicate accounts of all postmasters in the United States, and that the books of the auditor must always tally with the accounts kept by their third assistant postmaster general. The postmaster-general could suppress news in the post office department, but he had no control over the treasury department. The office of the sixth auditor of the treasury is purely a bookkeeping office, and nobody ever goes there for news. Consequently the sixth auditor had never been ordered to suppress news. Therefore, when I went to the books to get the names, salaries and dates of commissions of postmasters nobody interposed any objection. Thus the lists were obtained and printed in spite of the postmaster-general. He was afterwards told that this government has many ramifications, and that there are various ways of ascertaining facts.

Another news matter of considerable importance was harder to obtain, and it required considerable effort and some expense to circumvent the officials who refused to give information. For every post office there are always two or more candidates, and sometimes as many as 20 men aspire for a good office. All of the applications are kept in the office of the fourth assistant postmaster-general, and no clerk can give out the list of candidates for postmasterships without authority to do so; and there is no other office in which they can be found. Postmaster-General Bissell declared that the names of candidates should not be published, because it would create jealousies and rivalries in the various localities, and that many candidates did not want their candidacy known in their own home towns. Thus the channels of news seemed to be hermetically sealed.

With a sort of bullheaded determination to get the news anyway, somehow, that subject was uppermost in my mind

HON. JOHN D. LONG,
(The New Secretary of the Navy.)

for a week. Finally it was solved. I wrote letters to the editors of the newspapers in each town where post office appointments were pending, asking for the names of the men who were known to be seeking the appointment, and the politicians who were backing each candidate. It was just the thing to do. Every newspaper man saw at a glance that they were suppressing the news at Washington, and also sympathized with the correspondent who was trying to get the news. Inside of two weeks I had letters giving complete statements of the cases in a hundred towns. With this information in my possession, I could talk with post office officials here and glean additional facts. Finally, when these matters were published in prominent newspapers, Postmaster-General Bissell called up his clerks, assured them that nothing but rank treachery could have permitted these things to be made public, and discharges of clerks were about to be made. This rendered it necessary to expose the method of obtaining news, in order to save innocent clerks from being discharged. Then the postmaster-general threw up his hands, and stopped trying to run a bureau of secrecy.

The people have a right to know what their public servants are doing. They have a right to know what the books show is being done. It makes no difference what party is temporarily in power, the administration is the servant of the people. Men who get into high official positions usually suffer with cranial enlargement, and mistake the government for a personal possession. Clothed with a little brief authority, they strut like Muscovite ducks, and imagine their waddling to be the more graceful when it is the more grotesque. When a man becomes pompous, he ceases to be a gentleman. When one ceases to be a gentleman, he should cease to be a public servant.

The trouble with past administrations has been that advice has been too freely taken from self-seeking, holdover clerks who would magnify their own importance in order to retain their positions. The same trouble confronts the present administration at the outset. Without being a spoilsman, a man of experience in national affairs cannot but view with some disfavor that law which prevents a member of the cabinet from appointing his close personal friends to positions near him. Just as the tides agitate the ocean, as the waters flow in rivers, and as the blood courses through the veins, there should be rotation in public office, for the public health. The stagnation of men in public office, I think, is a detriment to 'good government.' There should be new men in public places, and they should throw open the books to the people whom they serve.

President Arthur gave this country an excellent administration. Within the memory of man there has been no more commendable administration. It was an open book, seen and read by all men. One of the maxims of that administration was the declaration of Mr. Arthur to the members of his cabinet: "Let the newspaper men know everything about our domestic affairs, and what we are doing. We are not permitted, however, to tell the public what is being done in foreign affairs, because the other nations may not desire publicity in certain matters of importance. But in all domestic affairs we are the servants of the people alone, and they have a right to know what is being done."

Of course, where Great Britain, or Russia, or some other great civilized power is concerned, this government would not be justified in letting the world know what the other nations might want kept as an international secret. But in all domestic affairs President Arthur was right in giving recognition to the sovereignty of the people. It is to be hoped that the new administration will soon learn to take a similar view of the situation.

BLIND, BUT TOO GAY.

The outdoor poor department gives annually a small sum of money to those afflicted with blindness, says the New York World.

"I've come for my pension, sir," said an applicant recently to one of Superintendent Blake's assistants.

"There's no money here for you," replied the assistant. "And let me give you a tip, you won't get another dollar from this department."

"Oh, my; oh, my; do not say that," pleaded the blind man. "I'm poor; you'll admit that, won't you?"

"Yes; I think you are."

"And blind, too; isn't that so?"

"Yes, you are both poor and blind."

"Then hand over the money, please," demanded the man, "because under the law I come under both conditions."

But the clerk shook his head in the negative.

"You know well enough why you can't get the money," he said, "the report against you reads that you are not respectable."

"Now I know what you are driving at," sighed the blind man, "but what has that to do with it?"

"Everything," was the reply. "A man who elopes with another blind man's wife is not fit to have a pension."

And that settled it.

houses of congress proceeded to the eastern portico of the capitol, and in the presence of a tremendous throng of citizens the oath of office was administered to President McKinley by Chief Justice Fuller. President McKinley then delivered his inaugural address, which was a masterly effort, and in which he outlined the policy of his administration.

At its close, together with ex-President Cleveland, he entered the carriage and was driven to the white house, tumultuous cheers greeting him all along the route. After reviewing the gorgeous procession from the stand in front of the historical mansion, he formally entered upon his duties as the chief executive of a nation of 70,000,000 people. Grover Cleveland reentered the ranks of private citizens, and will retire to his new home at Princeton, N. J., to resume the practice of law.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Full Text of the Remarks of President McKinley.

After having taken the obligation which made him the ruler over the destinies of the nation, President McKinley stepped to the front of the platform and in a clear, resonant voice spoke as follows:

"Fellow Citizens: In obedience to the will of the people, and in their presence, by the authority vested in me by this oath, I assume the arduous and responsible duties of president of the United States, relying on the support of my countrymen and invoking the guidance of Almighty God. Our faith teaches that there is no safer reliance than upon the God of our fathers, who has so singularly favored the American people in every national trial, and who will not forsake us so long as we obey His commandments and walk humbly in His footsteps.

Need of Currency Reform.

"The responsibilities of the high trust to which I have been called—always of grave importance—are augmented by the prevailing business conditions, entailing idleness upon willing labor and loss to useful enterprises. The country is suffering from industrial disturbances from which speedy relief must be had. Our financial system needs some revision; our money is all good now, but its value must not further be threatened. It should all be put on an enduring basis, not subject to easy attack, nor its stability to doubt or dispute. Our currency should continue under the supervision of the government. The several forms of our paper money offer, in my judgment, a constant embarrassment to the government and a safe balance in the treasury. Therefore I believe it necessary to devise a system which, without diminishing the circulating medium, or offering a premium for its contraction, will present a remedy for those arrangements which, temporary in their nature, might well in the years of our prosperity have been displaced by wiser provisions. With adequate revenue secured, but not until then, we can enter upon such changes in our fiscal laws as will, while insuring safety and volume to our money, no longer impose upon the government the necessity of maintaining so large a gold reserve, with its attendant and inevitable temptations to speculation.

JOHN SHERMAN,
Secretary of State.

"Most of our financial laws are the outgrowth of experience and trial, and should not be amended without investigation and demonstration of the wisdom of the proposed changes. We must be both 'sure we are right' and 'make haste slowly.' If, therefore, congress in its wisdom shall deem it expedient to create a commission to take under early consideration the revision of our coinage, banking and currency laws, and give them that exhaustive, careful and dispassionate examination that their importance demands, I shall cordially concur in such action. If such power is vested in the president, it is my purpose to appoint a commission of prominent, well-informed citizens of different parties, who will command public confidence both on account of their ability and special fitness for the work. Business experience and public training may thus be combined, and the patriotic zeal of the friends of the country be so directed that such a report will be made as to receive the support of all parties, and our finances cease to be the subject of mere partisan contention. The experiment is, at all events, worth a trial, and in my opinion it can but prove beneficial to the entire country.

LYMAN J. GAGE,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Favors International Bimetallism.

"The question of international bimetallism will have early and earnest attention. It will be my constant endeavor to secure it by cooperation with the other great commercial powers of the world. Until that condition is realized, when the parity between our gold and silver money springs from and is supported by the relative value of the two metals, the value of the silver already coined, and of that which may hereafter be coined, must be kept constantly at par with gold by every resource at our command. The credit of the government, the integrity of its currency and the inviolability of its obligations must be preserved. This was the commanding verdict of the people, and it will not be unheeded.

Must Be Economical.

"Economy is demanded in every branch

RUSSELL A. ALGER,
Secretary of War.

of the government expenditures. Extravagance stopped wherever it is found, and prevented wherever in the future it may be developed. If the revenues are to remain as now, the only relief that can come must be from decreased expenditures. But the present must not become the permanent condition of the government. It has been our uniform practice to retire, not increase our outstanding obligations, and this policy must again be vigorously enforced. Our revenues should always be large enough to meet with ease and promptness not only our current needs and the principal and interest of the public debt, but to make proper and liberal provision for that most deserving body of public creditors, the soldiers and sailors and the widows and orphans who are the pensioners of the United States.

More Revenue Needed.

"The government should not be permitted to run behind, or increase its debt, in times like the present. Suitably to provide against this is the mandate of duty; the certain and easy remedy for most of our financial difficulties. A deficiency is inevitable so long as the expenditures of the government exceed its receipts. It can only be met by loans; or an increased revenue. While a large annual surplus of revenue may invite waste and extravagance, inadequate revenue creates distrust and undermines public and private credit. Neither should be encouraged. Between more loans and more revenue, there ought to be but one opinion. We should have more revenue, and that without delay, hindrance, or postponement. A surplus in the treasury created by loans, is not a permanent or safe reliance. It will suffice while it lasts, but it cannot last long while the outlays of the government are greater than its receipts, as has been the case during the past two years. Nor must it be forgotten however much such loans may temporarily relieve the situation the government is still indebted for the amount of the surplus thus accrued, which it must ultimately pay, while its ability to pay is not strengthened but weakened by a continued deficit. Loans are imperative in great emergencies to preserve the government or its credit, but a failure to supply needed revenue in time of peace for the maintenance of either has no justificatio

Protective Tariff Needed.

"The best way for the government to maintain its credit, is to pay as it goes—not by resorting to loans, but by keeping out of debt—through an adequate income secured by a system of taxation, external or internal, or both. It is the settled policy of the government, pursued from the beginning and practiced by all parties and administrations, to raise the bulk of our revenue from taxes upon foreign productions entering the United States for sale and consumption, and avoiding, for the most part, every form of direct taxation, except in time of war or other great necessity. This policy is clearly opposed to any needless additions to the subjects of internal taxation and is committed by its latest popular utterance to the system of tariff taxation. There can be no misunderstanding, either, about the principle upon which this tariff taxation shall be levied. Nothing has ever been made plainer at a general election than that the controlling principle in the raising of revenue from duties on imports is zealous care for American interests and American labor. The people have declared that such legislation should be had as will give ample protection and encouragement to the industries and the development of our country. It is, therefore, earnestly hoped and expected that congress will, at the earliest practical moment, enact revenue legislation that shall be fair, reasonable, conservative and just, and which, while supplying sufficient revenue for public purposes, will still be signally beneficial and helpful to every section, and every enterprise of the people. To this policy we are all, of whatever party, firmly bound by the voice of the people—a power vastly more potential than the expression of any political platform. The paramount duty of congress is to stop deficiencies by the restoration of that protective legislation which has always been the firmest prop of the treasury. The passage of such a law or laws would strengthen the credit of the government both at home and abroad, and go far towards stopping the drain upon the gold held for the redemption of our currency, which has been heavy and well-nigh constant for several years.

CORNELIUS N. BLISS,
Secretary of the Interior.

Restoration of Reciprocity Laws.

"In the revision of the tariff, especial attention should be given to the reenactment and extension of the reciprocity principle of the law of 1890, under which so great a stimulus was given to our foreign trade in new and advantageous markets, for our surplus agricultural and manufactured products. The brief trial given this legislation amply justifies a further experiment and additional discretionary power in the making of commercial treaties, the end in view always to be the opening up of new markets for the products of our country, by granting concessions to the products of other lands that we need and cannot produce ourselves, and which do not involve the goods of labor to our own people, but tend to increase their employment.

Must Legislate for Business Revival.

"The depression of the past four years has fallen with especial severity upon the great body of toilers of the country and upon none more than the holders of small farms. Agriculture has languished and labor suffered. The revival of manufacturing will be a relief to both. No portion of our population is more devoted to the institutions of free government, nor more loyal to their support, while none bears more cheerfully or fully its proper share in the maintenance of the government, or is better entitled to its wise and liberal care and protection. Legislation helpful to producers is beneficial to all. The depressed condition of industry on the farm and in the mine and factory has lessened the ability of the people to meet the demands upon them and they rightfully expect that not only a system of revenue shall be established that will secure the largest income with the least burden but that every means will be taken to decrease, rather than increase, our public expenditures. Business conditions are not the most promising. It will take time to restore the prosperity of former years. If we cannot promptly attain it, we can resolutely turn our faces in that direction and aid its return by friendly legislation. However troublesome the situation may appear, congress will not, I am sure, be found lacking in disposition or ability to relieve it, as far as legislation can do so. The restoration of confidence and the revival of business, which men of all parties so much desire, depend more largely upon the prompt, energetic and intelligent action of congress, than upon any other single agency affecting the situation.

JOHN D. LONG,
Secretary of the Navy.

Equality of Rights Must Prevail.

"It is inspiring, too, to remember that no great emergency in the 100 years of our eventful national life has ever arisen that has not been met with wisdom and courage by the American people, with fidelity to their best interests and highest destiny and to the honor of the American name. These years of glorious history have exalted mankind and advanced the cause of freedom throughout the world and immeasurably strengthened the precious free institutions which we enjoy. The people have and will sustain these institutions. The great essential to our happiness and prosperity is that we adhere to the principles on which the government was established and insist upon their faithful observance. Equality of rights must prevail and our laws be always and everywhere respected and obeyed. We may have failed in the discharge of our full duty as citizens of the great republic, but it is consoling and encouraging to realize that free speech, a free press, free thought, free schools, the free and unmolested right of religious liberty and worship, and free and fair elections are dearer and more universally enjoyed to-day than ever before. These guarantees must be sacredly preserved and wisely strengthened. The constituted authorities must be cheerfully and vigorously upheld. Lynchings must not be tolerated in a great and civilized country like the United States; courts—not mobs—must execute the penalties of the law. The preservation of public order, the right of discussion, the integrity of contracts and the orderly administration of justice must con-declaration of the party now coming into power, has been in the past that of opposition to all combinations of capital organized in trusts or otherwise, to control arbitrarily the condition of trade among our citizens, and it has supported such legislation as will prevent the execution of all schemes to oppress the people by undue charges on their supplies, or by unjust rates for the transportation of their products to market. This purpose will be steadily pursued, both by the enforcement of the laws now in existence and the recommendation and support of such new statutes as may be necessary to carry it into effect.

Illiteracy Must Be Banished.

"Our naturalization and immigration laws should be further improved to the constant promotion of a safe and desirable citizenship. A grave peril to the republic would be a citizenship too ignorant to understand or too vicious to appreciate the great value and beneficence of our institutions and laws—and unfriendly alike to those who come here to make war upon them. Our motto must be 'Free schools and free men.' We must be unmindful of the needs of the government among our own citizens if we neglect with the zeal of our forefathers the common school and the intelligence and virtue of the future citizen. Illiteracy must be banished from the land if we shall attain that high destiny as the foremost of the enlightened nations of the world, which, under Providence, we ought to achieve.

Civil Service Reform.

"Reforms in the civil service must go on. But the changes should be real and genuine, not perfunctory, or prompted by a spirit in behalf of mere parties, simply because they happen to be in power. As a member of congress I voted and spoke in favor of the present law, and I shall attempt its enforcement in the spirit in which it was enacted. The purpose in view was to secure the most efficient service of the best men who would accept appointment under the government, retaining faithful and devoted

JOSEPH McKENNA,
Attorney-General.

public servants in office, but shielding none, under the authority of any rule or custom, who are inefficient, incompetent or unworthy. The best interests of the country demand this, and the people heartily approve the law wherever and whenever it has been thus administered.

Our Merchant Marine.

"Congress should give prompt attention to the restoration of our American merchant marine, once the pride of the seas in all the great ocean highways of commerce. To my mind, few more important subjects so imperatively demand its intelligent consideration. The United States has progressed with marvelous rapidity in every field of enterprise and endeavor until we have become foremost in nearly all the great lines of inland trade, commerce and industry. Yet, while this is true, our American merchant marine has been steadily declining until it is now lower, both in percentage of tonnage and the number of vessels employed, than it was prior to the civil war. Commendable progress has been made of late years in the upbuilding of the American navy, but we must supplement these efforts by providing as a proper consort for it a merchant marine amply sufficient for our own carrying trade to foreign countries. The question is one that appeals both to our business necessities and the patriotic aspirations of a great people.

The Arbitration Treaty.

"It has been the policy of the United States since the foundation of the government to cultivate relations of peace and amity with all the nations of the world, and this accords with my conception of our duty now. We have cherished the policy of noninterference with the affairs of foreign governments, wisely inaugurated by Washington, keeping ourselves free from entanglements either as allies or foes, content to leave undisturbed with them the settlement of their own domestic concerns. It will be our aim to pursue a firm and dignified foreign policy, which shall be just, impartial, ever watchful of our national honor and always insisting upon the enforcement of the lawful rights of American citizens everywhere. We want no wars of conquest; we must avoid the temptation of territorial aggression. A war should never be entered upon until every agency of peace has failed; peace is preferable to war in almost every contingency. Arbitration is the true method of settlement of international as well as local or individual differences. It was recognized as the best means of adjustment of differences between employers and employes by the Forty-ninth congress, in 1886, and its application was extended to our diplomatic relations by the unanimous concurrence of the senate and house of the Fifty-first congress in 1890. The latter resolution was accepted as the basis of negotiation with us by the British house of commons in 1893, and upon our invitation a treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain was signed at Washington and transmitted to the senate for its ratification in January last. Since this treaty is clearly the result of our own initiative; since it has been recognized as the leading feature of our foreign policy throughout our entire national history—the adjustment of force of arms—and since it presents to the world the glorious example of reason and peace, not passion and war, controlling the relations between two of the greatest nations of the world, an example certain to be followed by others, I respectfully urge the early action of the senate thereon, not merely as a matter of policy, but as a duty to mankind. The importance and moral influence of the ratification of such a treaty can hardly be overestimated in the cause of advancing civilization. It may well engage the best thought of the statesmen and people of every country, and I cannot but consider it fortunate that it has been reserved to the United States to have the leadership in so grand a work.

JAMES WILSON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Extra Session of Congress Called.

"It has been the uniform practice to avoid as far as possible the convening of congress in extraordinary session. It is an example which, under ordinary circumstances and when, in the absence of a public necessity, is to be condemned. But a failure to convene the representatives of the people in congress in extra session when it involves neglect of a plainly imperative duty places the responsibility of such neglect upon the executive himself. The condition of the public treasury, as has been indicated, demands the immediate consideration of congress. It alone has the power to provide revenue for the necessities of the government. To convene congress for any other purpose would in no other sense be agreeable to me than to perform a public duty. I do therefore hereby give notice that the congress of the United States will convene in extra session at the capitol on Monday, the fifteenth day of March, 1897, at 12 o'clock noon, to which time all members are hereby required to take notice and govern themselves accordingly. The members are the agents of the people, and their presence at the seat of government is the execution of the mandate which they have received at the hands of their constituents. There could be no more fitting time than the present for the government upon the highest financial and economic basis that can be given. The people have only recently voted that this should be done, and pending its more binding action the affairs of their will that the obligations of immediate maturity. It has always seemed to me that the postponement of the meeting of congress until more than a year after it has been chosen deprives congress too much of the support of the people, on the popular will and the counsels of the corresponding senators.

To Meet March 15.

"It is evident, therefore, that to postpone action in the presence of so great a necessity until the regular session of congress would be unjust to the interests of the people. Our action will now be freer from mere partisan consideration than if the question of tariff revision was postponed until the regular session of congress. We are nearly two years from a congressional election, and politics cannot so directly influence us as if such contest were immediately pending. We can approach the problem calmly and patriotically, without fearing its effect upon an early election. Our fellow citizens who may disagree with us upon the character of this legislation prefer to have the question settled now, even against the preconceived views, and perhaps settled so reasonably as I trust and believe it will be, as to insure great permanency, than to have further uncertainty menacing the vast and varied business interests of the United States. Again whatever action congress may take will be given a fair opportunity for trial before the people are called to pass judgment upon it and this I consider a great essential to the rightful and lasting settlement of the question. In view of these considerations I shall deem it my duty to convene congress in extraordinary session on Monday, the 15th day of March, 1897.

Conclusion.

"In conclusion, I congratulate the country upon the fraternal spirit of the people and the manifestations of good will everywhere so apparent. The recent election not only most fortunately demonstrated the obliteration of sectional or geographical lines, but to some extent also the prejudices which for years have distracted our councils and marred our true greatness as a nation. The triumph of the people, whose verdict is carried into effect to-day is not the triumph of one section, nor wholly of one party, but of all sections and all the people. The north and the south no longer divide on the old lines, but upon principles and policies; and in this fact surely every lover of the country can find cause for true felicitation. Let us rejoice in and cultivate this spirit. It is ennobling and will be both a gain and blessing to our beloved country. It will be my constant aim to do nothing, and permit nothing to be done, that will arrest or disturb this growing sentiment of unity and cooperation, this revival of access and affiliation which now animates so many thousands in both the old antagonistic sections, but I shall cheerfully do everything possible to promote and increase it.

"Let me again repeat the words of the oath administered by the chief justice, which, in their respective spheres, so far as applicable, I would have all my countrymen observe: 'I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States.' This is the obligation I have reverently taken before the Lord Most High. To keep it will be my single purpose, my constant prayer—and I shall confidently rely upon the forbearance and assistance of all the people in the discharge of my solemn responsibilities."

VICE PRESIDENT HOBART.

Text of His Address Upon Taking His High Office.

Following is the full text of Vice President Hobart's address:

"Senators: To have been elected to preside over the senate of the United States is a distinction which any citizen would prize, and the manifestation of confidence which it implies is an honor which I sincerely appreciate. My gratitude and loyalty to the people of the country whom I owe this honor, and my duty to you as well, demand such a conservative, equitable and conscientious construction and enforcement of your rules as shall promote the well-being and prosperity of the people, and at the same time conserve the time-honored precedents and established traditions which have contributed to make this tribunal the most distinguished of the legislative bodies of the world.

"In entering upon the duties of the office to which I have been chosen I feel a peculiar delicacy, for I am aware that your body, with whom, for a time, I will be associated, has had but a small voice in the selection of its presiding officer, and that I am called upon to conduct your deliberations, while not perhaps your choice in point either of merit or fitness.

"It will be my constant effort to aid you, so far as I may, in all reasonable expedition of the business of the senate, and I may be permitted to express the belief that such expedition is the hope of the country. All the interests of good government and the advancement toward a higher and better condition of things, call for prompt and positive legislation at your hands. To obstruct the regular course of wise and prudent legislative action after the fullest and freest discussion, is neither consistent with true senatorial courtesy, conducive to the welfare of the people, nor in compliance with their just expectations. While assisting in the settlement of the grave questions which devolve upon the senate of the United States, it will be my endeavor to so guide its deliberations that its wisdom may be fruitful in works, whilst at the same time exercising such fairness and impartiality within the rules of the senate as shall deserve at least your good opinion for the sincerity of my effort. Unfamiliar with your rules and manner of procedure, I can only promise that I will bring all the ability I possess to the faithful discharge of every duty as it may devolve upon me, relying always upon your suggestions, your advice and your cooperation, and I should feel unequal to the task did I not trustfully anticipate that indulgent aid and consideration that you have at all times given to my predecessors and without which I could not hope to acquit myself to your satisfaction or with any degree of personal credit. It shall be my highest aim to justify the confidence the people have reposed in me by discharging my duties in such a manner as to lighten your labors, secure your appreciation of my honest effort to administer your rules with an eye single to the public good and promote the pleasant and efficient transaction of the public business. I trust that our official and personal relations may be alike agreeable, that the friendships we may form here may be genuine and lasting, and that the work of the senate may redound to the peace and honor of the country and the prosperity and happiness of all the people."

DOWN TO DEATH.

Train in Indiana Goes Through a Trestle Into Deep Water.

Different Reports Place Loss of Life from Fifteen to Thirty-Five—Meager Details.

Vincennes, Ind., March 10.—A terrible wreck occurred on the Evansville & Terre Haute railroad. A south-bound passenger train went into White river between Decker and Hazelton. The entire train is reported to be in the river with only one end of the last coach sticking out. Of 35 passengers only two are said to have escaped. Conductor Sears and Fireman Bowman were among the lost. Wires are down and it is impossible to get the names of all the passengers. The train had passed over the bridge proper, and had reached a long, steep embankment and trestle. The swollen condition of the river spread it under that part of the track which went down. A relief crew and surgeons have gone to the scene of the disaster. There are many conflicting stories placing the loss of passengers at from 13 to 65.

Trestle Gives Way.

The wreck occurred at a point just south of the main span of the White river bridge where a trestle is built over a long fill-in. This fill has since the recent floods been surrounded by water from ten to fifteen feet deep. The soggy condition of the ground caused the trestle supports to spread and the entire train plunged into the water.

Difficulty in Getting News.

Immediately upon the receipt of the news a messenger was sent overland from here to the scene of the wreck and when last heard from he had abandoned his buggy on account of bridges washed away and had swam two streams on horseback. Communication is inaccessible and there is nothing to calm the grave apprehensions felt. The train in descending the embankment tore down the telegraph poles and all communication is cut off. The local offices have been able to learn that Engineer McCutcheon, Fireman Bohman, Brakeman Bawcisen, Conductor Sears and three passengers have been taken out dead so far.

Another Account.

At 1:35 the train left Vincennes, on time, and was running at the rate of 45 miles an hour when the bridge across the White river was approached. As the large engine reached the structure it tottered and fell. The engine and two cars of the heavy train followed and were precipitated into the deep stream. The six cars which made up the rest of the limited stopped and were torn loose from the front of the train. Engineer Sears had applied the air brakes when he felt the bridge giving way beneath him.

Passengers Horrified.

Passengers in the rear coaches and sleeping-cars, most of whom were asleep, were awakened by the shock. Great excitement was caused, and this was added to by the prevailing darkness. It was night, and the only way in which the horrified passengers and crew of the train could ascertain what had happened was by the light of their lanterns. After laboring an hour it was found that both engineer and fireman had been hurled into the river and that they lay under the locomotive which took them to death in the stream. The bodies of the other dead were also found.

A brakeman sent to Decker station gave the first notification of the disaster at the bridge to the people in this town. Immediately the station agents at Hazelton, a small town near here, and at Vincennes on the north and Princeton and Evansville on the south, were informed by telegraph of what had happened. Assistance was sent from these places as soon as possible.

Wrecking Trains at Work.

Wrecking trains from Evansville and Terre Haute arrived on the scene of the wreck early and are now at work clearing away the wreckage and trying to recover the bodies of the engineer and fireman. The hardest work will be to remove the engine. It and the baggage and smoking-cars, which fell into the river, are total wrecks. The bridge is also wrecked and it will require several days to make repairs so that trains may pass over the Evansville & Terre Haute line of the Eastern Illinois road.

At ten o'clock a passenger train was made up at Decker's station which is conveying passengers who were on the ill-fated train back to their homes. It will run to Chicago and arrive there late in the afternoon. Among the passengers who boarded the train at Chicago were Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Cole, of Macomb, and Mrs. Monroe Heath, who were on the way to De Land, Fla., where Mrs. Heath has a winter home. None of them were hurt.

Fifteen Reported Killed.

Cincinnati, March 10.—A special to the Scripps-McRae league from Terre Haute says that 15 lives were lost in the Princeton wreck. The end of the rear car is sticking out of the water.

Louisville, Ky., March 10.—A noon dispatch from Princeton says 15 lives were lost in the Evansville & Terre Haute wreck, but gives no names.

Wreck on B. & O.

Walkerton, Ind., March 10.—Freight trains Nos. 95 and 96 on the Baltimore & Ohio were wrecked in a head-end collision at Teegarden, six miles east of here. Both engines were ruined and 37 cars ditched. The trainmen jumped and saved themselves. No one was killed, but a tramp had his leg mashed.

Fatal Wreck in Kentucky.

Wicklif, Ky., March 10.—The northbound Illinois Central St. Louis express collided with a freight train at East Cairo, Ky., at 1:20 o'clock in the morning, killing Fireman Walter Rogers (colored) and injuring Telegraph Operator Godwin Boaz, who was in the station, which was knocked over into the back water by the passenger engine, which left the track.

DISASTER IN MISSOURI.

Heavy Rains Cause Floods—Danger Past at Cincinnati.

St. Louis, March 10. — The recent heavy rains have swollen the small streams in the northeastern part of Missouri and the lowlands are submerged to a depth of from one to three feet. The loss in live stock and damage to farm buildings and crops is very heavy. The Missouri river is rising at an alarming rate, and if the spring rise comes on top of the present high water grave fears are entertained of a disastrous flood. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad is keeping a large force of men constantly at work riprapping the bank along the river near Charles City, Mo., and every effort is being made to prepare for the expected flood.

The Mississippi river at this city registers 22 feet, which is six feet below the danger line.

Cincinnati, March 10. — The Ohio river has passed the danger line again at night. This makes the fourth time inside of six weeks that the water has reached the danger stage. The steady rise Tuesday caused much fear among business men in the bottoms, who had just moved back into their houses, and many who did not care to take any chances of another flood began to look around for a safe place to store their merchandise. The scene is now more encouraging. The river is falling at nearly all points above Charleston, and the prospects are that it will be stationary here by evening.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—A special to the Journal from Portland, Mich., says: Grand river is on the rampage again at this point. The water rose four feet at night and in the morning all factories along the river were closed down, the engine rooms being under water. The heavy rains of the past 48 hours have added to the volume of water, which was already large. It is reported that the great body of heavy ice began moving some miles up the river, but it became jammed just above the village. The water is slowly rising and the loose ice which is running under the solid ice is making a dam below the village, which is growing worse hourly. The outlook for serious consequences is much more favorable than a few weeks ago.

DO NOT EXPECT WAR.

Leading London Bankers Express Feeling of Confidence.

London, March 10.—The leading London bankers now express their belief that there will be no war in the east and a general feeling of confidence is returning.

Sir William Harcourt, the leader of the opposition in the house of commons, has moderated the pessimistic tone of his utterances, and it is supposed that his change of front is due to his having learned that negotiations between England and France in regard to Egypt are being continued.

Athens, March 10.—Advices received here from Crete say that the siege of Kandamo has been raised and the foreign warships have landed detachments of marines with Maxim guns to insure the safety of the Moslems who were besieged.

Prince George, commander of the Greek torpedo flotilla, has been ordered to leave Crete for the island of Skinthos in the Grecian archipelago.

The government contemplates the formation of a foreign legion of troops, comprising persons other than Greeks who desire to enter the military service of Greece.

Canea, March 10. — The Mussulmans who were besieged by the insurgents at Kandamo have arrived here on board an Italian warship. British and Italian transports with troops on board are lying off this place.

Cologne, March 10 — The Gazette publishes a special dispatch from Candia, Crete, under Tuesday's date, which says that fighting between a force of Bashi Bazouks and a band of insurgents has taken place before the gates of that town in which the Bashi Bazouks lost 60 of their number in killed and wounded. The firing continues and the exasperation on both sides increases. It is probable that the insurgents will set fire to the town if they are able to do so.

Democrats of Rhode Island.

Providence, R. I., March 10.—The democratic state convention was called to order at 12:30 o'clock and organized with George N. Green, of Woonsocket, as chairman. Nominations of state officers were then made as follows: Governor, Daniel T. Church; lieutenant governor, F. E. Bartlett; secretary of state, Miles A. McNamee; attorney general, George T. Brown; general treasurer, Edmund Walker. The platform

SENATE QUITS.

Special Session Called by Ex-President Cleveland Ends.

Foreign Relations Committee Agrees to Take Up Arbitration Treaty on Friday.

Washington, March 10.—There was an unusually large attendance of senators at the opening of Wednesday's session.

The credentials of Andrew T. Wood as senator from Kentucky by appointment of the governor were presented and referred without discussion to the committee on privileges and elections on motion of Senator Gorman (dem., Md.).

Senator Hoar gave notice of a motion to amend the rules in relation to calls of the senate, so that, if a suggestion be made of the absence of a quorum, the presiding officer (instead of instantly ordering a call to be made) shall determine the matter and report whether there is or is not a quorum present. If there is, the business shall proceed; and, if not, the roll is to be called.

The purpose of the change is stated to be "to prevent the interruption of business by unnecessary calling of the roll."

Senator Shoup (rep., Idaho), presented a memorial from the legislature of Idaho, asking for the annexation of a portion of Wyoming to that state.

Senator Warren, (rep., Wyo.) referred to the memorial as an attempt to have a portion of a good and fertile state added to a somewhat dry and barren one, and intimated that opposition to it would be made in proper time.

The senate then proceeded to legislative business, and at 12:40 adjourned without day.

To Take Up Treaty Friday.

Washington, March 10.—The senate committee on foreign relations did not take up the general treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain at its meeting Wednesday morning. The subject was not mentioned except in connection with a motion which was agreed to that a special meeting be held Friday for the purpose of considering that convention.

The Alaskan boundary treaty was, after a short discussion, ordered to be favorably reported.

Postmaster Nominated.

Washington, March 10.—The president nominated W. R. Jewel to be postmaster at Danville, Ill., to succeed John Beard, whose nomination was sent in during the previous administration and never confirmed. The nomination was confirmed in executive session.

Queen Starts for Cimiez.

London, March 10.—The queen, accompanied by Princess Henry of Battenburg (Princess Beatrice) and members of her majesty's court, started from Windsor at 10:30 o'clock in the morning by special train for Portsmouth on her way to Cimiez. At Portsmouth her majesty will embark on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, for Cherbourg, where she will take a special train for the Riviera. At Cimiez the queen will occupy the Regina hotel. She will return by the way of Germany at the end of April. The weather at the time of her departure from Windsor was bright and sunny, and a large crowd of people cheered the queen on her way from the castle to the station.

Brother of James G. Blaine Dead.

Washington, March 10.—Robert Gillespie Blaine, the last surviving brother of the late James G. Blaine, died at his residence in this city of paralysis after an illness of about a week. He was about 65 years of age and of late years after his hair and beard grew white, bore a somewhat striking resemblance to his distinguished brother. He inherited, however, none of his aggressive tendencies or striking mental qualities, but was content to occupy small official positions, practically sinecures, first in the agricultural department and afterwards in the congressional library. He leaves a widow, one son, a young man of 20, and five daughters, two of them married.

Banker Put in Penitentiary.

Columbus, O., March 10. — E. W. Agnew, president of the National bank of Ocala, Fla., was placed in the state prison here to serve a five years' sentence for violation of federal banking laws. Agnew was worth $1,000,000 three years ago. He had loaned all the money he could command on the orange crop, that was lost in the freeze of 1894-95, and this left him penniless. In this strait he violated the federal laws.

Monon Sold.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10. — The Monon railroad was sold here under an order of the court at 11 a. m. by Commissioner VanBuren for $3,001,000. J. H. Jolinn did the bidding for Frederick Olcott, Henry W. Poor and Henry Rouse, a committee representing the bondholders of Louisville, New Albany and Chicago. He deposited $30,000 as a guarantee.

Rome, March 10. — Mgr. Merry Del Val, the newly appointed papal delegate to Canada, will sail for America on March 20.

Wages Cut Down.

Marquette, March 5. — The Sutherland-Inness company of Munising, Alger county, has cut the wages of its 200 employes ten per cent., the order taking effect March 1. The company operates several sawmills and a tannery.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON.

Aquatic Poachers Kill Fish with Stolen Dynamite.

The Treatment of Persons Having Private Claims Against Uncle Sam Reflects No Credit on Congress.

[Special Washington Letter.]

There is enough dynamite stored within a stone's throw of Georgetown to blow up half a dozen cities. This dangerous explosive is used in the blasting operations at the stone quarries which line the Virginia shore of the Potomac from near the Aqueduct bridge, and also for blasting into the solid masses of rock which form the site of the new union depot. The residents of the quiet west end are being treated to a series of detonating reports, much like the discharge of heavy artillery.

The dynamite used in the operations is stored in a number of squatty, one-story frame structures, which dot the picturesque shore below the precipitous Potomac palisades. These little buildings, like whitened sentinels, mark the location of the several quarry plants. They each contain from a few sticks to a ton of dynamite, enough, in the aggregate, should it explode, to disfigure the upper Potomac, and deluge Georgetown with masses of rock and debris. For blasting purposes, however, only a few ounces of dynamite are used at a time.

From these wooden magazines along the shores, wherein the awful explosives are stored, certain fishermen, who cannot under the law employ gill nets, have been stealing sticks of dynamite and fuses, and nearly every night they go out into the stream, and explode the stuff under the surface of the water, thus killing vast numbers of fish by concussion. The sticks are weighted, a lighted water-proof fuse applied, and they are sunk. The fishermen quickly row away from the spot. In a few moments there is a suppressed sound, like distant thunder, and a great billow of foaming water rises above the surface.

Then the aquatic poachers return to the center of the river and gather in the dead and dying fish, which float to the surface in large numbers.

"I have heard the yarn of the fellow who stole thunder and grabbed at lightning," said a Georgetown policeman, "but these fishermen who steal dynamite will compare with him in point of nerve." Commodore Sutton with the police steamer "Joe Blackburn" has been vainly trying to catch the fishermen who are depopulating the waters of the upper river of their game fish by means of stolen dynamite.

The men who work about dynamite houses are cautioned to use great care in handling the treacherous stuff. Several fatal explosions have already occurred, and a deep hole in the earth opposite the island called "Three Sisters" marks the spot where one of the superintendents of blasting lost his life last year. He was warming "chilled" dynamite at a bonfire, when a stick of the giant explosive ignited, blowing him skyward and lacerating him in a horrible manner.

The men engaged in blasting at the site of the Union depot in Georgetown are only allowed to bring dynamite from the Virginia side sufficient for one day's work. This is temporarily stored, until used, in the old Key mansion, on M street, near the Aqueduct bridge, the house formerly occupied by Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner." They used to have liberty to bring as much dynamite over to the Georgetown side of the river as the contractors desired. But not long ago there was a runaway team in Georgetown which scared all of the people almost out of their wits. The wagon was loaded with dynamite.

FISHING WITH DYNAMITE.

The street was paved with cobblestones. The horses ran furiously and it seemed miraculous that no explosion occurred. The driver jumped from the wagon and was badly hurt, but he was glad to get away from his dangerous load. The horses ran fully half a mile and stopped of their own volition on the Aqueduct bridge. As they ran around the angle from the street to the bridge the wagon bumped against the iron railing. An explosion at that point would have wrecked the bridge and killed many people.

There has probably never been a session of congress that has given greater emphasis to the assertion that it is impossible to collect even a just claim against the government than the one now approaching a close. A few pension bills have been smuggled through at odd times, and an extremely limited number of relief measures, each carrying a small sum of money, have been pushed along under protest, but all of those claims which might perceptibly increase the total appropriations for this congress have been persistently relegated to the rear.

To such an extent has this policy of ignoring the obligations of the government been carried that judgments of the court of claims are no longer paid.

That judicial adjunct of the government was created for the express purpose of ascertaining the merits of certain claims and to report to congress whether they should be paid or repudiated. But the policy of the managers of the house has been to minimize appropriations and make everything subservient to a record for economy. As a consequence those who are unfortunate enough to be creditors of the United States must either abandon their just claims or expect to begin a period of lobbying and waiting which may continue indefinitely.

Some congressmen have persistently called attention to the delinquency of the government, but the rank and file have been whipped into a blind and unquestioning following of leadership which shows to all claimants the futility of hoping for relief from congress.

On the day when the private calendar was taken up for consideration, Mr.

GATHERING THE DEAD FISH.

Walker, of Massachusetts, declared that a certain obnoxious bill for the promotion and retirement of a hospital steward as a second lieutenant of cavalry had been placed at the head of the calendar to prevent the consideration of meritorious bills. He said:

"This case is put here under the peculiar circumstances which exist in order that justice shall not be done to men who are robbed of their just claims by the government of the United States—their just claims have been reported favorably and unanimously by the committee to whom this duty is assigned. This bill was put here to be kept here, and to be discussed the day out, so that women may still continue to haunt the halls of congress in the hope that it will deal justly with their fathers' and husbands' private claims to money honestly due them. It is an outrage and a disgrace to this house and the leaders to put in such claims as this, to be discussed all day, so that these other claims shall not be considered."

Referring to Mr. Walker's remarks, Mr. Talbert, of South Carolina, said: "I am glad to see a revival going on among gentlemen on the other side of the house. I am glad to see that the scales have been stricken from their eyes, and that they have begun to see the outrages that are being perpetrated upon the taxpayers of this country."

Mr. Mahon, of Pennsylvania, said: "I want to say this about the court of claims: That this court holds claimants to a stricter accountability, a stricter compliance with the rules of evidence than any other court in the United States. I say, either you ought to stand by the court and pay the judgments which it renders, or should abolish your court. My experience is that the greatest robber in this country is the nation itself. Our government is continually robbing private citizens of their property and refusing to reimburse them. Now, I say that the time has come for this congress either to pay those findings of the court of claims or to abolish that court and let the people of this country know that congress does not propose to pay their claims whether they are found to be just or not.

"These bills that we now have in the committee on war claims, those findings of the court of claims and other claims, are about 1,200 in number. They do not accumulate. They come in congress after congress. The bills are printed, and the reports are printed, and if you go and investigate you will find that you have spent about $340,000 in this congress for printing for this and other committees. The congressional printing bills are enormous, and usually inexcusable."

Mr. McCall, of Tennessee, said: "Will this congress repudiate the obligations that this government owes to the union men in the south? These claimants are growing old and feeble. They are fast falling into the grave. For 30 years they have expected the government to pay those long expected claims; and I now ask this congress to pay its loyal citizens their just dues as the government requires each citizen to pay to it that which he owes."

And thus the discussion continued until the hour of adjournment, without a vote having been taken on a single bill. The dear people have no idea of the conditions existing in the senate and house of representatives, whereby the do-nothing policy is constantly promoted. As a matter of fact it may be truthfully said that a large majority of the statesmen who are honored by the people care for little other than their own advancement and aggrandizement; and they legislate from purely or impurely selfish motives in all cases. This is the naked truth, although it may not be palatable to the statesmen concerning whom it is told.

Table for the Dressing Room.

Small round tables that look at first glance like those intended for smokers' use serve a valuable purpose in a lady's dressing-room. They have attached to their polished tops all paraphernalia needed to crimp the hair, including safety match boxes, alcohol lamp with longs standard, hairpin tray and bandoline jar. The tables are in oak or mahogany finish and the attachments in various metals, brass, nickel or silver.

VOTERS TO DECIDE.

Legislature Shifts Responsibility in a Contest Case.

Kerr's Seat in the House Declared Vacant—Special Election Ordered—Interesting Gossip from Lansing.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, March 10.—The Michigan legislature has violated a long-established precedent in disposing of the Baird-Kerr election contest. Heretofore, without exception, the contestant has been seated whenever his politics were in accord with the majority. In declaring neither party entitled to the seat and leaving the people to decide the question at the approaching election a novel way out of the difficulty has been discovered. Both Representative Baird and Contestant Kerr are allowed $200. The resolution declared that neither contestant was legally elected, owing to gross irregularities on the part of the election inspectors, and the house declared that a special election be held in the district April 5. Each of the contestants will be renominated by his party.

The senate as a committee of the whole discussed Mason's resolution providing that electors shall be citizens of the United States and also be able to read the constitution of Michigan and write his own name before he shall be allowed to vote. The resolution does not disfranchise anybody who could vote January 1, 1897, although he cannot read or write. The resolution failed of passage by two votes. Afterward the vote was reconsidered and the bill laid on the table.

The joint resolution providing for the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment providing for the establishment of the referendum was reported by the house judiciary committee without recommendation and laid upon the table. Gov. Pingree favored the plan in a modified form, and the measure is being urged by labor organizations. An effort will be made to take the resolution from the table. The proposed amendment provides that when five per cent. of the people petition for it a popular vote may be taken upon any measure passed by the legislature.

As a committee of the whole the senate agreed to the joint resolution fixing the salaries of the members of the legislature at $600 per year and cutting the mileage to five cents. The resolution further provides that the time for introducing bills shall be cut from 50 to 20 days. The section which provided that the members shall not receive free passes on the railroads was chopped off by the committee.

Interest in the beet sugar bounty bill has spread rapidly over the state among the farmers since Mr. Dudley's bill passed the house. The farmers are flooding the representatives and senators with letters and petitions asking for them to pass the bill.

The senate killed the bill to repeal the law providing for the taxation of real estate mortgages. The vote was close and the bill may pass later.

Among the bills reported favorably to the house was the one prohibiting Sunday photographing. Another bill reported favorably is one to place private banks under supervision of the banking commissioner.

The first single tax proposition which has popped up in the legislature got a very black eye. The bill was one prepared by Judson Grenell, of Detroit. It provided for the exemption of all buildings of less value than $5,000. The bill came up before the house committee on general taxation and was promptly put into a pigeon-hole. However, there is another bill before the same committee more radical than the one pigeon-holed. It provides that no building shall be taxed, but that all taxes shall be raised on land, franchises and inheritances. Local taxes are to be raised on land, and state taxes on inheritances and franchises.

The mandamus case brought to test the power of Gov. Pingree to hang on to the mayoralty of Detroit since becoming governor of the state was argued before the supreme court Tuesday. The arguments were chiefly directed to the contention that the duties of the two offices held by Pingree are incompatible, and that by accepting the office of governor he vacated the office of mayor.

The two houses have designated Tuesday, March 16, as Michigan day, it being the fiftieth anniversary of the location and establishment of the state capitol at Lansing. Joint committees have been appointed to arrange for the proper observance of the day.

The house has passed bills permitting fraternal beneficiary associations to deposit a guaranty fund with the state treasurer, requiring that all township officials be citizens of the United States; making women eligible to serve as school inspectors; requiring university professors to make analysis of water for municipalities without cost; amending the tax law so as to provide for the sale and homesteading of state tax lands after the state has bid them in for three successive years subsequent to 1893.

In the senate favorable reports have been made on the Wager bill providing for a permanent state forestry commission, and the Campbell bill, reducing the pay of legislative employes and requiring that all committee clerks shall be stenographers.

Michigan Wheat All Right.

Lansing, March 9.—Reports to the secretary of state for the March crop indicate that wheat was not materially damaged during the trying weather of February. The returns indicate that 17 per cent. of the wheat crop of 1896 is in the farmers' hands.

Death of a Theatrical Manager.

Jackson, March 10.—Michael W. Tobin, a theatrical manager, died at his home here Tuesday, aged 45 years. He has been connected with the theatrical business 25 years.

BEVERIDGE GOES FREE.

He Is Finally Acquitted of the Charge of Wife Murder.

Bessemer, March 5. — Duncan Beveridge has been acquitted of the murder of his mistress, Mollie Beveridge. This ends the strangest case in the annals of criminal trials in this state. Duncan Beveridge and James Redpath, with two women, purchased a farm from a man named John McDonald, and McDonald lived with them. One night both the women were shot, the Beveridge woman being killed, and Beveridge himself was wounded. McDonald was convicted of the crime and served six years. He was pardoned on the strength of a letter from the Redpath woman, who attributed the shooting to Beveridge. Redpath was acquitted, and the acquittal of Beveridge closes the case, which must always remain a mystery.

Jailed for Contempt.

Bay City, March 4.—Another chapter was added to the St. Stanislaus church conflict when Judge Maxwell imposed a fine of $250 on Alderman W. G. Kabat for contempt of court, and sentenced him to five months imprisonment in the county jail. Bruno Chudzinski, another member of the committee, was discharged, and Ignats Buzalski's case was continued. Kabat is a leading democratic politician in the Eighth ward.

Luck of a Manistique Family.

Manistique, March 10.—News has been received here of the death in Elmira, N. Y., of an uncle of the Fuller family, several members of which reside here. He bequeathed an estate of $1,000,000 to the heirs of his three sisters. Archie MacLaurine, a merchant here, is married to one of the heirs, and expects his wife to receive several hundred thousand dollars as her share of the estate.

Sued for Heavy Damages.

Grand Rapids, March 5.—Robert Patterson, of Cascade, on Thursday began suit in the circuit court for $25,000 damages against Dr. Golden Hamilton, also of Cascade for alienating the affections of Mrs. Patterson.

Diffuse Help!

In this way. When you see how Pearline has helped you, tell others and let it help them. Where a woman is trying to do housework in the old, hard-working, rubbing way, it's actual charity to tell her about Pearline. Perhaps she uses it for scrubbing, washing dishes, etc., but can't believe that in washing clothes it can save so much work and wear without doing harm. Your personal experience might convince her. That would help Pearline, to be sure—but think how much more it would help her, by saving time and strength and real money. 288 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

PIAZZA GREENHOUSE.

How to Utilize Porches for Both Pleasure and Profit.

Thousands of farm houses have piazzas upon the sunny side that might be utilized for both pleasure and profit in the winter. Such utilization, moreover, would entail no great expense outside of the small amount of home carpentering that would be required. There are two or three points to be considered when making a plant room of a piazza. First, as to floors. The ordinary piazza has no tight underpinning to keep out the cold. Usually it has only lattice work, while the floor, also, is usually more or less open. It would be no great trouble to lay a new matched floor over the few feet of space to be occupied by the plant room. Then cover the lattice work around the base of the piazza with heavy, resin-sized, or tarred building paper, tacking it tightly and bank with evergreen brush. Now, as to the outer walls. The greater part must, of course, be of glass, but it is not advisable to have the sash extend to the floor. From the piazza rail down let the wall be of matched boarding. Along the front this should be screwed to the inside of the rail. Sash to fit any opening can now be bought very cheap. It is desirable that communication with this plant room be from a living room rather than by a hall door, so it may be found desirable to cut down a window and make a door of it. This will obviate the necessity of having a door in the outside, temporary petitions.

The heating of such a plant room can be done in a number of ways, but the simplest and most satisfactory for the average farmhouse will probably be by the use of an oil stove. These little sitting-room oil heaters have been so greatly improved and made so reasonable in price that they will be found wonderfully convenient for just such use as this. Care should be taken, however, to get a make in which the flame will not "crawl up" and smoke, if left by itself. The accompanying illustration gives a suggestion as to the making of a plant room upon a piazza. Of course, piazzas differ in shape, but the same principle of treatment will apply to nearly all cases. Make all as tight as possible, then an oil stove will give sufficient heat to keep the plants in health.—Orange Judd Farmer.

SMALL FRUIT CULTURE.

How to Secure an Ample Supply of Nice Berries for Home Use.

M. A. Thayer, of Sparta, Wis., writes the Western Plowman as follows: Mature plans for the season; select your plants; order them early; and let this be your first work in the spring. One-quarter acre of good land set with proper varieties and well cultivated, should produce from 20 to 40 bushels of nice berries every season. This would give an ordinary family fresh berries every day in the season and a liberal supply of canned, preserved or dried during the entire year. Plants for such a garden may be purchased direct from a reliable grower for $10 or $15, and should include the following varieties: 300 strawberry plants, early, medium and late; 100 blackberry plants, early and late; 50 black raspberry plants, early and late; 50 red raspberry plants, early and late; 75 currants, red and white, early and late; 25 gooseberry, early and late; 18 grapes, three varieties, early. Multiply this list by four for one acre, or by 20 for five acres, and you have the right proportion for a continuous supply of different varieties for market purposes. Good berries may be grown on any soil, sandy, clay, muck, loam, gravel, or a combination of each, provided the same be highly fertilized, well drained and thoroughly cultivated. Early fruits are usually most desirable, and light soils with southern exposure are best adapted for that purpose. Light soils, however, require heavy fertilizing, more mulch in summer, are more liable to injury by drought and produce lighter crops. Clay soil must be well drained, is more difficult to prepare, mature later crops and not so favorable for winter protection. The ideal berry ground should be (1) a rich sandy loam with clay subsoil; (2) a dark loam or gravelly loam mixed with clay, and a clay subsoil, all having a southerly or eastern slope. Any of these mixed soils will make good berry gardens by applying good barnyard manure, which contains all the essential elements required. When such manure cannot be obtained then commercial fertilizers rich in nitrogen and potash should be applied. Avoid low, flat land unless under drained, it is usually cold, late and more subject to frosts. Avoid steep hillsides as being more subject to drought and wash of soil by severe rains.

If barnyard manure were applied with land plaster to the grape vine the plaster in much greater quantities than usually employed—we would have a fertilizer specially adapted to the production of grapes. It is a mistake not to make greater use of stable manure in our vineyards.

ONIONS FROM SEED.

A Profitable Crop When Properly Planted and Cared For.

The largest and best onions are grown from seed. While they can hardly be considered a certain crop, yet when anything like a fair crop is secured they are a profitable crop to you. On account of the work and cost of keeping the crop clean it is quite an item to select a piece of clean land and for the same reason only well rotted and thoroughly fined manure should be used. To get the best results the land must be rich. It is almost a waste of seed to try to grow onions in anything but a rich soil.

Wood ashes, poultry manure, guano or thoroughly rotted stable manure can be used as fertilizers, taking pains to work it thoroughly in with the soil. There is little danger of getting the soil too rich.

It is important that the seed be sown early. Securing the seed and manuring of the land should be done in good season, so that at the first favorable opportunity in the spring the seed can be sown. Have the soil as fine as possible when the seed is sown in order to secure a good germination of the seed and a vigorous start of the plants to grow. Be sure that the seed is of good quality. If the seeding is to be done by hand, work out the rows about eight inches apart and make the drills about one inch deep. Sow the seeds as early as possible, two or three seeds to the inch. It is quite an item to get the seed distributed evenly in the drills. The advantage in using the drill is that the seed can be sown and covered more evenly with less work.

Some growers, in order to get the plants started earlier and to some extent at least lessen the work of keeping the crop clean at the start, sow the seed thickly in a bed or frame, and, after they are well up, transplant them into rows where they are to grow.

As when the seed is sown it is important to have the soil in a good tilth. Work out the rows and then lay the plants not over two inches apart. It is better to use plenty of plants and thin out than to have vacant places in the rows.

If the land is not so rich as it should be it will be a good plan to scatter a good dressing of wood ashes or commercial fertilizer over the surface. The onion feeds very near the surface, and the necessary cultivation will work the fertilizer sufficiently into the soil.

A fine, sharp-toothed steel rake is one of the best implements with which to begin the cultivation. Properly used it will thoroughly fine the surface and destroy the weeds. It is important to begin the cultivation as soon as possible, for in this way the weeds will be easier kept down. It will be an exceptional case, however, when hand weeding will not be necessary. But a careful use of the rake and cultivator in good season will greatly lessen the work of hand-weeding. With this, as with many other crops, it is best to commence in a small way, and increase the acreage after experience has been acquired.—St. Louis Republic.

HANDLING BARRELS.

An Excellent Device for Hauling Apples from the Cellar.

The usual storage place for apples is in the cellar. The barrels then have to be carried up the roll-way by two men—a matter of no little difficulty when the roll-way is narrow as is usually the case. A plan is shown in the cut by which the barrels of apples are carried to the surface with but little lifting, and without jarring the fruit. The diagram tells its own story, except that the triangular truck that is mounted on two rollers is represented larger than need be, thus making it higher than is actually necessary. The rollers run on a wide plank that rests on the edge of the stair treads. The same arrangement will be found equally serviceable in putting apples into the cellar in the fall, and for use with vegetables, etc.—American Gardening.

Keeping Up Hedge Fences.

Hedges are useful or detrimental according to the way they are kept. A well-trimmed hedge is ornamental and becomes better every year, but if neglected and allowed to grow without attention it is very unsightly. The first year is the most important in managing a hedge, and in three years it should be in a condition to demand but little trimming. An osage orange hedge is better than a fence when once established, and can be so managed the first three years as to be impenetrable to small animals.

Popular Peach Variety.

The Elberta peach is now one of the favorites with fruit growers, and in some markets is taking the place so long occupied by the Crawford as the standard of excellence. The fruit is large and showy, and the tree, although of southern origin, has proved hardy. It has been extensively set of late and promises to continue in favor for some time. Unfortunately, it is easily affected by leaf blight. Were it not for this the variety would be hard to beat.—Farm and Home.

A garden, properly conducted, will furnish everything to sell every day in the year, and one need never go to town without taking something to barter for his groceries. This is not the result from the usual farm garden, however, for the soil is kept neither sufficiently rich, deep nor well drained.—Rural World.

GIGANTIC LUMBER DEAL.

Thayer Company Makes a Payment of $250,000 in One Check.

Grand Rapids, March 10.—The recent sale of 10,000 acres of pine lands in Missaukee and Kalkaska counties, with an estimated stumpage of $220,000,000 feet, for over $1,000,000, by the Canfield Salt & Lumber company of Manistee to the Thayer Lumber company of Muskegon, is the largest pine land deker in the history of western Michigan if not in the state.

Other large transactions have been the sale by Hannah, Lay & Co., of Traverse City, to John Torrent, of Muskegon, of several thousand acres of timber land in northern Michigan for $169,000, the purchase by Buckley & Douglass, of Manistee, of the tract of timber land near Long Lake, for $950,000, and the purchase by the same concern of the Swan, White & Smith mills, timber lands and equipments at Muskegon for $42,000 cash.

The recent sale of the Thayer company exceeds them all, and the payment in cash down was $250,000, which went through one of the banks in this city in a single check. The Thayer Lumber company will cut the timber and either drive or rail it to Muskegon to be cut into lumber, and it is estimated that the tract will last ten years. A spur of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad will be built to the tract from Lake City.

This tract of timber is the only large block of pine left in the lower peninsula, and long before it is gone pine lumbering will be a lost industry in Michigan. The Saginaw mills are practically cut out, with three or four exceptions; there is only one other sawmill left in Muskegon, and the Manistee, Ludington, Alpena and Cheboygan lumber men are rapidly getting at the end of their timber ropes. The hard wood resources, the development of which began within the last ten years, are sufficient to last a generation or more, even at the present rate of cutting, and will bring more wealth into the state than pine ever has.

PROMINENT MAN GONE.

Death of Hon. George Jerome, of Detriot—His Career.

Detroit, Mich., March 8.—Hon. George Jerome, one of the best-known capitalists and oldest residents of this city, and brother of the late Gov. David H. Jerome, died at his residence here. He was 75 years of age. Very few men in Michigan in the early days were more prominent than Mr. Jerome. In the summer of 1854, when the republican party was organized at Jackson, Mr. Jerome was one of the leading spirits. During the important career of Zach Chandler, he was one of his closest counselors. In national affairs Mr. Jerome became noted in his successful efforts to secure the withdrawal of John C. Fremont as a candidate for president against President Lincoln. Mr. Jerome served three terms in the state senate.

ADAM ARNOLD DIES.

Close of the Career of a Notorious Resident of Battle Creek.

Battle Creek, March 5.—Adam C. Arnold, who was convicted in December, 1895, of the murder of his son George, and has been out on bail pending appeal to the supreme court ever since, died at seven o'clock Thursday morning of valvular disease of the heart, aged 73 years. Arnold maintained to the last his innocence of the murder of his son. It is announced that Arnold has bequeathed all his property to the W. C. T. U. of Battle Creek. This has made a sensation, as he accumulated his property by liquor selling and crime.

KILLED AT A GRADE CROSSING.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKee, of Niles, Are Run Over by a Train.

Niles, March 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKee, who live four miles west of Marcellus, were instantly killed by a fast west-bound train on the Grand Trunk railroad there Thursday afternoon. They were on their way home with their team and their seven-year-old grandchild, when they were struck by the train on a crossing. Both of the old people were killed and also the team. The little child was thrown several feet, but escaped injury.

Peach Crop Is Safe.

Decatur, March 8.—Fruit growers in the Michigan peach belt have concluded their investigations of the damage done to peach prospects by the severe cold weather and find the harm caused to be much less than at first thought, the injury being mostly confined to the buds of the earlier and poorer varieties. In some districts away from the lake shore orchards suffered severely, but in the peach growing regions along the lake, where four-fifths of the crop of the state is produced, the prospects are excellent for a large yield of fruit.

Investigate a Pardon.

Jackson, March 6.—The legislative committee appointed to investigate the pardoning of Convict Dave Wixom by Gov. Pingree held sessions behind closed doors. Assistant Deputy Warden Wiserma, who, it is said, was promised $2,000 by Wixom, was subpoenaed, but refused to come. It is now known that Wixom ate soap to cause him to look like a consumptive. Warden Chamberlain testifies he knew nothing of the scheme.

Yaple Consents to Run.

Grand Rapids, March 6.—Judge George L. Yaple, of Mendon, nominated for justice of the supreme court by the fusionist convention, telegraphed to friends in this city that he would make the race. Robert McDougall, of Hillsdale, and M. O. Graves, of Petoskey, who were nominated for regents by the bolting populist convention, have both declined to run, and the straight populist ticket has not yet been filled.

Held on a Serious Charge.

Decatur, March 9.—Daniel Comstock, ex-president of the defunct Mecosta County savings bank at Big Rapids, has been arrested on a charge of misappropriating $9,000 of the bank's funds.

MORTGAGE SALES.

On the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1894, Samuel Larzelere of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan, executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee, Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plot in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and four and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1858, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 566.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place said building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8, A. D. 1897.

GRÆCO-EGYPTIAN PAINTING.

Process by Which Very Remarkable Portraits Were Done.

The remarkable series of portraits found in Egypt are described in the Monthly Illustrator and the methods the old artists employed.

The methods of these ancient days were totally different from those of the present day and were evidently vastly more durable. Panels of wood were used to paint on—sycamore and cypress—also panels of papier mache, and occasionally they were formed by gluing three thicknesses of canvas together. These panels were usually about 16 inches long by 7 inches wide. The artist used liquid wax instead of oil to mix the colors, which were made not from vegetable, but from mineral substances, and were of marvelous brilliancy and permanence—blue powdered lapis lazuli, green malachite, red oxide of iron, etc. The colors were laid on in patches, somewhat after the fashion of a mosaic, and afterwards blended with an instrument called the cestrum, which appears to have been a lancet-shaped spatula, long-handled, with at one end a curved point, at the other a finely dentated edge. With the toothed edge the wax could be equalized and smoothed, while the point was used for placing high lights, marking lips, eyebrows, etc.

The final process, which gives the name encaustic to this kind of painting, was the burning in of the colors. This was done by the application of a heated surface to the panel, though Georg Ebers believes that in Egypt the heat of the sun was probably all that was needed to complete the artist's work.

HONORABLES IN MAINE.

Distinctions Made in Official Titles by Pine Tree State Etiquette.

There is a form of official etiquette in the correspondence which goes out from the secretary of state's office which is unlike that followed in any of the New England states. According to the rulings of the secretary—and he is simply carrying out the traditions of his predecessors since Maine became a state in 1820—the judges of the supreme and superior courts, the members of the governor's council, the senators, the heads of all the departments and the mayors of Maine's cities have their mail addressed to them with the word "Honorable" prefixed to the name in every case, while the members of the house of representatives, the judges of the municipal courts in the cities—whose salaries in some cases exceed that paid to the governor—and all minor officeholders must content themselves with the term "esquire" following their names. As for the governor, he is always addressed as "His Excellency."

Other New England states—Massachusetts and New Hampshire in particular—are more liberal in the distribution of titles, for they prefix "Honorable" to municipal judges, representatives and aldermen in the various cities. It is probable that Maine is the only state where a municipal judge can be addressed verbally as "Your Honor," but is not entitled to the prefix of "The Honorable."

HE WANTED STAMPS.

Country Merchant Knew How to Keep Up His Stock.

"I obtained a peculiar order from a Kentucky storekeeper," said a cigar salesman to a Washington Star reporter. "I left the railroad to work some interior towns, and stopped at the country stores en route. At one of these places I found a man whom the commercial agencies gave a good rating, and who acted as postmaster as well as storekeeper. I handed him my card, and he said:

"'Thar ain't but one thing that yo' kin sell me.'

"'What is that?' I inquired.

"'Yo' kin sell me 'bout $50 wuth o' stamps, envelopes an' postal kyards.'

"'Why, you can get them from the government.'

"'No, I kain't. Yo' see they won't credit me. I hev ter sell stamps an' put 'em on people's bills, but th' government won't let me hev none 'thout sendin' th' money. 'Tain't right, o' cose, fer I'm good, they orter know thet. But I ain't got a stamp nor a kyard in th' office an' no way ter git none. I'll hev to buy 'em somewhars.'

"After becoming convinced of the man's solvency, I sold him a line of stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards, to be shipped with a bill of cigars."

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 10.—In the female six-day bicycle race here yesterday Tillie Anderson made 41 miles 10 laps in two hours, which is a new world's record.

A WELL PAINTED FLOOR

with a rug is always clean. It saves your time, your back and your patience. At the start it costs less than a carpet. It is cleaner, healthier and easy to take care of.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS SPECIAL FLOOR PAINT is the best floor paint made. It is easy to put on, and will stand the hard uses a floor always gets. Color cards, showing shades, will be mailed free upon application.

Our booklet "Paint Points" is a plain, practical talk on paint. It tells the difference between good paint and poor paint. It tells just the particular paint to use for each purpose—for houses, fences, roofs, barns, bath tubs, cupboards, shelves, buggies, boats, furniture, tables, chairs, settees and every other paintable thing. Send for it to-day—it is free.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MARCH 12, 1897.

The Tecumseh News editorially states, in its last weeks issue, in speaking of the nomination, by the republicans, of Prof. M. W. Hensel for county school commissioner, that "We believe in matters pertaining to our public schools all political questions should be laid aside and only the qualifications of the man considered." In this instance the HERALD agrees with the News exactly. Politics should be laid aside and the qualifications of the man taken into consideration. Prof. Hensel is a German who received his education and whose home is in the state of Ohio. He came to Blissfield a few years ago, taught school there and near there in this state, and now asks Lenawee county to confer upon him the best paid and most important office connected in any way with the state educational system. This man really has no interest in Lenawee county except to earn his living and it is very questionable if his personal qualifications are in any way above the average. Prof. J. C. Howell, the democratic nominee for this same position, was born in the township of Macon, this county, educated in the public schools of that township and Tecumseh, is a graduate of the state Normal school, and has been a principal of schools in this county for a number of years. His home, his interests and qualifications are identical with the needs of a Lenaweee county commissioner of schools. In this case there should be no question of politics. Howell is the man and should be elected. Still it is amusing to hear a partisan newspaper advise the people to vote for the best man without regard to politics.

Under this new administration just coming into power with the promise to the people that the hard times shall cease, it is of interest to everybody to know what is going to be done with the trusts. This subject of trusts has puzzled the best authorities in every state in the union. Different laws had been passed in the different states concerning the railroads and other trusts until finally the interstate commerce committee was appointed, Uncle Sam making up his mind that something must be done. In 1870 was organized by four men what was known as the Standard Oil company. These four men had neither capital nor experience in the oil business. Not one of them had probably ever seen a barrel of oil manufactured, and yet in 25 years these same four men have amassed a fortune which now aggregates over $225,000,000. Today there is no such company as the Standard Oil company. In 1892 the trust was dissolved, and why? Simply because the investigation committees in the different states were about to ask the gentlemen who formed this gigantic monopoly some peculiar questions. In 1894, when one of the original quartette was being questioned by a member of the New York legislature in answer to the question "What is the name of this trust?" said, "The Lord only knows, I don't." In other words, the dissolution of the trust commenced in 1892 was for the simple purpose of avoiding state and national investigations. Now as these men in 1870 had neither capital nor business experience, how did they succeed? The answer is, simply by unjust concessions of the railroads. The Standard Oil company today does not pay one-half the freight charged to its competitors nor have they ever done so. The price of kerosene oil and gasoline has been kept down from the fact that the minute the price was raised to a seemingly high figure new wells would spring up and it would be necessary for this company to buy out the proprietors as fast as they got started. The Lord has saved this country from paying two prices for kerosene oil because there were so many places where oil could be found, but even the Lord has no control over the hard coal business for the trusts and the railroads own all the mines. It may be that the republican party is not the party of trusts and corporations but it has always had that reputation and the poor people of the country hope and pray that under this new administration something can be done to stop the grasp and progress of these terrible combinations of capital.

An important feature of forthcoming numbers of the Outlook will be articles on the new Congressional Library at Washington, the new Public Library of Chicago, and the new Consolidated Library of New York. The first has been written by Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith, the famous artist and story teller, who has also painted four pictures of the new Congressional Library for The Outlook. The other articles will be written respectively by Rabbi Emil Hirsch, of the Chicago University, and by Dr. John S Billings, who is to be president of the Greater New York Library. ($3 00 a year. Anniversary.

A very pleasant family gathering was held Sunday at the residence of Charles McNeil, on Cummings street, in honor of his mother, Mrs. Archibald McNeil, who had reached 77 years. Four generations were present.

Mrs. McNeil is well preserved and generally enjoys good health. To her have been born eight children, all of whom were present, besides children and grandchildren as follows; Charles McNeil, wife and three children, George, Mary and Jennie, Adah, Lydia, Mr. and Mrs. George Hawks and Milbern, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wyrill and Lena, Friend McNeil, wife and Leon, Sarah, Tensie, Mr. and Mrs. John Linton and Florence, John Wyrill, wife and Glen. Besides these, Mrs. Elizabeth McNeil, Charles W. McNeil, wife and sons, Earl and Allen, of Newburgh, were also guests.

Mrs. Arethusa Hall

Died in Worthington, Minn., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert McCune, on the 5th day of March, 1897, aged 78 years and 3 days.

The deceased was a daughter of Rev. Alanson Darwin, one of the early pastors of the Presbyterian church in Tecumseh. His remains lie in the cemetery here, his death occurring when he was pastor. The deceased lady was married in 1838 to Mr. Hudson B. Hall who belonged to one of the pioneer families of this county. There were five children born to them, three of whom died in infancy, a fourth, Miss Helen S. Hall, died in 1895 in Dundee, leaving Mrs. Julia H. McCune the only survivor of the family. With her Mrs. Hall spent the last two years of her life. Her powers suddenly failed and after a few days of gradual decline, she entered upon the painless life.

Her remains were brought here by Rev. and Mrs. McCune on the morning of March 9th and laid to rest beside her husband and children in the Hall burial place. Mrs. H. will be remembered as an amiable and exemplary Christian lady by the few survivors of the pioneer days of this village and county.

Mrs. Matilda Darling.

Mrs. Matilda Darling, whose maiden name was Osborn, was born at Ovid, Seneca county, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1812. In 1836 she was married to Henry Darling, after which they settled in Perrysburg, Ohio, and remained there until 1843 when they moved to Michigan. They located on a farm at Lake Ridge, where they lived until Mr. Darling's death in 1878. Since then Mrs. Darling has lived with her children in Tecumseh, Duluth, Minn. and Syracuse, N. Y.

She was one of eleven children and sister of Wm. H. Osborn. Mr. Osborn is the only one of the family now living.

Mrs. Darling was brought up in a Christian home and in her youth became a member of the Methodist church where she remained, living a consistent Christian life until her death. She died March 3rd, 1897, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Haanel, at Syracuse, N. Y., and her remains were brought to Michigan and burried in their family lot at Macon.

Dressmaking.

Don't blame a dressmaker because your gown has a twisting, uneasy, horrid feeling, or because you have to put on your hat before your waist because you can't get your hands up to your head, or if your waist wants to twist around to one side. She has done the best she can do. She has done everything she can do to remedy that gown, and has, in all probability, cried over it but to no purpose. She never was taught the proper way of caring for trade or making gowns, never traveled and found anything to give her any advantages, always stayed at home and worked and so I claim she has done her best and should not be blamed. Only one thing to do. Take your work to one who has made dressmaking a study and has had all the advantages of learning all there was to learn about cutting and finishing, one who has expended hundreds of dollars to visit all our leading cities for the ideas of first class work, and enquire of your friends who have Deuel do work for them, and hear what they have to say and nine out of ten will tell you to go to him. Some people claim Deuel's prices are up in G. No, he makes you a first class wool suit for six dollars and an extra finish for seven dollars, silks for eight and nine dollars. The difference in price is in the finish of the skirt. No use of having any more gowns spoiled because some one else only charges two and one-half to four dollars, as you invariably have to have them made over and your gown is never as it would have been had it been made right at first. Will be pleased to have all intending customers come and talk with Mrs. Deuel who will give you prices and fit you "if you prefer," and you will surely call again.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,
Friday, March 26.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,
Thursday, March 25.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. "I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: I was sick for many years, my case was known for miles around, was helped to Doctor Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration.

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Mr. Wm. Redmond says also, that he had been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Mr. Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Bank references.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

Question blanks sent on application. Enclose stamp for reply. Those unable to see the doctor can address

Friday evening, March 5th, the subject of "Egyptian Missions" was discussed in the Research Circle. The "Misson of Gen. Gordon and the Attack of the Mahdi" was given by Mrs. Crosby, "The Sudan Mission, or the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition" by Mrs. Freeman. Under the topic of current events, Mrs. Fowler presented "The Eastern Question and How to Get Rid of the Sick Man of Europe." Maps were made and used which rendered the subjects more easily understood. The evening proved very interesting and profitable.

Monday morning Misses Ella and Agnes Paxson started for their new home in Piqua, O. Although it was quite early in the morning for the lads and lasses to be out to bid their friends good bye, they did not mind it, especially two of the crowd, who were so overcome by the girls' departure that they forgot themselves and went a short distance with them. No doubt the girls would have been delighted with their company to the end of the journey. All wish them enjoyment in their new home and hope they will often visit among their schoolmates and friends here.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman, accompanied by Miss Lillian Welliver, one of her trimmers, was in Toledo this week inspecting the new styles and novelties in spring millinery. As Miss Lottie Bridges, her other trimmer whose home is in Detroit, saw all that city possessed in that line before returning here, Mrs. Freeman must be fully equipped to satisfy, as never before, all desiring goods in her line.

The death of Mrs. Charles Creger, which occurred at her home Friday morning at six o'clock, was a sad one in every respect. She was a young woman of robust health with every indication of a long life before her, and being thus stricken down was a shock to all her friends. Besides the husband, who is nearly craled with grief, two children are left motherless, one about two years old and the other a babe of but a few days. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. W. R. Blachford officiating, and who in his remarks said: "We are met together today to pay the last earthly acts of christian kindness toward one who has lived but a short time among us and bury with christian ceremony the mortal remains of a christian sister. Mrs. Creger's maiden name was Louise Whiting. She was born in North Farmington, Mich., in 1873 being now 24 years of age. Three years ago last December she was married to Charles Creger, the husband who now mourns her decease. May the guiding hand of God direct him aright in the care and training of the two children now left to his sole care."

Word was received here Monday that Captain Charles F. Strong a former well known and popular resident for 32 years here, died at his home in Lawrence, Kansas, that morning, and his many old acquaintances in this vicinity will be interested in the following taken from the Lawrence Journal of that evening:

After an illness of two weeks that has caused many anxious inquiries from his hosts of friends throughout the city, the death of Capt. Charles F. Strong occured this morning at 8:30 o'clock. There has been a complication of diseases combined with the general breaking down of old age, that were the direct causes of his death. Capt. Strong was born in Williamsburg, Mass., June 18, 1813, and was consequently nearly 84 years old. When about 21 years old he left his Massachusetts home for Michigan and settled in Tecumseh, that state. He came to Kansas from Michigan in 1866, and in 1873 moved to Lawrence with his family, and has made the town and vicinity his home ever since. His family consisted of his wife, two sons, Charles B and Fred J., and two daughters, Mrs. Strickland, of this city, and Mrs. Prichard, of Tecumseh, Mich. Capt. Strong was one of Lawrence's most substantial and prosperous citizens. He has many business interests in the city and adjacent country, and has always held the highest esteem of neighbors and friends with whom he came in contact. The funeral will take place at 2 p. m, Wednesday from the family home and will be conducted by Rev. W. W. Ayers, of the Episcopal chur

The Bice bakery will soon be moved to their new store on the north side of Chicago street.

Mr. Delorma Brown and family, of Homer, were Tecumseh visitors last week. They will settle in Adrian where Mrs. Brown will conduct a millinery business.

John Gillespie had the misfortune yesterday to mutilate his left hand in some way whereby he loses a part of one finger. The particulars we have been unable to learn.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends for their kindness during the sickness and death of our brother, and to the Y. P. S. C. E. for the beautiful floral piece.

JACKSON BAIRD,
MRS. JAS. GLASGOW.

Don't forget to read Dr. Walker's announcement to visit Tecumseh again, at the Lilley House Friday, March 26th. The doctor will make regular monthly visits. The public press say Dr. Walker is one of the most able physicians and surgeons offering their services to the public.

WHEELER & SISSON.

Mrs. Geo. H. Allen, of Toledo, came up Tuesday, for a short visit with friends, also to be present at the sixtieth wedding anniversary of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Zeluff. She returns home tomorrow accompanied by Miss Viola Zeluff who will remain a week or two.

John F. Temple, father of our townsman, Frank J. Temple, died at his home in Ridgeway yesterday afternoon between one and two o'clock, aged 76 years. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. He was an old resident and widely known. A further notice will be given.

Tipton, March 12th, via Commercial Telephone line.—The home of Albert Morseman, one mile north of here, was totally destroyed by fire this forenoon at ten o'clock. The loss on the house is complete but the furniture on the first floor was saved. The high wind made the work of the flames very rapid. It was insured in the Farmer's Mutual.

Mrs. Marcia Bennett, who has been sick in Chicago for some time, passed away Monday, aged 72 years. The funeral was held Wednesday. She was well known in this locality, having resided both here and at Clinton. She was of a retiring disposition but possessed sterling qualities that endeared her to all who knew her well. She was an aunt of Mrs. L. G. North.

Last evening a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sweet in which their youngest daughter, Gertrude, became Mrs. Fred Harrison. There were about thirty guests present and the presents were both beautiful and useful. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. S. Hudson. The couple leave this afternoon for Milan to visit Mrs. Harrison's brother Earl.

Sixty years ago today David H. Zeluff and Louisa Russell became husband and wife and the event is being celebrated in a quiet and informal manner. It is seldom that people are permitted to travel the course of life so long together and time has dealt very kindly with this aged couple who are still hale and hearty. Their hosts of friends hope they may live to celebrate their diamond wedding.

Last evening as Charlie Everett was driving into town, when in front of Palmer's furniture store on Railroad street, the horse became unmanageable, wheeled into the alley back of Harris & Hiteshu's and turning struck the building occupied by L. D. Dewey. Charlie jumped out and tried to catch him but the horse was too spry and away he went around the Dewey building freeing himself from the buggy. He ran into Garlinghouse Bros'. barn. The harness and buggy were both badly wrecked.

Spring Catarrh.

Again spring is here. The long, cold winter with its bluster and chill, has passed, and has left in its train innumerable victims of chronic catarrh. They have taken a great many remedies during the winter with perhaps temporary relief, but a fresh cold has brought on the old symptoms, and, heartsick and weary of trying, they have concluded that there can be no relief for them. This is a great mistake; and now is the time to rectify it.

The spring time is the most favorable time of the year to treat catarrh. There is so much less liability to take fresh cold that the treatment is unimpeded. All old cases of chronic catarrh should begin immediately a course of Pe-ru-na as directed in Dr. Hartman's books on this disease. There are so many different phases and stages of catarrh that one hardly knows when he has it. A great many people think they are suffering from something else and have tried many medicines in vain, when if they could realize that it is catarrh and take Pe-ru-na for it they would improve promptly and soon recover entirely.

All who desire to learn more of catarrh should send for a free copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book which will be sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Photographic Times for March is as usual a model of typographic neatness and contains among other things a fine article illustrated in three and four color process.

A thrilling chapter of secret war history will be related in McClure's Magazine for March by Gen. John M. Thayer, formerly United States Senator from Nebraska. It is an account of a night he passed alone with Secretary Stanton in the War Office when the latter was expecting that President Johnson would attempt to dispossess him of his office by force of arms.

The North American Review for March contains a timely and elaborate paper on "The Famine in India" from the pen of Sir Edwin Arnold. The thorough and long familiarity of Sir Edwin with East Indian affairs and customs renders him a high authority upon this important subject, and its various aspects are described in a most graphic and sympathetic style.

"Bread-winning Occupations for Women in Unfamiliar Lines" will be the subject of an article by Clare Bonce, in Harper's Bazar of February 27th. Other articles will include: "The Mothers' Congress in Washington," by Christine Terhune Herrick; "The Function of Flowers in Society," by Anna Wentworth Sears; and "Private Theatricals for Children," by Helen Jay.

"Complexion Specialists and Their Methods" is a strong article in Demorest's Magazine for March, exposing the methods practised by so-called complexion specialists for beautifying the skin. The illustrations depict graphically the tortures to which the victims are subjected, and one shows the horrible results of the electric treatment. Every woman should read it and be warned.

Harper's Weekly of February 27th will contain two notable features, in elaborate descriptions and illustrations of the Congressional Library at Washington, and in an article by Thomas Campbell Copeland (unavoidably postponed from the previous issue), giving a complete analysis of the vote by counties at the late presidential election, accompanied by a page of tables and a map graphically portraying the general results in each state, especially with reference to the Democratic anti-Bryan vote.

The March Chautauquan is announced as a Homer number, and has for its special features exhaustive and attractive articles on various phases of Homeric art and literature. The masterly paper on "Homeric Art" by Prof. Alfred Emerson is accompanied by twelve illustrations of Greek art; the stories of the Iliad and Odyssey are skilfully told by Prof. William Hyde Appleton and Prof. Abby Leach, and Prof. Angie Clara Chapin treats in a pleasing manner of "The Women of Homer."

Table Talk for March contains ten pages of answers to inquiries from housekeepers all over the country. This is a special feature of this unique little magazine, and is most ably handled by Miss Cornelia C. Bedford. It also gives daily menus for the month with evening dinners or with noon-day dinners, besides a number of interesting articles. To any of our readers who will send name and address, the Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, offer to mail a sample copy of their magazine free.

John Fiske, the eminent historian, has prepared for the March number of the Atlantic Monthly the most notable contribution that has been made to the discussion of the Arbitration Treaty. He shows by a sweeping historical survey how the progress of industry and the relations between the United States and Great Britain make such a treaty a logical event; and he explains the incalculable benefits that are sure to come from it in the future. He points out how nearly all our disputes in the past could have been adjusted under such a treaty, and how the treaty is a natural ally of commerce and industrial advancement for the bringing of a new era in the history of government.

The Forum for March contains a dozen timely and important articles among which the Arbitration Treaty is discussed by two competent authorities—the Hon. Frederic R. Coudert, the eminent international lawyer and ex-member of the Behring Sea Arbitration Commission, and Theodore S. Woolsey, professor of international law at Yale. In view of the present uprising of the Greeks in Crete, an article—the last from his pen—by the late Prof. John Stuart Blackie, the celebrated philologist and philhellenist, is very timely in that it gives an absorbingly interesting and eloquent account of the present political and economic position of Greece. The Forum, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York. $3.00 a year.

There is nothing that Richard Harding Davis describes with more skill than a gorgeous pageant, and "The Banderium of Hungary," which leads the March Scribner's, is one of the brightest exhibitions of his pictorial ability. The celebration at Budapest, last June, of the thousandth year of the existence of Hungary as a Kingdom passed almost unnoticed, and this is the first magazine account of a unique spectacle. Eleven hundred nobles, richly clad in their traditional costumes and family jewels, passed before the king on a bright sunny day, and swore anew allegiance to the crown. The procession has not been excelled in this century in dramatic effect and wealth of color. The illustrations from photographs gives glimpses of its splendor.

CAMEL'S EXPERIENCE.

Sat Down So Much That His Hind Legs Became Useless.

A large camel which was landed at Hoboken a few days ago from the Bremen line steamer Dresden had an experience which probably never before fell to the lot of a "ship of the desert."

He made the voyage in a large box, and as there wasn't room enough in it for any self-respecting animal the camel sat down in sheer disgust. He sat that way for days and days while the ship rolled and made all sorts of heavy weather.

When the dejected animal was finally landed and tried to stand up, he couldn't use his rear props at all. They had become paralyzed with their long stay in a cramped position. The camel wasn't any good, it seemed, and, as a big price had been paid for him, there was a general lamentation. The camel was "in" on the lamentation. Such a picture of woe was never seen in Hoboken.

At last a genius suggested a radical cure. The camel, by his advice, was placed in a sling and hoisted up until only his toes touched the ground. He paddled the air for a spell with his forelegs, and finally the rear props came to life and joined in the exercise. They lowered him to the floor, and, after he had tested his rear legs somewhat gingerly, he was as good as new. But he doesn't sit down any more. Once was enough for him.

FAULTY FINANCIERING.

Failure of a Suddenly Devised Plan to Save Street Car Fare.

There is a man somewhere on the South side who knows more about the theory and practice of finance than he did a few days ago and all he did to gain the knowledge was to jump off a street car and pick up a nickel which he saw lying on the street, says the Chicago Tribune.

Relating the circumstances later to a friend he said:

"It's funny what fools some men are. I saw that nickel after I had paid my fare, and my first thought was that if I jumped off and picked it up it would make up for the nickel I had already given the conductor. Having plenty of time I did so. Of course I missed the car which I had originally boarded and paid my fare. When the conductor came around on the following car I surrendered my new-found nickel with a serene and satisfactory belief that my ride had not cost me anything, having paid for it with the nickel found in the street.

"Then I began to figure a little. The more I tried to solve the problem in mathematics the more deeply I became involved. As an actual fact I had to count my change before I discovered that I had not only saved a nickel, but that I had contributed ten cents to the company's coffer and was still a nickel out of pocket."

POOR BARONETS.

Some of Them Are Always Coming to Grief.

Mr. Labouchere's sarcastic reference to this lowest rank of the English hereditary titled order, "baronets and the criminal classes," seems so very, very apt, says a recent London letter in an exchange. Baronets insist upon going wrong all the time. There are at least a half-dozen absolutely disreputable baronets prowling about the Strand at this moment, cadging for shillings, free meals and free drinks. If they can manage to preserve a decent outward appearance existence is not so difficult. Their titles appeal to the man who has never been on familiar terms with anything in the shape of a title before. But the delight of knowing "a nobleman" soon passes when the succession of small loans and general sponging is realized. One of the worst of the disreputable baronet species now in evidence in London, and more or less in the gutter, is the same man who a few years ago was in the United States acting as advance agent or something similar for a theatrical company. Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities remember the gentleman. His various swindles are as remarkable as they are ingenious.

DRUNKEN BEES.

Bumblebees That Gave Evidence of Feeling Remorse.

T. L. Williams, in a note in the Journal of Botany, points out certain facts about bumblebees which will be of interest to some humans. He says that these insects often get drunk. Their intoxicating tipple is the honey produced by the crowded flowers of the capituiate heads of certain compositae and dipsaseteae. When the stage of intoxication is reached it is indicated by rolling on the back, striking the legs wildly in the air, and general helplessness.

The bees rapidly recovered from the effects, and in most cases were eager to repeat the debauch; but one individual which had been shut up in a vasculum with copious supplies of centaurea scabiosa manifested the next morning a praiseworthy remorse and disgust, raising its head and forelegs as high as it could above the plants, then hurrying away as soon as released. The most dissolute species is the neuter of bombus lapidarius. The remorse probably indicates the presence of the headache, which in the highest animal of all is so provocative of good resolutions.

Living Species of Animals.

The editors of the Zoological Record have drawn up a table that indicates approximately the number of the living species of animals. The following are the figures given: Mammals, 2,500; reptiles and batrachians, 4,460; tunicata, 900; brachiopods, 150; crustaceans, 20,000; myriapods, 3,000; echinoderms, 3,000; coelenterata, 2,000; protozoans, 6,100; birds, 12,500; fishes, 12,600; mollusks, 50,000; bryozoans, 1,500; arachnids, 10,000; insects, 230,000; vermes, 6,150; sponges, 1,500. General total, 366,000 distinct species.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereb destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

If we could trace Dyspepsia to its source, it would lead back to our kitchens In fact, the secret of good health is good cooking If well cooked, foods are partially digested; if poorly cooked, they are less digestible than in their raw state. If you are a victim of faulty cooking, that is, if you suffer from Dyspepsia, the rational cure must be looked for in an artificially digested food, and a food which will at the same time aid the digestion of other foods. Such a preparation virtually rests the tired digestive organs, thereby restoring them to their natural strength.

ANTARCTIC ICEBERGS.

Some of Them Are Fully Two Miles Square.

The snowfall of each year adds a new stratum to this ice cap, which is as distinguishable to the eye as is the annual accretion of a forest tree, says the Ladies' Home Journal. Thus in centuries have accumulated on Antarctica these snows, which, by processes of pressure, thawing and regelation, have formed an ice cap that in places exceeds 3,000 feet in thickness. Through the action of various forces—that of contraction and expansion by changing temperature being, perhaps, the most potent—this ice cap creeps steadily seaward and projects into the ocean a perpendicular front from 1,000 to 2,000 feet in height. The temperature of the sea water being about 29 degrees, the fresh-water ice remains unwasted, and the ice-barrier plows the ocean bed until through floating in deep water disruption occurs, and the tabular berg is formed. These bergs are of a size that long taxed the belief of men, but it is now well established that bergs two miles square and 1,000 feet in thickness are not rare; others are as large as 30 miles in length and some nearly 3,000 feet in thickness, their perpendicular, sun-wasted sides rising from 200 to 400 feet above the sea.

Where Water Was Wanted.

In the "Life and Correspondence of William Connor Magee, archbishop of York," the following relative to Spanish manners may be read: "Time is the only thing that a Spaniard will waste. Money and soap and water and other things of that class he is extremely parsimonious about. Apropos of soap, I was horrified the other day at being told that a pretty young Rondaccan whose complexion I had been admiring owed this beauty to the constant use of white of eggs instead of water at her morning toilet, and I am told that this custom is very common among Spanish ladies."

INTELLECT AND NERVES.

The Strain of Mental Work Increases Nervous Disturbances.

At a recent sitting of the Academy of Medicine M. Magnan analyzed the paper of Dr. Toulouse, constituting an inquiry into the connection between intellectual superiority and neuropathy, says a Paris correspondent of the London Standard. That inquiry must, says M. Magnan, be made on the most eminent men in science, art and literature, and M. Zola was selected for the first observations. Some time ago the novelist explained in a letter made public why he lent himself willingly to the inquiry. As early as 1843, Reveille Parise, in his physiology of men occupied in intellectual work, discovered in the nervous disorders frequently noted among them the consequences of the too great activity of the brain. But subsequently Moreau, of Tours, going further, declared that a genius was but a man suffering from neurosis; and, lastly, Lombroso declared genius to be epilepsy. Those conclusions were, said M. Magnan, far from being founded on really scientific bases. Dr Toulouse, thinking that the solution of the question demanded direct observations, has proved by long and minute observations that M. Zola is neither suffering from epilepsy nor from hysteria, and that he is not a madman; but that the numerous nervous disturbances he experiences denote a certain want of equilibrium in the nervous system, such as is noted in superior degenerated persons. The intellectual strain increases the nervous disturbances inherent in their nature.

A Matter of Courtesy.

An irascible man entered the substation exactly at four o'clock and, approaching the money order desk, politely requested the presiding genius to issue him an order for $50, says the New York Advertiser. "Too late," said the damsel, curtly, pointing with an inkstained finger to the clock. The indignant man stormed, raved and finally challenged the correctness of the timepiece. The imperturbable lady smiled. The following afternoon, two minutes before the closing hour, he again presented himself, and calmly asked:

"Am I too late?"

"Only just in time," remarked the damsel, crossly.

"Thank you. Now, miss, I must trouble you to issue me 50 orders for one dollar each."

"F-i-f-t-y!" gasped the horror-stricken woman. Her tea had just arrived and was standing on a table behind the screen. "Surely you are joking?"

"Madam," said the man, raising his hat politely, "courtesy begets courtesy."

A Yale Story.

The Hartford Courant tells a story of Yale in the old days. The boys used to bribe the printers' "devils" to get proofs of the examination papers for them. When the college authorities put a stop to this practice a bright idea seized one fellow, and he saved the whole suffering party. He hired one of the printers (it was summer) to wear a pair of white trousers to the office, and at noon to sit down on the "form" in which were locked the precious questions. The inky seat of that pair of trousers sold for a deal more than the clothes were worth in their original spotlessness, and relief was secured.

The Boston Music Hall Organ.

The great music hall organ, once the pride of Boston, which has been stored in a shed for the last ten years, is to be sold. It cost more than $60,000 and weighed nearly 70 tons. It was finished on October 31, 1863, and the public was invited to hear it on November 2. An ode was written by Mrs. James T. Fields and was recited by Miss Charlotte Cushman. Although it was looked upon almost as a sacred thing and referred to as "the hope of art in future years," it was kicked out in 1884 because more room for the permanent orchestra was needed.

Experience of a Novice with the First Salmon.

One's first salmon is an event. I got mine all alone, says a writer in Scribner's Magazine. It was on the Dunga...rven, on my way into the more remote interior. In a clear pool we could see the green backs of the fish, big and little, but they were not after our flies. The others went up the stream a considerable distance and I remained by the pool. It needs two men to land a salmon. Presently I began idly casting, just to try my new 18-foot rod, and the first thing I knew a fish was hooked. He galloped around that pool, jumping out, darting back and forth, and I waded right in. After awhile I got him pretty tired.

I had no landing net or gaff, but there was a smooth gravel bar 40 rods below. Then I towed the unfortunate fish down there, got him headed for shore and ran straight back on the bar. Out he came, flopping somersaults on the gravel. The gut leader broke, but I threw myself on top of that salmon and clasped my arms around him. He was slippery and strong and I could not hold him. Finally I got my fingers in his gills, reached for a stone and gave him three or four merciless whacks over the head. Then I had him. I was a sight to behold, wet and bespattered with mud and slime, but I was too proud as well as too nearly out of breath for words.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP.

Interesting Letter from Our Lansing Correspondent.

LITTLE PROGRESS IN LAWMAKING.

Public Business Neglected Towards the End of the Week—Speaker Gordon on the Absentees—Investigation of the Pardon of Convict Wixom—Taxation of Telephone Companies—Amendments to the State Constitution.

Lansing, March 9.—It looks as if nothing of any particular account is to escape investigation at the hands of the present legislature. Already special committees have been appointed to investigate the railroads, the management of the soldiers' home, the manner in which David Wixom, the soap-eating convict, obtained his pardon, the merits of numerous voting machines, and plans for improving the acoustic properties and lighting of Representative hall. None of these committees have thus far done any considerable work, and as investigations always take much time, aside from delaying business because of the absence of the members composing them, it makes a taxpayer shudder when he contemplates the probable length of the session. It is an open secret that in spite of the constant efforts on the part of the presiding officers to push business, very little progress has thus far been made, although the legislature has been in session sixty days. In conversation with Speaker Gordon the other day he deplored the fact that there is invariably but a bare quorum present at Friday sessions. He said that the only way to remedy this evil is for the house to refuse requests for leave of absence, and it is not improbable that this may be resorted to. He admitted that the situation toward the latter part of the week under existing circumstances is that forty men neglect the public business that they may look after their private business, while sixty men neglect their private business in order that they may perform the duties for which they were elected.

Thorough Investigation.

There are those who believe that the investigation of the pardoning of Convict Wixom will develope some sensational details which will not be particularly to the credit of some persons who have been much in the public eye in the state of late. The fact Governor Pingree was given to understand that the pardon was urged by the prison physician on the ground that Wixom had but a few days to live, whereas that official as well as Warden Chamberlain, knowing of the application until after the pardon was received at the prison is pretty conclusive proof that the governor was sorely deceived by whoever laid the alleged facts before him.

The committee proposes to get to the bottom of the matter and place the blame where it belongs. Although there was a rumor no money in the deal, the fact remains that Wixom made Count Wixom, although he negotiated, believe that there was $2,000 in it for him. The committee purposes to learn if possible, if Wixom secured services of others by promising to divide with them.

At a secret meeting of the Farmers' club of the legislature, an organization which numbers nearly fifty legislators who are farmers in its membership, the subject of the taxation of telephone companies was briefly discussed. Representative Atkinson stated that the supreme court of the United States had just sustained the Ohio law providing for the taxation of these companies, and that he would procure a copy of the opinion of the court and see what could be done in this regard in Michigan. The impression has obtained from this circumstance, and has become general, that the property of telephone companies is not taxed in Michigan. The fact is, however, that Act No. 168, of the public acts of 1881, covers this matter most effectually. It provides that the officers of telephone companies shall annually make a sworn statement covering all their property of every name and nature, and constitutes the auditor general, land commissioner and state treasurer a special board to assess such property. The rate of taxation is the average rate of state and county taxation in the state, so that those companies pay as much as any individual property owner. Last year the Michigan Telephone company paid the state taxes aggregating $25,573.66. This will probably be news to many legislators who evidently are not posted on the subject, as well as to a greater portion of the citizens of the state.

Poor Comfort for Kerr.

Ex-Representative James Kerr of the Second Saginaw district, whose seat was last week declared vacant by a strict party vote, probably can now fully appreciate the feelings of the dead man whose erstwhile friends meet together and pass resolutions of condolence. After having fired him out on his head, the majority of the house very graciously gave him a certificate of character by adopting resolutions declaring him a good fellow and that he was not responsible for any of the frauds and irregularities alleged to have been committed at the election. Some people hereabouts believe that it would have been much more neatly for the majority to have come out boldly and declared that either Kerr or Baird was elected, instead of splitting the difference and holding that neither received a majority of the vote cast, thus depriving the district of representation until after the special election to be held April 5. Many believe, too, that the giving of $225 to Baird, the contestant, may prove to be an incentive for defeated candidates to hereafter make contests simply for the purpose of securing a rake-off from the legislature.

There has been some fault found with the senate joint resolution providing that when amendments to the constitution are presented to the people for their ratification or rejection they be printed under each ticket on the official ballot, and that if an elector places a cross in the space over his party ticket it shall count a vote in favor of the proposed amendment unless he otherwise designates in the space provided for that purpose opposite the statement of the amendment.

Alleged Scheme to Get Votes.

Some senators charged when the matter was up for discussion the other day that it was a scheme to get votes for the amendment to increase the salary of the attorney general to be submitted this spring. Be that as it may, the proposition in the abstract is a good one. There is no reason why each elector should not vote for or against these proposed amendments as well as for or against any candidate on the ballot. No one complains because it is provided that if a person makes a cross above his party ticket and does not designate otherwise, it shall be considered a vote for every candidate on that ticket. The fact is that, with very few exceptions, there has never been secured anything like a fair expression of the opinion of the electors of the state on any constitutional amendment thus far submitted in the history of the state, but a small proportion of the electors voting either for or against the proposition. It is but a very short time ago that a proposition for a general revision of the constitution was submitted. It carried by several thousand majority, but no revision was ever made, for the reason that the state officials refused to take any action in the premises in view of the fact that not to exceed one-twentieth of the electors who voted for governor at that election voted on the question of revision. A reform in this regard should be aided rather than hindered.

Kimmis Bill Agreed To.

The Kimmis bill providing for the payment of salaries to all county officers and requiring them to cover all fees received into the county treasury has been agreed to by the house committee and bids fair to become a law. There is more in the bill than has been generally understood. Under the present system county officers have a habit of paving the way to a renomination or other political honors by graciously performing the work required by the statute in the way of issuing certificates, etc., and remitting the fees, thus placing their constituents under obligations to them. The bill makes it mandatory that these officials shall collect each and every fee named in the statute and pay the full amount into the county treasury. Representative Kimmis, who introduced the bill, made the statement when the measure was being considered in committee meeting that, notwithstanding the growing cust of remitting fees, there is still a large sum collected annually, and that if county officials are required to collect and pay over all fees mentioned in the various laws, the revenue will come very near paying all county expenses. This is one of the laws demanded by both the State Association of Farmers' clubs and the State Grange at their annual meetings here last December. The farmers throughout the state have sent in hundreds of petitions for the passage of the bill. The introducer says that it is simply an issue between the county officials and the people, and the legislators will have to decide whose support they prefer.

Clearance Sale of Lands.

One of the important bills pending provides for an annual clearance sale of lands returned delinquent for taxes. A similar bill passed both houses of the legislature two years ago, but it was vetoed by Governor Rich who, without doubt, did an excellent job for the state when he withheld from it his approval. A law of this nature was in vogue for some years previous to 1895, when the present general tax law was enacted, and under it the large property owners, especially the owners of vast tracts of timber lands, made a practice of permitting their property to be returned for taxes, and would then wait patiently for the clearance sale when they would bid them in for an average of about 5 per cent of the amount of the tax—a very good investment for them, but a trifle hard on the balance of the taxpayers who paid their taxes promptly. How such a bill came to pass is a mystery inasmuch as it could not possibly benefit the state, but on the contrary, a positive menace to it. In his report issued last week ex-Auditor General Turner, after commending Governor Rich for his veto, says: "Under the general tax law of 1895 more than $105,000 of back taxes have been collected during the past year, while only $61,000 was realized from seven previous annual clearance sales held by the state. As soon as it is understood that, after a term of years, lands returned to the state delinquent for taxes cannot be bid off at a clearance sale at from 1 to 5 cents a description, land owners will be more prompt about paying their taxes, because they will know that the legislature will grant no such unreasonable relief. Such measures are suicidal state policy, and unjust to the prompt taxpayers. All should pay their just proportion of the necessary revenue, and no law should be passed that unduly favors the delinquents. The policy of the law should be justice to all and special privileges to none. Although the heavy land owners are putting up the fight for the clearance sale bill, there is small reason to believe that they will be successful."

Medical Registration Bill.

The medical registration bill, which Governor Rich also vetoed two years ago, and over which the doctors of the state have been quarreling for some months, having had a fierce encounter over it in the senate chamber at a committee meeting a couple of weeks ago, has been considered by the committee. The result is that a substitute has been reported by the committee. The substitute provides for the appointment by the governor of a board of examiners to consist of six members, four to constitute a quorum, and not more than three to be members of the same school of medicine. The board is to be non-sectarian. In all other respects the bill is the same as the one prepared by the medical league, save that it permits both three year courses of study of eight months each, and four year courses of six months each, instead of the latter only.

After considerable discussion the house, in committee of the whole, has agreed to Representative Lusk's municipal home rule bill. This measure provides that before municipal charter bills are considered by the legislature they must be brought to the attention of the people of the interested municipality by the mayors thereof, and a public hearing had on the proposed amendments or revision. The common council of the city is to pass upon the proposed legislation, and its action certified to the legislature. It is urged that such a law would not only lessen the work of the legislature, but also make municipalities more directly responsible for their own management and regulation.

IN EXTRA SESSION.

The Fifty-Fifth Congress Meets in Washington.

Thomas B. Reed Is Again Honored by Election as the Presiding Officer —Vice President Hobart Convenes the Senate.

Washington, March 16.—The senate met in special session at noon yesterday in compliance with the order of President McKinley. Vice President Hobart presided and business was confined to the reading of the president's message and the seating of the new senator from Kansas, Mr. Harris.

Washington, March 17.—In the senate yesterday one pension bill was passed and 438 bills, public and private, were introduced and referred. There was hardly one of them which had not been on the calendar or on committee files in the last congress. The first bill introduced was by Senator Elkins (rep., W. Va.) and provides for a discriminating duty of ten per cent. on all goods imported into this country in vessels other than those of the United States. It also provides for the same duty on the importation of such goods by land means of transportation.

The House.

Washington, March 16.—The clerk, Maj. McDowell, of Pennsylvania, called the house to order at noon yesterday. After the roll had been called nominations were made for speaker. The result was the reelection of Thomas B. Reed (rep., Me.), who had as his opponent Joseph W. Bailey (dem., Tex.). The organization was completed by the election of the remainder of the officers who officiated in the preceding congress. Speaker Reed appointed the ways and means committee, a complete tariff bill was introduced, the president's message was read, and the Indian, sundry, civil, deficiency and agricultural appropriation bills, which failed to receive President Cleveland's signature, were reintroduced and referred to the proper committee. The ways and means committee secured leave to sit during the sessions of the house, after which, at four o'clock, the house, on Mr. Dingley's motion, adjourned until Thursday.

SPEAKER REED.

The membership of the house consists of 206 republicans, 122 democrats and 29 fusion silver and populist representatives. The percentage of new members is unusually large. There are 148 new men. Of these 132 have never served in congress before.

No Insurance for Suicides.

Washington, March 17.—In the equity court, involving the question whether the heirs of a suicide could collect his insurance from the Knights Templar and Masons Indemnity company, of Chicago, Judge McComas decided in favor of the company. The case in which the decision was rendered was that of the estate of Frank Schwartz, who was insured for $5,000 in the company named.

Blew Up a Train.

New York, March 17.—A Havana special to the World says that a train carrying Spanish troops was blown up by dynamite while passing over a deep gorge south of Candelaria, Pinar del Rio province, and that nearly 250 soldiers were killed or injured. The locomotive and six cars were demolished.

Have Power to Tax.

Washington, March 16.—The United States supreme court says that states have power to tax the franchises of corporations, such as express, telegraph and railroad companies.

Columbus, O., March 15.—A Toledo & Ohio Central engine Saturday, near Marysville, struck and killed Miss Laura Andrews and Mrs. O. W. Wells while they were riding in a buggy.

HOPEFUL FEATURES.

But Lasting Improvement in Trade Comes Slowly.

New York, March 13.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"It is a curious illustration of human nature, this continued discouragement even while the increase of productive industries and of legitimate business steadily grows. No genuine or lasting improvement could come otherwise than slowly and step by step, after such a depression as the past four years have witnessed, and the most hopeful feature of the situation is that the gain is so nearly devoid of elements which involve unsoundness and probable reaction. The money markets continue especially favorable to industrial recovery, and there is no such speculative epidemic as to lock up an excessive share of available capital.

"The volume of business shown by clearings is but 1.8 per cent. smaller than last year. Failures for the past week have been 256 in the United States, against 300 last year, and 61 in Canada, against 60 last year."

WILL NOT YIELD.

Greece Shows No Disposition to Give Up to the Powers.

Athens, March 17.—A prolonged meeting of the cabinet was held Tuesday. The ministers discussed at great length the attitude to be taken in the event of the powers attempting to coerce Greece into compliance with their demands. It is stated that no disposition was shown to accede to the demands, and that it was finally decided to take active measures as the only possible solution of the difficulty. It is thought that by active measures it meant a declaration of war against Turkey, which in its effect would be to give the right to Greece to maintain her army in Crete and deprive the powers of any right of interference.

A SAD STORY.

Successive Death of Her Children Causes a Mother's Suicide.

Cleveland, O., March 15.—Mrs. J. St. Clair Bradford, of 75 Vienna street, in the fashionable East end, was found in a dying condition Sunday morning, and she admitted that she had swallowed a dose of laudanum and aconite. Everything possible was done to save her life, but she died in a few minutes. Mrs. Bradford, who was 29 years old, suffered from melancholy because of the death of her three children, one after the other. Her mother lived with her after the last child died, and Saturday she was compelled to leave her daughter. This preyed upon her mind so that suicide followed.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Sad Fate of a Young Lady in Chicago —Residence Partly Destroyed.

Chicago, March 16.—Fire Monday night almost destroyed the residence of William Spiers at 3643 Vernon avenue. Barbara Newman and Rose Mayfield, nieces of Mr. Spiers were sleeping in a bedroom on the second floor. Miss Newman was burned to death but her cousin escaped by leaping from the window to the stone sidewalk. She is so badly injured that it is feared she may die. The fire started in the second story of the residence and it is supposed Miss Newman had perished before the firemen arrived.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS.

An Army of Flood Refugees Being Cared For at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., March 17.—Nearly 2,000 homeless and half-starved persons rescued from the overflowed districts of eastern Arkansas are being cared for in this city. Steamers from above brought tidings of desolation and distress all along the river for 100 miles or more. The latter's officers declared that there were certainly hundreds of people for whom there was no prospect of relief. Every piece of ground along the river above water was crowded with people and live stock.

WAS A LAND KING.

William Drury, Owner of Hundreds of Thousands of Acres, Dies.

Keithsburg, Ill., March 15.—William Drury, known as the millionaire land owner, died at his country place north of this city Saturday night. He was the largest individual land owner in this country, having hundreds of thousands of acres in Colorado, Nebraska, Texas and Kansas, besides 6,000 acres of the richest farming land in this county. Mr. Drury was 87 years old and came to this country in 1831. His investments were made in farm land alone, and he added every year to his possessions.

A Destructive Fire.

Elkins, W. Va., March 15.—A devastating fire broke out here Sunday and before its progress could be checked it had destroyed 12 stores, the opera house, a hotel, barber shop, several law offices, a printing office and three dwellings. Several families lived in the apartments above the stores and lost their goods. The loss is heavy, but cannot now be estimated. It was the most destructive fire that ever occurred here.

Another American Freed.

Washington, March 15. — The state department is informed that Frank J. Larrieu, a native of Cuba, but a naturalized American citizen, who was arrested at Cardenas May 15, 1896, upon charges that were not made known, has been set free.

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 13. — In a sparring match between Privates O'Shay and Gollie, of the Eighth United States infantry, Gollie was struck a blow that killed him instantly.

Lexington, Ky., March 16.—Seven tollgates were destroyed in Mercer county Sunday night. One house was burned, another fired and the keeper badly shot.

HIS FIRST MESSAGE.

President McKinley Refers to the Deficit Exclusively.

He Urges the Enactment of a Tariff Bill to Increase the Revenue—Declare This the Imperative Demand of the Hour.

Washington, March 16.—The president Monday sent the following message to congress:

"To the Congress of the United States:

"Regretting the necessity which has required me to call you together, I feel that your assembling in extraordinary session is indispensable because of the condition in which we find the revenues of the government. It is conceded that its current expenditures are greater than its receipts, and that such a condition has existed for now more than three years. With unlimited means at our command, we are presenting the remarkable spectacle of increasing our public debt by borrowing money to meet the ordinary outlays incident upon even an economical and prudent administration of the government. An examination of the subject discloses this fact in every detail and leads inevitably to the conclusion that the condition of the revenue which allows it is unjustifiable and should be corrected.

"We find by the reports of the secretary of the treasury that the revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, from all sources, were $425,868,260.22, and the expenditures for all purposes were $415,953,806.56, leaving an excess of receipts over expenditures of $9,914,453.66. During that fiscal year $40,570,467.98 were paid upon the public debt, which had been reduced since March 1, 1889, $259,076,880, and the annual interest charge decreased $11,634,576 60. The receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, amounted to $461,716,661.94, and its expenditures to $459,374,857.65, showing an excess of receipts over expenditures of $2,341,674.29.

"Since that time the receipts of no fiscal year, and with but few exceptions of no month of any fiscal year, have exceeded the expenditures. The receipts of the government, from all sources, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, were $372,502,468.29, and its expenditures $442,605,758.87, leaving a deficit, the first since the resumption of specie payments, of $69,803,240.53. Notwithstanding there was a decrease of $16,769,128.78 in the ordinary expenses of the government, as compared with the previous fiscal year, its income was still not sufficient to provide for its daily necessities, and the gold reserve in the treasury for the redemption of greenbacks was drawn upon to meet them. But this did not suffice, and the government then resorted to loans to replenish the reserve.

"In February, 1894, $50,000,000 in bonds were issued, and in November following a second issue of $50,000,000 was deemed necessary. The sum of $117,171,795 was realized by the sale of these bonds, but the reserve was steadily decreased until, on February 8, 1895, a third sale of $62,315,400 in bonds for $65,116,244 was announced to congress.

The Yearly Deficits.

"The receipts of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, were $390,373,203.30, and the expenditures $433,178,426.43, showing a deficit of $42,805,223.13. A further loan of $100,000,000 was negotiated by the government in February, 1896, the sale netting $111,166,240, and swelling the aggregate of bonds issued within three years to $262,315,400. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, the revenues of the government from all sources amounted to $409,475,408.78, while its expenditures were $434,678,554.48, or an excess of expenditures over receipts of $25,203,145.70. In other words, the total receipts for the three fiscal years ending June 30, 1896, were insufficient by $137,811,729.46 to meet the total expenditures.

"Nor has this condition since improved. For the first half of the present fiscal year the receipts of the government, exclusive of postal revenues, were $157,507,603.76, and its expenditures, exclusive of postal service, $195,410,000.22, or an excess of expenditures over receipts of $37,902,396.46. In January of this year the receipts exclusive of postal revenues were $24,316,994.05, and the expenditures exclusive of postal service $30,269,389.29, a deficit of $5,952,395.24 for the month.

The Total Deficit.

In February of this year the receipts, exclusive of postal revenue, were $24,400,997.38, and expenditures exclusive of postal service $25,796,056.66, a deficit of $1,395,059.28; or a total deficiency of $186,061,580.44 for the three years and eight months ending March 1, 1897. Not only are we without a surplus in the treasury, but with an increase in the public debt there has been a corresponding increase in the annual interest charge from $22,383,383.20 in 1892, the lowest of any year since 1862, to $34,387,287.60 in 1896, or an increase of $11,493,414.40.

"It may be urged that even if the revenues of the government had been sufficient to meet all its ordinary expenses during the past three years, the gold reserve would still have been insufficient to meet the demands upon it, and that bonds would necessarily have been issued for its repletion. Be this as it may, it is clearly manifest, without denying or affirming the correctness of such a conclusion, that the debt would have been decreased in at least the amount of the deficiency, and business confidence immeasurably strengthened throughout the country.

Should Be Promptly Corrected.

"Congress should promptly correct the existing condition. Ample revenues must be supplied not only for the ordinary expenses of the government, but for the prompt payment of liberal pensions and the liquidation of the principal and interest of the public debt. In raising revenues duties should be so levied upon foreign products as to preserve the home market, so far as possible, to our own producers; to revive and increase manufactures; to relieve and encourage agriculture; to increase our domestic and foreign commerce; to aid and develop mining and building, and to render to labor in every field of useful occupation the liberal wages and adequate rewards to which skill and industry are justly entitled. The necessity of the passage of a tariff law which shall provide ample revenue need not be further urged. The imperative demand of the hour is the prompt enactment of such a measure, and to this object I earnestly recommend that congress shall make every endeavor. Before other business is transacted, let us first provide sufficient revenue to faithfully administer the government without the contracting of further debt, or the continued disturbance of our finances. (Signed)

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

Executive Mansion, March 15, 1897.

Legislators Sworn In.

Frankfort, Ky., March 17. — The five new state senators, four republicans and one democrat, were sworn in Tuesday morning. The Blackburn senators attempted to refer the credentials, but they were outvoted. This means that the republicans will certainly be able to elect a United States senator at this session.

The T. and F. Farmers' club held a pleasant meeting at the home of Albert Haire, last Friday evening. It was rather a bad night but a good number were present and a good program was given.

Mrs. Bunting and Miss Melissa Pawson went to Cambridge Monday to attend the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Potter. The deceased sister, Mrs. Robinson, was burried two weeks ago Thursday.

Word has been received from Mrs Lottie Hunt, who went to Iowa a couple of weeks ago, that her father is very sick with little hope of recovery. Her sister died a couple of weeks before she went out there.

FRANKLIN.

Jesse Deming has put a coat of Portland cement on his sap cistern.

Andrew Hunter, formerly a widely known respected citizen of Franklin, was buried at Tipton Monday.

Last Friday morning the house occupied by Al. Morseman and family was burned to the ground. The fire originated in the upper story and nothing was saved from that part of the house or from the cellar, though most of the things on the ground floor were saved. Mr. Updyke was buzzing wood at the house at the time, and while it would seem that the engine was the cause of the fire, there are circumstances which make it appear doubtful if it was so. The upper inside of the house was all on fire when only a small spot appeared on the outside. The family lost many valuable things including a silk dress and other clothing and have the sympathy of all. The house was an old land mark having been built many years ago.

March, April, May.

Almost every one has come to believe that March, April and May is a season that brings derangements of the body dependent on blood impurities. This belief is an old one, is nearly universal, and has arisen, not as the result of the teachings of the medical fraternity, but has been learned in the bitter school of experience. Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities,—general lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep.

Pe-ru-na meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied pecualiarities. Pe-ru-na invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep. That tired feeling which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Pe-ru-na is taken. Thousands are daily testifying to its priceless benefit.

All who desire Dr. Hartman's latest book on this interesting subject can obtain one for a short time free by addressing The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

It is often hard to convince a just man that it is right to do something that he desires.

Thousands suffer from catarrh or cold in the head and have never tried the popular remedy. There is no longer any excuse, as a ten cent trial size of Ely's Cream Balm can be had of your druggist or we will mail it for 10 cents. Full size 50 cents. ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y. City.

A friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm and after using it six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. It is a most valuable remedy.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ex-Senator Blair Tells How a Philadelphia Spinster Outwitted Some Cruel Children—The Philosopher and a Bird Peddler.

(Special Washington Letter.)

Ex-Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, says that when he was a boy the New England farmers raised all their own wheat and had their flour ground at home mills, but that now agriculture is a reminiscence in that section of the republic.

"New England is the national health resort," said he. "Our people in the hill country are preserving the forests, beautifying their homes, and making every prospect pleasing to the summer visitors, for they pay good prices for their entertainment.

"The incidents of a summer in the mountains would fill many a large readable volume, if the city folks would go there would tell their experiences. For example, at a summer boarding house up Lake Winnipissaugee, an old maid from Philadelphia located herself and her three cats for the season. The children in the house, from the youngest to the oldest, led the cats such a dance that the felines were justified in wishing, during their waking moments, that they were dead.

"It had kept the old lady on the jump to keep her cats out of the children's hands during the day, and to protect them at night they had to be locked up in her room. Thus stood affairs until the old lady happened to think of a scheme whereby her own and her pets' troubles would be ended. She organized a juvenile society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

"It was a thought that entered her head at one o'clock in the morning as she lay awake trying to devise a method to relieve the cats of trouble. The next morning every child in the boarding house was corralled in the old lady's room, and then she instilled into the young hearts love for everything that walked, flew or crawled, including babies.

"The children, little comprehending, the sport they were sacrificing, or the deep motives of the old lady, all took a pledge to live up to her teachings, and not only this, but to get every new boarder's children to join the society, too. For fear the novelty would wear off and the children would forget their pledge, the old lady sent to the city and obtained badges for the children to wear.

"The result was that all the children in the house strutted about like miniature policeman, the cats recovered their composure, besides patches of new fur, and the old lady could do her knitting without fear of being disturbed to rescue her pets from all but sudden death."

Sandy Pinn, the New York reporter who has long been such an intimate personal friend of George Francis Train, says that early one morning a tall lank fellow walked across Madison square greeting everybody with the query: "Want to buy a mocking bird?" He carried a flat, pasteboard box about eight inches square in his hand. Inside fluttered a bird, which apparently did not relish its confinement at all. Small holes punctured in the sides of this improvised cage gave the songster a chance to breathe. George Francis Train was occupying his usual bench. As the vender approached he asked him to let him view the mocking bird. "How much do you want for him?" inquired the philosopher. "It's worth one dollar," said the man, to whom it would appear such a sum was something as large as the side of a house. "Can he fly?" queried the philosopher. The man nodded his head. "My little boy ketched him in a trap," he said. "Will your little boy get the dollar?" went on Mr. Train. "His mother will," answered the man. "Well," returned George Francis, "if this bird had been in 75 jails, the way I have, he will appreciate getting out;" and, fishing one dollar out of his white coat pocket, the sage handed it to the man. Then, untying the string, he lifted the cover off the box. There was a whirr as the bird flew out like a shot. The vender, who didn't appear to be a particularly industrious soul, looked at Train with an expression of distrust. "You're a chump," he said. "You're another," returned the citizen. "Why don't you go to work instead of peddling your little boy's pets?" The man muttered something and slunk off, as the bird, evidently weary with his cramped wings, sat on a neighboring branch and began to make his toilet, meanwhile thanking his liberator in a chirp or two. "That give me more real pleasure than a pint of peanuts," said Mr. Train, and the mocking bird doubtless thought the same.

"Old Hoss" Hoey, whose name is familiar to city theater-goers, tells a good story about the absent-mindedness of people who go to the ticket office to secure their seats. Without naming the city in which the incident occurred, he says that there was a long line of people in front of the ticket office, and the young man inside, whose name was Sheehan, was handling tickets and money like hot cakes, when up came a perspiring young man who presented a "lithograph pass" for two. It was duly punched by Mr. Sheehan, who handed it back along with two seat checks. The perspiring young man seized the checks, leaving his "lithograph pass" on the ledge in front of the window. He was evidently greatly flustered and in a hurry to get back to his girl, who was impatiently awaiting him. Mr. Sheehan called him back and directed his attention to the pass. "You cannot get by the door without that, my friend," he said, and the young man blushed profusely and took the cardboard with a muttered apology.

This proceeding had evidently greatly amused a flaxen-haired little man, no doubt a native of Sweden, who had been patiently waiting to buy two seats. He laughed all over at the other's confusion, and then planked down two silver dollars with the air of a veteran theater-goer.

"Ay gass Ay haf 'bout two saanty-fave sant seats," he said, shoving his silver toward Mr. Sheehan, and as the young treasurer deftly selected the pasteboards and handed them out to him, together with 50 cents in change, he said:

"Ay bate you haf many of dose foolish fellers come hare."

And as Sheehan smiled and nodded assent the jovial little gentleman from Sweden picked up his 50 cents and passed on, leaving his two "saanty-fave sant seats" on the exact spot where the "foolish faller" had left his "lithograph pass" not a moment before. Sheehan called him back and merely pointed at the tickets, and the little Swede simply picked them up and said:

"Ay gaas et ees two horses on me."

Jolly Tim Campbell, of New York, one of the best congressmen ever sent here by Tammany, albeit Tim is a little short on education, always likes to tell stories illustrating the superiority of the Irishman, in every particular. His noddle is full of stories concerning Emmet, Shamus O'Brien, Parnell and the other heroes of the race of peculiar people who dwell on the Emerald Isle, when they are not fighting the battles of England, or filling the ranks of the American police force. He told one to-day concerning O'Connell, and it is a good one, too.

It seems that the London Times once declared that it would never allow the great Irish agitator's name to appear in its columns. When O'Connell next arose to speak in parliament the Times reporters threw down their pencils and, leaning back in their chairs, assumed the role of spectators. A friend of O'Connell, feeling the slight, called the speaker's attention to the rule that "strangers" must be expelled from the gallery, and as the Times men were not at work they were instantly conducted out. The next day the Times had no report of parliament and received hundreds of letters asking an explanation. Soon after "Bull Run" Russell called on Mr. O'Connell on behalf of the Times, and, deprecating past ill-feeling, said The Thunderer would like to report his speech next day. Mr. O'Connell received Mr. Russell with much courtesy and invited him to ride in his carriage to the scene where the enthusiastic Irish were to gather. A good chair and table were prepared for Mr. Russell, who was dumfounded, however, when Mr. O'Connell, with a satirical smile, began his remarks in Celtic and continued to use that eloquent but to Russell unknown tongue all through a masterly oration, which the spectators, who did understand it, said the great Celt had never surpassed.

SMITH D. FRY.

Costs Nothing to Die.

There is at least one country in the world where it costs nothing to die. In some of the cantons of Switzerland all the dead, rich as well as poor, are buried at the public expense. Coffins and all other necessary articles are furnished on application to certain undertakers designated by the government. Everything connected with the interment is absolutely gratuitous.

The Eddystone Lighthouse.

The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone lighthouse stands. At low water it is 30 feet in diameter; at high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is 28½ feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast and fourteen miles southwest of Plymouth breakwater.

Hard Work on the Eye.

A French statistician has calculated that the human eye travels over 2,000 yards in reading an ordinary-sized novel. The average human being is supposed to get through 2,500 miles of reading in a lifetime.

REASONS FOR USING

Walter Baker & Co.'s

Breakfast Cocoa.

1. Because it is absolutely pure.
2. Because it is not made by the so-called Dutch Process in which chemicals are used.
3. Because beans of the finest quality are used.
4. Because it is made by a method which preserves unimpaired the exquisite natural flavor and odor of the beans.
5. Because it is the most economical, costing less than one cent a cup.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCollum celebrated their fiftieth marriage anniversary last week Thursday. They came to Michigan from Seneca county, N. Y., in 1855, settling in Macon township where they have since resided.

John F. Temple, whose illness was mentioned in last week's issue of the Herald, passed away Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, being 76 years of age. Mr. Temple was born in Cliburn, West Moreland county, England, March 9th, 1821, and came to America with his parents in 1833. For three years they lived at Albany, N. Y., where he attended school. In 1837 they moved to Michigan, settling in Raisin township, being among Lenawee county's early pioneers. In the early 40's he came to Ridgeway, teaching school and holding the office of township clerk for several years with credit to himself and honor to his party. For a good many years he was afflicted with deafness which unfitted him him for public service, since which he has dealt in real estate, loaning money and farming, occupying his leisure time as an aparian, with success and profit. He was a great reader and well posted on the events of the day; a highly respected citizen and thorough financier. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father. They have the heartfelt sympathy of their friends in the village in their affliction. The funeral was held at the house Saturday afternoon, Rev. H. Cansfield, assisted by Rev. James Wright, officiating, and the interment took place in Evergreen cemetery.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have invented a great many valuable things. They were the first to make brooms by machinery; the first to put up seeds in little packages; the first to manufacture cut nails.

Now they are out with a method of curing dyspepsia by resting the stomach. Their remedy is known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It supplies food in an artificially digested form and at the same time aids the digestion of other foods in the stomach. In other words, by the use of the Shaker Digestive Cordial, a dyspeptic virtually gets along without the use of his stomach until it is restored to its natural strength and vigor. AN AMERICAN LUXURY.

One Shivers Abroad Because Coal Is So Dear.

"The thing I especially enjoyed after a somewhat lengthy sojourn on the other side was a real genuine American grate fire," commented the traveler to the Detroit Free Press man. "In London I felt as if I was burning something very precious with the landlady charging sixpence a scuttle for coal. I remember sitting around a stove in an English hotel. The weather was cold and the coal in the stove bunched together. I took a poker and stirred it up.

"'That makes it burn faster,' commented the landlord, gravely.

"'That's just what I want,' I replied.

"A red-faced, hearty Englishman broke in: 'You Americans are deuced-ly thin-blooded, don't you know?'

"'Then in Italy you shiver about all winter and in Germany those big, high crockery stoves never seem to thaw you out. So when I arrived in America in midwinter I had a jolly, big fire in the room at my hotel and I piled on the coal, knowing that it would not break my bank, in spite of the prices of the big, abominable coal trust. But after one has paid sixpence a scuttle for a mighty little scuttle of coal he does not feel disposed to criticise the trust. I felt like a lord, 'thin-blooded American,' though I might be, and was just in the mood to read and appreciate that agreeable little volume, 'The Reveries of a Bachelor.' Those reveries would not seem half so pleasing when read before the smudge of a peat-fire in Germany or before the little skimpy grate fire of a few pine cones in Italy—not the Italy of sunshine, but the Italy of the cold, disagreeable, wet days."

SCOTCH STRATEGY.

The Bearers of Government Papers Confronted by a Bull.

Here is an adventure that some members of an English ordnance survey met with while touring in the south of Scotland, told in Harper's Round Table. In the prosecution of their calling they entered a field belonging to a crusty old farmer. Seeing the strangers looking about in a way he could not understand, the farmer approached.

"What are ye loitering in the field for?"

"Oh, we have a right to go anywhere," returned one of the company. "We are surveying, and here are our government papers."

"Paper here or paper there," returned the farmer, "oot ye gang, oot o' my field."

"No, we shan't," returned the man, "and you are rendering yourself liable to prosecution for interrupting us."

The farmer said no more, but went over to his shed, which opened into the field, and let out a vicious bull. The bull no sooner saw the redcoats than he went for them in full career. The surveyors snatched up their theodolite and flew for their lives, while the old farmer, in great glee, yelled after them:

"What are ye running for? Can ye no show the bull yer government papers?"

Why the Strong Young Englishman Was Laid Low.

The well-known Englishman walked down the landing stage from the steamer on to the dock with a firm and steady step, says the New York World.

He was in the very flush of health. He was in the pink of condition. He had always been eager to visit America. They had told him at home—his traveled friends—how interesting everything was ovah here, don't you know. So he had come.

He had not been in the least seasick, for he was far too healthy. Onlookers said, as soon as they saw him, what a sample of splendid physical manhood he was. So he was.

He was taken to a hotel.

The next morning he was a wreck.

A frightful change had taken place in him. Oh, it was terrible.

Could this shaking paretic be the same fine-looking man of but yesterday?

Yes, it was too true.

He had just been through the American newspapers and had seen the eight different pictures of himself therein.

It had been too, too much!

Immigrants in the Cities.

The general impression is that the great bulk of immigrants to the United States find homes "in the great west," notably those from England, Wales, Germany and the Scandinavian countries. The contrary, however, is shown by recent figures to be the case. The states into which immigrants go by preference are those on the Atlantic seaboard. Of 343,000 immigrants who landed in this country during the last fiscal year covered by the treasury report, 127,000 meant to remain in New York state. Some 61,000 others had Pennsylvania for their destination and 36,000 Massachusetts; so that these three states absorbed about two-thirds of the whole immigration to the United States.

His Worldly Effects.

A New York firm applied to Abraham Lincoln some years before he became president for information as to the financial standing of one of his neighbors. Mr. Lincoln replied: "Yours of the 10th received. I am well acquainted with Mr. ——, and know his circumstances. First of all, he has a wife and baby; together they ought to be worth $50,000 to any man. Secondly, he has an office in which there is a table worth $1.50 and three chairs worth, say, one dollar. Last of all, there is in one corner a large rat hole, which will bear looking into. Respectfully,

"A. LINCOLN."

Crater lake, a small body of water as far as the surface area goes, situated in the Cascade mountains of Oregon, is 2,000 feet deep.

Joy Causes Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 17.—Charles F. Kusterer became blind three years ago as a result of locomotor ataxia. He recovered his sight three days ago, and his joy was so great that his death came Monday night. The excitement and delight he experienced at seeing his wife and children once more were too much for his strength. Mr. Kusterer was president of the brewing company bearing his name.

Snow Blockade.

Houghton, March 14. — The snow blockade on upper peninsula railways has been partially raised. At Fulton, Keweenaw county, there is seven or eight feet of snow on the level and five to six feet throughout the upper district. In the villages street fences are in many cases covered by solidly packed snow over which pedestrians freely pass.

A Monster Octopus.

An aquatic creature, supposed at first to be a whale, 22 feet long, 8 feet wide and 6 feet high, was lately found partly buried in the sand at Anastasia Beach, Fla., by a couple of St. Augustine cyclists and was pronounced by the president of the local scientific society to be an octopus. The missing tentacles might have been worn away by the sand and waves or eaten by sharks.

CLEVELAND BICYCLES

The Keen Buyer

always compares the price of an article with its honest value as he understands it; but it is not always easy to determine the value of a BICYCLE, as beneath the gaudily finished exterior of a cheap machine there lurks defective material and inferior workmanship.

The Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fight is over. Fitzsimmons is now the heavy weight champion of the world. The regret is that either of them lived to tell the story.

Monday March 15th the fifty-fifth congress assembled in extraordinary session. With a republican house and the republicans enjoying a good fighting chance in the senate, there is no reason why the president should not soon be able to sign some sort of a measure which might be called a tariff bill. If more tariff is what the country needs, the long hoped for "confidence" should be restored. The manufacturers of the country desire that the tariff question should be settled, and this speedily.

High School Happenings.

Physics class are interested in heat.

Kenneth Holloway has left school to begin farm work.

Ina Jackson was absent from the A room Thursday owing to sickness.

Mr. Bacon, of Chicago, was looking over our high school work Tuesday.

Mrs C. A. Slayton called on the eighth grade room Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Amy Kingan was looking over the work in the ninth grade Tuesday.

Miss Kyle is again in her place after ten days of enforced absence caused by sickness.

English II will finish Webster's Orations next week and then take up some other classic.

Anna Wilson and Luella Powell are absent from the B room this week on account of sickness.

Mr. Kellogg entertained the members of the Junior and Senior classes at his home last Friday evening.

The Sophomore class held a social at the home of Miss Nellie Lewis on Kilbuck street Wednesday evening.

Miss Conklin is absent from the West branch school because of illness and Miss Jennie Nyland is filling her place.

Miss Nellie Loudan, of Springville, a member of the class of '96, has been visiting the high school for two or three days this week.

Have you seen the broad grins and happy faces of the anxious fourteen? Cause? Why, every last one passed in geometry and one little maiden in particular holds her head high over an examination standing of 96. Is there anything about plane geometry you don't understand? Apply to the brilliant fourteen.

Vick's Floral Guide, 1897.

For nearly half a century this catalogue of flower and vegetable seeds, plants, bulbs, roses, grains, potatoes, etc., has come as regularly as spring time. Here it is again to remind us that it's time to think about our gardens. This issue contains half a dozen full page half tone illustrations of roses, asters, gold flowers, carnations and tomatoes. It seems full of the necessary information for either amateur or professional. Send 15 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for a packet of either Vick's Branching Aster, New Japan Morning Glory or extra choice Pansy and a copy of Vick's Floral Guide. If you state where you saw this notice you will receive a package of flower seeds free.

Miss Mina S. Olmsted, a portrait artist from Tecumseh, has decided to locate in Hudson and will occupy rooms in the Nix building, opposite the Comstock House.—Hudson Gazette.

Lillian Hughes, of Tecumseh, arrested for stealing $25 from Mrs. John Monaghan, of Sand Lake, was before Justice Westerman Saturday afternoon. She paid back the money, and was released on suspended sentence.—Adrian Telegram.

There was a wreck on the Lima Northern at Ottawa, last week. It is rumored that one of the officials was on board, with a document from Adrian regarding the amount of aid that city proposed to give for the extension. That in some way he dropped the document from the platform, and its contents were so slippery that the wheels were thrown from the track when they touched the paper. The damage of $2,000 from the wreck should be added to the amount of aid required from the city of Adrian.—Hudson Post.

A Change of Date.

A change has been made in the date of the next entertainment on the Star Course. The committee received notice that the Boston Ideal Club would not leave the east until March 29, too late for the date here, and after considerable correspondence with the Lyceum Bureau, trying to secure some other attraction without success, the committee have accepted date for Boston Ideals of April 24, which was the only acceptable date they could get. In addition to the regular company, the Lyceum Bureau have promised to furnish Chas. T. Grilley, a reader of special merit. We trust this change will be acceptable to the patrons of the Course.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Friday, March 26.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,

Thursday, March 25.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches' both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery. It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: I was sick for many years, my case was known for miles around, was helped to Doctor Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration.

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Mr. Wm. Redmond says also, that he had been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Mr. Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Bank references.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

Question blanks sent on application. Enclose stamp for reply. Those unable to see the doctor can address

The young people have a large of acquaintances who wish them a long and happy married life.

The successful comedy drama, "Caprice," will be produced at Sutton's opera house, on Thursday evening next, by a clever company of local talent under the direction of Mae Cody Reynolds. Incidental to the production, several dancing and singing specialties will be introduced, and the Co. C glee club will be another strong feature. Miss Reynolds has had nearly fourteen years' experience in this line of work, having produced the play with great success in Chicago, Detroit, Toledo and other large cities.

Mrs. Florence S. Babbitt, of Ypsilanti, wife of Judge Babbitt, for eight years probate judge of Washtenaw county, was here Monday and Tuesday and while in town was the guest of Mrs. Thos. Hanley. She is an earnest worker in the Women's Relief Corps and is department chaplin. Her mission was to investigate the causes leading to the dissolution and suspension of the order here, as well as to inspire renewed zeal and activity in those who were members that it might be revived and become once more a working body. Her visit was timely and her efforts were apparently fruitful as every indication now points to a speedy resuscitation of the Corps in Tecumseh.

Will O. Osborn expects to go to Detroit very soon.

J. H. Elliott is assisting Fred Wood in his law office.

Thos. Elliott has been in Adrian a portion of the week.

Mrs. Arthur Hall, of Toledo, visited at her home this week.

A. C. Bryan is spending a couple of weeks with Jackson friends.

Geo. Fischer and Thos. Joslin, of Adrian, were in town yesterday.

Go to the opera house next Thursday evening and hear Company C's Glee Club.

Mrs. Don Bowen is looking for novelties in the millinery line in Toledo and Detroit.

Our prices on Furniture will be the lowest in the county.
WHEELER & SISSON.

John L. Mansfield, of Clinton, was shaking hands with Tecumseh friends yesterday.

Leon McNeil left, last evening for Keyser, W. Va., where his wife has been spending the winter.

Seryille E. Hendershot, who came so near losing his hand from blood poisoning, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hendershot.

Mrs. Mary Skinner is enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. John Cameron, and little son, of Indianapolis, Ind. They will remain over Sunday.

The Lima Northern surveyors are nearing Tecumseh and will be into town by this evening. Really it looks as if Tecumseh would get the road.

Mrs. Geo. S. Wilson, of Mecosta, arrived in town Monday for an extended visit with relatives and friends. She will be with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Crosby most of the time.

Mrs. Clark Beebe and two children, of Alma, Mich., arrived the first of the week to make an extended visit with Mrs. B's mother, Mrs. Theodore Lewis, who is dangerously ill.

Wade Waring, formerly with Avery & Co., who has been in Toledo the past year, is now traveling for Davis & Co. He has a good position and his friends rejoice in his promotion.

J. S. Gilman, our veteran harness maker, was 87 years old last week Friday. He celebrated the event by working at the bench all day and many a younger man would not have done more.

WHEELER & SISSON.

Last Saturday evening about fifteen young ladies perpetrated a surprise on Miss Lena Hardenburg. They enjoyed every minute of the evening but are still unable to decide whether it was a Hardenburg or Chilson surprise.

A goodly company of old veterans assisted Miles Baldwin in properly observing the 74th anniversary of his birth Thursday evening of last week at his home. It was an evening of rare social enjoyment and a bountiful repast was served. To have seen Miles a stranger would have thought him still in his teens.

Our two popular merchant tailors, James M. Jones and John Hazlett, have formed a copartnership and will occupy the store where John has been so long. They each have a large circle of friends, are expert cutters and are up-to-date in every respect. The firm will be known as Jones & Hazlett and is a strong one.

The remains of Miss Olive Jackson, who resided in Owosso but whose death occurred at St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, arrived here last evening via the C. J. & M. from Jackson, were taken to the cemetery and placed in the vault. The burial occurred this morning. She was a daughter of James Jackson and a sister of Alfred and was known to many here. Her death resulted from the effects of an operation she underwent.

F. P. Kennedy has rented the window at O. B. McBride's U. S. express office and will be prepared on Monday next to do all kinds of watch, clock and jewelry repairing. Mr. Kennedy was a former Tecumseh boy and comes well recommended. He has served an apprenticeship of four years under I. Gillett at Lansing and continued with Mr. Gillett for three years following, also worked two years for Pyl & Wykkel at Kalamazoo. The public is kindly invited to give him a trial. All work fully guaranteed.

Mrs. L. K. Mead recently received a very interesting letter from Mrs. Sparks, now of Lower California. Among other things she reminded her that when they were living neighbors in Tecumseh nine years ago and Mr. and Mrs. Mead were preparing to move to Cleveland, she gave Mrs. Sparks an amaryllas, thinking it too much trouble to move the plant to Cleveland. Mrs. Sparks has always kept the plant with her although she has traveled thousands of miles and last year it produced seventeen beautiful flowers. She prizes it as one of her mementoes of Tecumseh. Mrs. Sparks also states that they shipped fifty tons of fruit from their farm last season.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church celebrated its 25th anniversary last evening. A history of the society was read of the society was read by Mrs. E. B. Wood, the pesident, showing that 25 of the original members have been call-home; between 40 and 50 remain. During the 25 years over $1,000 have been gathered and distributed for missions. After the program had been completed a delightful lunch was served and some specially good music was rendered by Messrs. Strong and Conkling, and Mesdames Bidwell, Morely and Kellogg.

Mr. S. Whittier has not been so well the past two days and his friends are quite anxious about him.

Mrs. Hope, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. M. A. Freeman, has been quite ill this week with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Satterthwaite's little daughter Beth gave a birthday party to a number of her playmates last Monday.

The papers given at the Monday club March 15th were of more than usual merit. A very pleasing sketch of the talented artist Peter Paul Rubens was read by Mrs. H. S. Lee. The city of Cologne with that grand specimen of gothic architecture, "The Cathedral," was described by Mrs. R. S. Moore. We were given a glimpse of "The Art Galleries" at Munich and Berlin, by Mrs. James McCann. The "Club" were delighted to have their president, Mrs. C. A. Wright, with them once more, after an absence of several weeks.

THE LIMA NORTHETN.

A Very Enthusiastic Meeting at the Opera House last Monday Evening.

Last Monday evening a meeting of the citizens was called at the opera house to consider the final call for the Lima Northern railroad, and it was the most enthusiastic meeting held in Tecumseh in behalf of the project. Mr. Lilley gave a history of the proceedure from the first, after which enthusiastic speeches were made by John F. Hicks, F. B. Wood, Ben Garlinghouse, A. W. Mills and others.

By arrangement perfected by Messrs. Hicks, Garlinghouse and Mills, who have done the most of the soliciting, $2,000 have been deducted from the amount required and now $6.000 and the right of way one and one half miles south of Tecumseh will secure the road. The citizens instructed the soliciting committee to go on with the work and they would stand by them. Every day the work of soliciting has gone on, still, at this writing, quite a sum is yet to be raised to complete the amount, and it will be necessary for our citizens to give liberally and the committee to do some tall hustling tomorrow, which is the last day. It is the unanimous opinion of all that Tecumseh must secure this road and every man should be willing to give what he can afford. Give and give quickly; tomorrow night the matter must be settled.

St. Patrick.

The third of the series of parties given by the fourteen ladies was conducted by Mrs. Garlinghouse, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Whiting and Miss Meade at the residence of the first named lady Wednesday evening. This was a St. Patrick's party and could the old saint himself have participated he certainly would have been delighted with the entertainment. The decorations entire were green. Green draperies, green mottoes, score favors painted green and tied with green ribbons and banks of green foliage formed background to the tasteful arrangements. The novel features of the evening were the "Blarney" stone, which every one was required to kiss before entering the parlors, and snakes.

Snakes above, snakes below,
Snakes wherever one might go.

Yes, snakes everywhere. At the banquet table the prevailing color still reigned supreme even to the use of green china and crystal. After refreshments toast responses were given by Will Hicks, L. P. Tribou, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons and Geo. N. Stacy. The novelty of the entertainment, charming attentions of the hostesses, and hospitality of the Garlinghouse home, combined to make the evening delightful in every particular.

A Rich Harvest.

It costs no more to sow good seeds than it does to sow old and worthless stock. How foolish is the person who fails to get the best to start with. No doubt you have often thought of this, when your garden has not done very well. Will you jog along in the same way this year, or use a little forethought and send to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for their catalogue which contains a list of all that's new and good? Their seeds are always reliable—sure to grow and never disappoint. Send 10 cents for catalogue and deduct this amount from first order. Really costs nothing.

Where He Drew the Line.

Among the first stories recorded by Mr. T. E. Pritt in his "Anglers' Basket," is one about a Scottish laird who was relating the story of a fine fish he had caught one day to his friends at the dinner table. "Donald," said he to the servant behind his chair—an old man, but a new servant—"how heavy was the fish I took yesterday?" Donald neither spoke nor moved. The laird repeated the question. "Weel," replied Donald, 'it was twal' pund at breakfast, it had gotten to achteen at dinner-time, and it was sax-and-twenty when ye sat dawn to supper wi' the captain." Then after a pause he added: "I've been tellin' lees a' my life to please the shooters, but I'll be blowed if I'm going to tell lees noo, through my old age, to please the fushers."

A HAUNTED TREE.

The Coon Dog Turned Tail When They Struck It.

Last fall a party of coon hunters from this city were in the woods in this vicinity and the dogs hunted splendidly until they struck this old tree, says the Danville (Ky.) Advocate. There they tucked their tails between their legs and simply flew. They whined and gave other evidences of fear and could not be coaxed into hunting any more that night. Finally the hunters themselves became scared. One of them declared he heard the sound of a voice as if from some soul in deep distress. This settled it. Every man in the crowd suddenly remembered that he had business in town and townward the whole layout proceeded without further parleying or loss of time. The next day an old gentleman residing in Danville was told of the occurrence and he recalled the fact that he had been one of the party which had a similar experience near this old tree three years ago and he said that the spot had been haunted for many years. A long time ago an old gentleman by the name of Louis Streat was murdered for his money and the murderer had dragged the body to the foot of this tree and covered it with dry leaves. The murderer was never punished by law. A young man named Henderson was arrested charged with the crime and at his examining trial was liberated on $5,000 bail. He jumped his bond and disappeared some time afterward.

ALWAYS PLAY FOR MONEY.

Englishmen and Even Clergymen Bet on a Game of Cards.

"England is termed Puritanical," said a New Yorker who has been in London a good deal, "but English people who consider themselves very proper do things sometimes which would shock people of a similar sort in this country. For instance, even clergymen often play cards for money, and women do so as a matter of course. I never played a game at an English house at which there was not a stake.

"The stake was small if women were among the players, and possibly only a few shillings changed hands, but it never seemed to occur to any English people I ever met to play for fun. The people were of the middle class, which is anything but fast.

"Fancy an American clergyman playing cards for money! He would be considered a bad lot by many if he played cards even for fun. And certainly a young woman who arose from a card table with a dollar, more or less, of a man's money in her possession would be considered fast, to say the least."

PINGREE LOSES A POINT.

Supreme Court Overrules Attorney General Maynard.

Lansing, March 13.—The supreme court has denied the contention of Attorney-General Maynard that he should not be required to petition for a mandamus directing the Detroit council to call a special election for mayor. The court directed him to permit the use of his name as petitioner, but relieved him from any further responsibility in the matter. The council was ordered to show cause why the mandamus should not issue, and, although he appears as the nominal petitioner, Attorney-General Maynard will make an argument in support of his contention that no vacancy exists in the office of mayor of Detroit by reason of Pingree's qualifying as governor, and that no special election should be held.

THE DEADLY CROSSING.

Two Men Killed by the Cars Near Zeeland.

Holland, March 14.—Martin Behaan, Simon Boertke and Henry Driesenga were victims of a horrible accident near Zeeland at 12 o'clock Saturday while crossing the Chicago & West Michigan railroad tracks in a wagon. They were struck by an express train. Behaan and Boertke were killed instantly and Driesenga cannot possibly recover. Behaan leaves a widow and two children. The other two were single. A strange circumstance was the horses were thrown 30 feet and were uninjured.

Peach Crop Damaged.

Niles, March 16.—Many prominent fruit growers residing in southwestern Michigan give their opinion that the extreme cold of the past winter has seriously affected the fruit crop to such an extent that the peach crop will not be one-half what it was last year. Smaller fruit, they also declare, has been badly injured. The damage to the fruit crop will be a great financial loss to the fruit growers.

Judge Grove Resigns.

Grand Rapids, March 16.—Judge William E. Grove, of the Kent circuit court, will send his resignation to Gov. Pingree to take effect May 1. The vacancy will be filled by gubernatorial appointment and J. M. Jamieson is the leading candidate. The resignation is due to the fact that the supervisors made a cut of $1,000 in Judge Grove's salary.

Mother and Son Drowned.

Richmond, March 13.—A vehicle containing Fred Harrington and his aged mother was precipitated into the river while the two were driving along the shore. Both were drowned. The body of Mrs. Harrington was recovered. Recent rains had flooded the roadbed.

To Reduce Its Capital Stock.

Grand Rapids, March 12.—The state bank of Michigan has decided to reduce its capital from $200,000 to $150,000 to enable it to write off doubtful papers and to make its solidity beyond doubt. The bank will then have a surplus of $30,000.

Grand River Overflows.

Ionia, March 15.—The old reliable Grand river is once more on the rampage, the flats and fair grounds here being covered with water. The overflow has reached its highest point since the high water four or five years ago. The wagon works have been shut down.

Live Stock Burned.

Coldwater, March 14.—The barn of F. B. Kennedy, near here, was burned, with 9 cattle, 2 horses, 100 hens, besides farm tools and hay, etc. Mr. Kennedy was severely burned while endeavoring to save the stock.

HOW POLLY PROPOSED.

"Hi! Hi! All right! All right! Now we sha'n't be long!" said the gray parrot.

I regret to say that the irrepressible young man that brings the daily milk is the tutor of my parrot in the latest up-to-date slang of the day.

I am an old sea-captain-at least, not old, perhaps the word slipped out unawares. I am the right side of 50, anyhow; but being in receipt of a pension and a small private income to boot, I have cast anchor in my present abode in the expectation of weathering many a winter's storm yet.

Being without a known relation in the world, I willingly fell in with the suggestion that I should pick up my moorings alongside my old friend and messmate, Capt. Travers, late R. N., who, having left one of his legs on the west coast of Africa while capturing a slaver, was pensioned off at an even earlier age than myself, and now lived with his sister — a most comfortable party, fat, fair and 40 or thereabouts—in the adjoining house to mine in the neighborhood of London. We had always got on well together, our tastes and dispositions were similar, and we had often met during our naval careers. His sister I had not previously been acquainted with, but, being in many respects like her brother, we were soon firm friends.

Capt. Travers and myself had each a favorite parrot—his the common African gray, with a red-tipped tail, and mine the purer variety, without a trace of color, but otherwise similar.

I had not long settled down in my new quarters, and got everything shipshape, or what seemed so to me—a very important difference, as I know to-day—when, almost unconsciously at first, I began to feel what a lonely old bachelor I was, and what a set-off to all my other belongings the figure of Miss Rachel Travers would be by my fireside. But just here the curse of my life began to make itself felt. Inherent shyness in the presence of the opposite sex has dogged my footsteps from my earliest recollections. Give me a gale of wind in the Bay of Biscay, a tornado in the tropics, or 20 hours' duty on deck, wet through to the skin, and Capt. Manley, late of the P. and O. service, will thank you for it, and consider life well worth living; but as dispenser of delicate attentions to the fair sex, intensely as he inwardly admires their pretty ways, Capt. Manley does not, no, he certainly does not, show up to advantage.

Although fond of pets generally, I have an antipathy to cats, especially at night. I am not aware that our neighborhood was particularly beneficial in its aspect or other qualifications to feline constitution, but I know that until I was inhuman enough to start an air-gun cannonade on my numerous nocturnal visitors, I was frequently unable to get a respectable night's rest. One infernal black and white Tom defied my finest efforts. If average cats have nine lives, I am sure this one must have had 19, and I began to wonder what sort of uncanny being this was that had no objection to letting my bullets pass apparently through its body without suffering any inconvenience. But after all it must have been my bad marksmanship, for one afternoon I saw my enemy quietly walking up the low fence that divided my back garden from Capt. Travers'.

The opportunity was too good to be lost, and quietly getting my air-gun, I took a steady aim and fired. There was no mistake this time, and without a sound poor puss dropped on to my flower-bed as dead as the proverbial door nail.

My exultation, however, was of short duration, for to my horror and dismay, on proceeding to pick up his unfortunate carcass and give it decent burial, I saw that my shot had passed right through the unlucky animal and killed my neighbor's parrot, which had been put out to sun itself in a little summer-house that stood at the bottom of the garden.

I was staggered at my position; I knew the parrot was a supreme favorite with Miss Travers, and how I could ever explain my carelessness I could not imagine. Suddenly a way out of my dilemma presented itself to my mind, and I hastened to put it into execution. I knew that the Travers were out, and would not be back for some little time, so hurrying indoors and taking my own parrot from its cage, I carefully painted the end of its tail with red ink in imitation of its deceased comrade, and finding no one was about, I stepped lightly over the fence and substituted the living for the dead bird, which I buried, together with the cat, in my own garden. I knew that my parrot would not readily talk before strangers, and I hoped that by the time it had got used to its new surroundings, it would have forgotten its former accomplishments; at any rate, I must risk it.

Alas! "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," sang some poet, who, I expect, never wore anything harder than a nightcap, but, true as it may be, compared to the torture of my mind, now launched on a course of duplicity, it would be a bed of roses.

It was towards the end of the following week that I happened to be out in the garden and saw my old friend come stumping down the path of his own garden in his dot-and-carry-one style, and, seeing me on the fence, he cried:

"Hollos! Captain, you're quite a stranger! What's been up? Rachel has been talking about coming in to inquire about your health, as she was afraid something must be wrong."

"Yes, I have been a bit poorly," said I. Oh! how easily the words slipped out, although I had been as right as ninepence—why that particular sum should be endued with more rectitude than its fellows I have never been able to discover—this by the way.

"A bit of cold, perhaps," said Capt. Travers. "Well, come over the fence and have a dish of tea in the summer-house, and Rachel shall come in afterwards and make you a good glass of something stiff for a night-cap."

Punctually at five o'clock I donned my sprucest attire, and with a smart flower in my button-hole—gay dog that I was—slipped over the fence. Miss Rachel was there, looking as fresh as a spring cabbage with the dew on it, which I consider a very pretty simile, and she bade me welcome with one of her beaming smiles. There, too, was the unlucky parrot in its cage, and standing just outside the summer-house. I had noticed that it had been set out to sun itself as usual on all fine days, and as far as I could see nothing had transpired to make me think they had any cause to suspect my imposition.

I purposely sat with my back to it, and avoided taking notice of it in any way whatever.

Tea went off all right; my old friend was very cheery and Miss Rachel showed me great attention. I could hear Polly rubbing her beak up and down the wires of the cage, and swinging backwards and forwards in the metal ring.

After the meal Capt. Travers went indoors to get his supply of necessaries for the evening, and, turning to me, Miss Travers commenced:

"By-the-by, Capt. Manley, how is your parrot? I have not seen it out in the garden lately."

I felt my heart beating a bit faster, but with every semblance of outward calm, I said:

"No—the fact is, it's not been at all well; in fact, it's dead."

"Dead!" she exclaimed. "Well, I never. What did it die of?"

"I really don't know," I replied. "It died quite suddenly about a week ago."

"I hope our Polly isn't going to follow suit," she continued. "She has been very dull and quiet the last few days, but seems a bit more lively this evening. I don't think she has spoken a word all the week."

"Thank goodness!" I inwardly ejaculated.

Things were beginning to look a bit awkward, and I cast about for something to change the course of conversation. I am not a quick thinker, however, and before I could collect my wits, Miss Travers continued:

"Dear, dear, to think your poor Polly's dead! Well, I am sorry! I could be sorry to lose you, Polly dear," she said, addressing the parrot. "But really, Capt. Manley," looking me straight in the face, "I can't make our Pollyout. Sometimes I could almost believe she was a different bird. She hasn't once seemed pleased to see me all the week."

I felt the blood rapidly rising to my cheeks and forehead, but I trusted to my tanned complexion for it not to show. I feebly replied: "Perhaps she's moulting."

It was an unlucky slip. "Well, now I come to think," said Miss Travers, "I noticed that its tail looked much paler after its bath the other morning, and the water was quite red. Is that a sign of moulting?"

"Yes, I often used to notice it about my own parrot."

"But I thought your bird had no red about it," she pursued.

"Confound the woman's persistence," I thought, but I stammered: "I mean—that is to say—you see—I've noticed it in all red parrots I have ever come across. They shouldn't be bathed at all, it injures their constitution."

"Oh! I thought you recommended it," she said.

So I had, dozens of times. "Only for the gray ones," I said, forming a convenient distinction on the spur of the moment.

Miss Travers did not seem inclined to pursue the subject further, much to my satisfaction, and then there was a dead pause.

During the whole of our conversation the subject of it had not ceased to continue its antics in the wire cage. Whether it was the sound of my voice that caused it to be thus excited I do not know, but at this opportunity it burst in with "Hi, hi!"

I was getting desperate, and could think of nothing to change the subject; and yet if I didn't say something I was terribly afraid the parrot would.

A bicycle bell sounded down the road.

"Are you thinking of getting a bicycle, Miss Travers?" I said.

"No, certainly not," she replied; "how can you ask such a question?"

Another awful pause, during which I mopped the perspiration from my brow.

"Ra—Ra—Rachel, I love you!" came in clear tones from behind my back. The wretched bird had caught the exact tone of my voice.

"Capt. Manley! Sir!" said Miss Travers, raising herself to her full five feet one and one-half inches. "Did you address that remark to me, sir?"

I had, however, utterly collapsed, and burying my head in my hands, I leaned down on the little round table. Whether the sight of the poor old ship in distress touched her tender heart I don't know, but she added, in softer tones:

"This is very unexpected, Capt. Manley."

I could hold out no longer.

"Miss Rachel," I cried, "I'm a thundering old hypocrite. My parrot isn't dead at all; there it is in that cage; it's yours that's dead; I shot it. I didn't mean to. Can you forgive me for all the lies I told you?"

"All right! All right!" said the solemn voice of the parrot behind me.

"It was Polly that made that remark just now, not I; but, believe me, she speaks the truth, if I don't. Rachel, I do really love you."

I ventured to look up. Tears were standing in her eyes, and the expression on her face made me hope that I did not look quite such a big booby in her eyes as I felt I did in my own.

Moving nearer, I clasped her hand, and as it was not withdrawn, I put one arm gently round her ample waist.

"Now we shan't be long," said the gray parrot.—Tit-Bits.

THE GRIZZLY EATS PEANUTS.

Comments on the Bear's Apparent Fondness for Them.

A man who stood in front of the bear pit at the menagerie in Central park was greatly interested in observing just how the big grizzly bear took the peanuts that one of the visitors was handing to him, says the New York Sun. The bear stood up at an angle of about 45 degrees, hind feet on the floor of the pit, one fore foot resting on the stone ledge in which the bars of the cage are imbedded, the other extended through the bars to take the peanuts. He did not clutch them under his claws and then turn the claws inward upon the ball of his foot, but when he reached out through the bars he spread his claws apart sideways, as one might spread the fingers of his hand apart. The visitors would place a peanut between two of the claws, and then the bear would close the claws together, as one would close the fingers of his outstretched hand. He would hold the peanut between two claws in the same manner that a man sometimes holds a cigar between two fingers. Holding it thus the bear would carry the peanut to his mouth; then thrusting his paw out between the bars again he would open his claw out sideways as before, waiting for another.

"I suppose it must be an acquired taste," said a solemn-faced bystander, referring to the bear's apparent fondness for peanuts.

"I don't know," said another man. "I'm not so sure but what there are some places where grizzlies live that peanuts grow."

"That may be," said the solemn-faced man, "but I'm sure there's no place where they grow baked."

FOR over a year I suffered with complete nervous prostration as the result of La Grippe, writes Mr. Ball of Lake Placid, N. Y. Doctors did all they could but their efforts were without results, and I grew worse. My trouble affected my mind, but kind nature came to my relief by helping me to think, 'If I only had a helping hand to aid nature to build me up slowly and surely.' The result was I refused all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully restored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

GRINDSTONE DEVICE.

A Cheap and Effective Method of Getting All the Speed Needed.

A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker has devised a contrivance for turning a grindstone, by means of which one can both turn and grind at the same time with comparative ease. The inventor gives the following instructions for constructing the device, which is shown in the accompanying cut:

Take the small sprocket wheels and chain from an old worn binder or other farm machinery, and gear it two to one; that is, the lower or crank shaft wheel must have twice as many cogs as the one on the stone shaft. Use a stone 20 or more inches in diameter, and be sure to get a good one. An Amherst is better than a Berea, for all purposes. If geared higher than two to one, it will turn hard, and if much lower it will not turn fast enough. It is the fast motion that cuts. One may find an excellent pair of cranks from some old bicycle; a friend gave me mine.

BOYS ON THE FARM.

They Should Be Taught Self-Reliance from Infancy On.

I am acquainted with an instance where a certain farmer brought his boy up just as you would train a colt. He was never allowed to exercise the least amount of judgment in anything pertaining to farm matters. In fact, he was a mere machine. When the boy was 18 his father was stricken down with a lingering disease, but still the latter persisted in pursuing the course of training his boy. He planned everything until three weeks before his death. To-day his boy knows but little more than an infant about laying out his work.

As soon as the boy is 12 years old his training should begin. Show him that he is of more consequence than a machine, that he is put here to think, plan and carry out work. Give him a piece of ground and teach him the first rudiments of farming, letting him see all the while that he is working for himself. As he grows old, give him a colt or a cow, and let him raise stock for himself. Then take him into confidence as to the buying and selling of farm produce, and occasionally let him manage the farm for a day or so. Above all, be patient with him. Nothing discourages the average boy more than fault-finding, which makes him gradually lose all confidence in his ability to work. Good judgment, patience and self-control will train your boy so that, when at last you are unable to run the old farm, you will have some one who can easily assume the entire management in everything and do credit to his parent's early training.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Application of Manure.

Some farmers make the mistake of putting coarse, straw manure into wet, heavy soil, thinking that it will have a beneficial effect by making such soil loose and dry and consequently warmer; also that the moisture in the soil will cause the straw to decay more readily than it would in dry land. There are conditions in this reasoning that cannot be brought together. The lumps of wet soil will not mingle with the straw and are held apart so that they dry out and become hard and the manure is not converted into plant food. Put coarse manure on dry soil and it will be mixed and incorporated more readily. Plow it into dry land five or six inches deep and after the seed is covered put a heavy roller over it and the roots will find the manure.—Journal of Agriculture.

For Land or For Crop.

The old question whether it is better to manure for land or for crop is not much asked nowadays. The loss of original fertility of soil and the narrowing profits on crops require that farmers in these times should get as nearly full returns as possible from all the manure they apply. If they manure at all for the future it is by seeding with clover when they apply the fertilizer, so that part of its benefit shall remain in the clover roots. Besides this, seeded ground does not waste fertility, either by washing or blowing away, as that left naked in winter is sure to do.

Seeding Clover in Knolls.

It is often hard work to get a clover seeding on the dry, elevated knolls in grain fields. Lack of moisture is usually the cause. But the evil may be remedied by drawing a few loads of stable manure and spreading over the knolls. The manure not only protects the young clover plants, but it also holds the moisture in the soil by checking evaporation. This will soon make them as rich as any part of the field. It is usually the lack of clover seeding on such places that keeps them poor.—Rural World.

SUCCESSFUL FARMING.

Impossible Where Judgment Is Not Cast Along Intelligent Lines.

If every farmer were as enthusiastic on the subject of good methods on the farm as he is about having good and favorable seasons, there would be a great deal less misery in the world. One of the phases of practicing better methods that very few farmers seem to really understand is that of making all operations and transactions of the farm work together to the one end of producing big crops regularly, just as a piece of complicated machinery has all its parts working in harmony, that the machine may do its work effectively. Any crop a farmer may cultivate, or any kind of live stock he undertakes to keep upon the farm, has its relation to other crops or kinds of stock to be cultivated or raised, and this very relation is the thing that should determine the extent to which the farmer is to go with his various operations.

The man with one idea or a sort of hobby, on a farm, generally has a hard road to travel. He works without any of the advantages that flow from smaller economies. It is one thing to make the ends meet, but it is another and better thing to make them lap over. This is what the up-to-date, all around farmer should be constantly doing. He should strive as far as lies in his power to make of the farm a complete home. He must vary his methods, too, to suit the occasion. And this is where the well-informed farmer always has the advantage of those who know little or nothing as to what is passing in the world outside their own immediate neighborhood. It requires knowledge and the exercise of judgment along all these lines for [illegible] ow with anything like prec[illegible]her it is best to extend or c[illegible]is operations along certain lines of crop production for any particular year. Jumping at conclusions, or following along in an old rut, is a style of farming that ought not to be permitted in this day and age.

If there is any one expression that describes the successful farmer of to-day, it is that of being up to the times. Other things being equal, this farmer is found in the lead every day and everywhere. Some farmers are always waiting for an opportunity, but there are others who make a business of creating opportunities. A good and favorable season for crop growing is not the only thing that pushes prosperity into a farmer's doorway. Let the farmer follow his best judgment with a look-out for the main chance always, and he is certain to succeed, provided his judgment is cast along intelligent lines.—Dakota Field and Farm.

or the two sides only, when it will be found especially convenient for drawing in green cornstalks from the field, or garden, where one keeps but a cow or two. It is a handy cart for the village resident who has to depend on a wheelbarrow, or some such arrangement as this to move his small crops and other stores. The sides and ends fit tightly into iron sockets, and for stability lock together at the corners when in place, as shown in the portrayal. Anyone handy with tools can construct a very serviceable rig of this sort, the only necessary adjuncts being a pair of wheels, which are often at hand, from some broken or worn-out wagon, sulky or other light vehicle.—Farm and Home.

HINTS FOR FARMERS.

Bounce the lazy hired man.

Everybody be kind to everybody else.

Keep the animals warm. It saves feed.

Continuous cultivation will kill almost any weed.

Feed plenty of carrots to all stock if you have the carrots.

Bounce the hired man who is not willing to feed the stock on Sunday.

Push every acre for all it is worth. That is one way to discount low prices.

Kill the hens that lay no eggs. That is, have nothing on the farm that does not pay.

Economize labor on the farm. Lots of money goes to waste by the hired man loafing in the shade in summer.

Keep an account with each field on the farm, charging it and crediting it. It will be the best thing you ever did.

You can cut off the combs of fowls if you prefer. Use a sharp knife; cut off both combs and wattles. To prevent bleeding, first wash the head with strong alum water and then sprinkle with powdered ammonia.—Western Plowman.

Good Blue Grass Pasture.

Where you have what we call a good, solid, well-matted blue grass pasture, that same land will produce at least twice the amount of feed, for the reason that it catches the snow, holds the rain much better, and not half the rain runs off that does from our short pastures. It holds a greater amount of moisture, because the grass is a mulch for the soil, and it will keep growing for weeks in a dry season, after it has ceased to on other land that is grazed to death.—Western Plowman.

FINDING FAULT.

Absence of Gov. Pingree from Lansing Causes Complaint.

The Beet Sugar Bounty Bill Ready for His Signature — Lawmakers Observe Sixtieth Anniversary of Statehood.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, March 17. — Complaints are being made that bills requiring immediate attention are hung up because of Gov. Pingree's absence. He has been at the capitol only two days this month, and is now in the east to remain several days.

The failure of the Corliss immigration bill to pass congress over Cleveland's veto has caused a lively interest to be taken in Senator Lawrence's bill providing that no alien shall be employed in the public service of the state, nor by any private citizen, nor may he enter into a contract to work for either until he has signified his intention to become a citizen of this country. Stiff fights will be put up by both friends and opponents of the bill.

The beet sugar bill as amended by the senate passed the house Tuesday and will be approved by Gov. Pingree, who recommended its passage in his inaugural message. It provides for the payment of a bounty of one cent per pound on beet sugar of Michigan production.

A radical bill passed by the senate provides that the railroad commissioner shall be elected by the people instead of appointed by the governor, as has always been done heretofore.

In joint convention Tuesday night the legislature observed the sixtieth anniversary of the admission of Michigan into the union and the semicentennial of the selection of Lansing as the location of the state capital. Many historical addresses were made.

The senators had a spirited engagement Thursday over a bill providing that in case vacancies in appointive offices are not filled by the governor during the legislative session the officials whose terms have expired shall hold over until the next senate convenes. The object of the bill is to head off Gov. Pingree's plan to make Prof. Bemis, of Chicago, state labor commissioner. The bill was taken from a committee composed wholly of Pingree men, despite their emphatic protests, and placed on the general order. The Pingree men denounced the action on the floor of the senate as a studied insult to the governor.

The governor sent to the senate Thursday the nomination of Milo D Campbell, of Coldwater, formerly private secretary to Gov. Luce, for commissioner of insurance, vice Theron F. Giddings, whose term will expire July 1.

The senate had a protracted fight over the bill repealing the law for the taxation of real estate mortgages. The plea that under the existing law the borrower, instead of the loaner, as intended, pays the tax, succeeded in winning a victory for the bill in spite of determined opposition. The measure makes seven per cent. the maximum interest that may be contracted in real estate mortgages, and restricts the exemption to mortgages on Michigan real estate. The bill has been reported favorably to the house, and a careful canvass shows that it will pass, and as it was recommended by Gov. Pingree in his inaugural message it will become a law.

The house committee on public health has agreed to favorably report a most sweeping anti-cigarette bill. The measure provides a penalty not only for the manufacture or sale of cigarettes in the state, but also for their use. They cannot, under this bill, be brought into the state.

The house passed a bill fixing extra compensation of members from the upper peninsula at two dollars per day in addition to three dollars under the constitutional provision, but it met with strong opposition and was pulled through by a mere scratch.

The senate after considerable discussion finally passed a bill providing the office of state statistician shall be abolished after July 1, 1897.

Gov. Pingree has issued a proclamation urging the voters of the state to vote for the constitutional amendment increasing the salary of the attorney-general from $800 to $3,500. He says it costs the state now more than the latter sum for legal assistance.

The governor has ordered the secretary of the state to call a special election in the second district in Saginaw county to fill the vacancy made by the unseating of Kerr as representative. The election will occur April 5.

The messengers of the senate and house have organized a legislature of their own and hold mock sessions in the senate chamber every Friday evening. They held their second meeting last Friday night, the feature of which was the receiving of a message from Gov. Pingree, whom they selected as their governor and adviser. In the message his excellency gave the senate an unmerciful scoring for executive sessions. "An executive session to-day," said he, "is a relic of the English age when the race was emerging from a half barbarism." Some statements even more tart follow on the same subject. Taking up the matter of holding two offices the governor justifies his action in ingenious logic. "A man cannot hold two offices," said he, "unless the majority of the people wish that he should. When the people elect him to two different offices they are responsible for the election, and he is responsible to them for the manner in which he performs the double official duties."

The house judiciary committee will recommend for repeal all laws which have outlived their usefulness so that the statutes may be cleared of a lot of refuse matter that does nobody any good.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1893, Samuel Lansdere of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan, executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Being lot number Five (5) on the plot in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1893, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 556.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty-four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and notes the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8 A. D. 1897
SARAH C. ROGERS. Mortgagee.
G. R. Gillespie, Attorney for Mortgagee.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated December 30 1893, executed by John McLain and Jennie McLain, his wife, of Macon, Mich., to Brockwell J. Rector, of Tecumseh, Mich which mortgage was recorded in Liber 189 of Mortgages on page 332 on the 7th day of July, A. D 1894, and whereas the amount claimed to be unpaid upon said mortgage at the date hereof is the sum of Four thousand three hundred and eighty-seven and 5-100 dollars damages and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to secure the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale, and pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the court house in the City of Adrian in said county of Lenawee on the 27th day of March, A. D. 1897, next at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows:

Situated in the township of Tecumseh Lenawee County, Michigan, and described as the south half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-three of town five south of range four east, containing eighty acres of land more or less.

Dated December 16, 1896.

Officers of a Broken Michigan Bank Accused of Mismanagement.

Lansing, March 12.—The schedule of assets of the Whitehall savings bank, which closed a few weeks ago, filed by the Michigan Trust company, of Grand Rapids, as receiver, with the state bank commissioner in this city shows what caused the trouble. I. M. Weston, formerly president of the bank and a brother of Charles E. Weston, of Milwaukee, a director, is a debtor to the amount of $15,000; H. L. Delano, of Muskegon, a director, owes $14,000; L. G. Mason, of Muskegon, an ex-director, is down for $13,500, and Cashier and Director S. H. Lasley owes $7,000. The capital stock is only $25,000, and these four men have borrowed a total of $49,500, nearly twice the amount of the entire capital, and besides the direct liabilities are further liable to a considerable amount as indorses. The deposits amount to about $85,000, and the receiver estimates that it will be possible to pay less than 20 per cent. on the claims, even with the best of management. The depositors are mostly poor Swedes, who put money in the bank on wages of $1 to $1.25 a day. Two hundred of them met Monday night to take steps to prosecute criminally the management of the institution. As a preliminary they will petition Gov. Pingree to remove Cashier Lasley from the office of registrar of deeds of Muskegon county, to which he was elected last fall for a second term.

WANT HIGH TARIFF ON LUMBER

Shingle Mill Owners Address a Memorial to Senator Morrill.

Grand Rapids, March 17.—Representatives of 50 or 60 lumber and shingle mills in western and northern Michigan, claiming to cut 870,000,000 feet of lumber and 800,000,000 shingles and to employ 1,350 men, met here Tuesday and adopted a memorial, addressed to Senator Morrill, urging a high tariff on lumber. The memorial demands a duty on rough lumber of at least $2 per 1,000 and on shingles of 35 cents. It is claimed that this is of vital importance to the lumber interests, and that the statistics of business failures the last three years will prove it. The chief opposition to this tariff is from lumbermen who own Canadian timber. The memorial will be sent to all the Michigan representatives in congress and will be supplemented by numerous personal letters, and an assessment of $1 per 1,000,000 feet of lumber cut was levied on members to defray expenses.

A Deal in Oil.

Lansing, March 17. — The new American Oil company, of Mansfield, O., has purchased the business of Wells & Clear, leading wholesale oil dealers in Michigan, with headquarters in this city and a branch at Saginaw. The new American company has been cutting the corners of the Standard Oil company in Ohio, and by the purchase of Wells & Clear's extensive business will obtain a strong foothold in this state.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 17.—Tip, a monster elephant which has been shown throughout the country for many years past, was put to death by strangulation. He was too sagacious to eat poisoned apples.

DELAY MEANS DECAY

A house and barn, farm tools, wagons, buggies, everything is improved with paint. There are almost as many different kinds of paint as there are things to be painted.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS BUGGY PAINT was made originally to paint buggies with, but it is just the thing to use on articles requiring an out-door exposure—porch and lawn chairs, boats, benches, etc.—where a fine varnish finish is wanted.

Our booklet, "Paint Points," tells of the different kinds of paint, tells what is good paint, what is bad paint, tells how to paint and what to paint, tells how to take care of your brushes. It can be had for the asking. You may not be thinking about paint to-day, but send for "Paint Points" anyway — it will keep.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS are sold by over 10,000 dealers, and are the best paints for all paintable things.

AT CROSS PURPOSES.

Governor Pingree and the Senate of Michigan.

DISLIKE IS FULLY RECIPROCATED.

Two Nominations Made by the Executive Turned Down and the Amendment to the Beet Sugar Bounty Bill Defeated—Grangers Win a Victory in Both Houses—Bill for the Taxation of Real Estate Mortgages—Fishermen's Fears.

Lansing, Mich., March 16.—Last week was an eventful one in the legislature. Several things of an interesting nature happened, and that is more than can be said of many a week in the earlier part of the session. Several of these things combined tended to show very conclusively that the governor's dislike for the senate, which he has taken no trouble to conceal, is reciprocated fully. The turning down of ex-Governor Luce for a place on the Ionia prison board, and of Rev. Morgan Wook of Detroit for a place on the state board of corrections and charities, the practical abolishment of the office of state statistician to which Governor Pingree proposed to appoint ex-Mayor Cox of Battle Creek, the refusal to adopt State Senator Moore's amendment to the beet sugar bounty bill so as to place the appointing of weighmasters and inspectors in the hands of the governor, and the taking from the state affairs committee, made up wholly of Pingree men, of the bill providing that all vacancies taking place before or during the legislature session shall be filled before adjournment so that the senate may pass upon the nominations, are samples of the treatment accorded the chief executive by the upper house. These incidents simply go to confirm the opinion expressed several weeks ago that it will be far easier for the biblical camel to go through the eye of a needle than for any of the so-called Pingree measures to go through the senate. Plenty of them may pass the house, but that is as far as they will get on their way to become laws in this year of grace.

A Bishop in the Senate.

It is a singular fact that not more than one or two persons have discovered that the senate numbers among its members a genuine bishop. In its efforts to secure some one to open the daily sessions with religious exercises the senate has run the gantlet of about all the Protestant clergymen of the city, has frequently pressed into service Rev. C. C. Miller, one of the assistant sergeants-at-arms, and, at times, has called upon State Senator Mudge, who is a clergyman, and State Senator Campbell, who is not, but has never learned that all this while a bishop has sat in the chamber unsuspected. The person referred to is State Senator Blakeslee of Berrien, who is one of the three ruling bishops of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Bishop Blakeslee is not gifted as a speaker, although he has no difficulty in stating clearly and forcibly what he may have on his mind, and for this reason he has been assigned the duty of handling the financial affairs of the church, a duty which he performs with signal ability. He confines his church work to this feature, although having full authority to perform all of the functions of an elder in the church.

Victory for the Grangers.

The grangers won a decided victory in both houses last week. This was in connection with the bill making an appropriation for the traveling library. Five thousand dollars was asked for this purpose for the ensuing two years, but the senate cut this to $3,500. The bill hung fire in the house for two or three weeks, the disposition of the committee on ways and means being to cut the appropriation still further. About this time petitions for the passage of the bill as originally drafted began to come in from the granges all over the state. These petitions stated that the farming community received the greatest benefit from the traveling libraries and the grangers earnestly protested against the cut. The result was that the original amount was restored, and when the bill was restored to the senate that body went back on its former action by an almost unanimous vote. Had it not been for the grange petitions it is extremely doubtful if the appropriation would have exceeded $2,500.

There is little doubt that the bill to repeal the law providing for the taxation of real estate mortgages will become a law. It passed the senate several days ago by a decisive vote, although the senators engaged in quite a lively scrap before the vote was taken. It has already been favorably reported to the house, and a careful canvass shows that a majority of the representatives are in favor of its passage. As amended in the senate the bill restricts the exemption to mortgages on Michigan real estate, and limits the rate of interest that can be contracted in such mortgages to 7 per cent. The arguments used in favor of the bill are that, while the mortgage tax law was designed to reduce the rate of interest, its practical effect has been to increase it, the borrower, in nearly every instance, being required to pay the tax. It was furthermore urged that another effect of the law was to drive Michigan capital to other states.

Foreigners on Public Work.

State Senator Lawrence's bill requiring that foreign-born persons shall become citizens of this country before entitled to work on public improvements, etc., called out much discussion in the senate last week, and was finally referred to the judiciary committee for an opinion as to its constitutionality. It was discovered that it not only prevents the employment of non-citizens on public works, but any other line of work, and State Senator Youmans declared that if it became a law he would be compelled to discharge his hired man or be liable to the penalty provided for a violation of the law.

It is hardly probable that the bill will pass in its present form.

It looks very much as if machine voting is sure to come. The idea is steadily growing in favor year by year. This spring the cities of Adrian, Hudson and Lansing will use the Abbott voting machine at their municipal elections. This machine was used at Hudson, where the inventor, who was several terms a member of the Michigan legislature, resides, and gave the utmost satisfaction. It worked with absolute accuracy, and the result in the entire city was known within fifteen minutes after the polls closed.

The Molster bill abolishing convict labor and providing for farming out convicts in blocks of twenty to the various counties for work on the highways, has been favorably reported by the house committee on labor interests. There is not much reason for believing that it will pass, however, the prospect being that the present system of employing the convicts will not be disturbed. President Barter [illegible] tary Crewe of the State F[illegible] Labor have been here consi[illegible] the beginning of the sessi[illegible] for the abolishment of the cort[illegible] tem. While they have made [illegible] verts, it is not believed that a sufficient number have been secured to pass the bill.

Will Ruin Fishermen's Business.

A hearing will be given by the house committee on fisheries tomorrow night on the bill requiring the use of nets with larger meshes than those now in use by commercial fishermen. It is proposed to increase the size of the mesh from 2½ to 3 inches. The fishermen say that if this is done their business will be ruined, as a mesh of the size proposed will permit the passage of almost every food fish found in the waters of the great lakes. This same fight has been waged every session for the past ten or fifteen years, the contestants being the commercial fishermen on the one side, and the state fish commission on the other. Thus far the former have invariably scored a victory, and it is not improbable that they will do so again. A memorial recently read in the house against the passage of this bill shows that the annual catch of fish in the great lakes averages as follows: Lake herring, 35,740,960 pounds; other white fish, 10,327,098 pounds; pike and pike perch, 14,934,948 pounds; yellow perch, 8,642,311 pounds; lake trout, 16,279,973 pounds; catfish, 1,053,134 pounds; sturgeon, 1,426,584 pounds; total, 96,619,671 pounds. It will be seen from these figures that the commercial fishing industry is one of much importance and is entitled to due consideration at the hands of the legislature. The value of the annual catch exceeds $1,000,000, the capital invested in the industry equals that figure, and the industry gives employment to about 5,000 men.

The members of the house committee on towns and counties are in Lake county this week looking over the situation so that they may act intelligently on Representative Fleschauer's bill providing for the disorganization of that county, and the annexation of the territory to the county of Osceola. The claim is made that about six townships in the eastern part of Lake county bear substantially the entire burden of taxation, the pine having been removed from the other townships which have thus been rendered practically valueless.

Money for State Prisons.

It appears from a report made by Auditor General Dix, in response to a resolution of the house, that, since Michigan became a state just sixty years ago, there has been appropriated a total of $3,296,884.99 for the support of the prisons of the state. This total has been divided as follows: State prison at Jackson, $1,454,657.65; state house of correction at Ionia, $1,336,969.53; branch prison at Marquette, $489,057.09; Detroit house of correction for caring for female prisoners, $13,800.85.

Senator Mason has a liquor law which is considered a most drastic measure by saloonkeepers. It provides that licenses shall be issued by the circuit court instead of by the county treasurer, and then only after the would-be saloonkeeper has filed his application therefor setting forth his present and past occupation, and the fact that he is not the proprietor of any other saloon in the same county. This application is to be published, so as to afford the general public an opportunity to offer whatever objection they may have to his being given a license. The bill is designed to break up the practice some men have of running a series of saloons in the same city or county.

Another Job for Clerk Miller.

Chief Clerk Miller of the lower house, who, during the past two years, has made a new compilation of the statutes of Michigan, has been given another job by the present legislature. This is to include in the compilation the laws of 1897. Mr. Miller will receive $2,500 for his work under this bill, his compensation under the first bill having been $6,000. Those who have examined the manuscript say that the work has been exceptionally well done, and the compiler has been highly complimented by the commissioners appointed by Governor Rich to examine the compilation on behalf of the state. It has been a most laborious and responsible task. The legislature has also made provision for printing, binding and distributing the new compilation. The work is to be done by the state printer, and 20,000 volumes will be printed. The total cost of the work is estimated at $50,000.

To Expedite Work.

The necessity for doing something to expedite the work in order to reach final adjournment in any kind of season has led Speaker Gordon to hold a conference with the chairmen of the various standing committees of the house. The result of the conference was the appointment of a steering committee whose duty it will be to sift the pending bills, weeding out the worthless ones, combining those relating to the same subject or seeking to accomplish the same object, and pushing the most meritorious to the front. This committee will be the sole witness of the demise of the pet measures of many of the legislators. The treatment provided for is heroic, but the occasion demands it.

The senate has agreed to the Dudley bill providing a bounty of 1 cent per pound for beet sugar of Michigan production. The bill was slightly amended in the senate, but the chances are that the amendments will be concurred in. The changes made by the senate are that the weigh masters and inspectors shall be appointed by and under the supervision of the commissioner of the state land office, instead of the secretary of state, and that the bounty shall be paid whether the United States offers a bounty or not. As it passed the house the bill provided that the state bounty shall cease whenever the general government offers one, the desire being to not pay two bounties.

PAY THE PENALTY.

Jackson and Walling, Pearl Bryan's Slayers, Are Hanged.

Jailyard at Newport, Ky., the Scene of the Double Execution—Story of the Awful Deed for Which They Were Executed.

Newport, Ky., March 22.—Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling were hanged here Saturday for the murder on January 29, 1896, of Pearl Bryan. Jackson's body was cremated on Saturday night in Cincinnati, and the ashes were taken to Greencastle, Ind., by his mother.

SCOTT JACKSON.

Walling will be buried at Hamilton, O., where his mother lives.

On Saturday morning, February 1, 1896, the headless body of a young woman was found on the farm of John R. Lock near the end of the Fort Thomas electric car line south of Newport, Ky. No marks of identification could be discovered, and no cards, letters or anything calculated to solve the mystery could be found. The body was taken to the undertakers in Newport and a further examination showed that the dead woman's shoes were stamped "Lewis and Hays, Greencastle, Ind." With this clew the detectives went to work with the result that the corpse was identified as Miss Pearl Bryan, aged 22, daughter of Alexander Bryan, a well-to-do farmer living half a mile south of Greencastle.

On January 27 Pearl Bryan left her home ostensibly to visit friends in Indianapolis, but instead came direct to this city to meet Scott Jackson, a student at the Ohio College of Dental Surgery. Jackson failed to keep his appointment with the girl, and after wandering about the city she went to the Indiana house and registered under an assumed name. The next day Jackson called at the hotel to see her. On Wednesday, January 29, she left the Indiana house with Jackson and a fellow student named Alonzo Walling, and from that day until her body was found at Fort Thomas, nothing is positively known as to the movements of the trio.

A post mortem examination of the corpse revealed the fact that the dead girl was about to become a mother.

Jackson and Walling were arrested at their boarding house on West Ninth street and charged with the murder. At the preliminary examination of the prisoners each accused the other of having killed the girl. Jackson admitted that he was acquainted with the girl, but denied any knowledge of the murder. Walling said he did not know her.

Not once in all the hundred severe examinations to which Jackson and Walling have been subjected have they blundered or revealed anything. They have been self-possessed, keenly intelligent and cold-blooded through it all.

Scott Jackson was 27 years old, the only son of Mrs. John Jackson, a highly respected widow, of Greencastle, Ind. His sister is married to Dr. Edwin Post, professor of Latin in Depauw university, Indiana.

Alonzo Walling was 20 years old, son of Mrs. Sarah Walling, of Oxford, O.

ENTER A PROTEST.

Minority Report Presented on the Dingley Tariff Measure.

Washington, March 23.—The views of the minority of the committee on ways and means upon the tariff bill were presented to the house Monday evening by Representative Bailey (dem., Tex.), the leader of the democracy. It read as follows:

"This bill was framed with the avowed purpose of protecting the manufacturers of the United States against foreign competition, and it is perfectly obvious that if it accomplishes that purpose it must result in compelling the consumers of this country to pay more for their manufactured goods, and for this reason we think it should not pass. We rest our opposition upon the broad principle that congress was invested with the power of taxation as a means of collecting from each citizen his fair proportion toward the support of the government, and that it is a gross perversion of that sovereign power to employ it as a means of enabling favored classes to levy unjust charges upon the great body of the people.

"If government has a right to levy taxes upon the people for the purpose of inducing men to establish unprofitable industries, or industries which can only be made profitable by compelling the consumers of the United States to pay exorbitant prices for their products, then the bounty system is a more direct and less complex way of attaining that end, and at least has the advantage of directness and simplicity.

"It follows as a matter of course that a bill based upon a vicious principle must be injurious in its effects, and perhaps no effect could be more pernicious than the extravagance which the bill encourages. The tabulated statement embraced in the committee report shows that the bill is expected to raise $113,000,000 more revenue than was collected in customs during the last fiscal year; and yet, as is shown by the same report, the difference between the government receipts and disbursements during that year was only $25,000,000. It is well known that the importations of last year were smaller than usual, owing to the general depression that existed in all circles; but even supposing that importations hereafter can be kept at a level with the importations of 1896, the bill will collect from the people more than $90,000,000 annually above the requirements of our present extravagant and wasteful appropriations.

"If the system of unnecessary taxation is indefensible because of the extravagance which it encourages, it is still more so on account of the trusts which it fosters and promotes. It is not more certain that protection encourages extravagance than it is that it breeds unlawful combinations of capital. Indeed, protection is justified upon the avowed theory that competition should be restricted. True enough, it assumes the patriotic pretense that foreign competition ought not to be permitted against our home industries, but they little understand the selfishness of human nature, and especially they little understand the selfishness of that human nature which relies upon the favoritism of the law to increase its fortune, who suppose that these men, having secured themselves against foreign competition by the favor of congress, will fail to secure themselves against domestic competition by voluntary combinations among themselves.

"It is an old adage, and it is as true as it is old, that 'competition is the life of trade,' and whatever tends to restrict competition must tend to restrict trade. The majority of the committee seem to think it an easy matter for us to build a tariff wall about our borders and thus prevent the foreigners from trading with us, but they forget that the same wall which shuts the foreigner out shuts us in, and that regulations to prevent the foreigner from trading with us must at the same time prevent us trading with the foreigner. We believe in the principles of competition, and we believe the people of the United States can successfully compete against all other people of the world, and we denounce as a crime against the best interests of our people any law which leaves the consumers of this land subject to the exactions of reckless and corrupt combinations formed to destroy competition and control prices.

"We are unable to offer a substitute for the pending bill, because we have not been allowed a reasonable time to prepare one. Congress convened in extraordinary session on Monday, the 15th day of March, and this bill was introduced the same day and referred to the committee on ways and means, which met the next morning, and on Thursday it was ordered to be reported to the house. The majority of the committee had spent the three months of the last session of the last congress in the preparation of their bill, and yet they refused to allow the minority three weeks in which to prepare a substitute. We are unwilling to propose a measure that has not been carefully matured, and we must therefore content ourselves with protesting against the passage of the committee's bill."

Will Quit.

Chicago, March 24.—Within a week it is expected by high railroad officials that not one of the organizations having jurisdiction over passenger and freight rates will be in existence in this country, as a result of the plain decision of the United States supreme court that all associations which have for their purpose the maintenance of agreed rates and the division of traffic are illegal. The oldest organizations of this character must go to pieces. There is no loophole for escape.

Life Sentence for Wife Murderer.

Chicago, March 24.—Michael J. O'Brien, the politician and West side saloon keeper who shot and killed his wife about two years ago, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life by Judge Ball. O'Brien plead guilty with the hope of securing leniency. In a former trial the jury disagreed.

Blow at Pugilism.

Chicago, March 23.—National officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance union have forwarded an appeal to President McKinley asking him to secure the aid of congress and that of the governors and legislatures of every state to prohibit pugilism and the exhibition of pugilistic pictures.

"Vic" Is a Widow.

London, March 22.—John Biddulph Martin, the well-known banker of this city, who married Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull, died from pneumonia Saturday at Las Palmas, Grand Canary.

Found Dead.

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—William M. Glenn was found dead in bed. For several sessions of the legislature Mr. Glenn had been in charge of the Associated Press bureau at the capital.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Fifty-Fifth Congress Meets in Extra Session.

Matters of Importance Brought Before the Senate and House—Brief Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

Washington, March 19. — In the United States senate yesterday the constitutional amendment for the popular election of United States senators was reintroduced and a resolution was agreed to instructing the committee on foreign relations to inquire whether the islands of St. Croix, St. John's and St. Thomas of the West Indian group could be purchased by the United States. In executive session the arbitration treaty was favorably reported.

Washington, March 20.—The senate open session lasted 50 minutes yesterday and was given almost entirely to the introduction of bills. In executive session the arbitration treaty was discussed. A bill to permit the acquisition of free homes under the homestead law on land ceded by Indians just as on any other part of the public domain was favorably reported, and the nomination of Charles U. Gordon as postmaster at Chicago was confirmed.

Washington, March 23.—The Anglo-American arbitration treaty was advanced considerably toward final ratification by the senate yesterday. Bills were reported for free homes on public lands and for restricting immigration by an educational qualification. The nomination of Binger Hermann, of Oregon, to be commissioner of the general land office, was received from the president. A resolution was agreed to calling upon the president for the correspondence between this government and Spain and between Consul-General Lee in regard to the arrest, imprisonment and death at Guanabacoa, Cuba, of Dr. Ruiz.

Washington, March 24.—A motion by Senator Allen (pop., Neb.) to instruct the committee on civil service to inquire and report whether the civil service law should be continued, amended or repealed, was adopted, and the bill repealing the timber culture laws was passed in the senate yesterday. Senator Turpie (dem., Ind.) spoke at considerable length in advocacy of the election of United States senators by the popular vote.

The House.

Washington, March 19.—In the house yesterday Mr. Jenkins (Wis.) introduced a bill amending the civil service laws so as to provide that a civil service employe's term of service shall expire at the end of five years.

Washington, March 20.—The sundry civil bill ($53,147,351) and the general deficiency bill ($8,116,214) were passed in the house yesterday. Mr. Dingley reported the tariff bill and it was decided to vote on the measure on the 31st inst.

Washington, March 22.—In the house on Saturday the two remaining "left over" appropriation bills, the agricultural bill carrying $3,182,902 and the Indian carrying $7,670,220, were passed. Mr. Maxwell (Neb.) introduced a bill to encourage the erection of mills for the manufacture of sugar and sirup from beets.

Washington, March 23. — The time was occupied in the house yesterday in discussing the tariff bill, Mr. Dingley speaking in favor and Mr. Wheeler (Ala.) in opposition.

Washington, March 24.—A bill was introduced in the house yesterday by Mr. Howe (N. Y.) which provides that any person in the employ of the government who shall utter words that reflect or cast reproach on the American flag shall be immediately dismissed from the service. Speeches for and against the tariff bill were delivered.

SUICIDE OF A SHERIFF.

Jacob Malmgren Found Dead in a Car at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., March 24.—The dead body of Sheriff Jacob Malmgren, of Saline county, Kan., was found in an empty box car in the bottoms here Tuesday. He had shot himself in the head with a revolver and left a note stating that he was tired of life. He mysteriously disappeared from Salina last Friday, when it became known he was short over $1,000 in his accounts with the county. When found he had apparently been dead only a few hours.

Bad Fire in Wisconsin.

Boscobel, Wis., March 24.—The prosperous little village of Bloomington, Grant county, was almost swept off the earth by fire early Tuesday morning. Fire started in a saloon building at one a. m., and, with a high northeast wind, swept through 19 business buildings in a short time. The village has no fire protection and the fire had its own sway. The total loss will reach $50,000, with an insurance of only $3,000.

Train Goes Through a Bridge.

Murphysboro, Ill., March 24.—The engine and four cars of the north-bound local on the Chicago & Texas railway went down with the bridge across the Big Muddy river at Aldridge station, south of Grand Tower. Engineer Joe Forester and Fireman James Anderson were drowned.

As spring approaches people begin to think and talk about base ball and the inquiry is often heard, "Are we to have a team this year?" Thinking it may be of interest to the readers of the HERALD, we have secured a complete record of the work done by the team of 1896, showing the number of games played by each member, as well as the batting and fielding average.

That Pe-ru-na is unequaled as a spring medicine is tested by a great many people every spring. When one is run down, listless and tired, depressed with that peculiarly distressing trouble popularly known as Spring Fever, Pe-ru-na should always be taken, as it is sure to give prompt and permanent relief.

Lena L. Stoll, Adrian, Mich., writes as follows: "It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of your Pe-ru-na. I can speak in the highest terms it, having used it for five years as a spring medicine with great benefit to myself and I recommend it to my friends with like results." J. R. Stuart, Eastland, Tex., the opposite end of the continent, corroborates her statements as follows: "I purchased a bottle of Pe-ru-na and it was used by myself and wife as a spring medicine. I consider it the best dollar's worth I ever bought. My wife has used your remedies with gratifying results.

HORTICULTURE.

EXCELLENT TRELLIS.

Things to Be Considered in a Support for Sweet Peas.

Grow them at their best and provide for both height and strength. Then allow for their loose branching habit, and give them width enough to ramble. While a six-foot single trellis of poultry-wire running between the double rows is passably good, it cramps the vines, and I would prefer to plant the seed in a triple row. If they grow above that, a few strands of wire will give the top something to cling to. The illustration shows a trellis of this kind. If you still prefer to use a single support of six-foot poultry wire, frame it up well, and tack on the posts short crosspieces, from the ends of which stretch wires to hold the vines well up to the poultry-wire. In regard to amount of seed to be sown, an ounce to every ten feet of trellis would be about right. I have an idea that a trellis such as here illustrated could also be used to show off a row of tomatoes to best advantage.—T. Greiner, in Farm and Fireside.

PLANTING SUGAR BEETS.

Hints from a Circular Issued by a Sugar Factory.

Plant a space 66 feet square—one tenth of an acre.

Keep all stock off the land after the rains begin.

Plow deep, break up thoroughly, pulverize the soil before planting.

Sow when the soil is warm, after the rains, say in April or May.

One pound of seed will seed one-tenth of an acre.

Sow in rows 18 or 21 inches apart.

Sow with a drill, forced feed; sow shallow, just deep enough to be covered.

Seed should come up in seven to twenty-one days.

Thin the beets as soon as they develop four leaves.

Thin out from six to ten inches, according to richness of soil.

Leave only one beet in one place, and that the most vigorous one.

Keep weeds out entirely.

Do not allow the crust to form on the top of the land after seeding or while beets are growing.

Continue to keep the soil loose by drawing a cultivator between the rows until the tops cover the ground.

Beets should ripen in from 120 to 160 days from the time of seeding.

When the outer leaves turn yellow and die down, it is an indication that the beets are ripening or ripe.

To get a proper sample, dig two or three rows in different parts of the field. Sort them into three sizes—large, medium and small—and take every 20th beet at random from the three piles.

Sample should contain 25 to 30 beets.

Do not cut the tops off with a knife, but twist the leaves off.

Ship in sacks as soon as possible after digging.

Mark each sack plainly with name and address of raiser. Send duplicate shipping receipt and letter containing full particulars, by mail, stating yield in pounds of the tenth acre seeded.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

Green potatoes are not profitable to the grower, the buyer nor the consumer.

One of the prime needs of agriculture to-day is more brains and less muscle.

Temperature for all vegetables should be 32 to 35 degrees. Keep a thermometer in your root house.

Dig when ripe, and not until ripe. Potatoes are not ripe or fit for market when the skin will rough in handling.

Teach your boy that it is just as honorable to haul manure, plow corn or dig potatoes as it is to stand behind the counter.

Never buy trees and plants at any price that have been unduly mutilated at the root, and the roots being fairly supplied, never cut away more of the top than just sufficient to bring the tree into as symmetrical shape as possible. —Western Plowman.

How to Cultivate Beets.

Beets thrive best in soils that are rather light and well enriched. The seed should be sown in drills one foot or fifteen inches apart and one inch deep, as early as the ground can be worked. When the plants are large enough thin out to stand six inches apart in rows, and keep the patch well cultivated. An ounce of seed will sow about 50 feet of drill, and it takes from five to six pounds to the acre.—Dakota Field and Farm.

ORCHARD PARASITES.

Valuable Discovery to Fruit Growers Reported from Missouri.

The Missouri experiment station has made extensive experiments with different methods of killing the woolly aphis or apple root plant louse, regarded as one of the worst, if not the worst, enemy to the apple orchards of the southern half of Missouri.

The following is a brief summary of the discoveries made:

The limb form of this insect can be readily killed by one or two thorough sprayings with strong kerosene emulsion. Apple seedlings, buds, and grafts should be planted in a small trench filled with finely-powdered tobacco or tobacco dust and lightly covered with earth. This will keep the woolly aphis away. Apple nursery stock should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to the roots every spring, in order to kill the woolly aphis and prevent it from establishing itself there. It should be applied by removing some of the earth from around the roots, filling the excavation with tobacco dust, and lightly covering it with earth. Newly cleared timber land should be cultivated in corn or other crop for two years before the apple trees are set out, in order to kill the woolly aphis that may be on the roots of the wild crab and allied trees. Apple nursery stock should have the roots cleaned and dipped for a minute in strong kerosene emulsion, in order to kill the woolly aphis that may be there. In planting apple trees tobacco dust should be freely used among and over all the roots, and close around the trunk, in order to kill and prevent the woolly aphis from establishing itself there. Every spring, as soon as settled warm weather appears, each tree should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to its roots by removing the earth from around the trunk for a distance of two feet and four inches in depth, evenly filling this with the tobacco dust and covering it with earth. The root form of the woolly aphis may be cheaply and easily killed and kept away from an apple tree by the liberal use of tobacco dust. About five or six pounds of this substance should be applied as above directed to the roots of every infested tree, and one-half this amount should be applied in a similar manner each succeeding spring, costing approximately two cents per tree per year.

RAISING ASPARAGUS.

Some Varieties Which Have Given General Satisfaction.

A conveniently-sized bed is about six feet wide with a path two feet wide on each side. This will require six rows one foot apart and a bed of that width 50 feet long will be ample for an ordinary family, requiring about one pound of seed. It will require about three years from the time of sowing until the bed is in full bearing, but once established is good for 20 years. It should be sown in drills one foot apart and, when the plants are four or five inches high they should be thinned out so that the plants will be nine inches apart from each other in all the rows. Great care must be taken for the first year to keep down all weeds as soon as they appear, else they will choke up and destroy the young seedling asparagus.

THE PALMETTO ASPARAGUS.

The deeper the soil and the greater abundance of manure that is used the greater will be the crop. Until the Palmetto was brought out, Conover's Colossal was the leading sort, and justly so; but Palmetto is not only much earlier, but is also a better yielder and is more even and regular in its growth, and must eventually supplant the old favorite. Average bunches, containing 15 shoots, measure 13 inches round and weigh about two pounds. The Palmetto has now been planted in all parts of the country and appears to be equally adapted to all sections.—Farm and Home.

Valuable Food Plant.

A new and valuable plant known as the Chinese artichoke, introduced from Japan, is claimed to be fully equal to the potato as food and yields twice as many bushels per acre. Unlike the tall artichoke so well known, this grows to the height of about 12 inches, the tubers being formed like four or five round radishes growing together. Chemical analyses show them to be more nitrogenous than the potato; they require no peeling, as the skin is very thin, and they also keep well in winter. It is said that a single plant has been known to produce 200 tubers, and the crop yields 500 bushels per acre. Its botanical name is "Stachys Tuberifera," and it will be more closely investigated this year. It can be cooked in as many ways as the potato.

Care of Rhubarb Roots.

If your pie-plant roots have ceased to yield those large, tender stalks that are so desirable, there is some reason for it. Perhaps they were allowed to go to seed, or were deprived of too many leaves, or manure was withheld, or the roots of other plants or trees have encroached and robbed them of food and water. Possibly they have stood too long in one place and have developed too many eyes. If the roots are old the crowns may be uncovered and all the weaker eyes cut out. Then put on plenty of manure.

The Homocopathic Recorder,

July, 1896, says:

"These badly prepared cocoas are the ones that people 'get tired' of, something that rarely happens if a properly prepared cocoa, such as WALTER BAKER & COMPANY'S, is used. It is at once a delightful food and nourishing drink, and it would be well for humanity if there were more of it consumed and less tea or coffee."

BRITTON.

Mrs. Will Nivison was quite ill the first of the week.

A large number of Brittonites were in Tecumseh Monday.

Alexander Champlain has been wrestling with the grip this week.

Daniel Allen, of Ridgeway, visited his son, Will, and family Sunday.

We haven't heard of Charlie Maycee's pumping water into the hotel tank lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. DuBois returned from their visit to Hillsdale county Saturday. They had a delightful time.

Rev. N. F. Nickerson assisted in the revival meeting at Ridgeway Monday evening and expects to again this evening.

A spider web social will be given this evening at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. DuBois by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Christian church.

Uncle Henry Reynolds did not go to Oakland county last Thursday as he expected for a nephew came the day before for a visit. He did go, however, Monday.

Andrew Wood has been unable to perform his duties as section foreman this week on account of a lame back which has been painful as well as annoying.

George Clark, who for the past two months has been visiting relatives and old friends at Ridgeway and here, left Tuesday morning for his home at Steele, Dakota.

Willis J. Helm and family, accompanied by Mrs. Helm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lamkin, of Franklin, visited Milan friends from Thursday until Saturday of last week.

Will Rin kept bachelor's hall the first half of the week, his wife being gone. Not wishing her to find any dirty dishes on her return, he spent nearly half a day tidying up, so to speak.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Christian church will hold its next regular meeting in the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Edgar Exiby's committee will serve tea to which the public generally are invited.

Our friend, Rin, the blacksmith, was laid up for repairs Saturday. The disappointment, occasioned by the inclement weather Friday last making it impossible for him to go to Tecumseh to ride the goat, was too much for him.

Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Grisier, of Dundee, arrived here Monday with their household goods and a large stock of groceries. Mr. G. has rented Frank Brown's store, fixed it up and now has a neat a grocery store and as fine a stock of goods as can be found in the county.

Clifford Underwood, Saturday night while doing the chores, had occasion to get on a stack. He jumped off, having a fork in his hand. On alighting he found the fork through his foot. How it was done is a mystery to him. Clif. thinks some of taking the road as a magician.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiggins was filled with a large company of relatives and intimate friends Wednesday afternoon to witness the marriage of their only child, Fannie, to Clarence Exelby. It was a very pretty house wedding and the young couple, both of whom are very popular, have a bright future before them.

A large audience was present at the Reformed church last Sunday evening to listen to the pastor's discourse on the text, "Am I my brother's keeper." A life-size picture of a Chicago ward politician hung back of the speaker and was used by him to illustrate in the most forcible manner the vileness of much of the so-called "saloon caucus system" in cities.

Next Sunday at the Reformed church Rev. N. F. Nickerson will speak on the following topics: Morning, "The Harmony of Divine Attributes," and in the evening will illustrate his sermon on "Lot's Wife" with a painting showing the destruction of Sodom by a volcano as well as the turning of Lot's wife into a pillar of salt. A cordial invitation to the public is extended.

The party given by the young men at K. O. T. M. hall on the evening of St. Patrick's day was a grand success. The hall was beautifully decorated in green and the national colors. Refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream, sandwiches, cake and coffee, the sandwiches being daintily tied with ribbon emblematic of the occasion. Guests were present from Adrian, Blissfield, Tecumseh, Holloway and Macon.

Sam Underwood, Geo. Oliver, J. W. Clement, James Haight, Will Britton and Web Underwood attended the chapter school of instruction at Masonic Temple, Tecumseh, Monday. They went up on the train. The two former remained over night while the others walked home after the evening session. There being four of them, the distance was greatly reduced (their way of reckoning). They had great sport counting the ties.

The funeral of Lafayette Gregory, who died last Friday after an illness of only three days, was held Tuesday afternoon at his late residence and, notwithstanding the bad roads and inclement weather, was largely attended, Rev. James Wright being the minister. Mr. Gregory was a man highly respected by all who knew him, and his death coming unexpectedly to his friends, was a shock that time only can overcome. Lindershot Tent, K. O. T. M., of which K. G. was a valued member, attended in a body and the beautiful burial ritual of the order was used for the first time in the six years the tent has been organized.

Sheep shearing has began. Go to Ed Smith's for your wool twine.

Rollo Kirk Bryan, chalktalker, of Lansing, will be at the church next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the high school and Epworth League. General admission 20; school children 10 cents.

Lawrence Rappleye started Wednesday for Onida, South Dakota, where he expects to spend the summer with his uncle, Gilbert Burch. He has the best wishes of his friends for a successful and enjoyable time.

The following is taken from the Ohio State Journal, of Columbus, Ohio: Mr. C. O. Hiscock, of this city, has invented a filing case which will be a valuable aid in classifying and preserving notes, clippings, legal documents and other written or printed matter. It is so arranged that the contents of each portfolio may be examined without taking the papers from their receptacles. Being thoroughly systematic and dust and moisture proof, it affords the best possible means of keeping for ready reference the valuable things which are so often lost. It ought to come into universal use.

The office of county commissioner of schools should not be a political one, for if one commissioner can lose a renomination by refusing special certificates, etc., another candidate can gain a nomination, perhaps, by promising to remember his "friends" when elected. There should be no room for charges of partiality and favoritism against a candidate for this office. If the teachers and the friends of teachers in this section desire a commissioner whose fairness and impartiality is unquestioned, they will do well to remember our former principal, J. C. Howell, who was the unanimous choice of the convention which nominated him.

Wednesday morning the patrons of the creamery were surprised when they went with their milk, to learn that Anton Christensen, who has been running the creamery for the past two years, had skipped. The last time he was seen was Tuesday morning, when he took the train for Tecumseh. For several days there had been evidence that led to the belief that all was not straight in his dealings with the patrons, and Monday action was taken by some of them which resulted in his sudden exit. For the past two years he has had entire charge of the business, making the butter, selling and shipping it, receiving the money and paying the patrons, on a commission of four cents per pound, the last shipment being to parties in New York City with instructions to pay him, in the place of a draft payable at the bank at Tecumseh, as was their custom. As near as can be ascertained, he has got nearly a thousand dollars the better of his patrons in the confidence that has been bestowed upon him. Mr. C. is a Dane by birth, having come from Denmark to this country over five years ago. He was a quiet, industrious citizen and a No. 1 butter maker. The supposition is that he went to New York and will sail for Denmark. The matter has been placed in the hands of the sheriff.

Lafayette Gregory, who lived two miles west of this village, died Friday, March 19th, of inflammation of the lungs, aged about 35 years. He was a prominent Maccabee, being a member of the Britton lodge and was buried with Maccabee rites of honor. He is the third member of the family that has died within thirteen months, and his little son, George, is very sick at this writing. Mr. Gregory leaves a wife, one son and six sisters to mourn his loss. He will be greatly missed by his neighbors and friends and the family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

HOLLOWAY.

August Filter's little girl is quite sick.

The new organ at Maccabee hall is pronounced a fine instrument.

New spring millinery goods are being received at the rooms of E. H. Fish.

Mr. Bert Staup, of Ogden, visited Edward Isley and family over Sunday.

A sugar social will be held at Maccabee hall, Friday evening April 2nd. All are invited.

Charles Anthony was home over Sunday and accompanied his family to Tecumseh Tuesday.

Mrs. Miranda Ivison, of Palmyra, was a guest of Charles Pfund and family a few days this week.

Sheds were erected at the creamery Saturday, to accommodate teams coming from a distance.

No Sunday-school will be held at the F. M. church next Sunday, on account of the meeting at Wellsville.

Rumor has it that sheds will be erected here in the near future, to take the place of those burned last spring.

The Clover Leaf creamery is doing a flourishing business, from 1,100 to 1,200 of milk being brought in every alternate day.

Loren Pardee is home for a few days from his canvassing business in Ohio. He is one of the successful kitchen cabinet agents.

Miss Addie Vandercook was a caller in town Saturday. She was on the way to her school near Blissfield, which began Monday.

LAKE RIDGE.

MACON.

Mrs. Ezra Gleason is very low with little hope of recovery, at this writing.

The Day house is being repaired preparatory to being occupied by John Sherman.

Elmer Britton, of Belleville, Mich., visited his aunt, Mrs. Milton Davenport, a number of days last week.

Topic for E. L. meeting next Sunday evening is "Prayers for Missionaries," Isa. 62:6-7. Leader, Sumner Cotton.

Gamaliel McKenzie, who has been visiting Macon friends for a number of weeks, returned to his home in Chicago Thursday.

Sumner Collins and wife, who have been spending a week with Macon friends, returned to their home in Tecumseh Monday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. Irwin Conklin Wednesday, April 7th.

The many friends of Lafe Gregory were pained to learn of his death Friday of last week. The wife and friends have the sympathy of this community in this hour of sad bereavement.

If asked the question "Have you got a stomach?" it would be safe, on general principles, to answer "Yes." But if you are SURE of it, that is, if you ever feel any distress after eating or any pains of whatever description in the region of the stomach, you have got something more than an ordinary stomach; in other words, you have got a diseased stomach. The stomach is a powerful muscle, and the proper remedy for a tired muscle is rest. Try the Shaker Digestive Cordial, for this product not only contains digestive food, which will nourish the system without any work on the part of the diseased organs, but it aids the digestion of the other foods as well. You can test its value in your case for the trifling sum of ten cents. Sample bottles at this price are carried by all druggists.

Writes of the Benefits Received From Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

DR. MILES' Restorative Nervine is particularly adapted to the restoration of health broken down by hard mental work. Rev. W. M. Slaughter of New Haven, W. Va., writes: "I suffered with extreme nervousness, dizziness, dull and nervous headaches and sleeplessness. My heart came to troubling me, I was short of breath from the least exertion, and suffered much pain in my left side. Medicine and physicians gave me no relief. I procured Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, New Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, and I am sure no words of commendation as to the results can be too strong. I sleep well, the dizziness and confused feeling have disappeared, my heart troubles no more and I feel perfectly well."

TECUMSEH, MICH., MARCH 26, 1897.

In the last issue of the TECUMSEH HERALD, the democratic editor of that paper undertakes to point out several alleged reasons why the democratic candidate for county school commissioner should be elected in preference to the republican. The News repeats what it has candidly said before that in matters pretaining to our schools, political questions should be laid aside and only qualifications consid red. If this is done at the election this spring, Mr. Hensel, the republican candidate, will be elected unanimously. Our democratic friend up the street, in his zeal for party advantage, utters several misstatements, when he might just as easily have stated the truth. The News is also reliably informed that Mr. Howell, the democratic nominee, is not a graduate of the Normal school full course, amd holds only a five-years' certificate. It is an open question, whether, under the school law, he is eligible to the office at all. The News will be perfectly content to let the people decide the merits of the two gentlemen, believing that many will do so unbiased by political reasons or personal prejudice.—Tecumseh News.

THE HERALD is under obligations to its down-the-street neighbor for not mentioning those "misstatements" which were so uselessly used in place of truth regarding Mr. Hensel. No doubt that part of the article which contained these aforesaid untruths was not quoted for the same kindly reasons. The editor of the HERALD is also staggered with the force of the News argument that Mr. Hensel should be elected because he should be elected. Mr. Hensel is no doubt, personally, a fine man, his qualifications as an educator may be the best, but of one thing the voters of Lenawee county may be certain, John Howell is in every way competent to fill the position of county commissioner of schools, this is a conceded fact by republicans and democrats alike. He is a Lenawee county man, educated in Michigan and his home and interests are identical with those of old Lenawee. Mr. Hensel is an Ohio man and his interests are in that state, not in Michigan. The HERALD would not for a minute think that the editor of the News would, even under the most trying circumstances, print anything in his paper that would even tend to mislead, much less tell an untruth, but he evidently chooses poor advisers as the following statement of fact plainly shows:—With reference to the eligibility of Prof. John C. Howell to hold the office of county commissioner of schools fer which he was nominated by the recent democratic county convention, attention is called to Act No. 66, Sec. 3, Public Acts of 1895, which is the last Act of our legislature relative to the question. The section referred to provides as follows:—"Persons eligible to hold the office of commissioner of schools must possess, besides an experience of twelve months as teacher in the public schools of the state, one of the following qualifications:—Must be a graduate of the literary department of some reputable college, university or state normal school, having a course of at least three years, or hold a state teacher's certificate, or be the holder of a first grade certificate." Now, Mr. Howell is a graduate of the Michigan State Normal School, having pursued the full literary course of study there, and holds his diploma attesting the fact from such institution. Such being the fact, his eligibility to the office is unquestionable and undeniable.

THE ROAD WILL COME.

Arrangements Perfected so that Tecumseh will Secure the Lima Northern R. R.

The HERALD of last week stated that the Lima Northern people must have an answer from the citizens of Tecumseh by Saturday of last week whether the bonus could be raised or not. Saturday came and the committee was so confident that the full amount could be raised that a telegram was sent appointing a meeting with Messrs. Townsend and Brailey for Tuesday evening, the 23rd. All day Monday and Tuesday the business men were out hustling and when the time came for the meeting Tuesday evening $7000 were raised. The railroad representives were not certain that the amount over $6000 would be sufficient to secure the right-of-way, hence the committee have agreed that all assistance necessary shall be given when the time comes to map out the route.

This railroad should give a new lease of life to Tecumseh, cheaper fuel will give the factories now here an opportunity to better compete, and should any new ones desire to locate, Tecumseh will have the necessary facilities to make it possible for them to come, remain and prosper.

This road should bring to our town a market which cannot be surpassed in the county for any and every kind of produce. With these facilities, together with the increased advantages in passenger service in enabling us to get in and out of Tecumseh, we should be satisfied.

The soliciting committee, which consisted of Messrs. Garlinghouse, Hicks and Mills, has done noble work, but at the last it seemed as if every man in Tecumseh became interested and to every man who signed his name for any amount should be given a share of the credit of securing the road. The railroad managers tell the HERALD that cars should be running into Tecumseh by June 15th, and that by early fall we can patronize the new route into Detroit. Neither Tecumseh as a town nor one of her citizens has the least feeling in any way toward Clinton on account of this railroad matter. Tecumseh wanted the road, has secured it, and would now hold up both hands in approval could it go to both Clinton and Macon. But let us rejoice. Verily, the toot of the Lima Northern will soon be in the land.

LITERARY NOTES.

The secret of Mark Twain's remarkable popularity will be explained in the April number of the Atlantic Monthly in a novel and instructive fashion by Mr. Charles Miner Thompson. He points out that in great measure the most successful books of the humorist are essentially autobiographical, and that the great personality that dominates them is in all essential respects a typical American. In this way there is a strange kinship between Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain.

LIFE.

On the wide waste one tree stands [forth
In whose green bloom
The snow bird nestles when the North
Blows down with death and doom.

Huge forces, wind and snow and [storm,
Here meet and part;
In the white chaos safe and warm
There beats one tiny heart.

Frederick Peterson, in April LIPPINCOTT'S.

Evangelist Ira D. Sankey, the singer and composer, has written a new sacred song for the April Ladies' Home Journal. He has given it the title of "The Beautiful Hills," and considers it superior to his famous "Ninety and Nine." Mr. Sankey wrote it with the especial view of its appropriateness for outdoor choral singing—for campmeetings and other religious and semi-religious gatherings.

The growing taste in the United States for decorative painting, as shown in the costly decoration of many recent structures, public and private, gives special timeliness and interest to a paper by Mr. Will H. Low in McClure's Magazine for April. Mr. Low, by his well-known ceiling in the Waldorf Hotel and other work of this kind, is himself closely identified with the new movement; and in this paper he touches upon the origin and extent of it, and then considers, biographically and critically, the three greatest masters of decorative painting, in recent times.

The question of why plants are green does not, at first sight, seem very profound; but like many such questions, it is of great moment in the world of science. In Harper's Magazine for April, D. T. McDougal explains how the green pigment called chlorophyl enables the sun's rays to transform the crude materials of plant life into organic structures. If plants should suddenly cease to be green, the food-supply would be cut off from every living creature.

A suggestive article on "Southern Women in the Last Decade" will be contributed by Maude Andrews Ohl to Harper's Bazar of March 27th. Southern women have changed their point of view in the last quarter century, and they are coming to the front in many ways. Their energy, pluck, and rare ability are well shown in this paper by Mrs. Ohl, who belongs herself to the South.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Adjourned session of March 11th, '97.

Present, the president, clerk, trustees Boyd, Heesen, Lowry and Wright.

Certificate of the board of election inspectors of the annual village election of the village of Tecumseh, held Monday, March 8th, 1897, presented. Said certificate showed that for the various village offices the following named persons received the number of votes set opposite their respective names:

For President—Alfred James 154; Charles E. Williamson 158.

For Clerk—James H. Elliott 190; Albert N. Conger 119.

For Treasurer—Frank D. Avery 194; Charles F. Field 119.

For Trustees, two years—Hendrick Heesen 189; John Heesen 185; Charles Eldridge 183; Samuel Catlin 116; Martin A. Zimmerman 112; Elijah Ames 124.

For Trustee, one year—John J. Orr 189; Charles Smith 115.

For Assessor—James A. Boyd 130; Jehiel Davidson 180.

The following named persons having received the largest number of votes, are hereby declared elected to the several village offices for the ensuing year:

President—Charles E. Williamson.
Clerk—James H. Elliott.
Treasurer—Frank D. Avery.
Trustees for two years—Hendrick Heesen, John Heesen, Charles Eldridge.
Trustee for one year—John J. Orr.
Assessor—Jehiel Davidson.

The following bills were presented and referred to the finance committee: W. J. Ingersoll, clerk, $65.85. Board of registration—Henry Heesen $3; James A. Boyd, $3. Election board—Geo. W. Frasier, A. S. VanWinkle, Cleo Hall, John Werner, Wm. Smith, W J. Ingersoll, each $3; Henry Bice, meals for boards, $3. Committee reporting favorably on all of the above bills, clerk was instructed to draw his orders on the village treasurer for the several amounts thereof.

Council then adjourned.

W J. INGERSOLL, Village Clerk.

Vick's Floral Guide, 1897.

For nearly half a century this catalogue of flower and vegetable seeds, plants, bulbs, roses, grains, potatoes, etc., has come as regularly as spring time. Here it is again to remind us that it's time to think about our gardens. This issue contains half a dozen full page half tone illustrations of roses, asters, gold flowers, carnations and tomatoes. It seems full of the necessary information for either amateur or professional. Send 15 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for a packet of either Vick's Branching Aster, New Japan Morning Glory or extra choice Pansy and a copy of Vick's Floral Guide. If you state where you saw this notice you will receive a package of flower seeds free.

That Tired Feeling.

About which newspaper jokers write so much is with most of us, at times an actual condition and not to be laughed at. It is the result of long neglect and misuse of the stomach and bowels. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin comes in and removes this feeling and life again seems worth living. Try a 10c bottle (10 doses 10 cents) of Orr & Temple.

It is very probable that the north California division of the League of American Wheelmen will go out of existence.

Low Rates to Cincinnati.

For the Grand Operatic Festival at Cincinnati, during the week commencing Monday, March 29th, the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw R'y will make special low round trip rates from all stations. Tickets will be on sale March 29, 30 and 31, and April 1, 2 and 3, and will be good for return within three days from date of sale, but not later than for train leaving Cincinnati at 8:20 p. m., Sunday, April 4th.

For rates and time of trains, please see bills or inquire of C., J. & M. R'y agents.

A Rich Harvest.

It costs no more to sow good seeds than it does to sow old and worthless stock. How foolish is the person who fails to get the best to start with. No doubt you have often thought of this, when your garden has not done very well. Will you jog along in the same way this year, or use a little forethought and send to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for their catalogue which contains a list of all that's new and good? Their seeds are always reliable—sure to grow and never disappoint. Send 10 cents for catalogue and deduct this amount from first order. Really costs nothing.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hunter, in Franklin, yesterday at one o'clock, their son Linford and Miss Maude Hodges, of this place, were married. They will reside on a farm near Adrian.

The literary exercises at the Monday club March 22nd were very interesting. Mrs. J. D. Shull gave the pathetic story of the "Golden Legend." Mesdames Shull, Howland, Lewis, Smith, Wright and Lee read "selections" from Longfellow's exquisite poem "The Golden Legend" founded on that old time story. The paper by Mrs. J. F. Hicks was about Philip Wonyerman and his paintings. Mrs. W. A. Orr described the artist Frans Hals, also included a sketch of Adrian Ostade.

Early Ohio patatoes for seed. Potatoes for eating, 25 cents. C. A. Slayton.

A deaf mute named Charles Poucher, who has worked around here for some time and borne a good reputation, was working for George Wilson, of Raisin, recently and while the family were away decamped with some jewelry and other things of value. He was caught at Clinton and taken before Justice Frasier yesterday. On account of his infirmity and it being the first offence he was given a light sentence, he having confessed to the theft. It is hoped that it will be a lesson to him.

The Farmers' Social club closed the series of winter meetings with a musical entertainment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Rector, Tuesday, March 23rd. The violin, piano and mandolin were the instruments used, and the appreciation of the listeners was proved by the hearty applause each player received. Mrs. G. B. Garlinghouse read a paper on the early history of music, and told of those who had acquired fame in the various musical departments of the present century. A sketch of the the life of Emma Eames Story was read by Miss Rector. The club stands adjourned until May.

Friday and Saturday of this week the original Magniscope company will occupy Sutton's opera house, presenting Edison's animated pictures. They have the only original machine for exhibiting these pictures, and by witnessing one of their entertainments one can readily believe this. In connection with their magniscope they have a number of specialties, including the only De Varo, champion rifle shot of the world, on a slack wire. This part of the entertainment alone is worth the price of admission. In order that all may be able to witness these realistic pictures and attend one of the best exhibitions of the kind that has ever visited our city, the price of admission has been reduced to 15 and 25 cents.

Geo. Tansley says every article in his store is a bargain. Call and see him.

It is doubtful if ever a wedding occurred that was such a complete surprise to this community as was that of Wolcott W. Marsh and Mrs. B. L. Wetmore, which took place at the Emery House, Adrian, Tuesday afternoon, at 3:30, Rev. Mr. Spencer of that city officiating. The lady, whose home was Union City, Mich., has been stopping at the Central House the past eight weeks and the two so arranged their affairs that no one knew that they were even acquainted, although they had been for a year or more. They each kept their own counsel, making no confidants, and when Mr. Marsh called at the hotel Tuesday morning and informed the Teachouts that they were to be married that day, they were dumbfounded, but rallied sufficienty to give them a joyful send-off deluging them with rice as they drove away, for the lady, though apparently shrouded in mystery, had, by her quiet and ladylike deportment, won the respect of all the members of the household. The courtship was romantic in the extreme. Wednesday evening the band favored them with a fine serenade and were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Marsh; in fact "Wolt" has not been at all partial in his favors but treated all his friends with generous hospitality. The newly wedded couple leave in the morning for Union City, where a surprise will be given the bride's family, as they, even, were not in the secret. They will return Monday when they will be at home to their friends.

The HERALD is informed that C. A. Slayton is buying all the good wheat brought to his warehouse, at highest market price. He also buys oats and almost anything the farmer has to sell and will continue to do so. It must not be said that Tecumseh has no grain market.

A telegram was received Saturday announcing the death of Mrs. Calib Satterthwaite, at DesMoines, Iowa. The particulars have as yet not been received here. Mrs. Satterthwaite was well known in Tecumseh, having spent her girlhood days here. She was a cousin of the Garlinghouse Bros. A husband and two small children survive her.

The controversy over the chattle mortgages on the Baker & Hall stock is now settled, the judge having decided that the claims of Williams, Davis, Brooks & Co. were first. W. C. Burridge was attorney for the latter firm which now owns the stock. It is understood that a Mr. Parish, of Detroit, will soon purchase it and open the store, after first adding books, stationary and wall paper.

Last evening at seven o'clock death claimed Mrs. Ernest VanWinkle and left nothing but sorrow in the home of husband and father. Anna E. VanWinkle was born in the township of Raisin 25 years ago and her whole life has been spent in this community. She was a loving wife, dutiful daughter and woman of sterling qualities in every way. It is indeed hard to become reconciled to the taking away of one so worthy in the prime of womanhood. Beside her husband, she leaves her father, Charles Everett, and two brothers. The funeral will be held from the family residence near the Raisin mills Saturday at 1:30 o'clock.

Jones & Hazlett, the merchant tailors, have things nicely arranged at their store and are ready to attend to the wants of their customers. Their stock of cloths, suitings, etc., is large, varied and complete and a large force of skilled workmen are employed. The workroom is light, airy, and arranged to accommodate the occupants who are as follows: Albert Wallace, Wm. Hazlett, Wm. Hughes, Edward Porter, Louie Jones, James Eccles. Mesdames Cynthia Hoag, Ellen Gray and the Misses Carrie Cranshaw, Sarah McNeil and Carrie Smalledge. Our veteran friend David Jones has a central position for his own use where he does repair work. They are a jolly crew and while there is no room to spare, everything moves on smoothly and they are as snug as bugs in rugs.

The Masonic School of Instruction held at the temple here Monday afternoon and evening, called a large number of Royal Arch masons from the surrounding towns, there being representatives present from Hudson, Adrian, Palmyra, Blissfield, Holloway, Onsted, Britton, Clinton and Manchester. In the afternoon the officers of the Hudson chapter exemplified the work in the Mark Master's degree, in a manner highly creditable to themselves, and in the evening the Royal Arch degree was conferred by the officers of the Tecumseh chapter, fully 175 being present. Grand Lecturer Goodrich, who was known to but few personally, made a favorable impression. He is a genial gentleman, thoroughly qualified for the high and responsible position he occupies. The companions of the Tecumseh chapter were unremitting in their attentions to their visitors, making it an occasion long to be remembered by those present.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Anthony on West Chicago street contained about sixty relatives and immediate friends Wednesday evening, to witness the marriage of their daughter, J. Estella, and John L. Calhoun, one of Raisin's most popular young men. It was a charming wedding in all respects. The parlors, though not elaborately decorated, were very tasty. At 7 o'clock standard time the contracting parties, unattended, took their positions before Rev. C. M. Brown who, using a beautiful service of his own arrangement made them man and wife. The young couple made a charming picture. After congratulations the guests were conducted to the dining room which was a bower of beauty. The ceiling hid with a canopy of white twined with smilax above the tables lighted with fancy candles in pretty candelabras which were daintily dressed, was most attractive. Mrs. Nixon, the bride's sister, assisted by Lina Boyd, Ella Potter and Ora Bowen, served delicate refreshments in the most approved manner. The gifts were numerous, choice and practical. The band surprised them with a fine serenade and were invited in and hospitably entertained. The young coupe will go to housekeeping at once on what is known as the Satterthwaite farm not far from Holloway and in sight of the former homes of both.

HER TREASURE.

A Georgia Woman Who Has a Sock Full of Gold.

Mary Odom, a sexagenarian, residing somewhere in the neighborhood of Auraria, is the happy owner of a sockful of gold, says a southern exchange. When a girl of 16 she adopted a profession, gold-panning about in the branches during her leisure hours, and she became so well acquainted and infatuated with the king metal that she finally adopted the panning business altogether, and has kept it up ever since, always being as assiduous to business as a judge of the supreme court. When she made gold panning a profession she found the lovely metal wherever she scooped her shovel under the gravel of the branches. At times innumerable this woman has made four and five pennyweights per week, making it a rule in every instance to hoard away one-half the amount of gold made. For instance when she panned out 50 cents' worth of gold and needed $1 in goods from the store, she would pay the merchant 25 cents and have the balance entered upon his books against her until she struck a richer streak. By this method of doing business the woman has kept out of debt, made a good support, and now has a sockful of shining gold to dream over at night. And now, after the age of 60, she stills pans about in the branches, and saves half the gold she makes for her heirs to scramble over after she has crossed in her batteau the wide river on the other side. There has been a great deal of mining in this country and articles not herein numbered written on the subject, but Mary Odom's historical career in the gold mining business surpasses anything we have ever become aware of in this line.

SHE NEVER KISSED.

The Old Man Was Certain About His Daughter.

"I reckon if I wus to ketch my daughter kissin' of a man I'd just natchelly cut him into mincemeat ground fine," said the old man from the swamps of the Bracken hills, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Then your daughter won't kies the boys?" ventured a Dover youth with spectacles.

"Yell, I reckon not, young man," and the old man gave him a look that dazzled his specs.

"But—ah, you know, some girls—who are engaged—you know—sometimes kiss their—their—boys—you know—and—it's right and proper—and—"

The old man looked at him real hard, and, after watching the youth wilt like a tobacco leaf in an August sun, thundered out: "Well, my daughter never kissed a livin' man, not even her pap—ner a poodle dog, ner a cat, ner nothin'."

"But there's no harm—and why—er—why—er?" stammered the brave youth.

"Well, I reckon the most principalest reason why my daughter never kissed nothin' is that I never had any daughter."

And the thoughtful silence of the young man was so dense that you could hear the price of farm lands drop quietly, drop by drop, while the farm products hanging in the tobacco shed tier by tier.

EXTRA SESSION.

State Legislature May Meet Again Next Fall.

Fear That Its Work Cannot Be Completed in June—Home Rule Constitutional Amendment Beaten in the House.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, Mich., March 24.—There will be a special session of the legislature some time next fall. The only alternative is a continuation of the regular session into July. Gov. Pingree and his advisers are convinced that none of the railroad legislation on which they have set their hearts can be passed this session. Their plan now is to get all railroad measures reported out of the committees and ready for discussion before legislative bodies, and then sidetrack them. The legislature will adjourn without enacting any of the reform laws advocated by Gov. Pingree, and this will give him an opportunity and sufficient excuse for calling a special session to be devoted exclusively to railroad bills. Owing to the fact that there are far more than the usual number of bills on the files and that business has progressed with unwonted slowness, each house has appointed a steering committee to bring to the front the more important bills and retire the unimportant ones.

One of the most important measures which is before the present legislature was defeated in the house Thursday by a vote of 47 to 39. It was a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the state constitution which would practically do away with all municipal and charter legislation and be as nearly a home rule bill as could with safety be framed. The attention of the legislature is occupied for a large portion of the session in considering and passing upon municipal charter bills, about which it has very little information, and action is based almost entirely upon the assurances of the local members. The defeated resolution provides that cities can govern themselves by a vote of the majority of the electors, except upon measures of indebtedness, enlarging the city's limits, taxation or measures that would injure the rights of counties or townships. The vote by which the bill was lost was reconsidered and the measure laid upon the table for a more opportune time to place it again upon its passage, but it is not likely to go through, as it requires a two-thirds majority to submit a constitutional amendment.

The fight between the commercial fishermen and the state fish commission over bills to increase the size of the meshes of the various kinds of nets used by the former and requiring them to take out a license each year is being waged vigorously. The fishermen say that to increase the size of the mesh would practically ruin their business, in which they have more than $1,000,000 invested, and that imposition of the proposed tax would be a greater burden than they can bear. On the other hand, the commissioners say that unless the mesh is increased the best of the good fish in the great lakes will have disappeared within three years. The fishermen appear to have the whip hand thus far.

The action of the senate in virtually voting to abolish the office of state tax statistician in July and leave no substitute for the office is not meeting with much favor from the farmers of the state, judging from the manifold and lengthy petitions that are daily lumbering the senate and house journals protesting against the abolition of the office. The opinion seems to be that some such office is necessary in order to secure anything like justice in the equalization of taxes in the state. Most of the petitions and protests are coming from the granges of the state, and represent, of course, the farmer element.

The $40,000 appropriation asked for by the fire sufferers at Ontonagon was cut by the senate finance and appropriations committee to $25,000. It passed the senate.

Milo D. Campbell, of Coldwater, who was private secretary to Gov. Luce, was unanimously confirmed as insurance commissioner, to date from July 1.

Gov. Pingree's determination to continue as chief executive rather than stand for mayor was a surprise to the members of the legislature, practically all of whom were of the opinion that he would resign. There is no doubt that his decision will result in putting him in better standing with the legislators who were quite generally criticising him for spending so little time at the capital.

The house passed a bill amending the truancy law, which now requires children between the ages of 7 and 16 years to attend school at least four months each year, so that on the recommendation of the truant officer or superintendent of schools children may be exempt during the last two years, if their labor is necessary for the support of the family.

A gigantic petition was received by the legislature Tuesday asking for the passage of the Moister bill, which provides for the employment of convicts upon the highways of the state instead of at productive labor in the prisons. The bill is befriended by the labor organizations. The petition was about 60 feet in length and contained the names of nearly 1,000 persons. The friends of the bill strung up the petition to the ceiling, from whence it reached to the speaker's desk. The bill was under consideration by the house and was finally made a special order for March 31.

Two years ago the general government ceded to the state all its interests in Mackinac island on condition that it be maintained as a state park. Tuesday the senate passed a bill retransferring that portion known as Fort Mackinac on condition that it be regarrisoned. The senate also passed a bill making an appropriation of $5,000 for the improvement of the park and another bill transferring to the general fund of the state the $60,000 remaining in the St. Mary's fall ship canal fund. The passage of the last named bill disposes of the movement to appropriate the balance mentioned for the erection of a marine hospital at Sault Ste. Marie.

The house has slaughtered the bill for the suppression of mob violence, which makes counties liable to persons injured by assaults committed within their borders.

EMMETT.

PINGREE DEFEATED.

Supreme Court Decides That He Cannot Be Governor and Mayor.

Lansing, March 20.—Gov. Pingree will no more appear before the public in his dual capacity, the supreme court Friday afternoon in a unanimous opinion having decided that when he accepted and entered upon the duties of the office of governor he vacated the office of mayor of the city of Detroit. He is not given the opportunity of choosing between the two offices, although he prefers to be mayor. There was a vexatious delay in getting the case into court on account of the unwillingness of the attorney general to proceed against the governor, but it was finally submitted on Wednesday. The opinion of the court, which was written by Justice Hooker, commands the common council of the city of Detroit to call a special election on April 5, that being the date of the regular spring election, for the purpose of choosing a mayor of the city. Whether the acts of Mayor Pingree from the time of his acceptance of the office of governor up to the present time are legal is not decided.

THE ELECTIONS.

No Political Principle Involved in the Coming Event.

Lansing, March 23.—The spring election will be held Monday, April 5. The election is of a justice of the supreme court and of two regents of the state university. The justice elected will serve ten years at a salary of $7,000 a year, while the regents will be elected for six years, with a per diem and expenses compensation. Neither office carries with it any patronage or distribution among the faithful, and in the election no principle of national politics is involved. At the same time of the state election will be held the township elections for the choice of supervisors and other local officers and also most of the municipal elections. In each county a school commissioner will be elected, and in some of the judicial districts judges of the circuit courts are to be chosen.

PROSECUTE LANSING BANKERS.

Gen. Ainger Indorses White Hall Savings Bank Depositors' Petition.

Lansing, March 24.—The petition of the depositors of the White Hall state savings bank, which was closed by Bank Commissioner Ainger in December last, requesting that the attorney-general be directed to criminally prosecute the officers of the bank for violating the banking law, has been indorsed by Gen. Ainger and referred to Gov. Pingree, who will doubtless order that proceedings be instituted. It is alleged that the bank officials were guilty of the most flagrant violations, having themselves borrowed practically all of the assets of the bank on worthless securities and then made false reports to the banking department.

VALUES SHRINK.

Detroit Banks Thereby Forced to Reduce Capital Stock.

Detroit, March 21.—The directors of the City Savings bank of this city have decided to reduce its capital stock from $250,000 to $150,000. The reduction of the capital stock of the Preston national bank from $1,000,000 to $700,000 was authorized by a special meeting of shareholders, at which $900,000 worth of stock was represented. The assets of the banks have depreciated during the last four years through the shrinkage in values, and this step is deemed advisable to put them on a firmer basis.

NAMED BY PINGREE.

Michigan's Governor Nominates Candidate for Mayor of Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., March 23.—The republican city convention nominated Capt. A. E. Stewart for mayor on the first ballot. Gov. Pingree made the nominating speech, and it was through his personal efforts that Stewart received the nomination. The opposition put up a strong fight with President of the Council Richert as their candidate. Pingree, however, swung the delegates into line and the vote resulted: Stewart, 76; Richert, 32.

Michigan Baseball League.

Saginaw, March 24.—Representatives of the Michigan State Baseball league met here to form an organization. The following towns will support teams: Lansing, Saginaw, Port Huron, Bay City, Jackson and Kalamazoo. Guaranty money has been paid in, and practice with them all will commence April 1. The schedule committee met and adjourned for one week. President, Secretary and Treasurer Mumby's bonds were approved.

Death of Col. Hodge.

Concord, March 21.—Col. Hiram C. Hodge, a well-known pioneer of central Michigan, died at the home of his son in this place Saturday, aged 77 years. He was a brilliant writer on politics and economics, and since the loss of his sight a few years ago was frequently called "the blind sage of Concord." He had served in both houses of the state legislature.

Michigan Alumni in Leipsic.

Ann Arbor, March 23.—C. O. Townsend, who graduated here in 1888 and who is at present studying in Leipsic, Germany, has sent word that a University of Michigan alumni association has been organized in that city. The plan and aim of the new body is to give information to students on their arrival in Leipsic.

Two Men Drowned.

Traverse City, Mich., March 24.—Two unidentified men broke through the ice in the bay off Bowers' harbor. Both were drowned.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

How Animals Dispose of Injured Companions.

A. C. Heflinger tells in the American Field how an old fox hound was done to death by the pack of which it was a member. The hound was called Clay, and was owned by N. O. Pope, who kept it in the White Oak Hill kennel at Poland, Me. The dog was a prize taker, and always got a place when it ran in the annual trials of the Brunswick Fur club. After the annual hunt at Brunswick, Me., in which Clay proved better than all the younger hounds, the dog was taken back to Poland and put in the yard with the rest of the pack. McGregor, keeper of the hounds, heard a row in the yard, and coming down, found that the pack had pitched upon the champion hound and killed it by chewing its throat and chest. Wolves have been known to kill their fellows in a similar manner. A wolf showing signs of pain is set upon and killed by its comrades. A male fox, when it finds a female fox in a trap, attacks and kills it. A cow bellowing with pain is set upon by the herd and gored to death. Whether the attacks are to aid the one in pain or not is not known by students of natural history.

It is the regulation badge of the fraternity surrounded by 16 specially selected large blue white diamonds. The convention of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity which was held in St. Louis Christmas week, decided to present Mr. McKinley with the fraternity badge, and a special committee was appointed to look after the matter. A delegation of the fraternity will attend the inauguration when President McKinley will wear the gift of the fraternity.

LEGAL OLLA-PODRIDA.

Funny State of Affairs in the District of Columbia.

What Is an Offense on One Side of Rock Creek Is Perfectly Legitimate on the Other Side.

[Special Washington Letter.]

The laws which are enforced in the District of Columbia are peculiar. Many of the old laws of Maryland, which were made before this land was ceded to the federal government, are still in force. Then there are federal laws which were enacted before the creation of the territorial form of government: laws enacted by the territorial legislature, and laws enacted by congress since the present form of government was created in 1872.

The ancient city of Georgetown was an independent corporation until recently, but it is now West Washington. It is separated from the national capital by Rock creek, and the laws there are in many instances different from the laws on the east side of Rock creek.

Many acts punishable as offenses in that section do not constitute offenses under the laws governing the rest of the district. Many of these old laws, though they may never have been repealed, are seldom enforced, and then only when many complaints are made about a certain thing, and the old law books are overhauled. Now and then one of these old law books is resurrected, and for awhile persons have to obey it, but it soon becomes a dead letter again, and the law is violated with impunity for another score or more of years. Every few years the question of observing the Sabbath is agitated. Some of the old laws are found to meet the case. It is a violation of one of the old Georgetown corporation laws to sell on Sunday any article except medicines, fresh fish, milk and other perishable goods which cannot be kept over night with safety, but this law is seldom enforced, and then only when complaint is made, or after a general order has been issued notifying storekeepers to close their places on Sunday. This law, like many others, has been contested in the courts and found to be valid.

Then there is another law which prohibits any manual labor on the Sabbath. This law, like the preceding one, has been contested and held to be still in force. It provides:

"That more effectually to prevent irregular practices so common on Sunday, every person working or commanding, or suffering their children or slaves to work, except in cases of necessity, or otherwise profane the Sabbath by gaming, hunting, fishing or other unlawful pastimes, shall, on conviction, forfeit a sum not exceeding five dollars." The second section provides that "if the offender be a minor and the fine is not paid by himself, parent, guardian or master, he shall be forthwith committed to the penitentiary for a time not exceeding five days, or if he be a slave he shall be publicly whipped, not exceeding 39 stripes."

At the West Washington station-house the police have an old law book, printed in 1821, which furnishes them the text of the old laws covering certain offenses. There are but few of these books in existence, so far as is known, and when a case other than assault and battery or disorderly conduct is made the officer making the arrest usually has to take this book to court to show his ground for action. The police doing duty west of Rock creek have not only to be able-bodied men, strong and plucky enough to handle ruffians and smart enough to capture thieves, but they have to be versed in all the ancient laws of Georgetown. Most of them can stand for hours and discuss the legal status of their section.

Reported in the book is a law passed August 4, 1795, which is intended to prevent accidents arising from galloping horses through streets. The act provides "That any person, within the jurisdiction of this corporation, who shall by galloping or otherwise force at an improper speed any horse, mare or gelding through any of the streets, lanes or alleys, shall, if a free man, forfeit and pay for every such offense the sum of 15 shillings, current money, to the use of this corporation, to be recovered either before any one aldermen or by indictment or confession in the mayor's court; and if an apprentice, indentured servant or slave, the mistress or master of such apprentice, servant or slave shall forfeit and pay the sum of seven shillings and six pence, current money, to be recovered as aforesaid."

An act of October 10, 1796, sets forth that "the respectable inhabitants have suffered great inconvenience from the vast concourse of idle white and black persons who frequently assemble and engage in cock fights, at which times they drink to excess, became riotous, and prevent the quiet and repose of good citizens." The first section of the act, and the second section, related to slaves, who were subject to 39 stripes on the bare back in a public place. The firing of guns or other firearms was made punishable under an act of October 24, 1801. The penalty prescribed was five dollars, one-half of which went to the informer. If the person violating the law was a slave or indentured servant the penalty was ten lashes, unless two dollars was paid by his or her master or mistress.

An act to prevent goats from running at large was passed in 1796, giving persons power to kill all goats found running at large, and to sell the same at the market-house to the best advantage, the person doing so to retain one-half the money received and the corporation to receive the other half. September 4, 1804, an act was passed to keep dogs out of the market-house, where it appeared they went to get meat and other vegetables from the stands. A tax of one dollar was assessed on dealers whose dogs were found within the walls of the market, but country dogs were not troubled, provided they were kept a respectable distance from the stands. A penalty of $20 was provided under act of March, 1806, for the keeping of any public gaming table, whether "A, B, C," "L, S, D," "E, O," or other game. A subsequent act, entitled an "Ordinance to restrain vice," included "rooley pooley," or faro bank, faro table and hazard, and prescribed the same penalty.

An act approved April 30, 1808, regulated and fixed the size of loaves of bread offered for sale. The loaves were to be made in size according to the quality of the flour used and were to sell at the same price per loaf. The vagrancy act under which vagrants are now prosecuted fixes the term of imprisonment at not more than 20 days. The act also provides that if he fails to pay the jailer's fees he shall, with consent of the mayor, be sold at vendue to serve and labor for any time not exceeding four months. There are other acts of the old corporation regulating commerce and protecting the river and various business interests. The chimney sweep is required, under penalty, to faithfully perform his duties, and to his advantage a penalty is prescribed for placing a stove-pipe through the exterior wall of any frame building or through the roof of any house, so that stove pipes, under the law, are not permitted to pass through the frame partitions of summer-kitchens.

"It would be almost impossible to enforce many of these laws," said a policeman, "yet when complaints are made, and the law is found, there is nothing else to do, and, until congress acts in the matter, West Washington will remain under the old laws. We work under too many laws," continued the officer. "Inside the city limits we have one set of laws and in the county we have an entirely different set. What is an offense in one place is permitted in another. Within the limits of West Washington a man may strip off his clothing and walk the streets in defence of the officers because there is no law to punish him, but if he does the same thing on the river shore and goes in bathing before nine o'clock in the evening he may be arrested for unlawful bathing. On the eastern side of Rock creek the same state of affairs exists.

"Persons can do an act not in violation of the law on one side of Boundary street, but if they repeat it on the other side they soon find themselves in the hands of the law. Then, again, there are some offenses punishable by a heavy fine in one section, while the penalty in another section is not half so heavy. Such a state of affairs makes it very hard for a policeman to know whether he is doing his duty properly or not."

While all Georgetown policemen are required to know something of law, and intricate law at that, the policemen in Washington study only the police regulations, and very few of them seem to have brains enough to master even that much literature. At any rate, they are a careless lot of peace guardians, and knowingly wink at vice.

Just across the river from Georgetown, on the Virginia shore of the Potomac, there are numerous gambling houses and vile liquor saloons, the very lowest of the low. The governor of Virginia claims that he has no legal power to control the lawless or to arrest the vicious. The sheriff of the county does not call on the governor for aid, and the governor says that he cannot invade the county without the authority of the sheriff. While the lawless can capture the sheriff they can continue to defy the law. SMITH D. FRY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1886, Samuel Larrabee of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan, executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee, Michigan, to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plot in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1886, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 566.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8, A. D. 1897.

SARAH C. ROGERS, Mortgagee.

G. R. Gillespie, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Testimony That Was Too Much for the Lawyers.

In a dispute between the Indians and the cannery men, according to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a Mr. March was called as a witness, and the way in which he gave his testimony proved puzzling to the lawyers.

"How long have you been in this part of the country, Mr. March?"

"Forty, forty-five, fifty, fifty-five years."

"Fifty-five years," said the lawyer, and then, as if he were addressing Christopher Columbus, he asked:

"And what did you discover, Mr. March?"

"A dark-visaged savage."

"Dark-visaged savage, eh? Yes, and what did you say to him?"

"I said it was a fine day."

"Fine day? Yes, and what did he say to you?"

Mr. March rattled off a whole yarn in Chinook, and kept on, to the mirth of the whole courtroom, until peremptorily cut off by the gavel of the judge.

"I asked you what reply the savage made to you, Mr. March. Please answer the question," said the irate cross-examiner.

"I was answering."

"Tell us what the savage said."

"That was what he said."

"Then tell it to us in English."

"Not unless I am commissioned by the court to act as an interpreter and paid the customary fee."

The lawyer thought a moment, looked at the judge, who could not resist a smile, and said, severely: "Mr. March, you may stand down."

JAPPED ENGLISH.

Remarkable Inscriptions on Articles of Commerce.

Rev. Masazao Kagaren brought me a present of a tin of native preserved apricots put up at Nagano, bearing the inscription: "This apricots is very sweetest," says Rev. Walter Weston, in "Mountaineering in the Japanese Alps." Another tin—I think it was a sort of Japanese beef extract—was still more remarkably inscribed. "All the medicines of our company used to sell are not only manufactured of the pure and good materials, but also, unless the article are inspected by the superintendent, they not sealed. It is true that their quality is best. If there was suspection about it, trust an official examination. If even in the slightest neglect the result is not good our company should be responsible for it. Beware the trade-mark sealing wax and wrapper of our company." In this connection I may remark on the curious signs in English(?) composed in cheerful independence of outside help. I have seen the equivalent of the English "Managing dune here" rendered "The machine for smoothing the wrinkles in the trousers" and "Washman, ladies only;" "Clothing of women tailor, ladies furnished in the upper story;" "Instructed by the French horse-leech" (this adorns the door of a veterinary surgeon and referred to the tuition under which the gentleman was trained).

"Saint George" a War Cry.

"Saint George for Merry Abyssinia" will take the place of the older war cry. A Russian painter has just completed for Negus Menelek a picture of the battle of Adowah, in which Saint George on a white charger is represented to help the Abyssinians to rout the Italians. The story of the saint's appearance has arisen from the fact that the Italians turned a church dedicated to him near the town into a cavalry stable.

CURFEW IN MICHIGAN.

Representative Donovan's Bill Receives Favorable Report.

MEASURE VERY LIKELY TO PASS.

Kimmis' Bill Concerning Treatment of Insane Females Strikes a Snag in the Senate—The Appropriation for the Feeble-Minded at Lapeer—Home Rule for Cities—Mortgage Tax Repeal Bill—Governor Pingree and the Beet Sugar Bounty Bill.

Lansing, Mich., March 23.—It looks as if children under 16 years of age will have to keep clear of the streets of cities and villages after 9 o'clock in summer and 8 o'clock in winter, Representative Donovan's curfew bill embodying this provision having received a favorable report from the judiciary committee of the house. The sentiment in both houses is in favor of the passage of the bill.

There were but eight adverse votes cast in the house on the Kimmis bill providing that female patients in asylums for the insane shall be treated by female physicians. The bill has, however, encountered a snag in the senate, where it is in danger of either being killed or amended so as to require the employment of a single female physician on the staff of each asylum. The asylum authorities say that by the terms of the bill the female patients would be deprived of the benefit of the skill of the leading male specialists in female diseases who are on the consulting staff of the asylums, although not directly connected with the institutions. It is also claimed that the bill would render the medical superintendent of the asylums liable to the penalty prescribed if he should even visit the female wards.

The house very sensibly made sweeping amendments to the bill relative to the correspondence of inmates of the asylums for the insane. As introduced the bill was vicious and dangerous in the extreme. It provided that all letters written by inmates should be forwarded by the asylum officials without inspection, and that all mail address to patients should be delivered to them unopened. A moment's reflection would seem to convince most any one that these provisions were improper, yet there were some objectors to the amendment made. Many of the patients imagine themselves the husbands, wives children or other relatives of this, that or the other prominent person, and are constantly writing them letters. Many of the letters written by patients are obscene to the last degree. The folly of forwarding all these is obvious. But the most vicious provision of the bill was that requiring that all mail addressed to patients should be delivered to them unopened.

Some Patients Are Foxy.

The fact is that some patients are so foxy that they have to be examined several times a day to keep them from concealing articles which they could use to the injury of their attendants or fellow-patients, while it is quite necessary to search nearly all of them when they come in from taking exercise. If the officials were to be required to hand them unopened all the mail matter sent them many would soon be armed to the teeth. This provision was even made to apply to the inmates of the asylum for the criminal insane, the inmates of which, being criminals, have pals on the outside who would like nothing better than an opportunity to send them weapons, tools, or poisons in mail matter. Fortunately the asylum authorities succeeded in convincing a majority of the members of the houses of the danger lurking in the bill, and it was shorn of its fangs. The asylum for criminal insane was exempted from its operations, the section requiring mail addressed to patients to be delivered unopened was stricken out, and that relative to forwarding letters without inspection amended so as to apply only to near relatives, guardians, etc. This bill is noticed at this length for the purpose of giving an idea of the ill-advised measures which find their way on to the files.

May Fall into Error.

In its desire to be economical the legislature is in danger of falling into a grave error with reference to the appropriation for the home for the feeble-minded at Lapeer. At this institution it is absolutely necessary, for obvious reasons, to keep the sexes separate. Consequently in providing for the care of patients it is necessary to construct cottages in pairs. The time has come when something should be done for the epileptics, as there are now on file at the home applications for the admission of 234 of this class of unfortunates. This does not take into consideration the numerous epileptics in the several asylums for the insane, where they are a constant menace to the other patients. It will readily be seen that it must have a bad effect on a convalescent patient to have an epileptic fall down in a fit in his presence several times a day, but this is constantly the experience, for the reason that there are no separate accommodations for them at the asylums. The law provides that epileptics shall be treated at the "home for the feeble-minded and epileptic," and yet the legislature has thus far persistently refused to make provision for their accommodation there. The pending appropriation bill calls for appropriations for three cottages for epileptics, there being one cottage that can be used for this purpose, thus making two for boys and two for girls. The disposition on the part of the legislature is to materially cut this appropriation and that asked for additional cottages for other classes of patients. There are now on file, all told, a total of nearly 700 applications for admission, none of which can be granted, owing to lack of accommodations. The total number of inmates is 200, and the institution is full to overflowing. The most crying need is for cottages for epileptics, there being no place for them in other state institutions, while it is estimated that there are fully 1,000 of them in the state.

Cared for at Home.

Scores of instances are known where they are being cared for at home, to the very grave and constant danger of the other children of the families, and instances have been known where mothers have become insane through constantly caring for their unfortunate offspring. The need for an accommodation for epileptics is imperative, and, in view of the number of applications for admission on file, it would seem that the legislators will not be doing their duty to the state if they fail to make the necessary appropriation.

The so-called Lusk resolution providing for the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment conferring home rule upon cities was defeated in the house a few days ago, but another attempt to pass it will be made. This is one of the most important bills of legislation that will be considered this session. It was, in fact, conceived and put in form by Speaker Gordon who gave it to Representative Lusk to introduce. In substance it confers upon cities the power, by popular vote, to amend their own charters rather than to come to the legislature to have this work done. It was urged in favor of the resolution that the plan proposed placed in the hands of the people the power to legislate as to matters concerning themselves, and furthermore, that its adoption would shorten the biennial sessions of the legislature to sixty days, whereas the minimum has been five months for a number of years past. It is a fact that fully one-half of the time of the legislature is taken up with the tinkering of charters. On the other hand the undesirability of breaking away from the established order of things was urged against the measure. Inasmuch as it takes a two-thirds vote to submit a constitutional amendment, it is not likely that the resolution will pass this session. The vote was 47 for to 33 against, fourteen members being either absent or not voting. It is not deemed probable that twenty more votes can be secured by the friends of the project. However, the vote by which it failed to pass was reconsidered and the resolution tabled with a view to making another effort to pass it.

Mortgage Tax Repeal Bill.

The prospects of passing the mortgage tax repeal bill through the house, which were generally conceded to be very bright one week ago, have grown decidedly slimmer during the past few days. The returns from the country districts had not been received before the senate passed the bill. Their tenor led to a change in sentiment, and this was so marked that a Republican caucus decided that the bill should not be considered until after the spring election, at least. The bill has been referred to the committee on general taxation which will coddle it for several weeks.

The insurance committee of the house will give a hearing on all pending insurance bills on April 7. Some of the bills propose very radical changes in existing laws. The revenue of the state from these companies now amounts to about $140,000 annually, but it is proposed to increase the rate of taxation 1 per cent. on the gross earnings in Michigan. This would make the rate for fire companies 4 per cent., and that of life companies 3 per cent. In opposition to this increase the argument is made that the assured would, in fact, be compelled to pay the increase, the rate for insurance being based upon the expense of doing business in the state. Other bills provide for a local tax of 2 per cent. for the maintenance of fire departments, and provides that, in case of total loss, the full face value of the policy must be paid regardless of what the property destroyed may actually have been worth.

Soldiers' Home Investigation.

Another matter which will not be taken up until after the spring election is the investigation of the management, discipline, etc., of the soldiers' home, which was authorized by the senate, and which will be made by the regular senate committee of that body. Chairman Jibb promises that the investigation shall be thorough, the purpose being to either establish the charges or restore confidence in the institution. Members of the board of managers have heretofore resigned to accept official positions at the home. A bill now pending prohibits any member from becoming an official until two years after the expiration of his term as manager. The impression prevails that there will be some changes as the result of the investigation.

The Widoe railroad investigation committee has about consumed the thirty days allotted to it for its work, and so far as others than members of the committee know, not a great deal of progress has been made, it being understood that complaints of discrimination in freight rates, etc., have not come in as extensively as was anticipated. No witnesses have yet been examined by the committee as contemplated, and the committee has asked for an extension of time until April 7, in which to complete its work. There appears to have been much more smoke than fire about this affair.

Beet Sugar Bounty Law.

Although Governor Pingree recommended the enactment of a beet sugar bounty law in his inaugural message, it is not improbable that he will either veto or send back for re-enactment the Dudley bill providing a bounty of 1 cent per pound, which has passed both houses and is now in his hands. What makes this probable is the fact that he has been advised by Representative John Atkinson, in whose legal ability he has the utmost confidence, that the offering of a bounty is an appropriation of public money for private purposes, and consequently the bill should have, under the constitution, received a two-thirds vote in each house. In fact, however, it received a majority vote only. Movements are on foot to organize heavily capitalized corporations at Saginaw and Port Huron for the purpose of erecting beet sugar refineries. It is stated that the sugar trust is paid $250,000 annually by the dealers of the Saginaw valley alone, and it is hoped to keep a large share of this amount at home under the operations of the new law.

The most impassioned and eloquent speech yet made this session, was the impromptu effort made a few days ago by Representative Dickinson, the colored member from Detroit, in support of his bill to suppress mob violence. This bill, as agreed to, provides that any person suffering injury by mob violence, may collect $500, or if the injury be serious, $1,000, or if permanent, $5,000, from the county in which the assault is committed. In case of death the legal representatives of the deceased may collect $5,000. In turn the county is to have redress against any known members of the mob, and if a mob comes from one county into another and commits an assault there, the latter county may recover from the former the amount paid by it.

THE LEVEES BREAK.

Mighty Floods Sweeping in the State of Mississippi.

Many Towns in Danger and Many Lives in Peril—Historic Spots Are Doomed—Thousands Are Homeless.

Jackson, Miss., March 31.—From the great Yazoo-Mississippi delta comes a wail of distress and the cry "The levees have broken," is heard throughout the valley. Three fresh breaks have been reported through which immense volumes of water carrying death and destruction to thousands of happy homes and devastating as fertile a territory as is to be found on the globe. So far no loss of life except to domestic animals has been reported, but may be soon, as the great mound of earth which protects the flourishing cities of Greenville, Rosedale, Stoneville, Arcola, Friar's Point, Rolling Fork and others are water soaked, mushy and liable to give way at any moment. The four breaks that have occurred have flooded and will flood before reaching the most of the Yazoo, perhaps a week hence, the counties of Bolivar, Washington, Sharkey, Issaquena, Yazoo and portions of others in which are comprised the finest cotton farms in the world. In this overflowed district the state has leased eight plantations and upon which, with her able-bodied convicts, she was preparing to make another crop of cotton and corn, the latter being in fine condition. The greatest concern is for the city of Greenville which, situated as she is in the hollow of a crescent formed by the bend of the river and surrounded by it on two sides, would be wiped out of existence should a break occur in the immediate vicinity.

The Peril Is Great.

The streets of the city are 12 feet below the summit of the level, so that a break once formed there would be no way of stopping the Ningara and every house in the place would be swept from its foundations and the remaining inhabitants it is feared hurled into eternity. Fearing such a catastrophe those who could have migrated to the hills, but thousands still remain.

Harvey Klemmer and two sons, who attempted to save some stock, had their boat overturned and were drowned. It is also reported that Mrs. John Marshall and a son, who were alone in a little hut two miles from the break, were unable to escape and were drowned.

Historic Spot Doomed.

The historic and famous plantations of Jefferson Davis and his brother, Joseph Davis, six miles below Vicksburg, are doomed to become a sea of water and destruction.

Sixty-two miles below Vicksburg is the historic plantation of Gen. Zachoria Taylor. With the threatened rise of three more feet it will be a total ruin. The household goods are being removed and the stock driven to places of safety. The little church upon the plantation in which Jeff Davis was married to Gen. Taylor's daughter is threatened with destruction. The water has surrounded it to a depth of two feet.

TOWN WIPED OUT.

Cyclone Sweeps Away the Village of Chandler in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, O. T., March 31.—A tornado at Chandler, 40 miles east of here, at dusk Tuesday night, destroyed three-fourths of the town of 1,500 people and the latest news is that 200 are badly hurt and 45 persons killed. The ruins took fire and many were burned to death. It is reported that only two buildings were left standing—the Mitchell hotel and the Grand Island grocery store.

Six people in one building were pinned down and met slow death by fire. Twenty dead bodies have been taken out thus far, among them being: Two unknown women, both with babies; three unknown children, Mrs. Phillip Johnson, F. DeMoff, Emma Dressinger, D. C. Johnson, Mrs. Dr. Lee and A. W. Keller and wife. The fatally injured removed from the wreck include Andrew Asher and wife, George Henry, Mrs. J. L. Lumley, Charles Reeves, Arch Shepperd, Arthur Jewett, Frank Johnson, Mrs. Frank McCall, D. C. Gooding, Aleck Bishop.

Norfolk, Va., March 29.—Portsmouth was visited early Sunday morning by a disastrous fire, which destroyed property valued at between $150,000 and $200,000, consisting of a Catholic church, two public halls and twenty-seven dwellings. Most of the latter were frame structures. As a result of the conflagration 200 persons are homeless.

Earns a Big Bonus.

New London, Conn., March 30.—The gunboat Helena returned from her trial trip on Long Island sound at 2:50 o'clock in the afternoon. The gunboat ran over the 27-mile course and developed a speed of 15 8-10 knots. Her builders, the Newport News Ship-Building company, will earn a bonus of $55,000.

Six Children Drowned.

Seneca, Kan., March 30.—Six children of John McGrath, a farmer residing in the northwestern part of Nemaha county, were drowned near their home on Sunday evening while attempting to ford Pole creek, which is running bankful.

World's Wheat Crop.

Washington, March 29.—The secretary of agriculture says that the world's wheat crop for 1896 is 2,428,393,000 bushels, against 2,546,404,000 in 1895.

VERY GRAVE.

The Greek Situation Apparently Extremely Critical.

London, March 29.—The Graphic gives prominence to a statement which it claims to have received from an unquestionable source, to the effect that the Greek situation is extremely grave. It says that with the departure of Crown Prince Constantine from Athens to take command of the troops in Thessaly, the die seems to have been cast. War would be inevitable if Greece recalled her army. It would march to Athens and dethrone the king.

The most serious element of the situation is the undoubted fact, despite denials, that the concert of the powers is no longer solid. There has not been an actual rupture, but the members have come to the conclusion that concerted action is a failure. If the so-called concert continues for a week it cannot continue longer. The statement ascribes the position to the impatience of the powers with Greece's reckless conduct and Great Britain's reluctance to coerce her. The powers will not accept Lord Salisbury's proposal for the establishment of a neutral zone.

It is said that Col. Vassos, the commander of the Greek army of occupation in Crete, has practically declared war against the powers.

Vienna, March 30.—The Austrian reichsrath was opened yesterday by Emperor Francis Joseph in person, who said in his address that he believed the action of the powers in Greece had a tendency toward peace, but that they did not mean to encourage Turkey in resisting reforms.

London, March 31.—It is said that King George has sent a message to the czar of Russia saying that it is impossible for Greece to yield to the powers regarding Crete. It is also said that the admirals in command of the foreign fleets in Cretan waters are of the opinion that now that Greece has virtually completed her war preparations on the frontier of Thessaly a blockade of the principal Greek ports would be useless.

EVANS IS CHOSEN.

The Tennessean Made Commissioner of Pensions—Other Appointments.

Washington, March 30.—The president Monday sent to the senate the following nominations:

Charlemagne Tower, of Pennsylvania, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Austria-Hungary.

Anson Burlingame Johnson, of Colorado, to be consul of the United States at Fuchan, China.

William B. Shallenberger, of Pennsylvania, to be second assistant postmaster-general.

H. CLAY EVANS, OF TENNESSEE.
[Nominated for Commissioner of Pensions.]

James D. Gill, of Massachusetts, to be collector of internal revenue for the Third district of Massachusetts.

Thomas Ryan, of Kansas, to be first assistant secretary of the interior.

Henry Clay Evans, of Tennessee, to be commissioner of pensions.

ANGUS CAMERON DEAD.

Ex-United States Senator from Wisconsin Breathes His Last.

Milwaukee, March 31.—Ex-United States Senator Angus Cameron died here Tuesday night at the Wauwatosa sanitarium. He had been at the sanitarium only a few days, and was very low when brought here from LaCrosse, his home. He had been an invalid for several years, and when taken to the sanitarium his mind was almost a blank and he was very weak physically.

Thawed Out the Powder.

Webb City, Mo., March 31.—An accident occurred at Dermott & Gunning's mine at Oronogo, three miles north of here, during the afternoon, which cost Ben Brewer and Lon Gunning their lives, both being literally blown to pieces. They were miners, and while thawing out a box of powder it exploded. Each leaves a widow and several children.

Ohio Murderer Must Die.

Columbus, O., March 30.—The state board of pardons at Lancaster unanimously rejected the application for clemency for William Haas, a Cincinnati murderer, who is to be executed on April 8. Haas will be the first person in this state to be electrocuted. Haas killed Mrs. William Brader in Cincinnati on the night of July 3, 1896.

Ready to Admit Women.

Beloit, Kan., March 29.—The northwest Kansas Methodist conference has decided, without a dissenting vote, in favor of the admission of women to the general conference.

Iowa Railways.

Des Moines, Ia., March 29.—The state executive council has completed the assessment of Iowa railways. There are shown to be 8,500 miles of road in the state; they are assessed at $44,456,197, an increase of $74,986.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Fifty-Fifth Congress Meets in Extra Session.

Matters of Importance Brought Before the Senate and House—Brief Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

Washington, March 25.—The session of the senate lasted only half an hour yesterday and no business was done beyond the introduction of bills. Among these was one by Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.) to repeal the civil service laws and to do away with educational tests as a preliminary to entering the public service, and another by Senator Hoar (rep., Mass.) prohibiting the exhibition in the District of Columbia of kinetoscope illustrations of prize fights and prohibiting the transportation of materials therefor through the mails or otherwise.

Washington, March 26.—In the senate yesterday the credentials of John W. Henderson, appointed by the governor of Florida to the seat vacated by Mr. Call, were presented and referred. The arbitration treaty was discussed and the bankruptcy bill was read at length.

Washington March 27. — A resolution was adopted in the senate yesterday asking the president for information as to the death of two American sailors at Santiago de Cuba and a memorial from the Michigan legislature was presented protesting against the executive order at the close of the last administration consolidating pension agencies, and, in effect, abolishing the agency at Detroit. In executive session the arbitration treaty was further discussed. Adjourned to the 29th.

Washington, March 30.—A bill to prohibit the exhibition of prize fight pictures by means of the kinetoscope and kindred devices was reported favorably in the senate yesterday, and the arbitration treaty was further discussed. A bill appropriating $250,000 for the flood-stricken districts in the south was passed.

Washington, March 31.—Senator Allen (pop.), of Nebraska, made a long speech in the senate yesterday on the unconstitutionality of tariff taxes beyond those requisite for revenue. The arbitration treaty was further discussed. Senator Morgan offered a resolution calling for further Cuban information. The nomination of Frank W. Palmer, of Illinois, to be public printer was received from the president.

The House.

Washington, March 25.—In the house yesterday the debate on the tariff bill occupied nearly the entire day. A bill was introduced to establish a department of commerce, labor and manufactures, its head to be a cabinet officer.

Washington, March 26.—The four days' general debate on the Dingley tariff bill closed in the house yesterday and the measure is now open for amendment under the five-minute rule until next Wednesday, when the vote will be taken.

Washington, March 27. — In the house yesterday the tariff bill was thrown open for amendment under the five-minute rule and nine of the 162 pages of the bill were disposed of. Mr. Griggs (Ga.) introduced a resolution providing that measures be taken to have the constitution so amended as to give congress the power to impose and collect an income tax.

Washington, March 29.— Bills were introduced in the house on Saturday to modify the national banking laws so as to provide the people with a safe, ample, elastic and cheap currency, and to call in and cancel the paper money now in circulation. Five more of the 162 pages of the tariff bill were disposed of.

Washington, March 30.—In the house yesterday Mr. Spaulding (Mich.) introduced a joint resolution providing for the annexation of Hawaii to the United States. The tariff bill was discussed.

Washington, March 31.—Mr. Heatwole (Minn.) introduced a resolution in the house yesterday for a banking and currency commission which is in line with the recommendation of President McKinley's inaugural address. The tariff bill was further considered.

Fine Home Burned.

New London, Conn., March 29.—"The Elms," the magnificent residence of Col. A. C. Tyler, in Pequot avenue, with all its elaborate furnishings, valuable paintings, bric-a-brac, musical instruments and silver, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, causing a loss of over $300,000; insurance, $75,000. Thirty thousand dollars' worth of jewelry also was destroyed.

Victims of Dynamite.

Plainfield, N. J., March 31.—By the explosion of a can of dynamite, stored in the barn of John Cook, at Scotch Plains, three miles from this city, Rittle Stetter was killed and Conrad Paltz was injured so badly that he lies in a precarious condition. Both men are carpenters and were engaged in setting posts near the building where the explosive was stored.

Des Moines Has a Curfew Law.

Des Moines, Ia., March 29.—Saturday morning Mayor MacVicker signed the curfew ordinance, and it went into effect at night. It specifies that boys and girls under 15 years shall not be on the streets at night after nine o'clock in summer and eight o'clock in winter. Chief Marshal Johnson has instructed his policemen to enforce it to the letter.

On election day the Maccabee ladies will serve dinner in their hall. Their dinners are great. All may be assured of a bountiful supply of good things.

George Starrett did not make a long visit but the time was fully occupied. George has a fine position in the grocery department of Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s immense establishment in Chicago, has been in their employ nearly three years and likely to be for years to come. City life has done great things for George and he enjoys it. He returned Tuesday night.

Last Tuesday afternoon a barn belonging to Columbus Aulls, in Bridgewater township, was burned to the ground with all its contents, including a machine for threshing corn which belonged to Clarence Aulls and Fred Crosby. The origin of the fire was unknown but it appeared to start in a straw stack near by. The barn was insured in the Farmers' Mutual of Southern Washtenaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Wallinger, of Tecumseh, were Clinton visitors Wednesday.

C. F. Field came up Monday evening to attend the University Club, he leading the meeting as the club has been unable to get a permanent leader.

Mr. McClintock, of Saginaw, roommate of Leon Clark's at Albion, who is spending the week with him, is making many friends and seems to be enjoying himself.

It is reported that Leon Clark and Frank Parker contemplate competing in the college tandem races this season. They ride well and their friends expect they will make a good record for themselves.

Jno. Bush had an accident Tuesday that came near proving quite serious. While standing with one foot on a step-ladder and the other on a barrel, taking paper off the ceiling at his home, the ladder and barrel separated, throwing him to the floor, painfully spraining both wrists beside throwing one finger out of joint.

There is great rejoicing in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. VanDeMark over the advent of a 10 lb. boy which was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Shoemaker Sunday afternoon. Louise is very proud of her first born and justly so for he is a fine lusty fellow and looks like a child of several weeks. As for Ed and Emma, this is the first grandchild and they feel the importance of their position.

Last week we gave the result of the "silver" caucus held Wednesday afternoon and now give the ticket presented by the republicans at their caucus Saturday evening:

Supervisor—Geo. C. Lindsley.
Clerk—Chas. D. Cutting.
Treas.—Addison H. St. John.

Constables—Chas. R. Barnsdale, Geo. R. Belding, Fred Sheldon, Will Sherwood.

Mrs. Louisa Allen, who has for several years been in poor health, passed quietly away Sunday afternoon. The funeral was held at the house Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Allen was one of the old residents of this community. Though quiet and retiring in manner and a great homebody, she was a charming lady, highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was born July 10th, 1815, and when but 4 or 5 years of age was adopted by Captain and Mrs. James Parks. She was married to W. F. Allen March 13th, 1845. For many years she has been a faithful member of St. John's Episcopal church and until failing health prevented, was active in church work. Four sons survive her, Emmet, Frank, George and Fred. One by one the pioneers are passing away. A few suns more and they will all be gone.

At the University Extension Circle last Monday evening, the study of the Ancient Eastern Nations, covering the history of Egypt, Chaldea, Babylonia, Japan and China, was finished. Mrs. J. L. Tuttle read a paper on the City of Babylon. Among its pleasing features were descriptions of the Temple of Baal or the Tower of Babel and the "Hanging Gardens of Semiramus," one of the seven wonders of the world. W. S. Kimball told of the splendors of King Solomon's reign and his wonderful work in erecting the Grand Temple to Jehovah. Miss Kittie Biggins described the commerce of Phoenicia. Miss Celia Brewster gave a very interesting selection on the "Wall of China," giving an outline of its colossal structure. Those appointed to act on the program committee for the ensuing month are as follows: Mrs. J. L. Tuttle, A. C. Huntington and Clare Kimball.

Rollo Kirk Bryan, chalktalker, of Lansing, the sixth on the lecture course, gave one of his celebrated chalk talks at the church Tuesday evening, to a good sized audience. Mr. Bryan's revolving or "white blackboard" consists of about one hundred square feet of blank surface. On this he paints so-called performing pictures, while addressing his audience, illustrating the subject under discussion. He applies chalk, in colors, with both hands, while talking, thus bringing out telling humorous and pathetic surprises, the rolling, rocking easel giving to his picture a life-like motion. He is certainly a marvel. His adeptness as an artist and his command of language, seemingly without limit, form a combination that is new, novel and entertaining.

Died, at her home in Macon, March 26, 1897, Fannie, wife of Samuel Weeks, aged 42 years. Fannie Reynolds was born in Wellington, Prince Edward county, Ont., March 27th, 1855, and was united in marriage to Samuel Weeks in 1872. In their home in Canada were born four children, Milton S., Alfred E., Lulu M. and Arthur S. In 1882 they moved to Michigan and have since resided in or near Macon. For the past fifteen years Mrs. Weeks has been in poor health, but during the last year she has gradually failed until her spirit took its flight on Friday last. She was a great sufferer but with trust in her Saviour she bore these sufferings with christian grace. On Friday morning she called her loved ones around her asking each to so live that they might be a united family in the home above. Her mind was clear and strong to the last, and her faith kept her in perfect peace. The funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon, Rev. H. Cansfield officiating.

Darling mother she has left us,
We shall hear her voice no more,
She has gone to meet her Saviour,
On that bright and golden shore.

Through our life our cares she's lightened,
Helped to bear each ache and pain.
Her whole life was for her loved ones,
All for us who now remain.

Still, beside that western window,
Stands our dear one's vacant chair;
In our hearts what pain is felt,
Not to see her sitting there.

Yes, she's gone, loved wife and mother,
She has heard her Master say,
"Enter, good and faithful servant,
Into the realms of endless day."

And to us our own dear Saviour,
Says in words both sweet and clear,
"Peace to you" and "Be ye ready,
When I call to meet her here."

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors who showed so much kindness and sympathy in our great bereavement.

The best of the sweet season is over.

Spring weather and wet roads go hand in hand this year.

Misses Sadie Taylor and Irene Allen spent Thursday and Friday of last week in Adrian.

Rev. and Mrs. Wellwood and Mr. and Mrs. A. Alexander visited at A. D. Hunt's last Wednesday.

Cecil Billington is reported as being sick with measles in Detroit where he has just secured a position.

Some of the older people say that they haven't seen the roads so bad for twenty-five years as they have been the past two weeks.

Mrs. A. D. Hunt received a letter from her brother, Ransom Remington, of Meadow Creek, Montana, recently. He says that snow is from four to eight feet deep in the gullies. He is drawing hay to market with a four horse team over three long hills one of which is three miles long. He reports plenty of work and good pay.

Friends of Mrs. John Babcock, formerly of this place but now of Mt. View, Mo., received a letter from her not long ago. She says times are very hard there and they are having a very wet time. We will quote from her letter dated March 20th; "I went down in the valley where a creek runs in a wet time this afternoon about 2 o'clock and crossed the creek bed where there was no water. Now at 7:30 p. m. it is 30 ft. wide and a roaring river. It is still raining and the water is still rising. I don't know what it will be by morning."

The Great Railway Detective Tells What Dr. Miles' Remedies Have Done For Himself and Wife.

DETECTIVE work requires constant vigilance, steady nerves, a clear head and active brain. "A year ago," writes Capt. Duffey, of 631 Orchard St., Toledo, Ohio, "I overworked myself, was in such a condition sleep was impossible. I was so nervous I could not lie in bed; my arms and limbs twitched and my system seemed completely exhausted. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine and the fourth bottle restored me to health. Mrs. Duffey had suffered for eighteen years with heart disease, had tried every remedy without avail until she took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure two years ago. For the past year she has been free from the trouble."

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Of the W. F. M. S. of the Presbyterian Church—History by Mrs. E. B Wood.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church, assisted by the Missionary Circle, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary March 18th, 1897. The lecture room of the church had been transformed by skillful hands into a parlor and about 75 ladies were present. Mrs. Brown gave an exposition of the grand Messianic psalm, the 72nd. Mrs. Helm read a brief poem founded on this psalm. Miss McConnell and Mrs. Henry Conkling read their reports. The history of the twenty-five years was given: a beautiful poem written by Mrs. J. W. Falley, of Hillsdale, was read by Mrs. Kemp; and these things mingled with prayer and song made a most interesting meeting. A delightful lunch was served and the evening was made glad with singing by Messrs. Conkling and Strong and Mesdames Bidwell, Morley, Kellogg and John Orr, with Miss Root at the organ.

THE HISTORY.

1872—1897.

MRS. E. B. WOOD.

Dear Friends:—We ask you to rejoice with us, for we have reached our twenty-fifth anniversary, our "Silver Year," today. We look forward, the path winds before us in sunlight and shadow, clothed in mystery, for none of us know how long our day may be, nor the strength of it; yet we are not dismayed, for we look backward, also, through the long aisles of the vanished years and we see everywhere the tokens of our Father's love, the fulfilling of his promises. Each one of these years with its dealings of Providence, its ministeries of grace, went slowly by; Sabbath after Sabbath, throwing a bar of celestial light on the common ground of daily life, brightened and faded; year after year gathering up the weeks and the Sabbaths left a deeper mark on life, and, giving us their messages of joy or sorrow, passed on forever, and so we make this something of a memorial service. We bring you some items of our history, familiar to ourselves, but perhaps interesting to a larger audience.

In 1872, two foreign missionaries were sent to Tecumseh by our general assembly then meeting in Detroit, commissioned to organize for us a Woman's Foreign Missionary society. Dr. Nassau had spent years under the burning skies of Africa and Mr. Walsh in India, in sight of the grand Himalaya mountains. They told us the things they had seen, and as we listened to their earnest appeals in behalf of the women and children in the sorrowful lands where Christ is not known, our hearts were deeply stirred, and sixty ladies of our church pledged ourselves to give of our means to help send the gospel to those Christless lands. We saw clearly that intelligent christian women are called of God to enter those barred zenanas, those awful households from which men are so rigidly excluded, and where women can enter at all times and tell of Christ who came to be the hope of glory for their souls." We saw that only the gospel could heal their leprosy of sin and make those degraded and miserable women as daughters of our King, clothed in robes of fine linen, pure and white, the robes of royalty. We knew they would be the same women, and yet not the same. They would see better things—they would hear divine melodies and would be brought by the power of the Spirit into the purity and moral beauty of the redeemed. So we were gladly organized as an auxiliary society to help support these teachers and thus share their work of bringing these perishing ones to a saving knowledge of the truth.

Our pastor's wife, Mrs. Stoutenburgh, was our first president, followed by Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Deacon Conkling, Mrs. Bills, Mrs. Webb Anderson, Mrs. Wim- Mrs. E. B. Wood, and four even out of that brief list are now walking the streets of gold.

At our organization we pledged $40 a year to Mrs. McKee, at Ning Po, China. —she was Miss Ketcham in those first years.—$10 a year to Miss Patton, at Panhala in S. W. India, and $10 a year to Miss Noble in Utah. Afterwards Miss Patton was entirely supported by a church in Detroit, Miss Noble was transferred to the Home Mission board and Mrs. McKee, bereaved of her husband, has returned with her little children to America, and we will give toward the salary of Miss Hunting, in Tripoli, Syria. Our treasurer, Miss McConnell, finds that we have given in twenty-five years the grand sum of $1667.36; to this we add our memorial offering, $24.00, making a grand total of $1711.36. This includes a legacy of $50 from Mrs. Bacon and one of $25 from Mrs. Robert Boyd. These dear friends crossed the bridgeless river and left this in memory of their love for missions. It also includes $8.30 given us by the missionary circle—being one-half of the money raised at a praise meeting last November—and $10 given us by Mrs. E. C. Baird.

We are reminded by our lists that we are a divided company. Some who gave gladly with us for a long time, have made homes in other places. You remember them well—Mrs. Stoutenburgh, Mrs. Barr, Mrs. Hiram Raymond, Mrs. John Conkling, Mrs. Phoebe Hunt, Mrs. Babbitt, Mrs. Mather, Mrs. Meeker and Mrs. Augusta Hall Waldron, so long our secretary. Mrs. B. J. Bidwell and Mrs. J. S. Strong have been members of our society during all the twenty-five years. They have long been prevented from meeting with us by ill health, but they have an unfailing desire for our prosperity. And our secretary, Mrs. Henry Conkling, has given you the long list of our beloved dead—Mrs. Minda Ketcham, Mrs. Deacon Conkling, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. John McKinney, Mrs. Bates Chatterdon, Mrs. Webb Anderson, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. James McNair, Mrs. Charles Stocking, Mrs. Colonel McNair, Mrs. S. Crane, Mrs. John McConnell, Mrs. Wm. Richards, Miss Addie Wimple, Miss Anna Brewer, Mrs. Enoch Tindall, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Robert Boyd, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. James Boyd, Mrs. Horace Brewer, Mrs. Kneeland, Mrs. LeBaron, Mrs. Newton Bryan, Mrs. A. D. Hall, Mrs. John Orr, Mrs. Ellen Sherrard, Mrs. Noah Burroughs, Mrs. J. P. Slayton, Mrs. W. R. Dingman, Mrs. John Tallman, Mrs. P. Bills, Mrs. Villa Sherrard, Mrs. Peters, Mrs. A. L. Lawrence, Mrs. P. S. McKinnon, Miss Sarah Rosebrough, Mrs. Bronson Knapp, Mrs. B. L. Baxter and Miss Harriet Carpenter,—these were all so tenderly loved and have left such precious memories with us. We speak of them reverently because to each of them has been given the white stone with the new name written which no one knoweth saving they that receive it—a secret between them and God. We remember their daily lives among us, their calm, sweet faith that never asked for surer word than just His own—He saith. They have gone through the shadowed valley and are inhabitants of that city "that shines from out the sacred page aglow with solemn splendor," and this seems like holy ground to us for if God had not called them to serve Him nearer His throne they would be here with us, their well-remembered voices joining with ours in thanksgiving and praise.

We look sorrowfully backward at their dear faces and as we stand together at this closing door of four quarter of a century, we know that we cannot step again within its boundaries—we cannot retravel the old familiar paths or retrieve the lost opportunities. The hand of our Father will lock it and keep the key, teaching us that with time there is no turning back,—we must act in the living present, like servants who watch for the coming of their Lord. "So shall our grief for friends be changed to songs of joy and we be given to follow Christ, as they did, till death, and then through death to Heaven."

But Longfellow says, Look not back sorrowfully upon the past; and so we lift our eyes from our losses, and take a wider outlook over the world's golden harvest fields, and we can say with full hearts, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us. The service to which we were called has increased our faith, has given us more fervent zeal, has made our love for the King in His beauty stronger and more abiding. These years, while taking away so many of our friends, have brought large measures of success to our beloved missionaries; have seen the organizing of many a christian church in the Orient, presided over by educated and intelligent native pastors. The hermit nations are hermits no longer, but Japan and Corea, with many other lands that were savage or exclusive a few years since, are now welcoming our teachers. Glorious modern discoveries and inventions are now combining to make the highway in which the ransomed of the Lord shall walk. Prejudice, fanaticism, and even the iron walls of caste are melting away,—religious liberty, the christian home, the girl-babies even, becoming objects of love and pride in many redeemed households, have made gladness in heathen lands. "The rough places," as in grand old Isaiah's vision "are becoming smooth and the crooked places straight," the Christmas chimes are beginning to make themselves heard around the world.

Everywhere, in isolated places, the people are beginning to hear the triumphs of His beloved name. "The Immanuel of prophetic vision —Christ the Lord," of the angels' song "Christ crucified" the battle cry of the apostles. The commands, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel," "Take up thy cross and follow me," have grown broader and more beautiful to us in these passing years as we have seen them transmuted into the lives of our missionaries, and we have learned that God is testing our love for Him, not as in the long gone centuries by the fires of martyrdom, but by the presence of thousands of women and children in heathen lands dependent, because of the harmonious division of the heathen world among the various denominations, dependent entirely on Presbyterian women to tell them of the risen Christ. Shall we not stand His test and prove our sincerity? We should look faithfully into all the errands life lays before us, for they are working out God's purposes. We have heard somewhere of a statue with the bowed face hidden in the streaming hair and wings on the flying feet. They have named it Opportunity, because we so seldom see the hidden face when it presents itself, and wings are on the feet because it is so speedily gone. Let us be quick during the time that is left us, to grasp each opportunity for doing the Lord's work, and so turn our sorrow for the past into bright promises for the future; and although the work each one begins may be left unfinished, we know that it will be carried forward by other hands of God's appointing toward a more glorious completion. We are reminded today of Joshua's command to the children of Israel, to take twelve stones from the Jordan and build an altar, as a memorial of God's care over them during their pilgrimage, and of this extract from Sangster's beautiful poem:—

Bravely in that far distant day of an elder time,
Their wilderness waiting over, they marched with faith sublime;
And still we catch that vision, the fair, sweet fields of grain,
The laughing April harvest, covering hill and plain,
The light on shore and river, the cities walled and high,
And the long procession winding on beneath the Captain's eye.

We, too, are pilgrims, seeking our Canaan under our glorious Leader, and this anniversary is like a memorial alter of the journey on which the Lord hath thus far brought us, And when the mile-stones have all been counted, and labor shall merge into rest, may we, joining the dear friends already gone, receive an abundant entrance into our promised land—our home.

Mrs. P. A. Cowley.

The hand of Death was heavily laid upon the family of P. A. Cowley, of Hudson, in the claiming for its own his loved and honored wife, Mary Jane Cowley, who parted this life on the 19th inst.

Mrs. Cowley had lived in our village and vicinity since her ninth year, and was much loved by all who knew her. As a teacher marked success crowned her efforts. She established the first primary Sunday-school work in the M. E. church here. She was married to P. A. Cowley on Nov. 26, 1865, and after some time moved to Hudson where she has since resided. Although she had been ill for a long time, her death came suddenly, at the age of 51 years. She leaves a bereaved husband and two daughters to mourn her loss. Her funeral was attended by a large concourse of loving friends, among them being people from Grand Rapids, Jackson, Adrian and other places.

Everyone is invited to call on the opening day.

You can not afford to miss seeing our large stock of Furniture if you are going to buy. WHEELER & SISSON.

The last regular meeting of the Monday Club for the present year occurred March 29th. The program for the afternoon was enjoyable though confined to the study of artists and their paintings. Miss Jennie Root told us about Jacob Ruysdael and his pictures. Miss Alice Rice gave a sketch of the artist, Albert Cuyp, mentioning his paintings. Miss Louise Phelps closed the program with a description of David Teniers, Jr., and his art works.

Sunday about 10:30 a. m., James Cook, who lives in the Thorp house, accompanied by his brother Dolph, went into John Boland's part of the house, and while John was lying on the couch, Cook assaulted him and a bloody encounter followed, causing great excitement in the neighborhood; children screamed, and men and women came from all directions. A Mrs. Freer, visiting the Cooks, who is subject to fits, had a terrible one. The men were finally separated and quiet restored. The Cooks were soon after taken by an officer and put in the lock-up, but James was released soon after. Monday morning they were taken before Squire Wightman, who was extremely lenient, fining them $5.00 and $10.00 with costs respectively. James paid fine, but Dolph failing was taken to Adrian. Liquor was the cause of the trouble.

The managemens of the New Croswell opera house, at Adrian, announces "My Friend from India" as the attraction for April 7th. The piece is a screaming farce and is the reinging success in New York at the present moment. The company to appear at Adrian is the original one—the same players being in the cast that made fame and fortune for the piece and its owners, Messrs. Smyth and Rice. Since this company was sent out another one has been organized and the play is now running at Hoyt theatre in New York. Manager Hardy was only able to secure this attraction through the burning of the opera house at Jackson.

Thomas Hand, of Grand Rapids, who worked for Arthur Rice two years ago, came down recently to again enter Mr. Rice's employ. He stopped at the Central House and had not been there long before he began to act strangely. On most subjects he seemed all right, but imagined he had all manner of physical infirmities. One moment his heart was thumping and the look of suffering on his face was pitiful to behold; the next his muscles were swelling to an alarming extent and he knew his limbs and arms would burst. His hallucinations were varied and strange. It was a sad case as his sufferings were intense though wholly imaginary. He was in no condition to work and so was persuaded to return to Grand Rapids where he makes his home with a sister. Mr. Rice's people say he was faithful and trusty and thought themselves fortunate in again securing him. They, as well as the people at the hotel, were very kind to the unfortunate man while he was here.

Anton Christensen, the Ridgeway butter maker who skipped to New York with his patrons' money, is quite a prominent character just at present. He was arrested in New York, agreed to give back the money, was released, but through some blunder the matter was not legally adjusted and now one of Lenawee county's officers is under arrest in New York city and they are looking for the sheriff.

The Research circle have finished the year's course of study and closed their meetings with last Friday evening. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Howell and both sections of the club attended. The program consisted of a little talk by Miss Burridge on the Preraphaelite movement in English art illustrated by about forty photographs, the originals of most of which may be found in different noted galleries—a few belonging to private collections. This was very much enjoyed by all, having been instructively and ably conducted. After a business meeting, the session closed.

Mary Ross Hoy,

Whose funeral was held at the house Sunday afternoon, was born in Antrim County, Ireland, August 27th, 1831. She was married to John Hoy Dec. 22, 1856, at Balamena, County Antrim, Ireland, and came to Tecumseh in the spring of 1861, since which time this has been her home. Of the six children born three sons survive her, Robert, William and John.

Mrs. Hoy was a most devoted wife and mother. Her home was her realm where she reigned supreme, love being her sceptre. Besides the husband, sons and relatives a large circle of friends mourn her loss.

Prompt Settlement.

Toledo, O., March 29th, 1897.
Mr. Guy J. Davidson, Gen. Agent.,
Room 3, McGraw Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
DEAR SIR:

I am today in receipt of the company's draft for $1071.54, payment in full for Policy No. 96881 on the life of my late husband, John Libstaff. The promptness with which the claim was settled is very commendable to the Manhattan, as the proofs were sent to you on the 4th of March, and the company's draft bears date March 19th.

My husband was insured two years ago the 15th of February, and not being able to meet the payment the second year, the company were liberal enough to accept part payment with notes for the balance. The third year he had just completed arrangements for the third payment in the same way and he was suddenly killed by being run over by a L. S. & M. S. engine.

I cannot say enough for the Manhattan, and especially its representatives who were so kind in helping me to complete the proof.

Yours very truly,
(signed) MRS. CLARA LIBSTAFF.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

THE VETO POWER.

Gov. Pingree Uses It in the Interest of Veterans.

The Beet Sugar Bounty Bill Becomes a Law—Statistics of State Employes and Salaries—Other Gossip.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, March 31.—The bill recently passed by both branches of the legislature making it a misdemeanor for any person to unlawfullly use or wear a badge of the Grand Army or Loyal Legion has been vetoed by Gov. Pingree, this being his first veto. The bill is objected to by the governor because it reaches every member of the order who may, for the time being, be in arrears for dues, and therefore not in good standing.

In a special message Gov. Pingree endeavored to induce the house to reconsider the vote by which it defeated the appropriation for a state exhibit at the Nashville exposition. The effort was futile.

The railroads were given a hearing in the state legislature Tuesday night upon the bills inimical to their interests in which there are a large number of very radical ones, which Gov. Pingree and his followers are vigorously pushing. The most important provides for a reduction of passenger rates in the lower peninsula to two cents a mile and in the upper peninsula three cents a mile.

The action of the state live stock sanitary commission last year in slaughtering cattle suspected of being afflicted with tuberculosis resulted in a proceeding being commenced by Maxwell M. Fisher, of Detroit, to test the right of the commission to take such action. The matter has been dragging along in the courts until Gov. Pingree, upon the recommendation of the commission, has instructed the attorney-general to have the question at issue decided.

Mr. Goodell, of Wayne, introduced a resolution in the house recently calling for a committee to investigate and report to the house the number of persons in the employ of the state, not including the heads of departments, who were receiving $800 or more for their services. It was adopted, and a report has been made. The report shows that there are employed by the state 365 persons, not including heads of departments, who receive $800 or more per year. The 365 receive as a whole $564,204.51 per year or an average salary of $1,544.56, or over $5.14 per day.

Gov. Pingree has fixed his official signature to the bill providing a bounty of one cent per pound on beet sugar. The law will go into effect 60 days after adjournment of the legislature. Commissioner of the Land Office French, who will enforce the provisions of the bill, has ordered 1,000 pounds of beet seed from the department of agriculture. Already there are two projected plants and companies being organized in this state for sugar manufacture.

The long fight between the state fish commission and the commercial fishermen over pending legislation ended Thursday, when a compromise bill was agreed upon. This bill provides a license fee of $75 per year for tugs with steam hoists, ten dollars for pound or trap nets, five dollars for seines and gobble nets and for small boats. No white fish or trout weighing less than two pounds are to be taken, and the close season is to be from November 1 to December 1, except in Lake Erie, where it is to begin and end two weeks later. All meshes are to be 4½ inches, but this provision is not to take effect until 1900, in order to give present operators an opportunity to change their outfits without serious loss.

Michigan will be a back-number state in the Tennessee exposition this year. The house sealed the fate of the senate bill appropriating $7,500 for a state exhibit by voting it down, the vote being 48 to 41. The higher figure favored the appropriation, but a majority vote of 51 was essential to passage of the bill. The debate on the question was lively. Economy was the keynote of the opposition and the insinuation that the exhibition of the state would inure to the benefit of wealthy miners and manufacturers had its effect in the onslaught upon the bill.

The state oil inspector's office has turned into the state treasury $11,625 as the net earnings of the office for 1896. The total receipts for inspection were $36,320 and the expenses $24,695. The number of gallons of oil inspected during the year was 18,164,575, of which only 2,897 gallons were rejected.

In committee of the whole the house passed the bill of Representative Williams placing persons conducting private banks, or receiving deposits, under the supervision of the bank commissioners. It also provides for inspection by the commissioner.

The senate has passed the bill fixing the legal rate of interest at five per cent. instead of six per cent. as at present. The contract rate remains at eight per cent. and banks are not allowed to pay more than four per cent. interest on funds. An endeavor was made to have the fund interest reduced to three per cent. on the grounds that more money would be in circulation instead of being left in the banks.

Mr. Dickinson's bill to prevent mob violence, which was defeated by one vote in the house, Tuesday, was passed Thursday, the vote of the previous day having been reconsidered. The final vote was 86 to 26.

There were arguments in the house for several days over the bill amending the law so that the placing of flags on school buildings shall be compulsory on the part of the school officials. The bill was passed, there being only seven votes in the negative.

The bill of Senator Robinson, providing for relief to the extent of $25,000 for the fire-stricken town of Ontonagon, met opposition when it came up on order of third reading, and now lies on the house table.

The bill for the use of the $68,000 in the Soo canal fund to build a marine hospital at the Soo went to defeat in the senate. The committee on finance and appropriations reported adversely and a motion to indefinitely postpone consideration was passed.

The house joint resolution appropriating $3,000 for Mrs. Margaret Heimes, on account of the accidental death of her son while on military duty at Ishpeming, passed by the senate after a sharp debate.

The house in committee of the whole agreed to a bill prohibiting the shooting of prairie chickens, quail and partridge for a period of five years.

The bill of Representative Molster providing for the stamping of boots and shoes composed wholly or partly of an imitation leather passed the house easily.

The house antagonized the baking powder manufacturers Monday by agreeing in committee of the whole to the Goodell bill, which divides baking powder into three classes, cream of tartar, phosphate and alum, and provides that packages shall be so labeled as well as marked conspicuously with the name of the manufacturer. No variety is to contain more than 20 per cent. of starch.

The house in committee of the whole agreed to the Hammond bill, which is a substitute adopted by the insurance committee absolutely prohibiting fire and marine insurance companies, either home or foreign, to enter into any combination with reference to fixing rates to prevent free and open competition. It provides a penalty for agents violating of not less than $50 nor more than $100, with imprisonment for default. Companies not complying with the law will have their licenses revoked.

EMMETT.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

William Holz, Accused by His Wife, Is Arrested at Detroit.

Detroit, March 29.—William Holz, Jr., aged 21, was slain Saturday evening by his father at their home on Catherine street. Father and son quarreled and Holz ordered the boy out of the house. The latter refused and the old man, it is said, seized a rifle and fired several shots. One bullet pierced young Holz's brain. He lived but a few moments. Mrs. Holz, who witnessed the tragedy, is prostrated. Holz is under arrest. He is a cabinet-maker, 54 years of age, and the father of seven children.

COFFINS FROM A FAVORITE TREE

James Swan and Wife, of Decatur, Prepare Their Caskets.

Decatur, March 31.—James Swan and wife, an aged and wealthy couple living on a farm in Engham county, 50 years ago planted in their dooryard a cherry tree, of which they became very proud because it grew so straight and to such a great size. After talking it over several years the pair concluded to be buried in coffins made from their favorite tree, so several days ago the tree was felled and a mammoth log taken to Mason, from which the burial caskets will be manufactured.

Left to the New Pension Chief.

Washington, D. C., March 29.—The pension case of Chief Justice Charles D. Long, of Michigan, which has been before the departments and the courts several years, will remain undisposed of until the republican appointee as commissioner of pensions takes charge. It is known that the board has made a favorable report, practically sustaining the claim of Judge Long to a $72 rating. But Commissioner Murphy and some of the officials do not agree with the board's view, and accordingly the case will not be acted upon by the present officers of the bureau.

Caught in New York.

New York, March 26.—Anton Christensen, of Michigan, was arrested here Thursday charged with having swindled the Ridgeway (Mich.) Creamery company out of $40,000. When arrested he was negotiating for the disposal of 40 kegs of butter, which he had consigned to himself in this city. He admitted that he was the man they were after, but denied his stealings amounted to anything like the amount claimed. He was about to sail for Denmark.

Aged Lady's Terrible Fate.

Niles, March 26.—The residence of John Cutting, on the outskirts of Niles, burned Thursday morning. Mrs. Cutting, aged 69, was alone in the house and in attempting to save some goods her clothing took fire. She was found lying a few feet outside of the house, where she had attempted to extinguish the flames by rolling in the snow. She lived but a few hours. The house was destroyed with all the household goods. Loss about $4,000.

Pardoned.

Lansing, March 26.—Gov. Pingree has pardoned ex-Coroners Bettinger and Butler, of Wayne county, and their clerks, Bird and Benzing, who are serving 18 months each in the Detroit house of correction for collecting jury and witness fees for inquests never held.

Michigan Merchant Suicides.

Charlotte, Mich., March 29.—Scott Seavolt, a prominent commission merchant of this city, shot and killed himself in the woodshed of his residence at noon. No cause is known for the suicide. He leaves a widow and two children.

Acquitted.

Muskegon, March 26.—Patrolman Partick Fitzsimmons, after a trial lasting nearly three weeks, was acquitted of the charge of murdering Sidney Pearson, a fireman, last season on the Chicago tug Welcome.

Straits Still Closed.

Mackinaw, March 29.—The prospect is that there will be no navigation earlier than April 10. The temperature was at freezing point during the past five or six days. The straits are still solid.

ELKHART CARRIAGE AND HARNESS MFG. CO., W. B. PRATT, Sec'y, ELKHART, IND.

The man who eats because he is hungry is, thus far, on a level with the brutes. The man whostops eating the moment his hunger is appeased, is the wise man. Nature needs no more food than she calls for. Continued excess brings about indigestion or dyspepsia, with loss of flesh, stength, sleep, ambition and mental power, and an accumulation of aches, pains and many dangerous maladies.

The stomach now can do nothing alone. We must appeal to some artificially digested fod which can also digest other foods. That is to say, we must use the Shaker Digestive Cordial. The effect is prompt and cheering. The chronic pain and distress ceases. Appetite presently revives. Flesh and vigor gradually come back, and the sufferer recovers. But he must be careful in future. A trial bottle for 10 cents.

To Remove Paint.

"Sit down on it before it is dry."—(Texas Siftings.)

That's a good way—easy, too. And another way is to do your cleaning in the old-fashioned way with soap; the necessary rubbing takes off the paint along with the dirt, and this is very tiresome work. You ought to do your housework with Pearline; that's the modern way—easiest and most economical way—takes off the dirt easily and leaves the paint. Saves rubbing, saves work, saves time, saves wear; everything is cleaned. Use Pearline (no soap) on anything that water doesn't hurt.

FARM CONVENIENCES.

How Excellent Use May Be Made of Old Wheels.

Don't throw away any old wheels; they can be put to as good use, sometimes, as they were on the vehicles on which they were bought. The illustrations herewith show how wheels may be made serviceable by constructing a barrel wheelbarrow and a reel for fence wire. Fig. 1, the barrel wheelbarrow, is simply a barrel on wheels, balanced so that it will tip easily. The hooks in front are for a shovel and hoe to hang on. For many purposes this is better for farm work than are ordinary wheelbarrows. A heavier load can be carried. Fig. 2, the wheel reel for fence wire, is made by taking two wheels of a light wagon attached to their axle. Place four pieces of board through the wheels at regular intervals and wire to the felloes. It makes a large and convenient wire or cordage reel. These conveniences can be made during early spring so as to be ready for the first outdoor work.—Farm and Home.

TILLAGE OF CROPS.

Deep Working Is Said to Serve No Good Purpose Whatever.

All tillage of crops should be shallow. The time to go deep is when the ground is plowed in the fall. Deep tillage of a growing crop serves no good purpose whatever, while it is very injurious to the plants. It is folly to move the soil in which the roots of a plant are growing unless it is desired to check the growth of the plant. What is needed is intelligent shallow tillage. After every rain the crust that forms on the surface must be broken up, and any implement that runs one or two inches deep will accomplish that purpose. During a drought the surface of the soil gradually packs and forms a crust, and hence surface or shallow cultivation is as necessary as after a shower. Shallow cultivation will destroy weeds quite as effectively as deep, while it can be done with less than a fourth of the labor. The time to destroy weeds is just when they appear above the surface. Thorough tillage includes the destruction of all weeds as soon as they appear. Neither weeds nor grass of any sort should be allowed to rob the soil of one atom of its fertility. This involves watchfulness and labor, but not hard labor if the right kind of tools are used and used in time.

Thorough is simply intelligent tillage. A man must know his soil and then till it in the manner that experience and common sense show is best.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

RURAL MISCELLANY.

Plan to grow more grass and clover.

Study the requirements of the soil as well as of the market.

Select the crops with respect to their adaptability to the farm.

It is not only an item to increase quantity but to improve the quality of the crops.

Colts should be trained to walk fast before attempting to improve them in any other gait.

On the farm, as in any other line of business, it is an item to save labor and economize time.

Manure adds to the productiveness of land as soon as it is applied, but all of the substances will not be used up in one season.

The farm products should be put in the form in which they will bring the most money and yet leave the farm in the most productive condition.

While the farm may not always show large returns in the way of cash, yet with good management the farmer may be reasonably sure of a good living.

Continuous cropping without making an adequate return to the soil impoverishes the land and in the end will leave an unproductive farm on which to make a living.—Farmers' Union.

Balance for Grindstones.

One of the most satisfactory little improvements I have lately made is a balance on my grindstone. I turn with a treadle, operated by my foot, and this balance not only makes the stone turn easier, but also makes it run much steadier. To make the balance, I got a piece of iron about five-eighths of an inch thick, 3½ inches wide and 10 inches long. Had blacksmith punch a hole in iron 2½ inches from one end, of size to fit on grindstone shaft, on end opposite treadle. It should be put on so that long end of iron would be opposite the little crank that treadle is fastened to, so that when treadle is being pressed down by the foot the long end of iron will be going up and when the treadle is going up the weight of iron will be going down and help raise treadle, thus forming a balance.—Farmers' Union.

CORN A CHEAP FUEL.

It Pays to Burn It in Western States in These Times.

The existing plethora of corn, resulting in fabulously low prices, has occasioned much speculation as to its fuel value. There is such a diversity of opinion and so little actual knowledge regarding the profitableness of burning corn instead of coal that it seemed desirable to conduct a comparative test that would show the relative heating power of the two materials. The interests of the large number of people living in the region of cheap corn led to the determination of its most profitable use after it is upon the market by the authorities of the Nebraska agricultural college.

To make the test, a good grade of yellow dent corn, on the ear, of last year's crop, and not thoroughly dry, was burned under the boiler used to supply power for the department of practical mechanics, and the amount of water evaporated by the burning of a known quantity of corn was noted. The test lasted 9½ hours, and 5,232 pounds of corn and cob were consumed. The next day the same boiler was heated with screened Rock Springs nut coal, and the amount of water evaporated was recorded.

The data thus obtained show that one pound of coal evaporated 1.9 times as much water as one pound of corn. In other words, 1.9 times as much heat was liberated in burning one pound of coal as in burning one pound of corn. Several calorimeter tests were made which agreed very closely with these results.

The coal used cost at Lincoln $6.65 per ton. With coal selling at this price, and worth 1.9 times as much for fuel as an equal weight of corn, the fuel value of the latter would be $3.50 per ton, or 12.25 cents per bushel. The following table shows how much coal is worth per ton when its heating power is the same as that used in the experiment, and when corn is selling at a certain price per bushel:

Corn per bu.	Coal per ton
9 cents	$4 87
10 cents	5 41
11 cents	5 95
12 cents	6 49
13 cents	7 11
14 cents	7 57
15 cents	8 11

It will thus be seen that if this quality of coal were selling at less than $6.50 and corn were bringing 12 cents, it would not pay to burn corn, while coal must sell as low as $5.41 per ton to be as cheap fuel as corn at ten cents per bushel.

A very complete and thorough investigation of this subject is being conducted at the university. It was thought desirable, however, to publish the results already obtained, although they were based upon the performance of but one quality of coal. This coal is well known, and largely used in the state.

SIEVES ON THE FARM.

Useful in Sorting and "Sizing" Beans, Peas and Grain.

Few farms are fitted out with a proper assortment of sieves. When at hand they come into use almost every day in the year, and the owner wonders how he ever got along without them. They will sort and "size" various articles, beans, peas, grain, etc., and will clean the dirt out of many farm products. They will take out the coarsely-cracked corn for the older fowls, and separate the finer parts for the chicks, and so one might go on enumerating their conveniences.

Sieves are easily made. Get wire-cloth with mesh running from coarse to fine, and saw sections from grocery boxes for frames, on which to tack the wirecloth. Nail a small strip of wood over the edges and the sieve is complete. The cut shows a deep sieve with an arrangement for "sizing" an article into three or more grades. The sieve in the position indicated by the dotted lines is permanently fastened in place, and is very coarse in mesh. Below are two sliding frames with meshes finer and still finer. Thus with one shaking three, or even four, assortments can be made.—N. Y. Tribune.

Plowing Prevents Drought.

It will be found that where the soil is kept loose by plowing and cultivation its capacity for absorbing and holding water is much greater than where it is neglected. Thus every weed and surplus growth must be scrupulously kept down, as everything that grows is constantly drawing moisture from the soil. If we can get the upper and lower moisture in the soil to meet the battle is won, for the cultivation is favorable to the capillary action of the soil in drawing moisture from below, and cultivation will prevent its evaporation from the surface. If, however, there is a dry streak of soil a foot or more below the surface, vegetation will suffer accordingly.—Rural World.

Have Everything Bright.

Many farmers, when their fences have gone down, buildings need repairing, and everything on the place looks like a wreck, become disgusted and offer their farms for sale. Of course, such a place is not attractive, and if it finds a buyer will be sold at a discount. A few dollars expended for paint, whitewash, lumber and nails would add hundreds to its value, and, many times, after such a place is fixed up, courage returns to the would-be seller and he finds his farm a pleasant enough place for him to stay.—Rural World.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1888, Samuel Larzelere of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan, executed a mortgage to Sarah O. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee, Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plot in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1888, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 556.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty-four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. '97, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8, A. D. 1897.

SIGNALING FROM MARS.

Possibility of Communications from the Planet.

Any citizen who is tired of mundane concerns, and wants to fix his mind on something higher, is invited to consider the allegation of Sir Francis Galton, made in the London Fortnightly Review, that some one on Mars is signaling to earth. The information seems not as yet to be very generally confirmed by astronomical observers, but Sir Francis is quoted as authority for the report that in one of the European observatories an apparatus has been devised for recording the Martian flashes, and that the record shows that three signals and no more are made, and that they differ, as all flash-light signals do, in the length of the flashes and of the intervals between, so that if we had the key they might read like telegraphic messages.

Of course this is not a yarn to be swallowed whole, but the association of the name of Sir Francis Galton with it is enough to entitle it to consideration. There seems to be no intrinsic impossibility of our having relations with people in Mars. It sounds preposterous, of course, but, like other marvels, it seems preposterous chiefly because it is unusual. We have to nudge ourselves from time to time in this age of swift surprises, and remind ourselves that nothing that is new to us can possibly be more marvelous than many things that have grown familiar.

LI'S AUTOGRAPH.

It Was About to Be Used as a Prescription for Grip.

A Coventry young lady who collects autographs is the envy of her feminine acquaintances, says an exchange. She has secured the signature of the famous Li Hung Chang. The quaint inscription might be anything else, so far as the impression which it conveys to the Anglo-Saxon eye is concerned, but its authenticity is indisputable.

She had been suffering from influenza and the physician had left her a prescription. Her mother, after the doctor's departure, picked up a piece of paper and was almost out of the room when a cry of anguish arrested her.

"Be careful!" pleaded the daughter. "What are you going to do with that?"

"Are you delirious?" was the response.

"No; don't you see what you are handling in that careless way? It's Li Hung Chang's autograph."

Her mother looked at it carefully, laid it down and with a grave countenance said:

"My dear girl, you don't know what a narrow escape you have had. There is no telling what combination of drugs might have been doing deadly work if you had not spoken. I didn't notice the writing on the autograph carefully, or I might not have made the mistake; but I was just about to send it to the chemist to have it made up."

A Curious Compliment.

Recently the attorney-general of Belgium, in the course of an eloquent speech, paid the folowing curious compliment to the soporific power of the Belgian press: "In the evening, when sleep flies from our agitated eyelids, deaf to all our appeals, refractory to our wishes, what immense assistance we derive from the attentive reading of some grave and deep leading article, such as many a high-toned journal enriches its columns with. Under its soothing influence a salutary repose closes in upon us, and the enchanted cup of the queen of night pours down upon us its treasures, in obedience to the mysterious power of the press."

Emin Pasha's Will.

Emin Pasha's will, leaving his property to a daughter by his Abyssinian wife, has been declared valid by the supreme court of Berlin. It was contested by a woman who had bought up the rights of a Turkish woman claiming to be Emin's first and only legitimate wife.

NUMEROUS PETITIONS.

They Reach the Michigan Legislature in a Flood.

MANY DUMMY BILLS INTRODUCED

They Are Presented by Solons in Most Instances to Accommodate Some Friend—Increase in the Proportion of Old Soldiers as Janitors at the Capitol—The Michigan Mining School—County Salary Bill—Other Legislative News.

Lansing, Mich., March 30.—The casual observer or reader of legislative proceedings is invariably struck by the apparent spontaniety with which the people of the state petition for or remonstrate against a pending measure. This feature of legislationis remarked upon more than any other. A visitor to the lower house at the commencement of the daily sessions, who listens to the perfect flood of petitions which pour in from all sections of the state on this, that or the other subject, would be justified in concluding that the taxpayers of the state were sitting up nights to sign petitions. For the past few days many of these petitions have called for the enactment of the Wagar bill providing for the reduction of official salaries, and while it may be true that the people of the state are greatly interested in the passage of this bill, I am violating no confidence when I mention the fact that these petitions are the result of the work of a single individual, and that they but illustrate the method employed for working up an apparent showing of public sentiment for or against pending legislation. In substantiation of this assertion I need simply to affix a copy of a letter which was sent out over the state by the person referred to. It is as follows:

Office of State Tax Statistician, C. V. DeLand, Statistician.

Lansing, March 5, 1897.

Mr. ——

I send you today at the request of Senator Wagar a few petitions, which he wants put into the hands of friends to circulate. Will you please do this? His bill cuts down some of the big salaries as follows: Railroad commissioner to $2,000; bank commissioner to $2,000; the others and deputies to $1,500. Outside of these it is about 10 per cent. cut. The total salaries last year were $402,650, and a 10 per cent. cut will save the people about $40,000. It is good politics, in my opinion, to push it. Yours, etc.,

C. V. DELAND.

Not Just What They Seem.

Accompanying the letter were the petitions and circular letter covering the subject. This incident simply serves to show that all matters of legislation are not just exactly what they seem, and that one cannot tell from the number of petitions how many are really interested in a given subject.

One result of this particular bit of activity was the killing of the bill providing for the continuance of the office of state tax statistician, a fact which shows that it is not always safe to monkey with the buzz saw.

"Did you ever notice the numerous dummy bills that are introduced at every session of the legislature?" said a well-informed gentleman to me recently. "While they are, of course, introduced by legislators, these officials, in most instances, have no interest in them, but introduce them to accommodate some friend whose motives are not altogether what they should be. Possibly I can best convey the idea I have in mind by relating a story recently told me. At a recent session a gentleman requested a friend of mine, who was a member of the legislature, to introduce a certain bill in which the latter had no interest whatever, in fact it was a skelton bill with a proper enough appearing title. This much accomplished the party of the first part hied himself to a neighboring city and sought out the president of the corporation whose interests the bill was designed to disastrously affect, and called his attention to the bill. The result was that he was employed to lobby against the bill and kill it if possible. The latter was not a very difficult task. The legislator who introduced the bill had no desire to push it, so nothing was done concerning it, and along toward the end of the session the gentleman at whose request it was offered, informed the law-maker that the circumstances had so changed that there was no need for such a law as was proposed, consequently he did not care to have him do anything further in the matter, and the bill was never heard of again that session.

Joy Turned into Mourning.

"But there was a very amusing phase to the case," continued my friend. "Both the interested citizen and the bill bobbed up again at the next session, and the same programme was carried out, another legislator being prevailed upon to introduce the bill. Then the citizen made another journey to the place of residence of the corporation president, and informed him that that pesky bill had again been introduced. The visitor was greatly pleased when the president told him that he had read about the bill in the newspapers and was considerably worried over the situation. His joy was turned into mourning, however, when the president remarked that a number of years before he had been given to understand by one in whose judgment he had the utmost confidence, that a man who would permit himself to be kicked twice in the same place by the same mule was good for nothing else, and that he had, therefore, decided to employ some one else to kill the bill that year. And he did so."

Early in the present administration the board of state auditors created a grat deal of feeling in certain circles by laying down the rule that janitors, etc. about the capitol should be limited to a service of four years. They also made a cut in the wages of this class of employes. Considerable adverse comment was made on the fact that so many old soldiers were removed as the result of this order, and the board now takes much pleasure in stating that under the readjustment just completed, although the total number of this class of employes has been materially decreased, the proportion of old soldiers has been increased.

Much has been said since the commencement of the legislative session concerning the Michigan mining school, and the committees on that institution have made a careful investigation of its affairs. Chairman Kimmis, of the house committee, has prepared a report in which the institution is generally commended, although decided grounds are taken in favor of keeping it within the scope of the law creating it. That law provided for a mining school pure and simple, but its managers, it appears, have branched off in various directions with a view, apparently, to establishing a great university. The committee favors no further appropriations for other purposes than the teaching of mining engineering and protests emphatically against any further attempt to make this institution anything more than a school of mines. It is in favor of an appropriation for an assay building detached from the main building, and advocates the charging of a tuition fee to be graded so that the least amount shall be paid by pupils from this state, the next greater by pupils from other states, and the greatest amount by pupils from foreign countries. The board of managers have been somewhat harshly criticised for educating residents from other states and countries at the expense of the taxpayers of Michigan. There is no doubt that there will be a change in this regard.

The Kimmis county salary bill is still on the hooks, and from the fight that is being put up against it by county officials and their friends, it is evident that it is going to have harder sledding than was anticipated.

More Tasks for Maynard.

Two very important tasks have been put upon Attorney General Maynard during the past few days. He has been ordered to make a thorough investigaton of the affairs of the defunct Whitehall State Savings bank, of Whitehall, and the People's Savings bank, of Lansing. In the former case the depositors charged that the bank had been looted by its officials, who, it was alleged, loaned themselves on worthless securities or no security at all, practically all the funds of the bank. They also demanded that some one be punished for this wrongdoing, and the investigation is preliminary to the commencement of criminal proceedings against some of the officials. No such petition was made in the case of the Lansing bank, but Banking Commissioner Ainger was of the opinion that it was so much worse than the other, that he could not consistently recommend an investigation in one and not in the other. It is not believed that the depositors of either institution will realize to exceed 10 cents on the dollar of their claims, and Commissioner Ainger says that it is time that that the remaining bank officials of the state were given an object lesson that will impress upon them the fact that the laws on this subject were enacted with the intention that they should be obeyed, and that they cannot rob the people with impunity. It is alleged that, in both instances, the shortcomings included the making of false reports to the commissioner.

Amendments to Banking Law.

Commissioner Ainger has had introduced several bills amending the banking law in important particulars with a view to making the supervision of banks more thorough, thus insuring greater safety to depositors. Three of these measures have already passed one branch of the legislature, and both will become laws. One places all private banks or places where deposits are received under the supervision of the department. Another requires directors to make a sworn statement annually setting forth the face and actual value of every piece of paper or other asset of the bank. This will enable the commissioner to judge of the shrinkage of the value of the assets from time to time. A third amendment will permit the commissioner to examine a bank as many times each year as he sees fit. The present law calls for an annual examination. This will be amended so that these examinations shall be made at least once each year. Special examinations can now be made at any time, but as the law provides for but one regular examination, the suspicions of the public are always aroused when more than one is made, and this sometimes works injury to a perfectly sound bank. The amendment will obviate this difficulty.

Commissioner Just, who will take his office Thursday, will increase the number of state bank examiners and make much more frequent examinations than heretofore. General Ainger has been at the head of the department but four months, but he has made a most enviable record.

Public Health Legislation.

None of the bills affecting public health legislation have yet been acted upon by either house. The public health committee of the lower branch held a meeting a night or two ago for the purpose of considering bills of this nature in its posesssion, but no reports have yet been formulated. One bill agreed to, however, will define what shall be deemed communicable diseases dangerous to the public health, concerning which there has been considerable controversy between physicians and health authorities. It is proposed to have this question definitely settled so that all cases of these diseases may be reported and isolated.

Representative Anderson's bill is similar to one introduced in the senate two years ago. It provides that the secretary shall not be a member of the state board of health as has been the case since the board was established a quarter of a century ago. The bill was introduced by request, and having no interest in it Representative Anderson had its consideration postponed. Unless some one who is interested appears soonto urge its passage it will probably not be heard of again.

Wants More Money.

The state board has asked for an increased appropriation in order that it may perform additional work put upon it by recent legislatures. Two years ago a law was passed requiring the board to furnish data, instructions, pamphlets, etc., so that children in the public shools might be instructed in the modes of spreading disease and the best methods for stamping it out and restricting it. The board went ahead and did the work, supposing that the state board of auditors would pay the expense of printing, etc., but in this it was mistaken. Now it has reached a point where it will be unable to further comply with the law unless an appropriation for so doing is made. The work done in this direction last year has proved to be very valuable, both teachers and pupils entering into it with zest.

The bill to abolish the state board of health and substitute therefor a state health commission with restricted powers and duties, which came so near passing the house two years ago, has been introduced in the senate this year, but its chances of passing are slim.

MAYBURY WINS.

Democratic Candidate for Mayor Elected in Detroit.

Defeat of Stewart, Pingree's Candidate—Judge Long and Rest of Republican State Ticket Are Successful.

Detroit, Mich., April 6.—William C. Maybury, democrat, was elected mayor Monday by about 550 majority over Capt. Albert E. Stewart, republican. In view of Mr. Maybury's victory it is considered surprising that Judge John Miller, democratic candidate for police justice, was defeated by Judge Albert E. Sellers, republican, who was reelected by 1,000 majority. Maybury's election is looked upon as a decided defeat for Gov. Pingree, who practically named Capt. Stewart as his successor as mayor after the courts had overruled the governor's contention that he could hold both the offices of governor and mayor.

Returns received by the republican state central committee indicated that Charles D. Long, for justice of the supreme court, will have a plurality approximating 50,000. The republican candidates for regents of the university will fall a few thousand behind this figure. Judge Long's lead is attributed to the fact that Gov. Pingree persistently attacked the court for deciding against him in the mayoralty case, accusing the court of being bribed by the corporations, etc. In Detroit Judge Long led the Pingree candidate for mayor by 11,000.

Free Silver Sentiment Strong.

The vote was light and the free silver sentiment was shown in several of the cities more strongly than in the November election. This appears to have been especially true in the southern tier of counties. In a few cases on the votes for city officers republican majorities of last fall were turned into fusion victories. As usual the results as to local officers is considerably split up politically.

Out of 60 cities in which mayors were elected, the silver party carried 28, and the republicans 27. In five party lines were not drawn.

The returns on the proposition to increase the salary of the attorney general are meager, but indicate that the amendment has carried, the cities and upper peninsula being responsible for this probable result, the county districts voting against the increase.

Some Results.

Lansing—Davis (rep.) was elected mayor by 71 majority; a loss of 80 from 1896. The silverites gain three aldermen and clerk. The republican state ticket has a plurality of 119.

Bay City—McEwen (rep.), for mayor, elected with entire city ticket. Justice Long's majority, about 1,200.

Jackson—The city and county went heavily for silver. Loennecker, silverite, was elected mayor by 724. The fusionists get six out of eight aldermen.

Grand Rapids—Democrats claim to have carried the city for Judge Yaple by 350 majority. The city ticket is divided, the democrats gaining five aldermen, which gives them control of the common council.

Benton Harbor—The city republican ticket was elected. The state ticket has a heavy republican majority.

Saginaw—Fourteen of 15 city wards and nine of twenty-seven townships give the republican state ticket 3,550; democratic-silver ticket, 3,396. The fusion majority in the county will not exceed 400 to 500. Kerr (dem.), whose seat in the legislature had been declared vacant, was elected.

Marquette—J. K. Sherman, nominee for mayor of Marquette on the citizens' ticket, was elected by 175 votes over Dr. Alfred Desjardins, on the people's ticket. The issue was on the men. A fair vote was polled. In Ishpeming there were three tickets, republican, citizens' and labor tickets. Capt. James Trebilcock, the republican nominee, was elected by a plurality of 108. His hardest fight was against the labor ticket. In Negaunee there were two tickets, C. B. Kirkwood, running on the citizens' ticket, defeated the labor candidate by 65 votes. In all three cities the republican state ticket was victorious by a handsome majority.

Petoskey—Petoskey republicans elected M. F. Quaintance mayor and a majority of city officers. The net republican loss is 100 since November.

St. Joseph—The silver city ticket, with exception of treasurer, is elected by 37. The state republican ticket leads by 300.

Manistee—By nearly 300 majority Smurthwaite (dem.) is elected mayor, together with other city officers. The council will be republican. Manistee county went democratic on state ticket.

Muskegon—Muskegon elects A. F. Temple (rep.) mayor by 248; Pyke (dem.) treasurer, Sterenberg (rep.) justice by 275. The city was republican last fall by 700.

Battle Creek—The silver men elected Dr. Metcalf mayor by 509 majority, and carried the city ticket. Yaple has 400 majority. Last fall McKinley carried this city by 252 majority.

Niles—F. W. Richter (dem.) is reelected mayor. The republicans elect clerk, treasurer and one alderman. Democrats elect three aldermen. Yaple has big majority for supreme justice.

Menominee—The following city ticket was elected: William Holmes (rep.), mayor; Franklin H. Brown (dem.), treasurer; Thomas Breen (dem.), justice of the peace. The republicans elected four out of seven aldermen, and five out of seven supervisors. The state republican ticket was elected by 500 majority.

Sault Ste. Marie—Republicans elect mayor, treasurer, police justice, three aldermen; democrats, one alderman. Democrats make gains of over 300 from last fall on state ticket.

Adrian—Republicans elect entire city ticket except clerk. J. Will Kirk is elected mayor by 53 majority. John Mawdsley, silver democrat, elected clerk by 238 majority. Republican majority on Long for justice 332. Vote light.

Ann Arbor—Charles Hiscock was elected mayor. He was the republican nominee, but received the indorsement of the democratic party also, and so had no opposition.

Coldwater—The republicans elected their entire ticket with three exceptions. Sherman, silver candidate for mayor, has 91 majority. Silverites elect one alderman and one supervisor. Judge of Supreme Court Long carried the city by 65.

Escanaba—George Gallup defeated John O'Meara for mayor by 116 votes. Two democratic aldermen were elected. The state republican ticket was carried by a large majority. Amendment increasing the attorney-general's salary carried.

Marshall—Marshall elects the entire silver ticket, excepting two supervisors. State and county ticket about 100 majority.

Pontiac—The entire democratic ticket, headed by Kelly for mayor, is elected. The republicans elect four of five aldermen. The city gives a small republican plurality on the state ticket.

Ypsilanti—Democrats carry the city, electing Harding mayor by 194 majority and reversing the large republican majority of last year. Democrats elect three out of five aldermen, a gain of one. Republicans gain one supervisor.

SHERIFF IN TROUBLE.

Charged with Aiding a Prisoner to Escape.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—Gov. Black has made a requisition upon Gov. Pingree, of Michigan, for the custody of Edwin S. Furgeson, the sheriff of Lenawee county, Mich., who is charged with permitting Anton Christensen, arrested in New York city on the charge of embezzlement, committed in Michigan, to escape from custody after he had been turned over to the Michigan authorities by the police of New York city. It is charged that the sheriff was bribed to permit the prisoner to escape. Christensen is now held in New York as a witness. District Attorney Sampson, of Adrian, is also under the New York laws, amenable, his offense being the liberation of Christensen after the latter had been delivered into his custody by the police of New York city without returning him to Michigan to stand trial for alleged embezzlement.

New York, April 3.—District Attorney Olcott has practically decided to discharge Antony Christensen, the Dane who is wanted in Michigan for embezzlement, as both he and Gov. Black agree that the Michigan authorities, having voluntarily released him, cannot extradite him, as he is not now a fugitive from justice. Assistant Prosecutor Sampson, of Lenawee county, Mich., will be put on trial under the indictment charging him with aiding in the escape of a prisoner. Gov. Pingree, of Michigan, and Gov. Black have had an extended correspondence concerning the merits of the case. The Michigan governor is satisfied that the New York authorities could not legally turn Christensen over to the Michigan police. He believes that a serious error has been committed by Prosecutor Bird, of Lenawee county, in this case, and has ordered an investigation.

Lansing, April 4.—Attorney-General Maynard has not yet advised Gov. Pingree what he should do about granting the requisiton of the governor of New York for the person of Sheriff Ferguson, of Lenawee county, who is wanted in New York for aiding a prisoner charged with a felony to escape. The prisoner is Anton Christensen, who was wanted for embezzlement. The attorney-general conferred with District Attorney Olcott, of New York, over the long-distance telephone Saturday, explaining that the Michigan authorities were as anxious as those of New York to have the criminal laws enforced. He said that Sheriff Ferguson was a good officer, who, although he did wrong, acted under instructions, and that it would be unjust to take him back as a criminal. Then he said that the state of Michigan apologized to the state of New York for the ill-advised and improper conduct of the officials of Lenawee county in releasing Christensen, and declared that the state of Michigan repudiated it.

Mr. Olcott asked on his part what the Michigan people were going to do about the requisition of Sheriff Ferguson, who allowed Christensen to escape. The attorney-general said if Mr. Olcott would not turn over Christensen he was afraid they would have to keep Ferguson. Mr. Olcott asked the attorney-general to take no action in the matter until a letter which he proposed sending him today, fully setting forth his views, could reach Lansing. Mr. Olcott said he did not want to punish Ferguson severely, but would, if he was returned here for trial, ask the court to impose a nominal fine. What he wanted to do was to establish a precedent.

AFTER THE MONEY.

Topinabee Indians Want the Pottawatomies to Divide.

Petoskey, April 4.—William Jones Petoskey, chief of the Topinabee band of Indians living east of here, is pushing his claim to a share of the $200,000 to be distributed among the Pottawatomies. He claims that he and his followers, are straight Pottawats and that they were frozen out half a generation ago and forced to emigrate. The Pottawatomies, on the other hand, claim that the Topinabee band are mixed Miamis and Chippewas. The band numbers 68 and would be entitled to about one-fourth of the division if their claim is established. Local business men are much interested in the outcome, for $50,000 or $60,000 in the hands of such people means a rush of business.

Large Sale of Lumber.

Menominee, April 2. — The largest lumber sale of the season has just been closed. The Northern Supply company, which is auxiliary to the Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad company, has sold 18,000,000 feet of logs to the Kirk-Christy Lumber company, of Cleveland, O. The lumber is to be manufactured at the first named company's mill at Fisher. The sale includes the lumber in stock at present and the rest of the year's cut.

College Safe Robbed.

Lansing, April 7. — At 12 o'clock Tuesday night the safe in the office of Secretary Butterfield, at the Agricultural college, was blown open. The burglars got away with about $2,000.

ANOTHER SETBACK.

Pingree's Pet Railroad Measure Antagonized.

Adverse Reports on the Lower Fare and Taxation Bills—They Will Be Taken Up for Consideration by the House April 13.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, April 5.—Adverse reports were made in the lower house of the Michigan legislature upon the Pingree bills which have been making life uncomfortable for railroad men ever since the legislature convened. The action of the committee is quite a setback to the Pingree plans. One of the bills reported adversely provides for a reduction of passenger fares to two cents per mile in the lower peninsula and three cents in upper Michigan. Another provides for the taxation for local purposes of the right of way and buildings of railway companies. April 13 has been set for the consideration of the measures and the most interesting discussion of the session is anticipated. It is doubtful if either bill becomes a law, although both may possibly pass the house.

The house railroad committee reported favorably on the bicycle bill of Representative Anderson with an amendment. It provides that each passenger shall be entitled to one bicycle to be included in the term personal baggage and compels the railroads to provide suitable racks for the wheels in the baggage cars, beyond which they shall not be liable for any damages to the wheels that may arise.

The senate has passed a bill repealing a law providing for the sale of admission tickets by prison authorities. The senators were unanimous in voting that prisoners should not be regarded as a prize lot of curios for exhibition purposes.

A substitute has been reported to the house for what is known as the W. C. T. U. anti-cigarette bill, about which there is some doubt as to constitutionality. It provides that it shall be a misdemeanor for the minor under 17 years purchasing cigarettes or tobacco, as well as the seller, and provides a graded scale of monetary penalties for the first, second and third offenses, after which they shall be deemed incorrigibles and sentenced to jail or the industrial home for boys.

A substitute has been reported to the house for the Chamberlain anti-prize fight bill, which prohibits the reproduction of any prize fight or fistic encounter by means of a biograph, vitascope, kinetoscope or any such device, and provides a penalty for violation of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000 fine, or imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than two years, at the discretion of the court.

Gustin's bill for the appointment of guardians over habitual drunkards and persons using narcotics, with power to have them confined in the proper asylums, passed the house committee of the whole, as did Representative Graham's bill providing for the appointment of a state inspector of nurseries and orchards to prevent the introduction and spread of the San Jose scale.

Representative Donovan's curfew bill passed the house committee of the whole without opposition. It provides that children between eight and sixteen years of age must not be allowed on the streets between 9:30 p. m. and 5:30 a. m. from April to November and from eight p. m. to 6:30 a. m. from November to April. Violations of the law are punishable by a fine of two dollars, or the violators may be treated as disorderly persons.

The senate is against postal savings banks and refused to pass Senator Hostwick's joint resolution calling upon Michigan's congressional delegation to favor a law establishing such a system.

The oleomargarine bill was passed by the house by a vote of 50 to 19.

Sawmills Begin Operations.

Menominee, April 7.—Two mills of the Kirby Carpenter company began sawing Tuesday morning. Over 400 men are employed. The two mills have a daily capacity of about 325,000 feet of lumber. Two more of the river mills will start up to-day. Reports from Fisher are to the effect that the big log jam at that place is broke, and that logs are on the move at a lively rate, with good head of water behind them.

Hoar's Liabilites Grow.

Houghton, Mich., April 5. — The liabilities of Richard M. Hoar, who assigned Tuesday, continue to grow and may reach $125,000. The prospects are not favorable for the creditors to realize more than 50 cents on the dollar. Mr. Hoar has tendered his resignation as mayor to the common council, which tabled the document and will meet later to consider the matter.

Baseball Season Opens May 1.

Lansing, April 5.—The directors of the Michigan State League of Baseball clubs, who have been in session at Lansing trying to arrange a schedule, have at last completed their work. Under the schedule adopted Kalamazoo will play 14 Sunday games, Lansing 15, Jackson 14, Bay City 15 and Saginaw 19. The season opens May 1.

How Animals Dispose of Injured Companions.

A. C. Heflinger tells in the American Field how an old fox hound was done to death by the pack of which it was a member. The hound was called Clay, and was owned by N. O. Pope, who kept it in the White Oak Hill kennel at Poland, Me. The dog was a prize taker, and always got a place when it ran in the annual trials of the Brunswick Fur club. After the annual hunt at Brunswick, Me., in which Clay proved better than all the younger hounds, the dog was taken back to Poland and put in the yard with the rest of the pack. McGregor, keeper of the hounds, heard a row in the yard, and coming down, found that the pack had pitched upon the champion hound and killed it by chewing its throat and chest. Wolves have been known to kill their fellows in a similar manner. A wolf showing signs of pain is set upon and killed by its comrades. A male fox, when it finds a female fox in a trap, attacks and kills it. A cow bellowing with pain is set upon by the herd and gored to death. Whether the attacks are to aid the one in pain or not is not known by students of natural history.

An exceedingly handsome and costly diamond badge has been made by Roehm & Son, jewelers of Detroit, to be presented by Postmaster-General Wilson to President-elect McKinley on the evening of March 3, on behalf of the Sigma Alpa Epsilon fraternity, of which Mr. McKinley is an active member. It is the regulation badge of the fraternity surrounded by 16 specially selected large blue white diamonds. The convention of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity which was held in St. Louis Christmas week, decided to present Mr. McKinley with the fraternity badge, and a special committee was appointed to look after the matter. A delegation of the fraternity will attend the inauguration when President McKinley will wear the gift of the fraternity.

An Old Loaf.

The Soar family, of Ambaston, Derbyshire, England, have a curious heirloom in the shape of a loaf of bread that is now over 600 years old. The founders of the family, it appears, were great friends of King John. When that monarch died he made several land grants to the Soars. One of these tracts, it appears, had always been conveyed with a loaf of bread along with the "writings," and the deed and the loaf are both kept to this day as sacred relics.

GETTING READY

Every expectant mother has a trying ordeal to face. If she does not get ready for it, there is no telling what may happen. Child-birth is full of uncertainties if Nature is not given proper assistance.

Mother's Friend

is the best help you can use at this time. It is a liniment, and when regularly applied several months before baby comes, it makes the advent easy and nearly painless. It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects.

Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

IN CONGRESS.

Work of Our Lawmakers in the Extra Session.

Matters of Importance Brought Before the Senate and House—Brief Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

Washington, April 1.—The senate began voting yesterday upon the miscellaneous amendments to the Anglo-American arbitration treaty. An amendment was adopted providing that all questions of national policy, the Monroe doctrine, etc., shall be eliminated from the treaty, and all subjects proposed to be submitted to arbitration shall be first submitted to the senate, and be agreed to by a two-thirds vote of that body.

Washington, April 2.—The tariff bill passed by the house was received by the senate yesterday and referred to the finance committee. A resolution was introduced declaring that the United States should accord both parties to the conflict in Cuba full recognition as belligerents. The arbitration treaty was further discussed. Adjourned to the 5th.

Washington, April 6.—The senate yesterday by unanimous vote adopted a resolution reciting the reports that Gen. Rivera, the Cuban commander, is about to be tried by drum-head court-martial and shot, and declaring that, if these reports are true, the president of the United States should protest to the Spanish government against such a violation of the rules of civilized warfare. The bankruptcy bill was further discussed.

Washington, April 7. — The sundry civil and Indian appropriation bills were reported to the senate yesterday. The resolution of Senator Morgan (Ala.) declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba and recognizing both parties as belligerents, was discussed and the bankruptcy bill was further considered.

The House.

Washington, April 1.—The object for which President McKinley called the Fifty-fifth congress to meet in extraordinary session a fortnight ago, was accomplished yesterday, so far as the house is concerned, when the vote on the Dingley tariff bill was announced by Speaker Reed—yeas, 205; nays, 121; answering present and not voting, 21. The affirmative vote was composed of 199 republicans, 5 democrats and 1 populist, and the negative vote comprised 117 democrats and 4 populists and fusionists. An amendment was also adopted giving immediate effect to the law.

Washington, April 2.—In the house yesterday no business was transacted.

Washington, April 3.—There was a brief session of the house Saturday, followed by an adjournment to next Wednesday. The only business transacted was the adoption of the senate resolution providing for chattering a vessel to carry donations of food to the famine sufferers of India. Representative Corliss (Mich.) introduced a joint resolution to revoke all the orders extending the application of the civil service laws which were made by President Cleveland during his last administration. Mr. Corliss thinks that the power to revoke the presidential orders rests with congress or the president, but says that President McKinley should not be called upon to rescind the acts of his predecessor.

An Old Soldier Dead.

Watertown, N. Y., April 7.—Paul Raymond Kendall is dead at Canton, St. Lawrence county, aged 75 years. He was the first president of the Lombard university at Galesburg, Ill. At the outbreak of the civil war he raised several regiments in Illinois. He served as quartermaster of the One Hundred and Twentieth Missouri cavalry under Gen. Hatch. For a year after the war he was stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He was at one time principal of the Clinton Liberal institute at Clinton, N. Y.

MRS. KATE ETTER wrote from Neosho, Mo., in March last. "Two years ago I was severely troubled with my stomach and kidneys, and a great affliction so unnerved me that my condition became alarming. The telegraph brought a prominent physician in a consultation which resulted in no benefit. I went to Wyoming for change of climate without benefit, was brought back to Atchison where nurses worked with me night and day to keep me alive to reach my friends here. TECUMSEH, MICH., APRIL 9. 1897.

The HERALD is always pleased to print communications signed by the parties who write them, and this week presents the following interesting articles all bearing on an editorial in this paper issue of March 12.

Detroit, April 2nd, 1897.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Under date of March 12, you referred in an editorial to the oil and coal trusts, together with an inquiry as to what the new administration was going to do with the trusts. They probably will do as in the past, allow them the same special privileges as heretofore and assess them for campaign expenses and receive their support at election.

You say truly that the only thing that saves us from paying two prices for kerosene and gasoline, was that the Lord provided such an abundance, new wells being constantly discovered, and that even the Lord cannot save us from the coal trust as the coal barons and railroads own all the mines.

In this above reference you have hit upon the origin and terribly destructive power of trusts, i. e., the private monopoly of natural resources. Under our present system, a syndicate bores wells and drills for oil. When they have done this, they then see it to their advantage to control the supply of oil by buying up all the oil fields attainable, thus as effectually shutting out competition as if the industry was a patented secret. The land, the source of all wealth from which all must come in the hands of such corporations, gives them the power they have.

Now, Mr. Editor, supposing we tax those lands upon which these wells are to their full value, what would be the result? Would it not become unprofitable to buy up and hold out of use such lands? Who would be so foolish? As a result, competitions would be open and the price of oil would be regulated by natural means.

We assert that the land is the gift of the Creator to all his children, that each must have this equal right to the use of the earth or our boasted freedom is but a hollow mockery. We assert that what is created by the individual belongs to the individual, and what the community creates belongs to the community.

Now it is evident that the value of land, expressed in its rental or selling value, depends upon the presence of society, increases as society increases in numbers, improvements and material progress.

We propose to take this unearned increment for the benefit of the whole people and thus establish a reign of justice and prevent the formation of the above referred to trusts.

This is the single tax system.

Respectfully,
JOHN SHILLODY.

Detroit, March 31, 1897.

EDITOR HERALD:—

I read in your paper of March 12th, an editorial commenting on trusts and monopolies. You state that the Lord has saved this country and its people from paying two prices for kerosene oil. Now do you not think since the Lord has shown such wisdom in providing such an abundance of oil, coal and other things upon which mankind depends for his existence, that man should begin to play his part? If the Lord has not made any provision by which he could keep standard oil trusts from buying up all the oil lands in this country, has he not bestowed upon mankind a means by which they can destroy such trusts? I answer, yes, and that is the single tax applied to land values.

Single tax will save this country and its people from kerosene oil trusts, coal trusts, iron trusts or any other kind of trusts, and single tax alone will do it. Single tax, applied to land values will make it unprofitable for these great combinations to buy up all the oil, coal and iron lands, and hold them out of use, thereby restricting competition.

I am glad to see that your paper is fearless enough to speak of such subjects. I hope, sir, you will let the good work go on, that you will seek a remedy, and, as I believe the single tax is the remedy, I hope I have not been too bold in advising you of such.

I am, sir,

Very truly, JOE. BARROW.

302 Lieb St.

Johnson, Neb., Mch. 29, '97.

EDITOR HERALD:—

How shall we destroy trusts? is a question which the thinking men and women desire answered. That the monopoly of certain industries has led to prices beyond those made by free competition, is clearly seen.

The Lord has given men all the bounties of nature, coal mines and oil wells, and He has given us laws of nature which, if we follow, will not promote trusts, but give to each equal access to his storehouse. As population increases, land values go up, and by land is meant the raw material which was put here for the use of all, whether it be the land without the mineral resources or with them, and if we take the value created by the community for it instead of allowing it to go to private individuals, no one could monopolize the coal bed or oil well.

We can do this by a tax on land values making it unprofitable to withhold from use any of these natural opportunities to labor. In an open market, competition will bring the price of products now governed by trusts within the reach of all.

Are we so blind to nature's laws we cannot see how much superior they are to the existing man-made laws? Why not discover these truths instead of trying to invent some of our own?

Every insect and bird is happy in his home and nest, but man, whom God created in His own image, endowed with intelligence and given the command over these inferior animals, is suffering amidst plenty and sinks into the lowest depths of immorality and servitude. Will he let these conditions continue, or will he arise and demand his rights, the right to the use of the land? The single tax will give him his natural rights. Under it, industry will be promoted and trusts will die a natural death.

Yours for humanity,
MAMIE BOECK.

Burlington, Iowa.

TO THE EDITOR:—

The HERALD of March 12 contains an editorial on the trusts, stating among other truths the following: "The Lord has saved this country from paying two prices for kerosene oil, because there were so many places where oil could be found, but even the Lord has no control over the hard coal business, for the trusts and the railroads own all the mines."

I beg space to inform your readers that there is one practical, just and effectual way to deal with the trusts and other monopolies, by which we can make it impossible for them to own or control more mines, wells or other natural opportunities than they can use for the benefit of all the people.

The way is through a tax upon land values, irrespective of improvements, to the exclusion of every other tax, direct and crooked. That value which attaches to land because of the growth and improvement of the community, should be taken for the use of the government,—local, state and national,—taken in accordance with the letter and spirit of the constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 2,—taken in the way in which Lincoln gathered the "quotas" of men for the Union armies, in a simple and inexpensive manner. The value of land and the necessity for government are both the result of population and the revenue of ground rent from the one should pay the cost of the other.

If in force in Tecumseh, the single tax would lower rent, raise wages, encourage industries, equalize opportunities, and thereby benefit all (except land speculators, as such). It would compel investments in improvements; for every individual controlling natural opportunities would have to either utilize land by the employment of labor, or abandon it to others. It would thus provide work for all, and secure to each the full reward of his labor. It would, as a result, abolish involuntary poverty and the greed, intemperance and vice that spring from poverty and the fear of it. It would return all future rise in land values into the public treasury, where it justly belongs, instead of as at present into the hands of land speculators.

Of this great moral reform with a fiscal name, the London Times said, "It must be either accepted or refuted." It is being rapidly accepted in Glasgow, Manchester Toronto, Victoria, B. C. and is in partial operation in New Zealand, where labor is less subjected to oppression than anywhere else within the influence of our so-called civilization. The single tax is direct, honest, equitable; the McKinley plan is sneaking, crooked, unjust—plucking the goose in such ways as to "get the maximum of feathers with the minimum of squawking."

The people surely have intelligence sufficient to direct them in the proper way to freedom and prosperity.

J. HAGERTY.

Springvalley, Ill., April '97.

EDITOR HERALD:—

My attention has been called to an editorial in your paper, in which you make the remark that it is of interest to everybody what the new administration is going to do with the trusts. It goes without saying that a party which has been put into power through the influence of the great corporations and trusts, is not going to enact any laws which would be detrimental to the interests of those who placed them there.

In regard to the Lord keeping down the price of kerosene and gasoline, if you would read a book entitled "Wealth Against Commonwealth," by Henry Loydd, of Chicago, I am under the impression that you would very materially alter your opinion about the part He has had in the business. There is no doubt but that the Lord has the power if he chooses to exercise it, to control all the trusts and combines in the country, but the Bible never relates any instance of the Lord doing anything for man that he was able to do for himself. When the angel went into the prison and woke Peter by striking the chains from his hands, he did nothing more but told him to rise up quickly and gird himself and bind his sandals on his feet. So in like manner the power to control all the trusts, by whatever name they may be called, is in the hands of the people if they only know how to use it.

The Declaration of Independance says that "all men are created equal and endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which is the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Now it is a self evident fact that the right to life carries also with it the right to the free and equal use of that source by which life is sustained, viz., the land, but which, by our laws, has been reduced to private ownership, which is a direct contradiction to the law of God, as no man or set of men has any right morally either to give or sell anything which cannot be produced by man's labor. You know that land, (meaning by that term every natural opportunity for the production of wealth) is created by God for the equal use of all His creatures, but as it has been nearly all appropriated by a few, it now has become a necessity to devise some plan whereby the people can get back their lost heritage. For that purpose the single tax has been devised, which means that all taxes shall be taken off the products of labor and placed instead on the value of the land; then no one, be they trust or individual, could hold land out of use, as they would have to pay the full rental value of the land whether they used it or not, consequently they would either have to use it or give it up to those who would, and the result would be that there would be abundant opportunities for labor to exert itself to procure all the wealth it desired and would receive all it produced. I would advise you to study the single tax by reading "Progress and Poverty," by Henry George, of New York; likewise his "Condition of Labor," and then you will see that the remedy for hard times, though simple, is quite effectual. Yours for equity.

WM. COULSON.

Spring is the time for photography and the April number of the Photographic Times is even more interesting than ustal. It contains articles concerning "Night Photography" "Inexpensive Enlarging," "Color Photography" and many other things, all of interest to photographic people.

Among other interesting and striking features, the April number of The Forum will contain "Has the Senate Degenerated?" by Senator George F. Hoar; "Arbitration the only Solution of the Financial Problem," by Allen Ripley Foote; "Retrenchment—or Ruin?" by Hon. J. Sterling Morton, Ex-Secretary of Agriculture; "The United States and Cuba," by Henri Rochefort, and "The Futility of the Spelling Grind," by Dr. J. M. Rice.

The April number of The Arena is fully up to the average. In the opening article Governor Pingree, Mayor of Detroit, continues the discussion of Municipal Reform begun in the March number by Mayor Quincy, of Boston. Mayor Pingree, in his breezy paper, affirms that "contracts are the center and almost the entire circumference of municipal government," and that "almost all the bribes of serious influence in municipalities are given for contracts." His remedy is the letting of contracts referendum, or direct popular vote.

"Does Modern College Education Educate, in the Broadest and most Liberal Sense of the Term?" is one of the most important inquiries that could be set on foot. This discussion which is to be taken part in by the presidents of Jonns Hopkins, Yale, Cornell and other leading colleges, Bishop Potter and others of the most distinguished men of both the United States and Europe: is begun in the April Cosmopolitan by a radical inquiry into the educational problem along the lines of Herbert Spenser. President Gilman, of Johns Hopkins, will follow in a direction almost equally searching.

The church parade, the park orators, sidewalk artists and out-door players give him just the range of types best suited to his pencil Every article deepens the impression that Gibson knows how to write tersely and picturesquely, suggesting in few words the atmosphere of his pictures.

Mrs. Minerva Westcott

Was born Dec. 23rd, 1822, at Romulus, N. Y. When five years old she came with her parents to Coldwater, Mich. From there she came to this place, her people settling on the place west of town known as the Stitt farm. Her father was a blacksmith, starting the first shop in this place. In 1842 she married Hiram Westcott. To this union were born six children, all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. Five of them are left to mourn her loss.

Hers was a long life, a life of patient and earnest labor for others. Her face has made more endurable many a sick room. Her circle of friends is as large as her acquaintance. On the passing of such a one we can but say, "May the memory of her goodness brighten as the years go by, brighten as her peacefulness and trust deepened with advancing age."

Ed Everett had a miraculous escape from serious injury if not death Tuesday. He was cleaning away from under a flour bolt when the left sleeve of his jacket was caught in the rollers and his arm drawn in. Fortunately the belt was a little loose and his jacket of strong material so that it stopped the machinery for a second, time enough for him with his right hand to catch a wheel and turn the rollers back and extricate the arm, and then the machinery worked as usual. Had it not been for the looseness of the belt he would have lost an arm at least. As it was it is badly bruised but Ed rejoices that no permanent injury was done.

The alarm of fire Saturday was occasioned by the old house used as a storehouse by Heesen & Co. taking fire. By the time the hose cart was on the ground the fire was well started and many thought the old building doomed, but after connections were made and water turned on, it did not take long to extinguish the flames and what might have been a disastrous conflagration averted, again demonstrating the efficiency of our system.

Mr. Comfort Chase and Miss Lydia Keck surprised their large circle of friends Wednesday evening by quietly going to the Baptist parsonage, accompanied only by Mr. and Mrs. Don Bowen, and, with the assistance of Rev. B. S. Hudson, taking upon themselves the marriage vows. Miss Keck has been one of Miss Hough's most popular assistants and Comfort is one of Tecumseh's sterling young men. Congratulations are now in order.

A NEW PLANT BOX.

Just the Thing for Transplanting All Kinds of Vegetables.

The new style of box shown herewith I have been using for a number of years and find it just the thing to transplant tomatoes, peppers or, in fact, any vegetable plant that is desired to put on the market early and get an extra price for. I use the boxes principally for early tomatoes, transplanting into them about ten days before I wish to market the plants. Tomatoes, peppers, asters and phloxes are transplanted for the third time into these boxes, and I get from three to five cents apiece for them, whereas if I sold them out of flats I would only get 15 cents per dozen. As to the cost of this box: The material is such as is used in making the common market basket. Have it cut 2½ inches in width and 6½ inches in length, tapering on the sides from each end for 2½ inches, thus leaving the center 1½ inches square. Now score them for folding. To put all together take a three by three-quartering, any length you wish, tapering the end to correspond with the taper of the box. Fasten a plate of iron on the top so that the tacks will clinch. Make a hoop of wire to slip over the end to hold the splints while the hoop is wrapped and nailed. The hoops should be three-eighths of an inch wide and ten inches long.

Made in this way the boxes will nest together, and can be made at any time for future use. The cost will not exceed 25 cents per 100 boxes. Material can be had at any basket factory.

Such a box can be used for layering strawberry plants. It makes a cheap, neat package, and people like to buy plants put up in this shape. They can be then transplanted into the garden without a setback. I put up thousands of tomato plants in boxes, each holding half a dozen or a dozen, and also do up single plants to put on the market. Vegetables grown in pots are too expensive to the grower. This box is also a package that your customer can take home easily, and he does not have to set it out until his soil is in fit condition. There is no patent on this—I give it for the good of the plant culturist. As shown in the sketch the plant is small for the size of the box.—E. W. Turner, in American Gardening.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

The garden must be mellow, rich and kept clean.

Sawdust is good mulch for all kinds of small fruits.

If done early, spring is the best time to set out trees and plants.

Strawberries, if well mulched, are less affected by change of weather.

After the orchard is in bearing it does not pay to continue to crop it.

All pruning and transplanting should be done before the leaves start out well.

"Poultry for the plum trees and swine for the apple orchard" is a good rule.

A safe rule with flower seed is to plant them about five times their diameters.

Tobacco water is one of the best remedies to destroy bugs and worms on rose bushes.

Resin and tallow in equal parts make a good covering for wounds made in pruning fruit trees.

Starvation and neglect are the great causes of unfruitfulness with many unprofitable orchards.

One advantage in using commercial fertilizers in the garden is their freedom from weed seeds.

Small fruit growing may not pay the farmer away from market, but he can grow fruit for his own use.

Only well rotted manure should be used in the potato patch, and it should be well worked in with the soil.

Keep all dead and faulty limbs cut off of fruit trees as a protection against further decay.—St. Louis Republic.

The Cultivation of Sage.

Sage will bear transplanting, and can be thickly sown in boxes and transferred afterward to the open ground as a second crop after peas or spinach. By this method the loss by poor seed is avoided, for sometimes the seed will not come up well. If sowed in drills, the labor of caring for the young plants till full grown is considerable. The plants should stand in rows one foot apart and six inches between the plants in the rows. The plant can be cut down near the roots and spread out to dry; or if raised for the market, the leaves should be picked off and dried. Sage is good for several years if protected from the cold in winter by a light covering. The seeds are produced the second year and each year thereafter.—Dakota Field and Farm.

THE FARM GARDEN.

How to Keep the Ground Occupied from Spring to Fall.

The garden is the most productive acre of the farm. If it is not, it should be made so. It is the most indispensable part of farm life. Half of our living should come from our garden in summer. Not one-half the country people make an effort to have a garden. There are some that start out well in the spring, sow an abundance of seed and never look at the garden again until they think it is time they should have results. They take a look and cannot find any for the weeds have covered the little plants. Then they come to the conclusion that the seed did not grow. They say all sorts of things about the seedsmen, and mow off the weeds and wait until another spring, when they go through the same process. Now this is all wrong. To keep the garden clean we should begin early and continue the cultivation until fall. It is impossible to destroy all the weeds while we are cultivating the early vegetables. Little patches of weeds around the garden will produce seed enough to seed the whole garden next year. We should try to plan so as to keep all the ground occupied in the garden. It will require but little more labor to cultivate a cabbage or turnip in a vacant place than simply to cultivate to keep down the weeds. You can sow lettuce in July and it will be nice in the fall. Cabbage and turnip can be transplanted into the ground where the early peas and potatoes have grown; or you can set celery and beets for winter use. Keep all the ground occupied. If clean cultivation is given, as should be done, the weeds will be killed out and at the same time a good crop secured. Thinning out plants is an important matter in gardening; beets and carrots will not grow to any size if left too thick. No vegetable but the onion will stand crowding. If the soil is rich enough onions will grow to a good size when five or six stand together; they will crowd each other out of the ground all but the roots and will bottom nicely. The onion maggot destroys onions badly; a good remedy is to take the soil away from the bulbs no matter if the little onions tip over; so long as the roots are in the ground they are all right. By doing this the fly has no chance to put its eggs on the stalks and then there are no maggots in the bulbs.—Mrs. J. W. Ferres, in Farm and Home.

CULTURE OF MELONS.

Their Successful Growth Requires Lots of Plant Food.

Watermelons are excessive feeders, and many fail in attempting to grow them because they do not furnish sufficient plant food to supply the necessary strength for vigorous vine and fine fruit. Not infrequently watermelon vines turn yellow and die when they should be just in their prime, simply from plant starvation.

I prepare the ground as for corn. Lay off in rows 12 feet apart each way. I dig a hole about 1½ feet deep and perhaps three feet in diameter. In the bottom of this I put a peck or more of good stable manure, tramping it lightly. Next put in a layer of soil, and follow with a layer made up of equal parts of soil and fine rich manure thoroughly mixed, and lastly, where the seeds are to be placed, another layer of pure soil. Sow seeds thickly and cover about one inch. When the second or third leaf shows, thin out two or three plants in the hill. If exceptionally large melons, regular "prize takers," are desired, thin to but one plant in the hill. I cultivate about as I do corn, hoeing each hill after an entire patch is plowed. If very dry, cultivate often, particularly about the hills. It is some trouble to thus prepare the ground, but it more than pays in the size, number and quality of melons produced, also in the increased length of time that the vines are in bearing, as they remain green and in good condition until killed by frost. —Orange Judd Farmer.

WATERING THAT PAYS.

Simple System of Sub-Irrigation for Flower Beds.

The experiments that have been tried in introducing water freely below beds of growing plants have proved conclusively the value of this kind of watering. The cross section given herewith shows how one may readily try this experiment for himself this spring. Select the spot where a small bed is to be devoted to foliage or other plants, and sink an empty keg in the center just below the position of the coming roots. Fit an old piece of tin pipe, as suggested in the sketch, and your "irrigating plant" is ready for business! Not only can water be thus freely applied, but liquid manure also. The keg, it should be said, should not be one that will "hold water."—Orange Judd Farmer.

A Profitable Garden Crop.

Spinach is an important crop in our market gardens and one of the most easily managed of vegetables, requiring but little culture, and may be had fit for use the entire season. The main crop is sown in August or September for spring use, and, although extremely hard, requires to be protected by a light covering of hay or straw during the winter. For summer use it may be sown at intervals of two or three weeks, from April to August. Spinach is best developed and most tender and succulent when grown in a rich soil.

Currants and gooseberries need an annual pruning to remove useless wood.

POSTS OF HONOR.

President McKinley Makes Several Important Appointments.

Washington, April 6.—The president Monday sent to the senate the following nominations:

State—Alfred E. Buck, of Georgia, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Japan; James Boyle, of Ohio, consul of the United States at Liverpool, England; S. S. Day, of Connecticut, consul of the United States at Bradford, England; Fenton R. McCreary, of Michigan, secretary of the legation of the United States at City of Mexico.

War—Brig. Gen. Frank Wheaton, to be major general.

[Alfred E. Buck, the new minister to Japan, has been for some time the recognized head of the republican party in the state of Georgia. He supported Mr. McKinley for the presidential nomination, and by hard work won over the Georgia delegates to his way of thinking, a number of them being inclined towards Mr Reed. Mr. Buck went south from Maine shortly after the war, and during reconstruction days represented the Mobile (Ala.) district in congress. He subsequently went to Georgia, and was clerk of the United States circuit and district courts for the northern district of Georgia until 1889. In that year he was appointed United States marshal for the northern district of Georgia by President Harrison. He held this position four years.]

Washington, April 7.—The president Tuesday sent to the senate the following nominations:

Treasury—Alonzo J. Tyler, of Tennessee, to be collector of internal revenue for the Second district of Tennessee; Park Agnew, of Virginia, to be collector of internal revenue for the Sixth district of Virginia.

Navy—Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, to be assistant secretary of the navy; Capt. A. S. Crowninshield, United States navy, to be chief of the bureau of navigation in the department of the navy; Rev. William G. Cassard, of Maryland, to be chaplain in the navy.

NOTED FORGER CAUGHT.

Z. T. Lewis, Captured in Michigan, Taken to Urbana, O.

Urbana, O., April 7.—Z. T. Lewis, who became a fugitive from justice two years ago after committing a series of the most daring forgeries ever attempted in this state, was brought back to Urbana Tuesday night from Ypsilanti, Mich., where he was arrested Monday night. Lewis is a physical wreck. Constant worry has undermined his constitution and he is suffering severely from nervous prostration and rheumatism. Lewis, who had been counted a shrewd financier, confined his forgeries to county and school district bonds. The forgeries amounted to about $300,000 and the securities he forged were represented to have been issued in five different Ohio counties. He imposed upon some of the most cautious bankers and brokers in this section of the country, as well as many in the bond markets of the east. Four hundred indictments are now pending in various Ohio courts against Lewis, although his arrest was made on a warrant charging but one forgery. The National Bank of Redemption of Boston will back the prosecution of the prisoner at the trial, which is to be begun as soon as possible. When arrested at Ypsilanti Lewis was living with his family under the name of James Leache. He consented to return to Ohio without a requesition.

TO BRING TURKS TO TERMS.

The President Evolves a Scheme to Collect Pending Claims.

Washington, April 7.—The adoption of a vigorous policy to secure from the Turkish government a settlement of the claims preferred by the United States on account of the destruction of American missionary property and outrages to American missionaries committed during the uprising against the Armenians in the fall of 1895 is being considered by the new administration, and probably will be put into operation soon. President McKinley's programme contemplates the sending to Constantinople of John W. Foster, former secretary of state, as a special envoy, with the rank of ambassador, to secure from the sultan the payment of the claims, which have been filed, and the speedy trial of those American citizens against whom charges have been made by Turkish officials. The president probably will send to congress a message recommending that authority be given him to commission a special ambassador to Turkey for this purpose.

Took His Own Life.

Chicago, April 5.—Dr. J. H. Walton, a well-known physician of Dubuque, Ia., committed suicide in Lincoln park Sunday afternoon, cutting his throat with a razor. The act was done before the eyes of hundreds of wheelmen and pedestrians on the Lake Shore drive. Walton is believed to have been temporarily insane, the result of a recent illness.

Has Retired.

Atlanta, Ga., April 6.—Capt. Evan P. Newell, for years the head of the Atlanta Constitution, retired from the management of the paper at the meeting of its directors Monday, and is succeeded as editor in chief by his son, Clark Howell. W. A. Hemphill was elected president of the company. There will be no change in the policy of the paper.

Hangs Himself in Jail.

Stockton, Cal., April 7.—C. F. Kleupfer, who killed C. R. Dodge and Alexander Borland at New Hope six weeks ago, and who has since been in the county jail here, hanged himself in his cell Tuesday morning with a handkerchief tied to the grating of the window. He was dead when found.

Wants to Be Relieved.

Canea, April 7.—Admiral Canevaro has asked the Italian government to relieve him of his command, and Marquis Di Rudini has replied that in the event of a blockade of the Greek ports the admiral's request will be granted.

Fatal Game of Marbles.

Rockport, Ind., April 7.—Henry Lee was shot and killed by Bob Cheatham. A quarrel arose over a game of marbles, when Cheatham shot Lee in the head and fled, but was captured. Both are colored.

Pier Collapses at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—The pier of the Consolidated Coal company at Locust Point collapsed and 15 coal cars were precipitated into the harbor. No one was hurt.

From Omna comes the story of a sea captain who had an old and slow steamer, and, finding that it would be a long time before he received a full cargo of tea, began to say that owing to repairs that had been done to his engines, he hoped to make a very fast passage.

Everybody laughed at his boasts, when, to their astonishment, he began to wager that he would make the fastest passage on record. The captains of other steamers eagerly took his wagers; but when he had thus ventured several hundred pounds, people began to think there was something in it, and the merchants sent their tea almost entirely by his ship.

Of course the steamer, the greatest speed of which was eight knots an hour—arrived in England weeks after the others, and the captain lost his money; but he made nearly $15,000 profit all the same.

Instead of having to stop in the Chinese port for months, waiting for a chance of cargo coming in from the interior, he had cleared in a few days, and the owners, of course, paid the wagers. But it was a trick that could not be SWEPT BY FLOODS.

Fifty Towns Inundated in the Mississippi Valley.

A Statement of the Situation Prepared for the President—The Latter Taking Steps to Secure Government Aid.

Washington, April 7.—R. C. Graves and J. S. Menken, representing the citizens' relief committee of Memphis, Tenn., organized for the purpose of relieving the people of the flooded country tributary to that city, have arrived in the city. They have prepared the following statement, which they will submit to the president:

"From Marion, Ark., north of Memphis, to Greenville, Miss., there are now at least 60 towns and villages under water, and a territory extending from 100 miles north of Memphis to 200 miles south, and five to forty miles wide, is submerged and devastated by the flood. Hundreds of thousands of acres of cultivated soil, with growing crops, are included in this submerged territory, and there are from 50,000 to 60,000 people whose property has been destroyed and whose business has been suspended thereby. The amount of damage to property is incalculable. In addition to the growing crops which have been destroyed, thousands of head of working stock and of cattle have been drowned and starved. The great majority of the sufferers are small farmers, mostly negroes, who, with the present crop destroyed and their working stock and farm tools swept away, are left utterly destitute and unprepared to begin work again, even after the floods have subsided.

"The extent of the suffering has grown beyond the capacity of the local authorities and of private local charities to relieve. The citizens' relief committee of Memphis is now caring for from 6,000 to 7,000 refugees from the flooded district, and they are still arriving by boatloads every day. In addition to this, large supplies of provisions are being sent to various points in Arkansas and Mississippi, where it is possible for the refugees to be cared for on higher ground and in relief barges. The utmost that can be done by these efforts is to measurably and temporarily relieve the present suffering. The committee have found it very difficult and very costly to reach a great portion of the sufferers living in the interior, who can only be reached by skiffs operating with light-draft steamers that can leave the main river. Memphis being the only point on high ground for about 200 miles north and south, it necessarily has become the place of refuge for all seeking to escape the flood in that locality.

Greatest Flood Known.

"This flood is the greatest and most destructive that has ever devastated the Mississippi valley, the water being 4½ feet higher than the highest stage it has ever reached before. The relief committee is thoroughly organized for the purpose of distributing supplies to the people of the tributary territory, and is willing to do everything in its power to that end, but it has now almost reached the end of its resources, and reluctantly confesses its inability to cope with the situation without obtaining relief from the government."

May Send No Message.

Washington, April 7.—President McKinley may abandon his idea of sending a special message to congress today asking for legislation for the relief of the Mississippi flood sufferers. Such action, it is thought, is rendered unnecessary by the passage by the senate of the Bate resolution diverting for the relief of the flood sufferers the unexpended balance of the appropriation made from time to time to meet contingencies in connection with cholera and other epidemics. Mr. McKinley sent for Secretary Alger late Tuesday afternoon and had a consultation with him on the subject. Since the senate had already initiated such legislation as he would propose in his message the question was as to whether action by him was not rendered unnecessary. All the data in connection with the amount of money the passage of the Bate resolution would place at the disposal of the surgeon-general for distribution was not before him Tuesday afternoon and no final decision was reached as to the message. Should he send in a message it is probable that he will recommend a specific appropriation of either $150,000 or $200,000, and it is possible, in the event he does not send to congress a formal message, that he will transmit the information in his possession.

Father and Son Drowned.

Redfield, S. D., April 7.—Henry Struive and two sons were drowned Monday on Gus Bull's farm, six miles south of Frankfort, in this county. This makes six deaths from drowning within two weeks. A farmer north of here named Lundstrom lost a dozen cattle and seven head of horses. The floods exceed anything ever witnessed in this county. The water in the rivers is eight feet higher than the highest water mark heretofore.

Asks for $100,000.

Jackson, Miss., April 7.—The governor has telegraphed Secretary Alger asking for an appropriation of $100,000 from congress, which he says will close the crevasses in this state, give employment to all the needy and allow people to work land in 30 days.

Water Passes Former Limits.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—The feature of the flood in the Mississippi delta is the gradual spread of water over an area that hitherto was never overflowed. The upper crevasse in Tunica county is 2,000 feet wide, and so great is the outpour that water from below the break is being drawn up to and hurled out over the fertile valley through the crevasse. All of the country east of the main line of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley road is flooded, and in many places the water has gone over the tracks, filling the Yazoo river.

The supreme question is the duration of the flood. If the lower levees along Louisiana and southeastern Arkansas should hold, which it is believed they will not do, the emptying of the delta and St. Francis basin will be slow. If they break and the river continues to fall at Cairo, the upper St. Francis basin and the delta will be clear of water by May 5. If this should prove true, there will be no difficulty in growing cotton. But breaks in Louisiana and southeast Arkansas will hold water in that territory until the middle of May, far after the usual time for planting cotton in that territory.

OUR NATIONAL LIBRARY.

Its Establishment Was Due Primarily to Thomas Jefferson.

Condensed History of the Great Collection's Origin and Growth—The New Library Building and Its Architect.

[Special Washington Letter.]

Statistical letters are generally conceded to be less interesting than narrations of current or past events; nevertheless, statistical statements are sometimes regarded as of exceptional value by the average reader throughout the country.

Statistical letters usually refer both to facts and figures, but are generally overburdened with more figures than facts. This letter, concerning the origin, growth and development of the celebrated congressional library, will contain facts which many readers will want, to keep in their scrap books, and it is hoped that the narration will at the same time prove to be somewhat interesting.

The United States is a beneficent government, particularly so in the matter of literature. "The glory of a country is its authors," and, in the matter of authors, America bids fair to rival the world if she continues as she has begun. Irving, Cooper, Bancroft, Prescott, Longfellow, Whittier, Bryant, Poe, Lowell and hosts of others have placed our literature high in the rank of the world's productions. If we have not as yet produced an author whose works equal those of Homer, Shakespeare or Milton, we have at least our Longfellow, the quality of whose works will fall not far behind that of the masters.

In the year 1800 the United States government was as yet in its infancy. Congress then convened in Philadelphia, but the corner stone of the new capitol at Washington had been laid, the north wing finished; and at its first session the propriety of holding the next session there was decided upon by the members of the Sixth congress. At this session a provisionary appropriation of $500 was made, which appropriation was to be used in the purchase of books to form the nucleus of a library at Washington, which should perhaps one day not only be the first in our country, but be second to none in the world. The collection thus formed was placed in a room assigned for the purpose in the capitol building at Washington.

The establishment of the library was notably due to Thomas Jefferson; and, having been so favorably started, congress made appropriations from time to time for its increase and maintenance until the British entered Washington in 1814 and destroyed the whole. To make good this loss congress in the year 1815 appropriated $25,000 for the purchase of the Jefferson collection of 6,700 volumes. George Watterson was appointed librarian at a salary of $1,000 and the library again begun.

On the 3d day of December, 1818, congress made an appropriation of $2,000 for the purchase of books for the new library, and from 1820 to 1823 $6,000 were appropriated.

Again, on the 26th day of May, 1824, congress made a similar appropriation of $5,000, and an additional one of $1,546 for furniture to be used in the library room.

On the 11th of February, 1825, congress passed an act directing that the secretary of the treasury should remit all duties on such books, maps and charts "as have been during the present year or may hereafter be imported into the United States by the authority of the joint committee of congress for the use of the library of congress."

On the 25th of February, 1825, another act was passed appropriating $5,000 for books for the congressional library, and from that time until the fire of 1851 congress made annual appropriations for the increase of the library, as follows:

On March 3, 1825, $5,000 for the purchase of books and $925 for coal and stoves.

On March 2, 1827, $3,000 for books and $400 for the employment of an assistant.

On May 24, 1828, $5,000 were added for the purchase of books and the librarian authorized to employ an assistant at a salary of $800 per annum.

A resolution passed May 24, 1828, provided that "duplicates, imperfect, damaged or other works not wanted may be removed from the library."

On the 28th of May, 1829, Andrew Jackson appointed John S. Meehan, of Washington, librarian of congress. He continued in office until the accession of Lincoln, and died at the advanced age of 72, having continued in office 32 years.

Heretofore the library had been for the exclusive use of senators and representatives, and a few other privileged characters; but on the 30th day of January, 1830, congress passed a resolution granting the privileges of the library to the following officials:

The secretary of state, the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, the postmaster-general, the secretary of the senate, the clerk of the house of representatives, the chaplain of congress and any individual in the district who may have been president of the United States.

The usual annual appropriations for many years after the accession of Jackson were $5,000, exclusive of expenditures for the law library and contingent expenses—for a law library had grown in connection with the regular one, since which time, having received an annual appropriation of about $1,000, it has come to be one of the best equipped law libraries in the country.

The regular library again received an appropriation in 1832 of $3,000, for furniture and repairs.

In 1848 the new library received a bonus of $2,412 for its enlargement; and in 1850 the usual appropriation of $1,000 for the same was increased to $2,000 by act of congress.

By 1851 the library of congress had become the pride of the nation, having increased to 55,000 volumes; but again sustained a check by the fire of December 24 of that year, when 35,000 volumes were destroyed.

Congress immediately made an appropriation of $10,000 to replace this loss, and again, in 1852, another appropriation of $72,000 for the repairs of the library room, and $75,000 for the purchase of books to make good the loss of those destroyed by the fire.

John J. Stephenson was appointed librarian of congress in 1861 by Abraham Lincoln. He only remained in office three years, when, upon his resignation, A. R. Spofford, the present incumbent, was appointed.

It is needless to recite the various acts of congress whereby additions of books have been made to the library; the most notable one being the Smithsonian collection (then numbering 4,000 volumes, but now 300,000, or almost one-half of the stock of the whole national library), whereby the most valuable collection of scientific books extant has been added to the national library; for, by the Smithsonian system of exchange, whereby copies of their publications are exchanged with every scientific society on the face of the globe, they have obtained practically a complete library of all scientific works.

NATIONAL LIBRARY.
("America," Decoration for Dome, by E. H. Blashfield.)

The library at this date contains upwards of 755,000 books, 250,000 pamphlets, 500,000 sheets of music, 25,000 maps and 26,000 engravings, photographs, lithographs, etchings, photogravures and pictorial illustrations in general. By this it will be seen that the library has outgrown its accommodations, for its room at the capitol only gives shelf space for 350,000. Because of the marvelous growth and development of the library, Librarian Spofford, in 1872, recognized the necessity for the rental, purchase or erection of a new building. He was diligently engaged for 14 years in the effort before a decisive act of congress permitted the corner stone of the present beautiful library building to be laid. A description of this architectural conception cannot be given in limited space; it stands preeminent over all public buildings, and is, without doubt or qualification, the greatest and most beautiful building in the world.

The work of removing the books from the present library room in the capitol will begin shortly, the transfer to be made by wagons and not by the small underground tunnel, as is currently believed. Shelves in the new library are now being correctly numbered in accordance with those in the capitol room, so as to prevent confusion.

The present librarian has been in charge of this great collection of literary treasure for 33 years. Under the eyes of Ainsworth R. Spofford the library has grown from infancy to vigorous virility. Mr. Spofford was appointed by Abraham Lincoln in 1864, and has held his position without interruption or political intervention from that date until the present.

The new congressional library building, which is now being celebrated both in song and story, is the result of the continuous and persistent efforts on the part of Mr. Spofford to induce congress to make proper provision for the rapidly accumulating wealth of learning.

Col. John L. Smithmeyer, of Austrian birth, came to this country in 1847, a well-equipped civil engineer, with considerable learning in architecture. To him was committed the task of preparing plans for the new library building which was authorized by congress. He did the work with exceptional skill, and everybody who has seen the work declares that the library is the most beautiful building on earth, not excepting Taj Mahal, the famous building of beauty on the upper Ganges, in India. Col. Smithmeyer never received pay from the government for his work, and now has a claim pending before congress for compensation for his intellectual labor. His claim will probably be like all other claims of that character. The government is not honest. It is not likely that Col. Smithmeyer will ever receive the compensation due him for his magnificent work.

SMITH D. FRY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the sixteenth day of February A. D. 1888 Samuel Lapham of the village of Clinton county of Lenawee, Michigan executed a mortgage to Sarah C. Rogers, of the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee, Michigan, on all that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in the village of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Being lot number five (5) on the plat in the village of Clinton as surveyed by Smith & Lapham for John Clark proprietor and now of record in the Registers office in and for the county of Lenawee in the state of Michigan. Said lot being eighty-four (84) feet front and rear and one hundred fifteen feet on its east and west lines.

That said mortgage was upon the 17th day of February, A. D. 1888, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee in Liber 114 of Mortgages on page 556.

Default has been made in the conditions of this mortgage and the note running in connection therewith, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and upon the same there is claimed to be due and unpaid at this date the sum of one hundred thirty four dollars and fifty one cents ($134.51) in addition to all other costs provided by law and in said mortgage for the foreclosure and no proceedings at law or in equity having been had or taken to recover the same or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that pursuant to law and the terms of said mortgage, the premises above and in said mortgage described or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder upon the twelfth day of April, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee (that being the place and building for holding the circuit court of said county) to satisfy the amount then due upon said mortgage and note, the legal cost of foreclosure and the sale thereof.

Dated January 8, A. D. 1897.

SARAH C. ROGERS, Mortgagee.
G. R. Gillespie, Attorney for Mortgagee.

Of Tecumseh, Mich., write us on Jan'y 14, 1896, that their order of Nov. 11, 1895, consisting of 8 dozen in package and a quantity in bulk of your Syrup Pepsin is all sold. We find it one of the best sellers and gives the best satisfaction of any remedy ever sold over a counter. It is in 10, 50c and $1.00 sizes of Orr & Temple.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on the 31st day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Rumbell Pennington deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Claribel Pennington, administratrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred have been fully paid, and that she is now ready to close said estate and to render her final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to law and that she may be discharged and her bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this court is all seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of April next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is Further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

NO USE FOR UNDERTAKERS.

Expected Corpse Traveled in the Same Train with His Coffin.

Robert Richmond, a young man from St. Louis, was taken sick at Marfa, a small town 400 miles west of here on the Southern Pacific railroad, says a San Antonio correspondent of the Philadelphia Record. He grew rapidly worse and became unconscious, and his attending physician telegraphed the patient's parents in St. Louis that their son was dying.

The parents wired instructions for the body to be embalmed and shipped to St. Louis. There is no embalmer and undertaker nearer than San Antonio and a telegram was sent there for one. The young man was still alive, but his physician was positive that he would be dead in a few hours.

The San Antonio undertaker arrived at Marfa next morning and found the young man still alive. He waited 36 hours and Richmond showed signs of improvement.

The undertaker left with the coffin for San Antonio and Richmond was brought there on the same train, arriving at night. The trip did so much good that he will leave the hospital in a few days a well man.

Kept Quiet Ever After.

It has been stated that a bank burglar can so heat the walls of a safe with an electric current as to be able to get inside without waiting more than a few minutes. Certain laboratory experiments lend some sanction to such a notion, but electrical journals pooh-pooh it. It is much easier to talk about stealing electricity from live trolley and lighting wires than it is to do it—that is, with safety. The Electrical Engineer, after pointing out some other difficulties in the way of such operations, remarks that "men can take and have taken the current from supply mains, even more than is required for melting through safes, though in numerous instances the parties maintained perfect silence about it ever afterward."

Big Auditorium Destroyed.

Newark, N. J., April 6.—A fire early in the morning destroyed the buildings in Caledonian park, on Springfield avenue, this city, and did damage to the amount of $50,000. The main building was a frame structure and seated 13,000. Caledonian park is the place where all the big celebrations have occurred in this vicinity for years past.

Great Carpet House Burned.

Cincinnati, April 5.—The George G. Otte company's carpet store on the south side of Fourth street, one door west of Race street, with a stock valued at $300,000 and insured for $150,000, was destroyed by fire in less than two hours Sunday morning. The total loss to building and stock will be $400,000.

Died in Texas.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 5.—A. B. Cox, proprietor of the Tremont house for the past 16 years and one of the most widely-known hotel men and masons in Iowa, died Saturday night at La Porte, Tex., whither he went recently for the benefit of his health.

A PROSPEROUS FARMER will always have an air of success about himself and his farm. Nothing will give such an air of prosperity to your houses, barns, wagons, buggies, tools, etc., as the careful use of paint. There is economy in paint. A barn that is painted, and kept painted, will not wear out half as fast as one that is allowed to become weather beaten. That is true of everything paintable.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS CREOSOTE PAINT is exactly suited to the coarse-grained woods generally used in barns, fences, etc. It contains creosote. Creosote is a disinfectant and prevents decay.

Our booklet "Paint Points" tells why it is economical to use paint. It tells what to paint and how to paint. It is a handy book to have about the house. Send for it to-day—it is free.

THE RAILROAD BILLS.

An Interesting Fight to Take Place in the House.

REPORT ON PINGREE MEASURES.

House Committee Recommends That They Do Not Pass, but the Fight on the Floor Promises To Be Unusually Sharp and Interesting—The Widoe Special Investigation a Gigantic Failure—The Bicycle Baggage Bill—Other Legislative Matters.

Lansing, Mich., April 6.—The opposing factions are now squaring away for the fight to take place in the house one week from today over the several railroad bills. After two protracted hearings, which were participated in by the representatives of the various roads, who argued against the measures, and by Colonel Atkinson and Railroad Commissioner Wesselius, who upheld them, the committee has reported out the most important of the Pingree measures with the recommendation that they do not pass. These bills provide for the local taxation of railroad property instead of requiring the companies to pay a special tax as now, and for a flat 2-cent passenger fare, and prohibit discrimination in freight rates by providing that if a company grants any person, firm or corporation a special rate, any other shipper can demand a similar rate. The members of the committee were unanimous in reporting the bills adversely, but, notwithstanding this fact, the fight on the floor is sure to be unusually sharp and interesting. It is believed that the two hearings referred to made many votes against the bills, the converted members saying that the cold hard facts and figures submitted by the railroad officials were met by the opposition only with sarcasm, ridicule or statements of a general nature did not tend to controvert the showing made in behalf of the roads. Be this as it may, there is no doubt that a number of members, who before the hearings were inclined to favor the bills, will now vote against them.

Has Been a Failure.

The facts that the Widoe special investigating committee has confessedly found but very few well-founded complaints of discrimination in freight rates, has also had a tendency to put the companies in much better odor with the members than when the session commenced. The opinion is general that so far as making a case against the railroads is concerned, the Widoe investigation has been a gigantic failure. The result of all this is that, although it was thought a couple of months ago that some of the so-called Pingree legislation would pass the house but be killed in the senate, the concensus of opinion now is that it will never reach the senate.

The bicycle baggage bill will become a law, the committee having reported it out favorably after amending it so as to relieve the companies from liability in case they provide hooks or other suitable device for holding wheels during transportation. Under this bill no charge will be made for carring the bicycle of a passenger. In this connection it may be interesting to note that a Michigan Central official informed me a few days ago that his company has a contract with a Toledo bicycle concern to repair all wheels damaged on that road, and that the company's repair bill amounts to a very large sum annually. This official said it is really astounding what people will do to spite or injure a railroad company. He declared that this was especially noticeable in connection with the transportation of bicycles belonging to passengers, numerous instances having been noted where an evil-minded person would deliberately kick a bicycle that happened to be standing at a station, knowing that the expense of repairing it would have to be borne by the company.

An Important Matter.

Another matter of very general interest has been made the special order for next week, which, by the way, promises to be one of the most interesting and important of the session. This is the Kimmis bill providing that each county officer shall be paid a salary to be fixed by the supervisors within certain limits, and that all fees be paid into the general fund of the county. The consideration of this bill has been made the special order for next week Thursday, and an interesting debate is anticipated. It is believed that the influence of the state grange and state association of farmers' clubs, both of which are a unit in favor of its passage, will be sufficient to land it a winner, despite the fact that it is being fiercely antagonized by every county officer in the state.

Representative Wetherbee's civil service bill affecting all counties having a population of 100,000 and upwards, and all cities having a population of 20,000 is an interesting document, and but little has been said about it. It provides for a non-partisan state civil service commission of three members to be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, each commissioner to have a salary of $2,000 per year and expenses. The classification of the service is the principal feature of the bill. The only officials not included in the classified service are elective officers, officers whose appointment is confirmed by the senate, the heads of the principal departments of state or municipal government, and their deputies. The governor and mayor are each permitted to select their own secretary and stenographer, but all the other appointees are to be within the classified service. The bill further provides for a municipal civil service commission to be appointed by the mayor, the members of which are to receive from $3 to $5 per day for actual service.

The State Is a Gainer.

During the last two years the supreme court has not been permitting technicalities to interfere with the collection of taxes and the enforcement of the tax law. The result has been that large property owners, who previously permitted their lands to be returned delinquent, now pay their taxes promptly and the state has been the decided gainer. Occasionally this strict holding has worked a hardship, but on the whole it has been a great boon to the state. There has been some complaint that property has been sold through the neglect of agents who were commissioned to pay the taxes in the absence of the owners, who were out of the country, etc., and, therefore, had no notice of sale. To avoid a petition of these hardships, the senate has passed a bill providing that no tax deed be issued until personal notice of sale has been served on the property owner. At present notice by publication is all that is required.

One of the most spirited contests of the session, that with reference to the bills advocated by the state fish commission, has been settled, the commission and commercial fishermen agreeing upon a compromise measure. By the terms of this bill the size of the mesh is to be increased to two and one-half inches as used in the water, instead of that size before tarring, which shrinks it one-half. No whitefish weighing less than two pounds in the round are to be taken, and the month of November is to be a close season.

The License Fee

The license fee is to be $50 for steam tugs, $10 for pound nets, $5 for seines and $5 for sailboats used in the business. In order to give commercial fishermen a chance to readjust their nets, etc., without serious loss it is provided that the law shall not take effect until April 1, 1900.

A vicious custom, which has come to be extensively followed in the legislature of this state, is that which enables a member to secure the passage of a so-called local bill on his assurance that it is all right. A great majority of these local bills are given no adequate consideration. When they are reached on the calendar the member representing the territory or constituency affected by the measure simply assures his colleagues that the bill is purely local and of no interest outside of his district. He, therefore, moves that the reading of the bill be dispensed with, the rules suspended, and the bill placed upon its immediate passage. No one asks a question about the bill, and no one, save the introducer, knows anything about it. It is not infrequently the case that the bill contains provisions suspending, so far as that municipality is concerned, the operation of important provisions of general laws. In other cases city and village charters are thus rushed through before the citizens who have been governed by them have any knowledge of their provisions, or, in fact, that any such bills have even been introduced. It was only a month or so ago that a charter for the city of Grand Rapids was railroaded through the lower house in this manner. It proved to be a worthless and vicious measure which was subsequently disowned even by the person who prepared it. A new charter was prepared and, after one of the most persistent fights of the session, the latter became a law.

An Interesting Personage.

The reformer in the legislature is an interesting personage. He is here in quite liberal proportions this year, and, although he is always energetic, he does not always care to be informed. I have in mind a case where a committee was recently disposed to cut a $5,000 appropriation for one of the most important departments of state government. Some of the members of the committee who were thus inclined, could not be induced to even inspect the needs of the department which the proposed reduction would seriously cripple, although it was within a stone's throw of the door of the committee room. One of the gentlemen frankly admitted that as he was not gifted as a speechmaker, his only chance of making a reputation was in the committee, and he proposed to do it by cutting every appropriation bill that came into his hands. This would be all right if his investigation showed that such cut would be judicious, but his idea was to refuse to investigate for fear he would be convinced that it would be injudicious.

A few weeks ago I was in the house when the agricultural college appropriation bill was under consideration. All went well until the item of $5,000 for student labor was reached. At this juncture a man who is serving his second term in that body, arose and in thunderous tones demanded that some friend of the bill inform the house what that meant. "I'd like to know," he shouted, "if the time has come when we have to pay students for attending our colleges."

A Trifle Chagrined.

This gentleman was just a trifle chagrined when "some friend of the bill" explained the purpose of the item, student labor being the practical foundation-stone of the entire system at the college and one made necessary by the congressional grant of aid to that institution, and informed him that two years ago he had voted in favor of an appropriation of $8,000 for this same purpose. This instance simply serves to show how little some legislators know about questions submitted for their consideration and how long it takes some of them to develope into the most approved type of reform statesmen.

Early in the present year considerable was said about the location of this year's encampment of the Michigan National Guard, Governor Pingree very emphatically intimating that it would not be held at Island Lake. The military authorities have evidently thought better of the matter, however, for unless some locality sees fit to furnish as good a location free and put up about $8,000 to make the state good for abandoning the buildings it has on the present grounds and for moving the camp equipage it has stored there, the troops will again find themselves at Island Lake along in August. The state military board has practically foreclosed the case of other applicants, who, by the way, made no tangible proposition, by authorizing the Detroit, Grand Rapids and Western Railroad company to make a lease of the grounds for another year. The company furnishes the state the grounds free of charge, and it is not probable that the board would consent to its obligating itself for $500, the rental of the tract for a year, unless it intended to have the troops there again this year. It may be said that this is the best place, all things considered, that the encampment has ever been held.

Oleomargarine Law.

For several sessions of the legislature an attempt has been made to secure the enactment of a law prohibiting the offering for sale in this state of oleomargarine colored so as to resemble genuine butter. It has been noted as a singular, not to say significant fact that, although there is not a single oleomargarine factory in Michigan to be affected by such a law, all attempts to enact it have thus far been futile. The battle has been half won this year, however, the house having passed the bill a few days since after a very sharp skirmish.

Dynamite Kills Two.

Calumet, Mich., April 5. — Two miners, Eric Neimi and John Taloinsari, were blown to pieces in the Calumet mine by a premature explosion of dynamite. They were preparing to blast 3,000 feet beneath the surface in No. 4 shaft when the dynamite exploded. No one knows how the accident happened. Only small pieces of the remains of the men have so far been found.

Warehouse Burned.

Bay City, April 1.—One of the large warehouses at Bousfield & Co.'s wooden ware works was destroyed by fire Wednesday noon. Loss, $55,000; covered by insurance. A strong north wind was blowing and the fire was not under control for nearly two hours.

Methodists in Session.

Annapolis, Md., March 10. — The thirty-fourth annual session of the Washington conference, Methodist Episcopal church, was called to order by Bishop J. P. The conference will, during its sessions, vote on the questions of lay representation and women delegates.

Her Engines Disabled.

Washington, March 10.—The navy department has received a dispatch from Commanding Officer Bartlett, of the disabled monitor Puritan, dated Hatteras Cove, N. C., saying the Puritan's engines are disabled, but that he has a convoy ready for towing. He says the monitor weathered the gale admirably.

SIGNALING FROM MARS.

Possibility of Communications from the Planet.

Any citizen who is tired of mundane concerns, and wants to fix his mind on something higher, is invited to consider the allegation of Sir Francis Galton, made in the London Fortnightly Review, that some one on Mars is signalling to earth. The information seems not as yet to be very genertlly confirmed by astronomical observers, but Sir Francis is quoted as authority for the report that in one of the European observatories an apparatus has been devised for recording the Martian flashes, and that the record shows that three signals and no more are made, and that they differ, as all flash-light signals do, in the length of the flashes and of the intervals between, so that if we had the key they might read like telegraphic messages.

Of course this is not a yarn to be swallowed whole, but the association of the name of Sir Francis Galton with it is enough to entitle it to consideration. There seems to be no intrinsic impossibility of our having relations with people in Mars. It sounds preposterous, of course, but, like other marvels, it seems preposterous chiefly because it is unusual. We have to nudge ourselves from time to time in this age of swift surprises, and remind ourselves that nothing that is new to us can possibly be more marvellous than many things that have grown familiar.

LI'S AUTOGRAPH.

It Was About to Be Used as a Prescription for Grip.

A Coventry young lady who collects autographs is the envy of her feminine acquaintances, says an exchange. She has secured the signature of the famous Li Hung Chang. The quaint inscription might be anything else, so far as the impression which it conveys to the Anglo-Saxon eye is concerned, but its authenticity is indisputable.

She had been suffering from influenza and the physician had left her a prescription. Her mother, after the doctor's departure, picked up a piece of paper and was almost out of the room when a cry of anguish arrested her.

"Be careful!" pleaded the daughter. "What are you going to do with that?"

"Are you delirious?" was the response.

"No; don't you see what you are handling in that careless way? It's Li Hung Chang's autograph."

Her mother looked at it carefully, laid it down and with a grave countenance said:

"My dear girl, you don't know what a narrow escape you have had. There is no telling what combination of drugs might have been doing deadly work if you had not spoken. I didn't notice the writing on the autograph carefully, or I might not have made the mistake; but I was just about to send it to the chemist to have it made up."

Election.

The election Monday proved a regular surprise as the most visionary could not hope for such a revolution from the fall election. Here as elsewhere generally on the state ticket, many undoubtedly who intended to vote for the union candidates were deceived by the prominent heading of the so-called democratic ticket and placed their cross there, thus increasing the majority for the republican candidates. For township officers there was a tie on highway commissioner and one constable which was decided by lot in both cases in favor of the union silver candidates. Consequently, with the exception of clerk, school inspector and three constables, the union silver ticket was victorious. The vote was as follows, names of republicans being first:

FAILED TO PASS.

The House Kills the Molster Convict Labor Measure.

Report of the House Special Railway Committee—Speaker Gordon Predicts Adjournment About May 31.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, April 12.—The house, after a lengthy debate, killed the Molster bill referring to the employment of convict labor by striking out all after the enacting clause. The vote was 49 to 29. The measure provided for an entire revolution in the system of management of the state penal institutions. Its most conspicuous provisions were for the employment of convicts in squads of 20 in the several counties of the state upon the highways, and prohibited contract labor in prisons and the use of machinery, except such as could be operated by hand and foot power. The labor members will now try to draft a satisfactory measure by eliminating the chain-gang feature of the bill.

The house committee of the whole passed the bill providing for a tax of five per cent. on all inheritances or transfers made in contemplation of death, whether of real or personal property or whether made by residents or nonresidents. Inheritances of $5,000 or less are exempted, as is property willed to a father, mother, husband, wife, child, brother, sister, wife or widow of a son, or husband of a daughter. It is understood this bill overcomes the objections to a previous law which the supreme court declared unconstitutional.

Speaker Gordon gives it as his opinion that final adjournment will be reached by May 31. This would make the present session a few hours shorter than that of 1893, as it began four days later than did the legislature of that year.

Senator Savidge's committee on labor has recommended the passage of the bill of Senator Covell providing for the election of a labor commissioner by the people. The bill has in view the lopping off of Pingree perquisites.

The bill prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine so as to resemble butter, which recently passed both houses after an effort extending over six years, has been hung up in the senate, and the indications are that the farmers will lose this battle after all.

The senate passed a bill fixing the tuition of students at the Michigan mining school at ten dollars per year for Michigan students and $25 per year for nonresidents. It also changed the name of the Michigan mining school to the Michigan college of mines.

The report of the house special railroad investigating committee is completed, and after a lengthy discussion upon its discoveries makes substantially the following recommendations for enactment into laws: A special committee of arbitration upon all grievances between railroads; all freight tariffs under jurisdiction of state; obliging railroads to furnish cars to shippers upon written notice, and the shipper be entitled to one dollar per day for delay after 48 hours; railroads to be required to furnish storage room for perishable goods; receiving roads to be liable for all damages; the incorporation of all fast freight lines in this state; a uniform freight bill; amendment of present law preventing discrimination, to make it more definite; prohibiting charging more for a part of a car load proportionately than a full car load; establishing at an early day a state railroad commission of three members, who shall be charged with the general supervision of the railroads operating in Michigan, and whose duty it shall be to fix the maximum freight and passenger rates, prepare classifications hear and adjust grievances and enforce existing laws.

Gov. Pingree has made the following appointments: Thomas R. Smith, of Lawton, state inspector of oils; Herschell Whitaker, of Detroit, member of the state fish commission; James H. Pound, member of Detroit board of health; Frank North, of Vassar, member of the board of managers of the state school for the deaf and dumb; Albert L. Stephens, of Detroit, member of the board of managers of the home for the feeble-minded; J. S. Stearns, of Ludington, member of the state railroad and street crossing board.

The house passed the bill providing that after January 1, 1899, all county officers, save sheriff, shall be paid a salary fixed by the supervisors, and that all fees provided by the statute be covered into the county treasury.

James Kerr of the Second district of Saginaw county, is again a member of the Michigan legislature. It will be remembered that the first day of the session when he was sworn in his seat was protested by John Baird, the republican candidate who was defeated, and that Kerr was subsequently unseated after about $2,500 was spent in making an investigation. At the election last week Baird and Kerr were again candidates. Kerr received 1,403 votes and Baird 1,101. Thursday morning Kerr arrived with his papers. Midst applause and cheers from the members of the house he was escorted to the clerk's desk by Representatives Chamberlain and Scully, and the oath of office was administered by Speaker Gordon.

The annual meeting of the state board of health was held here last Friday. President Franklin Wells made his annual address. He was reelected president.

MICHIGAN VETERANS MEET.

Col. A. T. Bliss Elected Commander of the G. A. R.

Greenville, April 9.—The Michigan G. A. R. encampment has concluded its session. From the annual report of Gen. William Shakespeare, department commander, it appears that the total membership of the G. A. R. of Michigan is 19,082, being 1,217 less than last year's report; 343 died during the year. There are 382 posts, an increase of nine over last year. The finances are in excellent condition. The commander recommended that the G. A. R. of Michigan express its dissatisfaction with the order removing the pension agency from Detroit, and recommending its reinstatement. Patriotic and military instruction was recommended for a course in the public schools. Permanent headquarters have been established in Lansing. The Women's Relief corps reports 248 corps in the state, with 7,700 members.

Col. A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, was elected department commander, A. T. Patrick, of Detroit, the other candidate, withdrew his name. L. Wells Sprague, of Greenville, was chosen senior vice commander. "Ren" Barker, of Reed City, was elected junior vice commander. Other officers chosen were as follows: Medical director, Dr. J. R. Stephenson, Grand Rapids; department chaplain, Rev. William Judd, Howard City; council of administration, E. H. Davis, of Detroit; C. E. Foot, of Kalamazoo; James Greene, of Bay City; Frank Whipple, of Port Huron, and Thomas Keyes, of Ionia. Delegates were elected to the national encampment at Buffalo next August. Col. C. V. R. Pond was appointed by the department commander assistant adjutant and quartermaster general, these two offices being combined into one. It was then voted that the encampment be held about the 15th to 20th of June, instead of in April. The next meeting will be held in Port Huron in June, 1898.

SON AVENGES HIS MOTHER.

Stabs His Father Because of Fancied Wrongs Done in the Past.

Grand Rapids, April 12.—John Allison, aged about 20 years, heard a few days ago that his mother, who died when he was a boy, had been abused by his father, who is living with his second wife on the shores of Lime lake, in Tyron township. Saturday he purchased a butcher knife and sharpened it to a razor edge. Early Sunday morning he went to his father's house to find out of the story was true. The man was in bed, but when the son asked him to step outside to talk over family matters, he arose and was putting on his clothing when the son stabbed him twice in the left side. The son is in jail and the man is dead.

HORSESHOERS MEET.

Officers Chosen by Their State Association.

Lansing, April 9.—The Michigan Protective Horseshoers' association concluded an important two days' meeting here Thursday afternoon with the election of the following officers: President, Dr. M. J. Dunn, Detroit; vice presidents, H. B. Valheim, Benton Harbor, and Charles Schmidt, Saginaw; secretary and treasurer, Angus McCall, Traverse City; state organizer, Joseph Carr, Saginaw. The next meeting of the state association will be held at Bay City in April, 1898. The order now has 960 members with diplomas as scientific farriers, and there are 28 local associations in the state.

BULLET ENDS HONEYMOON.

Michigan Veteran Kills His Wife and Fatally Wounds Himself.

South Haven, April 9.—Word was received Thursday morning that a veteran named Dickerson, living about three miles out in the country, shot and killed his wife and then shot himself, inflicting probably fatal injuries. Dickerson is known to be a man of ungovernable temper and had driven his first wife from his home with unbearable abuse. He married the woman he killed about three months ago.

Defeated Candidate Will Contest.

Marquette, April 9.—The election of James E. Sherman for mayor of Marquette will be contested by Alfred Des-Jardins, the defeated candidate, who alleges violation of law in the certification of the new nomination to the election commissioners, a disregard of law on the part of commissioners themseleves and charges of bribery at the polls. Proceedings will begin at once by a writ of quo warranto in the supreme court to test the title of the office.

Won't Give Him Up.

New York, April 9.—Gov. Pingree, of Michigan, has decided not to surrender Prosecutor Sampson, of Lenawee county, and has telegraphed his decision to Capt. O'Brien, of the detective office. Sampson is wanted here in connection with the case of Anthony Christensen, the alleged embezzler.

Lightly Punished.

Allegan, April 9.—Joseph S. H. Holmes, the man who killed Bert Johnson at Grand Rapids, pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter and was fined $1,000 in the circuit court here.

Shot at Cabanas Fortress.

Havana, April 13.—Jose Gonzelas Carlos, charged as an insurgent incendiary, was shot at Cabanas fortress.

IN CONGRESS.

Work of Our Lawmakers in the Extra Session.

Matters of Importance Brought Before the Senate and House—Brief Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

Washington, April 8.—The senate yesterday passed a joint resolution appropriating $200,000 to be immediately available for the flood sufferers. Senator Morgan spoke further in support of the resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba, and recognizing both parties as belligerents.

Washington, April 9.—The senate yesterday heard Senator Morgan (Ala.) for the third successive day on his resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba. The bankruptcy bill was further considered. The nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, to be assistant secretary of the navy, was confirmed.

Washington, April 13.—The senate met at noon yesterday, but adjourned immediately as a mark of respect to the late Senator Voorhees, and that many of the senators might attend the funeral.

Washington, April 14.—Senator Morgan (Ala.) concluded his long speech in the senate yesterday on the resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba, but no action was taken. Senator Pettigrew (S. D.) introduced a bill providing for the creation of 40 new executive departments of the government. The bankruptcy bill was further discussed. Senator Chandler (N. H.) introduced bills empowering the secretary of the navy to take possession of the armor plants of the Bethlehem and the Carnegie companies.

The House.

Washington, April 8.—The house yesterday passed a joint resolution appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers of the Mississippi valley.

Mr. Simpson (Kan.) in a speech denounced Speaker Reed because he had not appointed the committees. Mr. Reed replied that he had enforced what he supposed to be the policy desired by the majority and that the house had power to command the speaker if it disapproved of his course.

Washington, April 12.—In the house on Saturday a short political debate took place over the rules, after which adjournment was taken until the 14th.

CHANGE PLACES.

Hundreds of Convicts in Indiana Prisons Are Transferred.

Michigan City, Ind., April 13.—Probably the largest transfer of prison convicts that ever took place in this country was successfully carried out yesterday. Two hundred and ninety-one prisoners from Michigan City prison were put on a special Monon train and taken to Jeffersonville, while from the latter place 356 prisoners were sent here.

The trains started at nine o'clock. The Monon officials had taken every precaution to insure the safety of the trains. Every foot of track was inspected 15 minutes before the trains passed, and every bridge was carefully examined. Even the switches were spiked, and the trains were given the right of way over everything. No stops were made for crossings, Gov. Mount having given permission for this violation of the state law, and no stops were made except for the purpose of changing engines or taking water.

FIVE LIVES LOST.

Disastrous Result of a Collision at Sea.

Savannah, Ga., April 12.—The Plant steamship La Grande Duchesse, which arrived Saturday night from New York, collided Friday morning at three o'clock with the American barkentine Nellie Smith, bound from Cuba to New York, cutting the barkentine in two. The barkentine sank in five minutes. Capt. Dodge, the first and second mates, and two of the crew of the Nellie Smith were lost. Laurence Haarsen, lookout; Frank Conway, helmsman, and the steward were rescued by boats from the steamer.

National Fisheries Congress.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 14.—Gov. Bloxham has issued a call for a national fisheries congress to assemble at Tampa, Fla., on the 19th day of January, 1898. The national fishery commission of the United States will take a prominent part in the proceedings of this assembly. The governors of the various states of the union and the fishery commissioners of same are requested to appoint delegates to this congress.

A Disastrous Storm.

Hamburg, Ark., April 13.—A tornado struck ten miles west of here Monday, doing great damage on Richardson's plantation. Three houses were blown down and a negro woman fatally injured. Five cows were killed by flying timbers. Miles of fencing were carried away. The wind leveled a vast amount of pine timber along the Ouachita river.

Cannon for Pacific Coast.

Denver, Col., April 13.—A News special from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: Two ten-inch, 110-ton cannons passed through Cheyenne en route for San Francisco, where they will be used to strengthen the coast defenses. The big guns were each mounted on an eight truck steel car and were sent over the Derman hill.

—The Hindoo-Koosh, 20,600 feet, is reported to be the highest in Afghanistan.

Mrs. Len Billington has received a letter from her cousin, Mark Joslin, whom old residents of Franklin will remember. He is now in the mountains of northern California prospecting for gold and writes that he has plenty of bear meat in his larder and that deer come to his cabin daily.

In speaking of irrigation, Mr. Wisner, of Nebraska, says: "The people are practicing irrigation largely, but as yet they do not make much more money than other people do, because their expenses are so much heavier; but I never saw such large corn as some of them raised last season, and I also saw hundreds of acres of alfafa off which they cut four crops during the season.

"W. E. Wisner, Treasurer McPherson county, Tryon, Nebraska." That is the way his stationary has been stamped for several months past, and all his old friends will rejoice at his deservedly good fortune. That the children of our mother state should become useful and honorable citizens in other states, gives one a feeling of pride in our state, in addition to the pleasure we feel in our friends' advancement.

CATARRHL DYSPEPSIA.

Pe-ru-na Not Only Cures But Cures Permanently.

Hortons, Pa., April 1895.—Dr. S. B. Hartman—Dear Sir: I had tried three of the best physicians in Indiana county, and had spent a great deal of money, all to no effect. I had about given up all earthly hopes. I weighed 130 pounds. I accidentally saw the name Pe-ru-na. I immediately commenced taking it, and continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. I then weighed 180 pounds, and never felt better in my life. I am a walking monument of the virtues of your Pe-ru-na.

W. W. STRASLER.

When next he writes he has changed his residence.

Correy, Pa., May 1894.—Dr. S. B. Hartman: Now for all time to come, use my photograph and statements. I will go at any time and testify to the truth of my assurances. I am hearty and well today and I attribute all to Pe-ru-na. W. W. STRASLER.

Corry, Pa., March 3, 1897.—Dr. S. B. Hartman: My health is A. No. 1, and I stand a fast and untiring friend of Pe-ru-na. W. W. STRASLER.

Pe-ru-na cures permanently. Its cures last as above letters show. The spring of the year is peculiarly provocative of catarrhal dyspepsia. Fearly every one needs a course of Pe-ru-na at this season. Send for free book. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Lillian M. Dersham, who has been been conducting a dressmaking department at the home of Mrs. W. H. Arner for the past two and a half years, closed her engagements here last week and returned to her home at Lenawee Junction Thursday. Miss Dersham during her stay here has won a large circle of friends, who, while they deeply regret to have her leave, feel that her christian character and ladylike manners have left an influence that will accompany them through life. Only words of commendation are heard on every side, while "welcome" will be the greeting that will meet her whenever she returns to visit her friends.

Miss Mary Lamburson was born at Camillus, N. Y., December 28, 1820. She lived with her aunt, Catherine Stephens until fourteen years of age when she came to Tecumseh. After moving to Ridgeway, she lived with her father until her marriage to Justice Lowe, July 16, 1837, Rev. Cole, of the Episcopal church, Tecumseh, performing the ceremony. To them were born nine children, four of whom, with their father, having crossed the stream of death:—J. W. Lowe died in 1866 in the West Indies; Mrs. Ella C. Henry in Lowville, N. Y., March 3rd, 1881; Miss Amy Lowe at her father's home March 23rd, 1881; and Jay Lowe at his home in Ridgeway May 8th, 1881. Justice Lowe died at his home in the English settlement January 5th, 1895. Those left to mourn the loss of a mother, are C. L. Lowe of this village; Mrs. Della McIntyre, of Holloway; Mrs. May Bell DePuy of Saline; Logier Lowe, of West Plains, Mo.; and E. L. Lowe, who resides on the old homestead. In 1839, Mrs. Lowe with fifteen others of the English settlement joined the M. E. church at Ridgeway and she is the last one of the class to be called to join those gone before.

Card of Thanks.

We desire through the HERALD to express our gratitude to our neighbors and friends who lent such valuable assistance during the sickness and death of our dear mother; also to the choir for their appropriate selections at the funeral services.

To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield [illegible] wa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield Ia., Aug 18 1896. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would'nt now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

TECUMSEH, MICH., APRIL 16, 1897.

The Anderson Bicycle bill passed the lower house of the state legislature Wednesday, but with the clause attached that railroad companies should not be responsible for damages to wheels except through carelessness of employees. The amendment will amount to nothing, as the supreme court will decide, in this case as in many others, that a railroad company is liable for the safe delivery of whatever it carries. It is to be hoped that the bill will soon become a law; in fact it will be only a matter of a few months when all the state legislatures will take action in this matter.

Tecumseh Star Course.

The last entertainment of the season will be The Boston Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar club, and Charles T. Grilley, the celebrated reciter, at Sutton's opera house, Saturday evening, April 24th.

A special effort is made by lecture course committees to secure the best and highest priced concert companies for opening each course. It has been so in Tecumseh, and the committee have endeavored to have all entertainments of the best offered. And this season they have also secured for the closing entertainment, a company of artists superior in recommendation to any stringed instrument company that has appeared here. In addition to their instrumental work, their quartette singing with accompaniment by banjos and guitars is a special feature of their entertainment. Mr. Grilley, who is to appear with the company, is an exceptionally clever artist.

Remember the day and date and don't fail to secure tickets for this entertainment. Ticket holders are requested to be in their seats not later than 7:45 as the concert will commence at 8 o'clock sharp, city time.

THE HUMAN FORM.

How to Preserve its Symmetry--Plenty of Exercise of the Right Kind.

New York Ledger.

There are a number of disadvantages which befall her who loses in middle life the lithe, agile, symmetrical figure of early womanhood. One of these is very patent to the eye of the observer, who sees a curve in the wrong place as the eye follows what should be a straight line from the bust to the floor. But greater than the consciousness of visible loss in symmetry is the growing sense of clumsiness and helplessness that creeps over one as the accumulation of adispose instead of being uniformly distributed over the body, piles up in the abdomen. The center of gravity is thrown from its normal position. Lightness on the feet becomes a thing of the past, and an inertness and disinclination to moving about increases constantly, and makes the trouble grow by what it feeds upon. The remedy for this state of things is within the reach of every one who has time and resolution to spend ten or fifteen minutes every day in certain exercises which will be given in detail, and which require absolutely nothing else but time and persistence.

The best time for taking these exercises is in the morning, immediately after leaving one's bed, and before any garments that compress the figure in any way are put on. The air of the room should be pure and sweet, so that the lungs may be benefited no less than the abdominal muscles and the blood be purified.

1. Draw in the abdomen as far as possible, fill the lungs with air, and then raise the arms above the head till the hands meet, without moving or bending the knees; bend the body as far back as possible, and then, allowing the air to escape from the lungs gradually, bend the body as far forward as possible until the hands approach the floor. Repeat this ten times, following exactly the directions for breathing.

2. Place the hands upon the hips, akimbo, draw air into the lungs as before, and bend forward, first to the right as far as possible, allowing the air to escape from the lungs, and then, after filling the lungs again, to the left. Repeat this exercise ten times.

3. Place the hands lightly on the breast, draw in the abdomen, fill the lungs, and turn the head and body without moving the knees or feet, as far, first to the right, and, after filling the lungs again, to the left, as possible. Repeat this ten times.

4. With the arms at the side, draw in the abdomen, fill the lungs with air and raise the arms to their height above the head, keeping the lungs fully expanded, then, breathing out, allow the arms to fall slowly to the side again. Repeat this ten times.

These exercises strengthen all the muscles of the abdomen and cause them a gradual contraction, which, as it increases, restores symmetry of form, restores the center of gravity to its proper position and gives the exerciser a command of herself in movement that is very delightful.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Fifty Years of Wedded Life.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Benedict, corner Pearl and Logan streets, contained a large number of invited guests Wednesday, April 14th, to assist them in celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage which took place in Steuben county, New York, April 14th, 1847. They came to Michigan five years later and settled on a farm in Raisin where they resided twelve years, and then moved into the township of Tecumseh where they remained until they came into town a few years since.

The invitations bearing a monogram of the letters B and W (her maiden name being Wolcott), were printed in gold and read, "From 2 to 5 or 7 to 9 p. m."

One hundred and fifty were present during the afternoon and evening, all of whom signed the "roll of honor." Among those present were three who witnessed their marriage, viz., Isaac Wolcott and Mrs. D. B. Garlinghouse, brother and sister of the bride, and Mrs. John Garlinghouse, the only sister of the groom. Four children were born to them, three sons and a daughter, all of whom were present with their families as follows. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Benedict, Tecumseh; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Benedict and sons, Raynor and Leon, Holloway; Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Benedict and daughter Hollie, Adrian; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Dance, Detroit.

Time has dealt very leniently with Mr. and Mrs. Benedict for they are a youthful looking couple for their years, and, save an infant grandson, death has not invaded the family circle in all these years.

The guests were nearly all old neighbors and friends as but two from away were present: Miss S. Ethelwyn Dance, Detroit; and Miss Olive Benedict, Ypsilanti; although they received many regrets and congratulations from Eastern friends.

The rooms were tastefully decorated, the parlor in white and green and dining room in yellow, white and green. The southeast corner of the parlor, where Mr. and Mrs. Benedict, supported by Mr. and Mrs. Jebiel Bramble (the ladies having been close friends since childhood), received their guests, was adorned with Easter lillies and smilax. Over the sofa was suspended by a lover's knot a picture of the family taken when the children were small.

Notwithstanding the invitations said, "No presents," they were recipients of many pieces of delicate china as well as gold spoons and other tokens of esteem. The children's gift to their mother was a brooch, to their father a fine charm, (a locket,) monogramed and containing pictures of father and mother. Great quantities of beautiful roses, Easter lillies, narcissus and other flowers came from abroad.

The dinner was a duplicate as near as possible of that of fifty years ago and in the evening delicate refreshments were served, Mrs. F. H. Benedict, Mrs. Dance and Miss Dance serving them. The lights were candles made by Mrs. John Garlinghouse for the occasion in old-fashioned candle sticks. The souvenirs to the guests were heart-shaped, hand painted in gold, containing bust photographs of the venerable couple. Everything was arranged with skill and taste and the occasion will be treasured in the memory of all who were present.

Wednesday forenoon Mr. and Mrs. Benedict with their children and grandchildren, thirteen in all, were photographed by Teeple.

High School Happenings.

C. F. Field called on several of the high school rooms Tuesday.

Florence Jenkins and Helen Temple were absent Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Gallatin is back in her place this week after a two weeks' siege with quinsy.

English IV have finished their year's work and will take their final examination Monday.

Miss Blanche Roberts, of Clinton, visited the ninth grade Thursday, the guest of her sister, Bertha.

Quite a number of the boys were sporting fans yesterday. We are glad to observe that spring weather is appreciated at last.

The ladies of the Research Circle, who have secured Leigh Lynch for an illustrated lecture, will furnish the high school scholars with admission tickets for 10 cents.

Mr. Kellogg called a meeting of the Seniors in the office Monday and informed that delighted body of students that after that day they could have their afternoons, which means that two or three will have the last three class hours while most of them will remain till 3:15.

Mrs. James Glasgow met with a most unfortunate accident Wednesday that will confine her to the bed for weeks at least. She was arranging a clothes line preparatory to hanging out clothes and while standing in a chair the rope slipped off a nail causing her to lose her balance and she fell to the ground, breaking her hip. Dr. North, assisted by Dr. Howell made her as comfortable as possible. She has the sympathy of the entire community.

Mrs. Agnes Montgomery and daughter, Florence, left for Denver, Colorado, Monday morning. They go in quest of improved health for Miss Florence, the physicians thinking the change of climate necessary. For some time, at least, their home will be in the West and although their going causes only regret from the many friends of both mother and daughter, God-speed precedes them on their journey and the good wishes of all go with them.

Monday afternoon as Mrs. Samuel Haight and daughter Mame were returning home from town, as they turned into the driveway, the horse increased his pace and, in checking him, he turned so short that the carriage upset and they were thrown to the ground, sustaining, however, no serious injury aside from severe bruises and a general shaking up in which Miss Mame was by far the greatest sufferer. The horse ran around the barn, doing little or no damage. It was a fortunate escape for them.

CROP OUTLOOK.

Neither Grain Nor Fruit Suffered Much During the Winter.

Lansing, April 9. — According to the official crop report, the weather during the winter was not especially unfavorable, and, while in individual fields and localities wheat may have been more or less damaged, there has been no general or severe winter-killing throughout the state. The average condition in the state April 1 was 87; one year ago it was 86; in 1895, 85, and in 1894, 90. The average condition of clover meadows and pastures is 90. Live stock is in good condition, the average ranging from 95 to 98 per cent. The outlook for apples seems to be favorable. Correspondents, however, are of the opinion that the heavy crop of last year is likely to be followed by a light one this year. Peach buds have been generally and severely injured. Other fruits promise well.

THINK CURTIS WAS MURDERED.

Body of a Man, Missing Seven Weeks, Found in St. Joseph River.

Niles, April 8. — Seven weeks ago Lee G. Curtis, a prominent citizen of St. Joseph county, mysteriously disappeared, and, though a rigid search was made for him, no trace of his whereabouts could be secured. When he disappeared he had considerable money on his person. Wednesday the boys found the body of Mr. Curtis floating in the St. Joseph river, near Constantine. On the head and body were found some terrible cuts and bruises, which strongly indicate foul play. His money also was missing. That he was murdered there is no doubt and the officers are engaged in looking for the perpetrators of the deed. Curtis leaves a large family.

GROOM 87, BRIDE 17.

Fred Isenhart, a Farmer, Elopes With and Weds Katie Kauff.

Niles, April 9. — Fred Isenhart, aged 87, a wealthy farmer, of Royalton township, and Miss Katie Kauff, aged 17, were married Wednesday. The parties eloped to be wedded, as Isenhart's relatives threatened when the engagement was announced to file a petition in the probate court declaring him to be incompetent and for the purpose of having a guardian appointed to take charge of him. Mr. Isenhart declared that his relatives were anxious to have a guardian appointed in order to get possession of his property, and he determined to thwart them.

COWARDLY HUSBAND.

Forces His Young Wife to Become a Firebug.

Ann Arbor, April 9.—Charles Estelman, a well-known German farmer aged 33, living about nine miles south of here, is in jail, together with his 18-year-old wife, charged with arson. Both have confessed. Mrs Estelman, after repeated urging from her husband, consented to set their house on fire during his absence at a neighbor's. The plan succeeded in all particulars, except in fooling the insurance company and collecting $1,600.

Was Bound to Die.

Coopersville, April 9. — Mrs. Frank Peck, a farmer's wife living four miles southeast of here, took a dose of paris green with suicidal intent. Her husband caught her by the throat and forced the woman to spit it out and rinse her mouth out with water. She then went to the house of a neighbor. He followed her to Little Deer creek by her footprints. He concluded that she had drowned herself and went for help. The creek was dragged and her lifeless body fished up.

A Veteran Dead.

Hillsdale, April 8.—The funeral of George W. Loote, of this city, was held Wednesday afternoon. He was assistant sergeant-at-arms of the Michigan house of representatives in 1889. He was a soldier in an Ohio regiment during the war, and had his right arm so badly shattered by a bullet in the battle of Chancellorsville that the bone from the elbow to the shoulder had to be removed. He was buried by the G. A. R.

Dr. Draper to Be Orator.

Ann Arbor, April 9.—It is announced by the university authorities that Dr. Andrew Sloane Draper, president of the University of Illinois, has been chosen by the university senate to deliver the annual commencement oration at the university Thursday, July 1. His subject has not yet been given out.

Will Meet in Detroit.

St. Paul, Minn., April 9.—Secretary M. J. Dowling, of the Republican National league, announces the date of the next convention, which is to be held in Detroit, Mich., for July 13, 14 and 15. At least 3,000 delegates are expected to be in attendance, and the usual reduced rates will probably be secured.

Seeks Heavy Damages.

Bay City, April 14.—E. T. Bennett, the former secretary of the Tribune Publishing company, has begun suit for $25,000 against John F. Eddy, E. A. Cooley and E. T. Carrington, stockholders in the concern, for false imprisonment.

Poisoned by Parsnips.

Decatur, April 12.—Mrs. Myrtle Grover's two children and a young daughter of William McFall were fatally poisoned at Howell by eating parsnips which had been left in the ground two seasons and started to grow.

Congregationalists to Meet.

Jackson, April 10.—The annual convention of the Congregational church of Michigan will be held at the church of that denomination in this city beginning May 13.

Excessive Cycling Causes Death.

Buchanan, April 8.—Excessive bicycle riding is given as the cause of the death of Miss May Brewer, a teacher in the high school here.

A Big Saving.

Lansing, April 14.—It is claimed that in this city the voting machines saved 40 per cent. of the usual election expenses this spring.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Friday, April 23.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,

Thursday, April 22.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systematic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will describe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vestage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Dr. Walker's specialties are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance); Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

CORLISS' RESOLUTION

To Revoke Civil Service Orders of Cleveland.

HAS TOUCHED A POPULAR CHORD.

Apparently All the Members of the Republican Party in Congress Are Ready to Vote for Any Resolution Which Would Give the Offices to Republicans—Professor Angell for Minister to Turkey—The Tariff on Lumber.

Washington, April 13.—Congressman Corliss of Detroit has introduced a joint resolution which has elicited numerous encomiums from his colleagues on the Republican side of the house of representatives. The resolution proposes to revoke the civil service orders of President Cleveland. The intention of the resolution is to open the gates, so that all Republican aspirants for federal position may line up to the pie counter and secure their pastry without the intervening barrier of civil service examinations.

Congressman Corliss has touched a popular chord, and has made as much of a partisan kind as though he had played on a harp of a thousand strings. Just at this juncture it seems that all of the members of the Republican party in congress are ready to vote for a repeal of the civil service law, or for any resolution which has for its purport the annihilation of the system which prevents the realization of the dream of Secretary Marcy, that "to the victors belong the spoils."

Linton's Name Frequently Mentioned.

Ex-Congressman Linton has called upon the president a number of times recently, but nobody knows what office he now seeks. His name has been mentioned for a number of choice plums, and has been constantly withdrawn. It is unfortunate for Mr. Linton at the present time that he was in congress an A. P. A. leader. His Republicanism is without blemish, but he took up that particular religiousism and made a hobby of it, so that, if the president would select him for any prominent position now, his appointment would be generally regarded by a large class of influential religionists as a blow or slap at them. Therefore, Mr. Linton's prospects do not seem to be very bright.

Congressman William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids has formally presented to the president the protest of the Michigan congressional delegation against the removal of the pension agency from Detroit to Indianapolis, as proposed in President Cleveland's celebrated order. The Michigan and Iowa delegations are working together in this matter, because the people of Iowa do not want the Des Moines pension agency removed to St. Louis. President McKinley is giving time and thought to the consideration of this subject, but has not yet indicated what he will do in the matter.

King Wants to Go to Athens.

Bank Commissioner Ainger is here in the interests of Professor Hamilton King of Olivet college who is a candidate for the position of minister, envoy and consul general to Athens, Greece.

Hon. A. O. Wheeler of Manistee, and J. S. Sterns of Bennett Lake are here in the interests of the lumber tariff of $2. Mr. Sterns is the largest manufacturer of lumber in the state of Michigan.

President McKinley wants to appoint, and probably will appoint, Professor James B. Angell to the important position of minister to Turkey. This inclination on the part of the president came as a great surprise to the Michigan delegation only a few days ago. Senator Burrows was talking with the president about other appointments, and the name of Professor Angell was not mentioned, nor had it ever been considered by Senator Burrows or any of the Michigan delegation. It was the president's own suggestion that Professor Angell would be a splendid man for that position, and he said that he would like to have the Michigan delegation indorse him. Whether that will be done or not remains to be seen.

John J. Coon of Flint is here and is a candidate for the position of consul general to Mexico.

The recent appointment of Fenton R. McCreery to be secretary of the legation at Mexico renders it somewhat improbable that Mr. Coon will be sent from the same state to the same mission.

Spaulding Takes Possession.

O. Palmer has been appointed and confirmed as register; and Jay Allen has been confirmed as receiver; of the land office at Grayling.

General O. L. Spaulding has taken possession of the office of assistant secretary of the treasury, to which position he was nominated and promptly confirmed by the senate.

Henry A. Haigh is here on a visit to Senator McMillan. It is understood that Mr. Haigh wants to be collector of customs for the port of Detroit.

The Michigan delegation recently called upon the president in a body and recommended the appointment of Ex-Congressman Linton to the commissioner of Indian affairs. The president informed the delegation that that particular position has already been promised to another.

Captain John Langley of St. Joseph has been appointed local supervising inspector of hulls for the port of Grand Haven. He is 53 years of age, and therefore eligible. All of the other candidates were more than 55 years of age, and were, therefore, ineligible. Captain Langley is one of the oldest and most successful river and lake men in the entire northwest.

In regard to the lumber tariff men who are here in the interest western Michigan say that there a man from Mackinac straits to M igan City, in any manner engage manufacture or sale of lumber, tha vors anything less than a $2 duty lumber.

What Henry M. Loud Says.

Mr. Henry M. Loud of Au Sable says "Out of 23,000 mills, less than forty are clamoring for the $1-rate. Hundreds of mills have gone out of commission, after sawing the lumber for which they were constructed. Their closure involves no hardship. Out of eight mills at Au Sable one has been removed; four are out of commission and idle; one has been burned, and two are in commission. This history is like that of every lumbering city on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan. Those who are clamoring for a $1-rate of duty are sawing Canadian logs and thereby gaining into competition with our own people."

Senator Burrows says that he will support a $2-rate of duty on lumber, and insist upon having it. Senator McMillan is somewhat non-committal, but has said that he will favor nothing less than a $1.50 duty. Senator Burrows says: "I have not changed my mind in the least degree concerning the necessity for complete protection for the interests of this country. I spoke on the Wilson bill two years ago in the house of representatives, and then denounced the outrage proposed to be committed upon the material interests of Michigan, both as to lumbering and mining. My views have undergone no change, and I shall not only support the $2 tariff rate, but shall support it vigorously, and insist upon that rate before the committee on finance as well as upon the floor of the senate."

In a Helpless Condition.

Never before in the history of the congress was either the senate or the house in such a disorganized condition because of the determination of the Republican senators to have all or nothing, they are doing nothing. Consequently, two-thirds of the standing committees of the senate are in a helpless condition, and unable to proceed properly with their legislative functions.

At the other end of the Capitol Speaker Reed stolidly and indifferently receives daily visits from members of congress and informs them that no matter what influences they may choose to bring to bear, he will not appoint the committees of the house of representatives. He is as autocratic as the czar, and seems to enjoy the discomfiture of the 355 representatives of the people, who are mere legislative puppets before him.

Hallet Kilbourn says: "It is humiliating to me, and I should think it would be humiliating to every free man in this republic, to gaze upon the scene on Capitol hill. We elect members of congress to represent us, and when they assemble they bow and 'crook the pregnant hinges of the knee' to one man and permit him to dominate them completely. There is no longer any freedom of thought or freedom of speech in the house of representatives. It is no longer the popular branch of congress. The real bulwark of the liberties of the people of today is the United States senate, where there is no limit to discussion and deliberation. The senate sometimes makes the mistake of permitting debate to run too long; but, in the end, the senate comes nearer doing that which the people desire than that branch which was prepared by the framers of the constitution for the purpose of maintaining in close touch with the people."

Working for Harmony.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, and others of like political sagacity in the Republican party, are endeavoring to bring about a condition of harmony between the regular and the silver Republicans. It is known that the men of the northwest who are fighting for the white metal are now inclined to receive propositions, if they come to them in a genuine spirit of harmony. The Republicans have more than a majority of the senate, and can reorganize all of the offices and all of the committees and pass a tariff bill without difficulty if an arrangement can be made whereby the silver Republicans will not be ignored. Senator Gallinger says that these men ought not to be driven clear out of the party simply because they are wedded to one particular idea which their people demand shall be kept to the front. It seems to him, and to a few other able Republican senators, like there ought to be some way of getting together so that the Republican family shall not be hopelessly and forever divided against itself. Whether this can be accomplished or not remains to be seen. During the past week a number of conferences have been held between Senator Allison of Iowa, who is the recognized leader of his party in the senate, and Senator Teller of Colorado, who is the recognized leader of all the silver forces. They are both broad-gauged men, and both inclined to secure harmony if possible, in order that revenue legislation may be enacted.

Quotation from McKinley's Speech.

In view of the fact that the Dingley tariff bill provides that its legislation shall be retroactive, it is timely to make the following quotation from the speech of William McKinley in the house of representatives April 15, 1878:

"If a change is necessary in the present tariff system, or in some cases a reduction is demanded for the general good, then I answer that such reduction or change should be the work of time, and not hastily or inconsiderately done. Any change, however seemingly trifling, will seriously operate upon the business interests of this country, will unsettle trade and disturb values. Even a discussion of the question is a terror to the commercial classes; and we have discovered, since the report of the subcommittee to the ways and means committee was given to the house, and to the country, a marked disturbance in every avenue of trade and labor.

"There can be no justification for an immediate change of the present system. If a new policy is to be inaugurated, or departures are to be made from the old, then they should have reference to a period of time in the future sufficiently remote from the present to enable business men and trades people to prepare for the new order of things and adjust their trade comfortably to it. We want in this country no sudden shock to further paralyze business. A law passed now, to go into effect at once as proposed by this bill, or in the near future, would be without justification on the part of this house, and, I may say, would be an act of criminality."

Are Making a Tariff Bill.

"We are making a tariff bill," said Senator Allison of Iowa this morning, in reply to an inquiry concerning his constant work at the Arlington hotel. His declaration concerning himself and other Republican members of the committee on finance that they are "making a tariff bill" sustains the judgment of the experienced statesmen and politicians. There will be nothing left of the Dingley bill but its name. It will be buried out of sight in the pigeonholes of the committee on finance, and will never be heard of again except as a reminiscence. The Republican senators propose to act as they have always done in such cases and originate a bill of that kind. They are practically ignoring the fact that the house of representatives exists at all, and they have paid no attention to the work of the past six months. The members of the committee on ways and means have aired so much [illegible] in the newspapers.

DUNBAR.

BUSINESS METHODS.

Why Farmers Should Look After Their Insurance Policies.

Farmers sometimes forfeit their insurance by neglect. While the mutual companies do not, as we understand it, hold farmers to the strict letter of the law, as do the stock companies, but go more on the equities of the case in their settlements than on strictly legal points, nevertheless it is wise to have everything straight at the start and keep it straight. For example, many farmers during the year make additions to their buildings. The company should be informed of this fact and additional insurance, whether against fire, lightning or tornado, should be taken out to cover the increased value. Many farmers sell or trade properties during the year and this vitiates their policy unless an assignment is made, returned to the company, and a new policy issued. Where farmers do not sell outright they frequently deed portions of their property to their wives or members of their families, thus making a change of title and in each case the policy should state the facts.

Another matter. In making out a policy always see that the property that you wish to protect is specifically mentioned in the policy and that it is so mentioned that there can be no dispute about it. For example, we heard of a case lately that is likely to lead to litigation in a stock company. The farmer so insured carried so much insurance on grains. A fire occurred and in addition to the grains a lot of clover seed was burned. The question came up at once, is clover seed a grain? It will be very difficult to prove that it is. Therefore the policy should read grain and clover seed, or any other kind of seed.

Another matter. Always keep your policy where you will know where to get it should it be needed for any purpose and if possible keep it in a fireproof safe. Bankers usually take care of papers of this kind and it would be a good thing to leave your policies together with your banker, or in some other place where they are as safe as possible from fire.—Wallace's Farmer.

RENDERING LARD.

Simple and Handy Device Which Makes the Task Easy.

The illustration portrays a simple and handy device for heating water and rendering lard in kettles. I made the pieces, c c, out of the iron gangs of an old cultivator; any kind of light iron will do for balance. Set two parts, a a, (common fence posts) in the ground. Cut a mortise in top for crosspiece b and pin them so the weight of the kettle will not pull them together. Get two eyes, f f, for bottom (gate eyes will answer). To make them stronger, the two top eyes, f f, should be fitted with nuts. Make bottom of beams, c c, so they will go in bottom eyes and make the other end with a small crook for kettle to hang in. Take two pieces of iron, d d, and rivet them on each side of beams, c c; rivet a hook in the other end to hook in top eyes. Bolt the piece of iron, e e, to crosspiece b, so they will drop down between pieces d d, and lock beams so that they cannot swing from over the fire. To remove the kettle from the fire, remove lock e and the beam can be swung either way. I find it a very convenient way for rendering lard. If lard is foaming or getting too hot, it can easily be swung from over the fire until danger is over and when done, the kettle need not be removed from the beams until the lard is taken out.—H. M. Hodson, in Farm and Home.

OILING THE HARNESS.

If Undertaken at All, This Work Should Be Done Well.

Harness will last much longer and look much better if kept well oiled, and will not get so stiff after being exposed to a day's rain. During the spring it is difficult to keep harness from getting wet, and it will pay well before the season's work begins to see that it is thoroughly oiled. In doing the work, the harness should be taken apart and washed clean, using warm water and castile soap, and then wiped dry, when the oil should be applied. If so clean that washing is not needed, it will be better to wipe off with a wet rag as the oiling can be done better. It is best to take harness all apart, in order to get at all of the parts and oil thoroughly. Good harness oil can be purchased all ready for use, or neatsfoot oil, with a little lamp black, will be found good. If the harness has not been oiled for some time and is hard and dry, it will be best to go over them twice, finishing all up, and then commencing with the first piece and going over again. After every part has been thoroughly oiled, it should all be hung up over a frame of some kind and allowed to dry. It should not be hung in the sun or where the wind strikes, as it will dry too rapidly. The oil should have plenty of time to soak in. Like most other work on the farm, if undertaken it will pay to do well.—Journal of Agriculture.

Separate the Flocks.

The first thing to do with flocks that are kept on farms rather than on ranches is to separate the flock into a number of small ones, each composed of one kind, and having a regard to sex, age and general condition. The weak ones should not be placed with the strong. The weather or stock flock should be in one flock, the breeding ewes in another, and the lambs in another, if the best results are to be secured.

Present, Richard R. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Humbolt Pennington, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Clarissa Pennington, administratrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred have been fully paid, and that she is now ready to close said estate and to render her final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to law and that she may be discharged and her bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of April next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is Further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD R. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

And that six months from the 28th day of March, A. D. 1897, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

MERRIT E. CONKLIN,
JAMES A. BOYD,
Commissioners.

Dated, the 31st day of March, A. D. 1897.

FURTHER DELAY.

Little Farm Work Done Owing to Unfavorable Conditions.

Chicago, April 14.—The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Illinois—Condition practically unchanged; week cooler and cloudy, with large excess of moisture over southern portion and sharp frosts on 10th and 11th, and snow on 10th. The work has been further delayed, oats and spring wheat seeding continue in east and northeast counties; elsewhere little has been done; a few gardens made and potatoes planted. Sunshine and dryness urgently needed.

Wisconsin—The snow has nearly all disappeared and the frost is coming out rapidly. Very little farm work done yet as the soil is too wet for plowing. Seeding has commenced in the southern section. Winter wheat is generally reported to be badly injured, except in a few localities. Rye is in fair condition.

Minnesota—Cloudy weather, cool nights and scattered showers have delayed drying the soil. Flood conditions improving, but soil too wet for working except in light hillside where a little wheat is sown, but seeding will not be general before 15th or 20th. Winter wheat and rye reported badly killed in portions of east.

Iowa—Week unseasonably cool with excessive cloudiness, closing showery. Seeding begun with soil generally too moist for best results. Delay likely to lessen prospective acreage for spring wheat.

Indiana—Cloudy weather, little sunshine, frequent rains, heavy snow, followed by heavy frost, were not favorable to growing crops, and plowing and seeding were delayed. Wheat improved slowly, much is being plowed up. Rye in good condition. Tobacco plant coming up. Clover, timothy and grass look well.

Ohio—Frost and ice of the 10th and 12th hurt gardens and small fruits, but to what extent is not yet known. From one to three inches of snow in western half on 9th and 10. Frequent and heavy rains brought plowing, oats sowing, potato planting and garden making to a standstill, but rather favored growth of wheat, grasses, clover, oats and timothy. Peach and plum trees blooming in southern portion. Tobacco seed mostly sown.

Michigan—Wet, cool weather has held back plowing and seeding, and very little such work has been done during the week. In extreme southern counties some oats and clover sown, and plowing for corn just begun. Conditions favorable for winter wheat, rye and meadows.

PENSION AGENCIES.

The Order for Their Consolidation May Be Revoked.

Washington, April 15.—The sweeping orders of President Cleveland effecting a consolidation of the pension agencies will be revoked by President McKinley, if present plans are carried out. Though it is stated that no conclusion has been reached on the matter, the president has had time to inquire into it and to hear protests of congressional delegations, and it is learned that practically he has become convinced that it should never be allowed to become operative.

The order is to take effect September 1 but doubtless will be rescinded long before then. Commissioner of Pensions Evans shares this opinion and he has forwarded for the consideration of the president and Secretary Bliss a report setting out that instead of making a saving of considerably over $100,000 in the way of clerk hire, etc., it would increase the expenditures by $200,000.

FLOOD STATISTICS.

An Alarming Condition of Affairs in the South.

Statement Showing Value of Property Under Water—Many Lives Lost—Another Levee Gives Way in Louisiana.

Washington, April 12.—A statement relative to the agricultural interests of the submerged districts of the Mississippi valley south of Cairo, Ill., has been issued by the department of agriculture. It is based upon a chart prepared under the direction of the chief of the weather bureau showing the extent of the flood on April 6. It says:

The total area under water on April 6 was about 15,500 square miles, of which 7,500 square miles was in Mississippi, 4,500 square miles in Arkansas, 1,750 square miles in Missouri, 1,200 in Tennessee, and 450 in Louisiana. This region contained in 1890, so far as can be determined in view of the indefinite boundary lines of the flood, a population of 379,685, of which 186,489, or about one-half, was in Mississippi, 100,235 in Arkansas, and the remainder almost equally divided between Missouri and Tennessee.

The flooded districts contain, it is estimated, about 29,500 farms, of which about 15,500 are in Mississippi, nearly 10,000 in Arkansas, and a like number about equally divided between Missouri and Tennessee. These farms contain a total area of about 2,900,000 acres, one-half of which is in Mississippi and rather over one-fourth in Arkansas, the proportions in Missouri and Tennessee being about the same as in the case of the number of farms. The total value of these farms, with their improvements, farm implements, etc., is close upon $65,000,000, and here also the proportions in the different states are about the same as above noted.

What effect the floods will have upon the crops of the present season depends upon the length of its continuance, and the practicability of wheat planting after the subsidence of the flood. The entire region under water on April 6 produced last year about 750,000 bales of cotton, valued at close on $12,000,000; over 11,000,000 bushels of corn, worth about $3,400,000, and wheat, oats, potatoes and hay, worth over $800,000.

People in the Trees.

East Grand Forks, Minn., April 12.—Reports have come in from along the Red river that people are waiting in the tree tops and on roofs of their houses for rescue. It is said that many lives have been lost down the river, but there is no possible chance of verifying the statement. Hundreds of farmers along the Red river near here have been drowned out and are waiting for aid in order to get on high ground. In the principal business street stores are flooded seven or eight feet deep. There is no possible way of estimating loss of life and property from this point. Cattle and horses by the thousands are in danger in this immediate neighborhood, only a few inches of dry land separating them from death, and their owners are in the same fix.

Illinois Farms Under Water.

Alton, Ill., April 12.—Many farmers who rested in fancied security found their homes Sunday morning surrounded by water, and were forced to move in a hurry. Every farm in the lower portion of St. Charles county is under water, and only those within the last main levee are still dry. In the American bottom the condition is even worse. Hundreds of acres of the best and most promising wheat land in the state has been claimed by the waters.

River Falling.

Memphis, Tenn., April 12.—The water in the Mississippi delta is slowly receding. Reports received here from the overflowed country are most encouraging. The day has been an ideal one and every planter in the delta is in better spirits. It is now believed the water will disappear by May 1 and if this proves true a fair crop can be made. The overflow will leave a sediment or deposit which generally enriches the soil and the planters may be yet able to balance their big account with the Father of Waters.

Situation at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., April 14.—East Omaha and North Omaha are flooded by the waters that are rushing from the Missouri river and the residents have fled for their lives, leaving their possessions behind. All the people were forced to abandon their homes in haste, some of them with only their nightclothes on. Many narrow escapes from drowning are recounted, but so far as is known no lives were lost.

Great Want and Suffering Said to Exist in China.

San Francisco, April 13.—According to advices brought by the steamship Gaelic the natives in the vicinity of Ichang, China, are dying by hundreds of starvation. The officials are making efforts to provide for the starving people by sending in rice, but owing to the difficulty in transporting the food in the famine districts only those living along the waterways are aided. No estimate of the loss of life is given, but it is reported to be heavy.

HOUSE OWNERS KNOW ... that the cheapest way to maintain a good selling value for property is to keep it in good repair. Never let it run down. A delay in the use of paint may not be dangerous, but it is bad business policy. It is poor economy.
Nothing makes more show for the money in brightening up a home than judicious use of paint. The paint habit is a good habit to have. You should know how easy it is to use a good paint. You should know the right paint to use in the right place. A bath tub, chair, table, cupboard, buggy, wagon, floor, plow, house or a barn will be worth more money if it is well painted. It will look 100 per cent better.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS CO. makes special paint for all these—a different paint for each purpose—a paint exactly suited to each purpose.
THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS ENAMEL PAINT is made for decorating the inside of a home. It is for chairs, tables, settees, flower pots—everything where a dainty color and a bright varnish gloss are desired.
Our booklet "Paint Points" tells the difference between good and bad paint. It tells what to paint and how to paint. Send for it—it is free.

LABOR OF CONVICTS.

It Will Not Be Employed Upon Public Highways.

THE PROBLEM IS A SERIOUS ONE.

Chain Gang Provision in the Molster Bill Not Received with Favor—Last Week the Liveliest One of This Session of the Legislature—Bill of Interest to Fraternal Benefit Organizations — Governor Pingree and His Scrap Books.

Lansing, Mich., April 13.—It may be put down as a safe proposition that it will be many a year before the state of Michigan will set its convicts at work on the public highways. This fact was very thoroughly demonstrated last week when the Molster anti-convict labor bill was discussed in the house. It was quite generally conceded that had it not been for the chain gang provision of the measure it would have received more than 29 votes, although there was no reasonable hope of its passing in any form. This is the smallest vote that has been cast for similar bills for a number of sessions, the reason being that former bills did not employ the provision for parceling out the convicts to the various counties for work on the highways. This was looked upon by a large majority of the members as a step in the direction of a return to barbarism, and the opponents of the bill drew most unattractive pictures of the effect that the spectacle of convicts, adorned with ball and chain, would have on the morals of the youth of the state who would be forced to gaze upon them. It is evident that the convict labor problem is a serious one, and also that the labor men will have to present some feasible plan of employing the prisoners to advantage before they will be able to secure a departure from the present mode of working them at whatever can be found for them to do.

Robbing Peter to Pay Paul.

The idea has become pretty well grounded in the minds of most citizens that, even under the most favorable circumstances, the convict is bound to compete with his free fellow citizen, and that it would be simply robbing Peter to pay Paul to abandon present industries only to engage in others where the competition would be felt more keenly by some other branch of labor than under existing circumstances. It has come to be pretty generally understood, too, that even though maintained in absolute idleness the burden of maintaining convicts would fall as heavily upon free labor as it does now.

In its last report to the legislature the state board of corrections and charities recommended that greater discrimination be exercised in the matter of opening the prisons of the state to visitors, it not being creditable to the state that she should make an exhibition, for gain, of her wards. The fee of 25 cents charged for admission was declared to be poor compensation for the injury done. In accordance with this recommendation, the senate has passed a bill providing that general visitors shall not be admitted to any of the prisons of the state, and the matter is now pending in the house. Warden Chamberlain, of the state prison at Jackson, is opposing the passage of the bill. He says that no harm has come from the system so far as his observation goes. The small admission fee charged, he says, brought quite a revenue to the state without harm to the prison, and with great convenience to the public. Of the money received from this source, $500 is annually used for extending the prison library, and thus does good work.

Demoralizing to the Prisoners.

The board of corrections, however, makes strenuous objection to the admission of women and children particularly, and in support of their proposition, point to the fact that at a recent meeting of the Wardens' Association of the United States and Canada, a resolution denouncing the practice as demoralizing to the prisoners and without benefit to the public was passed, the only negative vote being cast by Warden Chamberlain and the warden of an Ohio prison.

Whether the result of election, or the fact that such a thing is the past, has anything to do with the situation is not known, but the fact is, as every one here has noticed, that matters have taken on a very lively turn during the past week. Last week was altogether the liveliest of the session, with the possible exception of the first week of the year when the new state officials took possession of their offices and a goodly share of their constituents came here to strike them for jobs. The lobby which had previously been conspicuous by its absence, put in an appearance with the election returns, and legislative matters generally took on much of the old-time appearance. The hotelkeepers are beginning to reap the harvest for which they have long been waiting, and everybody is jollying up along the line. Up to the 1st of April the session was duller than any that can be recalled by the present generation of Lansing citizens. The signs for the balance of the session are hopeful inasmuch as all of the important matters are yet to be considered, the beet sugar and convict labor bills being about the only legislation, other than that of a purely local nature that has thus far been disposed of. The result of the election, especially in Detroit, has changed the situation not a little, and it is evident that the so-called Pingree bills stand a much poorer show of becoming laws than was the case before a Democrat was elected mayor of Detroit.

To Increase Salaries.

For the thirteenth time since 1870 propositions to increase salaries of state officials have been submitted to the people of Michigan, and unless the official returns shall prove that the amendment to raise the salary of the attorney general from $800 to $3,500, which was voted upon last Monday, has carried, the people have indorsed the proposition on but three occasions, and this in spite of the fact that it is notorious that, even with the increases referred to, Michigan pays the most miserable salaries of any state in the Union. There is no reason for believing that the attorney general amendment has carried, but the exact vote cast for and against it as well as for justice of the supreme court will not be known until after the returns to be received from the county canvassers this week are compiled. Some one was complaining a few weeks ago of the slowness with which election returns are received, the approximate vote cast last week for supreme justice and regents not being learned for twenty-four hours after the polls closed. This complaint led an upper peninsula legislator who heard it to remark that Buchannan was inaugurated president of the United States before the result of the election was known in the Lake Superior country.

The house will hold an important session Thursday evening of this week, the outcome of which will be of much interest to every member of a fraternal benefit organization in Michigan. At that time there will come up on special order a bill to permit an appeal to be taken to the courts from the decision of these associations relative to the payment of death claims. Under the present law the decision of the arbitrators or committee chosen by the members of the association is final.

United in Opposition.

The various benefit associations are united in their opposition to the bill, and it is understood that during the consideration of the special order, a recess will be taken to permit addresses to be made on the subject by members of the several orders. It is claimed that it occurs but once or twice in the history of these associations that they refuse to make payment, it being necessary that the circumstances which call for such refusal must be most conclusive, inasmuch as refusal to pay, except for the most potent reason, would be the death of the order. It is alleged that one of the members who is pushing the bill very hard has an interest in the certificate issued by the Maccabees on the life of Dr. H. H. Pope of Detroit, who was murdered by his wife, who was his beneficiary under the certificate. The order held that as inasmuch as Mrs. Pope was convicted of murdering her husband for the purpose of obtaining the insurance on his life, the amount of the certificate should not be paid. Mrs. Pope, who is now serving a life sentence for this crime, has, it is understood, asigned this certificate to her attorneys for their services in defending her at her trial. It is rather a significant fact that most of the lawyers in the house favor the bill, possibly because it may turn out some time that they may acquire an interest in a certificate in a similar manner.

There is a disposition among many legislators to make brewers pay a heavier tax. Under the present law the man who manufactures beer is required to pay a tax of but $65, while the individual who sells it by the glass is assessed $500.

Say It Is Unfair.

Those who favor a change insist that this arrangement is decidedly unfair, and it is not improbable that when the legislature turns its attention to the various liquor bills on the files of both houses, the brewers will be asked to put up a larger amount of the coin of the realm for the privilege of doing business in Michigan. It looks more and more every day as if the liquor laws will be made more exacting both as to the amount of the license fee and the restrictions placed about the business.

The indications are that, now that Governor Pingree has been relieved of his municipal responsibilities, he will spend much more time in Lansing than heretofore. One of the indications is the removal from Detroit to this city of his scrap-book industry. The governor not only has all the newspapers of Michigan carefully scanned for references to him, but he is a subscriber to several of the leading newspaper clipping agencies. The result is that he secures daily enough clippings to keep one man busy much of the time aranging and pasting them. Governor Pingree already has between 500 and 600 volumes of clippings, and he is piling them up at a great rate daily. He has a most careful system of arranging the clippings, and whatever he wants can be found at a moment's notice. He makes no distinction between the complimentary and uncomplimentary notices of his sayings and doings, references of every name and nature being carefully preserved and indexed.

From the manner in which applications for sugar beet seed are pouring in upon Land Commissioner French it is evident that a vast amount of Michigan farmers are intending to experiment in the way of raising sugar beets during the coming season. Unfortunately, Commissioner French has no seed for distribution, but the impression that he has or is to have has gone out, and much of his correspondence these days relates to this subject.

Portrait of Ex-Governor Rich.

A number of intimate friends of ex-Governor Rich have quietly arranged to pay him a pleasing and fitting compliment by arranging to have painted his portrait for presentation to the state, the object being to have it placed in the executive parlors where pictures of the other ex-governors of Michigan are hung. Arrangements have been made with Percy Ives, the Detroit artist, to paint a life-size portrait in oil to cost $1,000. Friends of ex-Governor Winans did a similar act, the presentation speech being made by the Hon. William C. Maybury, mayor of Detroit, while Governor Rich accepted it in behalf of the people of the state. It will be a number of months before the Rich portrait will be completed.

The senate suddenly changed front last Friday on three bills conferring upon numerous township and village boards in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac St. Clair and Bay counties the right to permit the construction of electric railroads through their jurisdictions. The projectors of the scheme contemplate the building of an electric line from Bay City to Port Huron and northward. The bills had passed both houses, but the senate suddenly reconsidered its vote on the plea that no provision had been made to require the companies to pay any tax, neither did the bills make the companies operating the projected lines subject to supervision by the commissioner of railroads or any other authority. On the other hand the friends of the bill claim that the change was due to the opposition of the steam road companies who do not relish the competition which the electric lines would precipitate. The bills were sent back to the senate committee on railroads, and it is predicted that they will be permitted to slumber there for all time—at least so far as this session of the legislature is concerned.

LITERARY NOTES.

The editor of the Review of Reviews passes suggestive comment on the latest phases of the Grecio Turkish question. He holds that the only reasonable solution of the Cretan difficulty is to place Crete definitely in the keeping of Greece. His theory is that Russia is playing a waiting game, and that the other great powers are playing into her hands. The Review reproduces a portion of the Athens "Ephmeris" of recent date, containing war news and comment printed in modern Greek, together with several striking cartoons showing the Hellenic point of view.

Tipton, March, 7, '97.

Messrs. Orr & Temple.,

I purchased a bottle of Texas De Horner last spring and used it on two calves.

It stopped the growth of horn and did not inconvenience the calves at all. They are now eleven months old and no signs of any horns.

I would recommend it in preference to any other way of Dehorning.

MANY ARE DESTITUTE.

Situation in the South and West Practically Unchanged.

Thousands of Acres Are Flooded—Much Suffering is Reported—Hundreds of Persons Are in Need of Assistance.

Washington, April 17.—It is suggested that a ten days' supply of rations be sent at the earliest practicable moment to supply 1,000 destitute persons and 100 head of stock in Quitman county, Miss., in which 13 townships are inundated; also for 5,000 destitute persons and 500 head of stock in Coahoma county, where 12 townships are flooded; for 8,000 destitute persons and 200 live stock in Bolivar county, where nine townships are inundated. On the Arkansas side it is reported there are 6,000 destitute and 400 live stock in Phillips and Monroe counties requiring assistance. Thirty to 40 days is the estimated period of time before laborers can go to work in the inundated area.

River Eight Miles Wide.

Burlington, Ia., April 19.—The river at Burlington is now eight miles wide and extends over the lowlands at Gladstone, Ill., 12 miles from Burlington. The roadbed of the Burlington system has the appearance of a dike, running for miles through a lake which extends to the Illinois bluffs in the distance.

Situation Grows Worse.

Memphis, Tenn., April 20.—The situation at Biggs, where the water is running through the crevasse in torrents, is growing worse. Madison parish is fast becoming inundated and the water will extend to other parishes, destroying thousands of acres of newly-planted crops. Vicksburg, Natchez and other river points are crowded with refugees and everything possible is being done to alleviate the suffering of the poorer classes. Calls for aid have been sent out from sections of the overflowed Mississippi delta, and, while the waters are slowly receding, the suffering and destitution increases.

Damage in Oregon.

Baker City, Ore., April 20.—Powder river is higher than ever known, and is doing great damage. Only one bridge remains in this city and if the warm weather continues it will go out. The Sumpter Valley railroad is flooded for miles and trains will not be running for weeks. The northern residence portion of the city is inundated.

More Lives Lost.

Natchez, Miss., April 21.—A terrible tale of woe comes from Bayou Videl, in the lower portion of Madison parish. The water from the Biggs crevasse caught the people there unprepared and unaware of danger. Word was sent out from that locality requesting that boats be sent there at once, as the people were drowning. How many were actually drowned is unknown, but Thomas Blackman, his wife and infant are known to have been drowned, and Mr. T. P. Kells came near losing his life in attempting to save them. It is believed others have perished. Boats have been sent to the fated locality.

River Falling.

Memphis, Tenn., April 21.—The river at Vicksburg, Helena, Natchez and all along from St. Joseph, La., to Bayou Sara, La., is reported either stationary or falling. This condition is the result of the vast amount of water passing through the crevasses at Biggs and Reed's levees, above Nachez and at Hancock's, below.

PRICE OF WHEAT RISES.

War News Creates Much Excitement in the Market.

Chicago, April 20.—At least three men are credited with having made more than $100,000 each in wheat Monday. The war news created great excitement on change. May wheat opened at 74½. Cent after cent was added to the ruling price. The scene in the wheat pit on the board of trade was as wild as it has been in years. The highest point for the day was 78 for May, July and September; lowest, May, 74¾; July, 73½; September, 71¼. The closing price for May was 75 cents.

A Cold Wave.

Chicago, April 20.—Dispatches from points in Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin tell remarkable stories of drops in temperature, caused by the cold wave which swept over these states. At Sioux City and Clinton, Ia., ice half an inch thick was formed, and at the former place the mercury dropped 35 degrees during the night. At Plainfield, Wis., the thermometer registered 12 degrees below freezing, and at Lansing, Mich., heavy frost was reported.

Rusie Signs.

New York, April 20.—The Journal says that Amos Rusie, the great baseball pitcher, has signed a contract for the season of 1897, tendered him by the New York Baseball club, and will report to the team for duty forthwith. The Journal is able to make this announcement on unquestionable authority. Rusie's contract calls for a salary of $2,400 for the season.

Crushed to Death.

Chicago, April 20.—While engaged in gathering kindling from an old frame building, which was being torn down by Alexander Fisher, Mrs. Mary Haas, 25 years old, of 64 Cherry street, was crushed to death, the walls falling upon her.

Georgetown, Del., April 19. — James M. Gordy, who was convicted on Thursday of the murder of Mrs. Mary Lewis was sentenced to be hanged on June 11 next.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS.

Bits of Information from Many Points in Michigan.

Mrs. T. W. Palmer will give the city of Detroit a $10,000 drinking fountain.

The Michigan Central will soon begin laying new steel rails west of Three Oaks.

The Michigan Salt association has advanced the price of salt five cents a barrel.

Dowagiac is now connected with Cassopolis and La Grange, Ind., by telephone.

Michigan troops will not attend the dedication of the Grant monument April 27.

A tannery plant to cost about $12,000 is one of the latest industries proposed for Menominee.

Farmers around Otsego have contracted to furnish milk from 350 cows, and a cheese factory will be built in the village.

Children built a bonfire near the barn of A. W. Larzeler at Dowagiac, and the barn and two horses were burned, causing a loss of $1,200.

A Chicago manufacturer of canning machines is making preparations for starting a canning factory at Niles. He expects to have the factory running full blast next fall.

The sawmill of the Sands & Maxwell Lumber company, of Pentwater, is in operation, employing a crew of 35 men. The daily cut is about 40,000 feet of hardwood lumber.

Mrs. S. B. Seely, of South Haven, has just been awarded $5,000 against the Chicago City Railway company for injuries received in a cable car accident in that city a few months ago.

It is stated that trains on the new St. Joseph Valley railroad in Berrien county will be running between Benton Harbor and Buchanan by July 1. A large force of men is at work on the construction of the roadbed.

Mrs. Louise Robbins, of Adrian, has been chosen a delegate from the National Council of Women of the United States to a meeting of the executive committee of the International Council of Women, which convenes next July in London.

ANGELL'S SUCCESSOR.

Professors D'Ooge and Hutchins Mentioned for the Place.

Ann Arbor, April 19.—Dean M. L. D'Ooge, of the literary department, and Dean H. B. Hutchins, of the law department, are most frequently mentioned as liable to be appointed acting president to serve while President Angell is away as minister to Turkey. Both Prof. D'Ooge and Prof. Hutchins are thoroughly familiar with the methods by which the university has been conducted and either would fill the place most creditably. Regent Levi L. Barbour, of Detroit, Prof. S. A. Pattengill and F. W. Kelsey have also been talked of as possible successors to Dr. Angell. The regents will meet April 28, when the matter will be acted upon.

Detroit, April 21.—Levi L. Barbour, one of the regents of the University of Michigan, said Tuesday that if President Angell goes to Turkey as United States minister for the full term of four years it is doubtful whether he will ask for leave of absence from the university. The regents, therefore, anticipate that if Dr. Angell accepts a four years' appointment his resignation as president will follow. If however, he accepts the Turkish mission for only a year he will doubtless ask for and be granted leave of absence.

SLAIN BY A BURGLAR.

Business Man of Adrian the Victim of a Housebreaker.

Adrian, April 18.—Lafayette Ladd, formerly member of the city council and a prominent business man, was shot and killed in his bedroom by a burglar early Saturday morning. The burglar effected entrance through a bay window, which he had pried up with a "jimmy," and had already secured Mr. Ladd's watch, pocketbook and $60 in cash. He escaped through the window and, though Mrs. Ladd immediately telephoned the officers, no trace of him could be discovered. Mr. Ladd was proprietor of Ladd's canning factory. He was well known among turfmen as a breeder of fine horses, being the owner of Alcanwood, a fine stallion. The residence of W. T. Lawrence, on the southern city limits, was also raided about two o'clock. The marauder left no clew at either place.

Pleuro-Pneumonia in Milk.

Menominee, April 17.—The pleuro-pneumonia scare continues, and citizens are becoming more alarmed every day over the milk supply. Out of 200 cans examined 20 were found to be afflicted with tuberculosis. Two children have died this month of tuberculosis attributed to drinking milk from afflicted cows. The health department is taking the greatest precautions and is examining and testing cows owned by private individuals as well as the dairy herds.

Iowa Burglars Use a Wagon.

Dedham, Ia., April 19.—The department store of Hardie & Ayerhart was robbed Sunday morning of $1,000 worth of dry goods, clothing, fine shoes, hats and hardware. The thieves carried the goods away in a two-horse wagon.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Daily Summary of the Proceedings in Congress.

Matters of Importance That Occupy the Time in the Senate—No Business Being Done in the House.

Washington, April 15. — A test vote on the tariff question in the senate yesterday showed a majority of one in its favor. The Indian appropriation bill was discussed. A message was received from the president urging that suitable provision be made for adequate representation of the United States at the Paris exposition in 1900.

Washington, April 16. — The senate spent the time yesterday considering the Indian appropriation bill, but did not complete it. Senator Davis endeavored to secure unanimous agreement upon a time to take a vote upon the Anglo-American arbitration treaty, but failed. Senator Hansbrough introduced a bill authorizing the appointment of a commission to introduce and popularize the bread foods of the United States among the peoples of the orient.

Washington, April 20.—The senate passed the Indian appropriation bill yesterday. It is substantially the same as it passed the house. It was decided to vote on the arbitration bill May 5. Senator Butler (N. C.) introduced a bill to give the government control of the Union and Central Pacific railroads. Resolutions of inquiry were agreed to asking the secretary of state as to the operation of the reciprocity treaties made under the McKinley act. After the executive session the senate adjourned as a mark of respect to Representative Milliken, deceased.

Washington, April 21.—Senator Morgan's resolution declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba was discussed briefly in the senate yesterday and then went over for a week. The agricultural appropriation bill was passed and the bankruptcy bill was discussed. Senator Mason (Ill.) introduced a resolution looking to the adoption of some plan by which debate can be controlled. The nominations of William A. Jones, of Wisconsin, to be commissioner of Indian affairs, and Cornelius Van Cott to be postmaster at New York city, were received from the president.

The House.

Washington, April 15. — In the house yesterday Mr. Ridgely (pop., Kan.) introduced a bill "to enable the unemployed to earn a living, to utilize industry and produce general prosperity." It authorizes each state, territory, county, city, town, township or school district to raise money for giving employment on public works by issuing non-interest bearing bonds of 25 years, payable only to the United States, not to exceed half the assessed value of the property of the state or municipality. In return for the bonds the United States treasury is to issue treasury notes. Mr. Brownlow (rep., Tenn.) introduced a joint resolution for the reinstatement in the civil service of persons separated therefrom without cause. Mr. Shannon (N. Y.) introduced a bill to amend the anti-trust law so that it will not prevent railroad traffic agreements. Adjourned to the 17th.

Washington, April 19.—A house bill was introduced in the house on Saturday by Mr. Lewis (dem., Wash.) providing for the repeal of the act for an international monetary conference. Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.) introduced a bill to declare the true intent and scope of the civil service act. Adjourned to the 21st.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

Arrangements for His Coming Journey to New York Completed.

Washington, April 19.—The arrangements for President McKinley's journey to New York to attend the Grant memorial exercises have been completed. The president will leave here at 10:33 o'clock Monday morning, April 26, over the Pennsylvania road. He will occupy the private car of President Thompson, and probably will be accompanied by Mrs. McKinley. In the party will be the members of the cabinet and their families and the foreign ambassadors. In New York the president will stop at the Fifth Avenue or the Windsor hotel. The next day he will review the parade and make an address. In the evening he will attend a reception at the Union League club. He will return to Washington on Wednesday. A second train will follow that of the president. It will carry the vice president, Speaker Reed and the members of the senate and house.

Horses Killed by Buffalo Gnats.

Jackson, Tenn., April 20.—Buffalo gnats are causing great loss to stock owners. Horses and mules are dying throughout West Tennessee. In a radius of 50 miles around this city more than 500 have died in the last three days. The farmers have had no experience with the gnats and are at a loss to know what to do. There seems to be no way to protect the animals.

Tortured by Robbers.

Decatur, Ill., April 20.—Mrs. Anna Beaman, aged 75 years, who lives alone at her home on a large tract of land east of Decatur, was visited by robbers and relieved of about $700 in money after being treated in most brutal manner. She was badly clubbed.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

BAD BREATH

Is What a Woman Dreads More Than Pestilence or Famine.

And yet thousands of women are so afflicted. In spite of all they can do, this continues to grow worse, or at least grow no better. Tooth-brushes and breath perfume seem of no avail. The reason of their failure is, in the majority of cases at least, they do not know the cause of their trouble. Perhaps the most frequent cause of unpleasant breath is catarrh. The inflammation of the mucous membrane of mouth and throat discolors the teeth, coats the tongue, causes the lips to become harsh and sore, and imparts a more or less disagreeable odor to the breath. Such a condition must be an extreme annoyance to the woman whose instincts are naturally dainty; and she would do anything in her power to overcome it.

To all such women, the word that Peru-na will absolutely cure catarrh, will therefore be good news. Pe-ru-na, by removing the catarrh, sweetens the breath and causes healthy secretions to take the place of the irritating ones which have been the cause of so much discomfort. The teeth are easily cleaned and the effects of a brisk brushing remain. The tongue resumes its natural color and the unhealthy coating disappears. Catarrh of the stomach also is often the cause of foul breath. Peru-na cures catarrh wherever located.

A book of 64 instructively illustrated pages on catarrh, of which Dr. Hartman is the author, will be sent free to any address for a short time by The Peru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. J. A. J. Simpson, of Glen Forks, Ky., states: "I was afflicted with palsy and whenever I would recover from an attack of it a severe cough would set in, almost taking my breath away. This coughing would last hours, and nothing seemed to relieve me until I tried Lightning Cough Drops, which gave me immediate relief. I used two bottles of it and have never been troubled with a cough since." Orr & Temple, Tecumseh and Ridgeway.

VOICES OF CONGRESSMEN.

Many Representatives Have Won Celebrity by Lung Power.

There is always some one member of the house who possesses a voice far superior in depth and volume to that of any of the other members, which in itself serves to give the member possessing it a certain reputation. In the present house, says the Washington Post, this voice is possessed by Marriott Brosius, of the Tenth Pennsylvania district. Mr. Brosius has a faculty of talking so loud at times that the people in the galleries cannot distinguish what he says. Another Pennsylvanian who possessed a similarly powerful voice was the late W. D. Kelley, commonly known as "Pig Iron" Kelley. In his day he held the voice record against all comers until Charles H. Van Wyck, of New York, who was afterward a senator from Nebraska, appeared on the scene. His voice was even greater than that of Mr. Kelley. Back in the old days the greatest voice known to congress was that of the late William Allen, of Ohio, whose statue now stands in Statuary hall at the capitol. It is told of Mr. Allen, when he was in the house, before the days of railroads, that one of his colleagues left for his home in Ohio. The day after he was gone, Allen lamented the fact that he had taken his departure so soon, as he wanted to consult him about some measure which had come up suddenly. "That needn't trouble you, Allen," said a fellow-member. "He hasn't got across the Alleghenies yet. Just go out on the balcony and call him back."

DIDN'T WORK WITH A SKUNK.

Hose Method of Hunting Seems to Be for Rabbits Only.

The Sun recently told of a man who hunted rabbits with a hose, and got them. The Sportsmen's Review tells how other men tried the same scheme in a Chicago suburb, and why one of them wishes he hadn't. The way to hunt rabbits with a hose is to push the hose down into the rabbit hole, and have men guard all the exits, while somebody yells into the hose.

A man named Cutler doubted the efficiency of the method, according to the Review, but a man named Von Lengorke said it would work, and he would prove it. A party of hunters set forth after the rabbits, and came to a rabbit hole. Cutler guarded an entrance, while Abe Kleinman did the yelling.

The rabbit went out of the hole over Cutler's head, and away out of sight. Cutler admitted that he had been in the wrong, but he wanted to try to catch a rabbit, and, pointing to a hole, said it looked likely.

As before, Kleinman yelled into the hole. Cutler got close to the hole, so that he would be sure of the rabbit this time. He saw a beast coming, and with both arms clasped it tightly when it struck his breast.

The onlookers heard a muffled yell, such as a half-choked man might utter, and saw Cutler roll over backward, throwing the beast from him. Instead of a rabbit the beast was a scared skunk.

THE CELANDINE.

An Ancient Remedy for Cancer Now Almost Forgotten.

In a recent Science Echo attention was called to the use of Chelidonium sap in the treatment of cancer successfully practiced by a St. Petersburg doctor. Mr. Leeson Prince writes to the current number of Nature giving quotations from ancient writers showing that this plant was highly valued by them for medicinal purposes. Thus in a Latin work published in 1491 at Mayence, in speaking of the plant Chelidonium majus, we read: "And for cancer of the mouth the powder of the root is compounded with the powder of roses and boiled with vinegar."

Again, in a Dutch edition published in 1644, of a work of Theophrastus, after describing a method of preparing a decoction of the plant, the writer goes on to say: "The use of this liquid is esteemed, which taken into the body corrects and dispells all corrupt pernicious humors." Great botanists like Linnaeus, Murray and others have, it seems, expressed in their writings astonishment at the oblivion into which a plant so energetic as the Celandine has fallen, while the ancients knew how to appreciate its qualities. After all, then, Wordsworth may be forgiven for writing two odes to the greater and lesser Celandine, respectively, and the scathing sarcasm bestowed upon him for so doing by Byron was scarcely merited.

GORGEOUS MALE SERVANTS.

Lord Mayor's Gentlemen's Uniforms to Clothe Dusky Monarchs.

I was told some amusing facts the other day about the lord mayor's men servants. It seems, says a writer in the Collector, that the present lord mayor has 15, eight of whom are over six feet in height. Their livery is sapphire blue velvet, with heavy gold lace. These uniforms are only worn during the year of office, after which they become the property of the servants, who sell them to the firm which supplied them.

This is an ancient house, having the monopoly of supplying uniforms to the servants of city grandees. And what do you suppose becomes of these clothes eventually? They are sent out to African kings for wear on state occasions, at least the majority are, though a few are retained for the theaters.

But the most comical part of the whole affair is that the firm of clothiers is sometimes asked to send out a throne or a crown of gold to the dusky potentates with the garments. "And they do it, too: a city merchant will supply anything under the sun.

Ornaments Exchanged for Food.

During the Indian famine of 1879-1880 the mint at Bombay received $12,000,000 worth of gold and silver ornaments, sold by the natives for food.

More Railroad Talk.

St. Louis, Mich., April 17.—A representative of a company styling itself the Central Michigan Railroad company, with headquarters at Marshall, is in this city looking after the interests of that organization. The contemplated line leaves the old Coldwater Mackinaw line at Carson City, taking a northeasterly course to St. Louis and Midland, thence north through the hardwood belt to either Alpena or Cheboygan. The project meets with favor here and help will be given.

To Keep Up a Sound Money Campaign.

Grand Rapids, April 17.—The "sound money" democratic state central committee has decided to keep up its organization and work. Clerks will continue in charge of headquarters to superintend the organization of the counties and to distribute the literature. Reports were received showing the total vote cast in the recent election to be 25,000, with 15 counties yet to hear from.

It Is Bankrupt.

Detroit, April 17.—There is a strong probability that the plan of holding the state fair at Detroit will be abandoned. At least $50,000 is needed and only $5,000 has been raised. This sum was subscribed by the hotels. If the fair is held in Detroit a stock company will be organized for ten years. If not held in Detroit, there will be no state fair until 1898. Meanwhile the State Agricultural society is bankrupt.

Lake Barge Sinks.

Ludington, Mich., April 19.—Tow barge Charles N. Ryan went to the bottom a quarter of a mile off this port in 25 feet of water Sunday. In trying to make the harbor the current carried her onto the north pier, breaking a hole in her bow. Her crew reached land in safety.

Big Debate to Take Place April 29.

Ann Arbor, April 17.—After considerable correspondence the date for the Michigan-Chicago debate has been set for April 29. As this is after the spring vacation a large delegation of Michigan students cannot accompany their debaters to Chicago as has been expected.

Michigan Baseball League.

Lansing, April 20. — The Michigan Baseball league, comprising the cities of Lansing, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Saginaw, Bay City and Port Huron, will open the season next week. Strong teams have been put in the field in each of the league cities.

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it.

Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a MOTHER," says a customer.

"These badly prepared cocoas are the ones that people 'get tired' of, something that rarely happens if a properly prepared cocoa, such as WALTER BAKER & COMPANY'S, is used. It is at once a delightful food and nourishing drink, and it would be well for humanity if there were more of it consumed and less tea or coffee."

BRITTON.

George Exelby has been "gripping it" this week.

John Ed Keyes, of Clinton, was in town Tuesday.

Village caucus has been called for next Monday the 26th.

Rev. C. I. Deyo visited friends in Kalamazoo county this week.

Fred Nobles is working on the C. J. & M. section and will continue for a time.

Mrs. James DuBois has been suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism this week.

Burton Nichols and wife were guests of Clinton friends from Friday until Sunday.

Vern Yates is now indulging in midday naps. He does not sit up with the sick, either.

Rev. N. F. Nickerson attended what is termed in the Reformed church "The Classes" at Muskegon this week.

Frank Heath, of Milan, and Miss Lena Swick, of Tecumseh, were guests of Miss Bertha Britton over Sunday.

C. R. Maybee had an important call to make in Adrian Sunday so went over Saturday night to be on hand to the minute.

Sam Underwood, Eb Price, James Wright and John and Will Britton attended the funeral of Mr. Ladd at Adrian Tuesday.

C. H. Goodrich and Geo. Clark were visiting in Detroit Monday. What escaped their notice was not worth mentioning.

Will Allen and family enjoyed a visit from Mrs. A's brother, C. O. Hiscock, and wife, of Albion, from Thursday until Sunday.

Mrs. C. Exelby will lead the C. E. service at the Reformed church Sunday. The topic will be, "True Liberty, and How it is Won."

Rev. N. F. Nickerson accepted an invitation to deliver his illustrated lecture on "Lot's Wife" before a Muskegon audience last evening.

J. L. Kishpaugh and Ralph drove up to Clinton Sunday. Ralph remained to take his school examination and returned home yesterday.

Will Osgood went to Morenci Friday, where his wife and boy have been for some time, and visited friends until Tuesday when they all returned home.

Grisier & Co. did not continue in the grocery business long, they having sold their stock to O. B. Lenardson last Thursday and Harland left here for Fayette Friday.

Talk about taking Time by the forelock! Britton can go one better. Just think of it! Andrew Gogline is in April doing a rushing business, making cider from green apples.

At the Reformed church Sunday morning the pastor will discourse on the topic, "What is the Matter with Our Faith?" and in the evening on "The Duty of Happiness."

Just ten days after the proofs of the death of Lafayette Gregory were sent in to the Great Tent, K. O. T. M., the amount, $2,000, was received by Commander Clark and paid to the widow.

The room which for some time past has been occupied by the band boys for rehearsals being rented by Mr. Berry for a bakery, they met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Gripton Monday evening, and not only had a fine rehearsal but enjoyed a musicale as well.

Claude Lowe, Will Swick and George Clark went up to Tecumseh Saturday morning, expecting to return on the noon train. For some reason they failed to connect and not desiring to wait for the 5:50 train and having no destination to walk home, began looking around for some way out of their dilemma. Seeing Franc Yates' rig on the street, they simply took it and drove home, leaving him to get home as best he could which proved to be by walking to Ridgeway and there he got a ride into Britton. Franc appreciates the joke.

At the meeting of Ivy Leaf Hive, L. O. T. M., last Friday evening, the committee on entertainment, consisting of Mesdames Eb. Price, Vern Ousterhout, Jay Lee and O. B. Lenardson, sprung a surprise upon the members which proved most enjoyable to all present. They invited the husbands of all the married members to present themselves at given hour and had prepared choice refreshments for all. They kept the whole matter a profound secret and the surprise was complete. Several gentlemen were greatly favored by receiving initiation into degrees prepared for the occasion and it is said that Doc Henderson even now can show indisputable proof that he rode the goat.

Last Saturday evening at the residence of Chas. DuBois, an egg-eating contest took place, the losers to pay all the expense. They were to go in pairs. It was expected there would be quite a number to compete, but several who were to take a hand failed to materialize so Ed Gripton, Ralph Kishpaugh, Chas Smith and Ernest DuBois had to finish all the fun for the onlookers. Mr. DuBois and Mrs. Kishpaugh were to prepare the eggs in any style desired by the consumer and while the contest lasted they were kept busy. It proved a victory for Gripton and Kishpaugh as both showed the white feather before the third egg was consumed. DuBois did marvelous execution and for a time looked as if he would be able single handed to win the victory, but even his ability had a limit and he finally succumbed. The following shows the score:—Kishpaugh, 16 1-2, Gripton, 18—34; Smith, 6 1-2, DuBois, 26—28 1-2. Now would you like to board Ernest Clark? he had his appetite with him? Oh, there was fun galore.

A. Gogoline was in Tecumseh on business Tuesday.

Every seat was filled and many remained standing throughout the entire Easter service at the Reformed church last Sunday evening. The display of potted flowers was not extensive but they were artistically arranged. The young people deserve credit for their performance in the cantata.

For more than a hundred years the Shakers have been studying the remedial properties of plants. They have made many discoveries, but their greatest achievement was made last year. It is a cordial that contains already digested food and is a digester of food. It is effective in removing distress after eating, and creates an appetite for more food so that eating becomes a pleasure. Pale, thin people become plump and healthy under its use. It arrests the wasting of consumption.

There never has been such a step forward in the cure of indigestion as this Shaker Cordial. Your druggist will be glad to give you a little book descriptive of the product.

The shooting of Lafayette Ladd, one of Adrian's foremost citizens, by a burglar last Friday night, was a terrible affair; indeed the loss of such a man is a public calamity. Adrian is overrun with tramps and toughs of all kinds, and now that one of Lenawee's best men has been foully murdered, the county officers will no doubt think it time something was done and arrest these prowlers, as should have been done some time ago.

Cape Palmas, Liberia, Africa.
March 6, 1897.

EDITOR HERALD:—

If any of your readers are hankering after a new and exciting experience, let him come to Africa and have an attack of the African fever. It will hunt out parts of his anatomy that he never knew existed, and wake up boyish memories of sound thrashings in school and bring aches and pains beyond description. I can speak with authority, for I have just been through the fire.

Thinking that the readers of the HERALD will be interested in hearing from a Tecumseh boy in Africa, I again address your paper, having seen and learned many interesting things relating to the natives, in Africa, picking up these bits of information during my trips into the country where I went among the natives, into their homes and among their kings and medicine men, learning much of their superstitions and beliefs.

I will commence with a description of the St. Paul river. It flows into the bay at Morovia, is about one mile wide at its mouth but narrows rapidly to about a quarter of a mile at White Plains. 25 miles back from the coast. The banks are very low at first, but soon rise as the rolling country is reached. The banks near the mouth of the river are covered with great Mangrove swamps, which are very peculiar in that the roots of the tree are above the ground but are covered with water at high tide. Nature has provided for the support of these trees by sending out creepers, which start out from the branches and drop 30 or 40 feet to the ground, taking root and so furnishing a strong support for the tree. These swamps are so dense that it is impossible for any but a native to penetrate them.

As you go up the river and the banks become higher, the vegetation changes. The bamboo, which is a species of fern, begins to appear, and I have counted as many as six varieties at one time. One, a very interesting kind, grows like a vine, and at each joint it is provided with little hooks which catch anything they come in contact with and so aid the vine in climbing, and you will see this vine climbing out at the tops of the tallest trees and waving around in the air as though it were reaching for the heavens. The natives call it a "wait-a-bit" for it is always catching their clothing and stopping them. The banks of the river keep getting higher and higher and the palms begins to appear. There is a large variety of palms, including the cocoanut palm, the oil palm and many others.

The palm oil tree is of the greatest interest because of the many valuable articles obtained from it, being almost indispensible to the native. The fruit is a nut, which grows in a bunch at the top of the tree, only one bunch on each tree but about a peck of nuts in each bunch; the nut is about the size of a butternut, but flat on the side like an almond, and is covered with a fibery shuck which is bright red in color and full of oil. When the nuts are ripe the bunch is cut out and taken home, the nuts are taken out and boiled or roasted and the fiber-like shuck is eaten as an article of food, half a dozen palm nuts being a morning meal for a native. After the shuck is eaten off, the nuts are dried and cracked and the kernel, which, with the exception of coffee, is the principle export, is saved. From this part of the coast another article, made from the shuck of the palm nut is palm butter, no cows butter being obtainable in this section. I made several attempts to fathom the mysteries of making this article, but "No saby" was all the satisfaction I could get; but as I have tasted it and still live, I think it cannot be very deadly.

The palm nut tree also furnishes the thatch with which the native covers the roof of his humble dwelling, also the fiber forms the partition to his house and the mats on his floor. Another article is palm wine, also make from the same tree. The tree is cut down, the top cut off, and the sap runs out of the top for weeks after the tree is cut; gallons of the sap being thus obtained and allowed to ferment. The natives get into a beastly state of intoxication on this wine.

The only food products cultivated by the natives are rice and kasada. When the planting time approaches—which is just before the rainy season commences—each head man of the towns goes out and selects his farm for that season; no farm is planted two seasons in succession, because the second season the weeds commence to grow. The native never works the farm; after it is planted is is left to itself until the crop is ready to harvest. The farm that he selects is covered with brush six or seven years old, and in Africa the brush grows so dense that you cannot get through it only as you cut your way, and the trees in a brush six years old will be six inches in diameter.

The native begins his farming with a great feast and dance; then comes the clearing and burning of the land. The work is all done with a cutlass—an old sword blade fastened into a handle—but the fellow works with a will and soon has his farm cleared, generally about four acres. The burning over of the ground kills the weeds for that season.

The women do the planting amid drinking and feasting. One odd feature of the planting, and one that they appear to enjoy, is that as each row is finished they spend about ten minutes in a general hugging bee, and it does not seem to matter whether a man hugs his own or some other man's wife, but they all have a good time. By the end of the rainy season the crop is matured and is harvested by the women amid feasting and dancing; the heads of the rice are cut off, tied in little bundles and put in large, drumlike boxes, fastened to the rafters of the houses where it is dried, and it is to be beaten out in large wooden morters as it is wanted for food.

The kasada grows very much like the American artichoke; in planting, the native simply takes a stalk and cuts it into lengths of about three feet laying them on the ground and scraping a little dirt over them. Each joint sprouts and grows a hill of kasada much as a hill of potatoes grows.

Nature provides most abundantly for these simple people for with very little labor they are able to provide an abundance of food and bananas, planting, pineapples, cocoanuts breadfruit, pears, plums and many other varieties of fruit.

They make cloth from native cotton and almost everything from the grass which grows very rank.

Respectfully yours,
W. N. FOWLER, M. D.

High Noon Wedding.

At 12 o'clock on Wednesday, April 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Coddington occurred the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Etta, to Mr. Edward McDermid, of London, Ont. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Ella Chilson. The first to enter were Misses Harriet Bates and Mary Osborn carrying the ribbons. They were met at the improvised altar by Rev. Frank Lyon, of Cleveland, Rev. B. S. Hudson, Mr. Edgar Coddington as best man, and the groom. Then came Miss Minnie Wheeler, of Detroit, as maid of honor bearing the ring upon the tray, followed by Miss Etta, leaning upon the arm of her father. Rev. Frank Lyon spoke a few impressive and appropriate words and then the marriage vows were taken, Rev. B. S. Hudson pronouncing them man and wife.

After prayer Mr. Lyon introduced Mr. and Mrs. McDermid and they then received the congratulations of their friends. The large number of useful and valuable gifts attest the esteem in which the bride is held. Many remembrances await them at their new home.

The guests from abroad were Mrs. M. McDermid, London, Ont., mother of the groom; Mrs. J. K. McDermid, London, Ont., sister-in-law of the groom; Miss Tena McDermid, Petrolia, Ont., sister of the groom; Rev. Frank Lyon, Cleveland, O.; Mr. Geo. Bennett, Mrs. Emma Whitmore, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Clanharty, Adrian; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Teeter, Bert and Alma Teeter, Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lester, Miss Minnie Wheeler, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, Weston; Miss Lue Hendryx, Coldwater.

Mr. and Mrs. McDermid left in the evening for their home in London, Ont., followed by the best wishes of their many friends. She will be greatly missed in her home and in the church in which she was an active worker.

A MODEL ESTABLISHMENT.

Bice's Bakery as now Located in the Jones Block on the North Side of Chicago Street.

Four years ago the 18th day of last December Mrs. M. E. Bice started in the bakery and confectionary business in the VanTyne block. At that time it was quite an experiment whether the undertaking would be a success or not, but on account of strict attention to the business and the act of studying the wants of customers, the trade soon began to grow. For many months it has been evident the VanTyne store was not large enough to accommodate the business and new quarters were looked for.

After a time arrangements were perfected for a five years' lease of the present three-story building onto which was built an addition of twenty-two feet. The main floor is used as a show room, located in front, back of which is a lunch counter, opposite of which will be the ice cream parlor and in the rear is located the bakery. The second floor is used as living apartments and the third floor will be the confectionery. So complete are all the appointments of the establishment that it is no doubt better fitted than that of any other like business in the county.

Latterly, aside from the regular bakery and confectionery business, has been added catering, and all orders in this line are given prompt and careful attention.

The success of this business is due to the untiring energy and prompt business methods of Mrs. Bice who with her corps of assistants will continue to please the patrons of the store in every way possible.

Thursday, April 29th.

The noted traveler, Leigh Lynch, special commissioner for the World's Fair, will visit Tecumseh with his illustrated lecture, "Hunting Freaks for the Midway," on the evening of the 29th of April. All who would like to take a year's tour in a couple of hours at the small expense of 25 cts. should improve the rare opportunity.

The countries visited are Hawaii, Molokai, the Leper island, Honolulu, with pictures of the palace, the queen, government house, diamond head, the royal palace, avenues, etc., then to Japan, China, Philippine Islands, Straits of Malacca, Johore, Siam, Borneo, Java, Thursday Island, Queensland, New South Wales, New Zealand, Samoa and home.

At Johore Mr. Lynch was the guest of the Sultan. In Siam he had interviews with King Chulalon Korn, and in Samoa he was the guest of Robert Louis Stevenson.

A trip almost around the world with a courier like this breezy racounteur, is an opportunity that should be embraced by every man, woman and child in Tecumseh.

Mr. Lynch has a pleasing personality and describes delightfully the peculiar experiences of his wonderful trip, which with the numerous pictures of strange scenes and people encountered makes the evening an enjoyable and instructive one. "Hunting Freaks for Midway" was the bit of the course of entertainments in Jackson this year.—ERASTUS PECK, Circuit Judge, Detroit Tribune.

"Hunting Freaks" was so much enjoyed by the people of Jackson that Mr. Lynch was invited to repeat it and then was called to fill still another date at that city.—Detroit Free Press.

On Monday evening, April 25th, the Wagner Quartette and Maus Entertainers will give a concert under the auspices of C. E. society of the Presbyterian church, at the opera house. Mr. and Mrs. Maus have appeared before a Tecumseh audience before most satisfactorily and need no comment. The Wagner Quartette come very highly recommended by the press and a very pleasing programme is looked forward to. Admission at 15 and 25c is within reach of everybody.

Mr. Orville Kemp and family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community in the deep sorrow that overcomes them in the almost tragic death of Ernest, the son and brother, in Colorado, by a snow slide in Eagle River Canon, where he and his cousin, Frank Larzalere, were working in the Highland Mary mine. They, with others, were buried beneath an avalanche of snow, and at last reports theirs were the only bodies recovered. The remains will be brought here for interment. Ernest was an exemplary young man and well known here, having worked for Avery & Co. and Mobbs & Co. in their stores.

Rev. David Lewis returned home from Philadelphia Tuesday evening, owing to the illness of their baby, which is now, under the careful skill of Dr. Howell, nicely convalescing.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church will give an entertainment followed by refreshments in the church parlors Thursday evening, April 29th, at 8 o'clock sharp. Warm maple syrup will be served. All are invited.

S. S. Walker, commencing last Monday, took the afternoon run as railway postal clerk on the Jackson branch. This was a great surprise to his many friends and indeed a deserved promotion. His home will be in Jackson and although his time in Tecumseh each day will be very short, lady friends may view his perennial smile as the train goes by.

Chas. T. Grilley, who assists the Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club tomorrow night, is a reciter of superior talents, judging from the many encomiums with which the press has favored him. No doubt his readings or impersonations will form an attractive addition to the musical program.

The highest compliment that can be paid the Boston Ideal Club, which entertained a crowded house in Association Hall last evening, is that its series of numbers are as enjoyable at the end as at the beginning. The Boston Ideals will always meet with a hearty welcome at Toronto.—The Globe, Toronto, Ont.

A local circle of the University Association was organized at the high school building Monday afternoon with the following officers:—

President—Miss Phebe Bullock.
Vice Pres.—Miss J. Gallatin.
Sec.—Miss Alice W. Wimple.
Treas.—Miss Flora Hartbeck.
Leader—C. F. Field.

The circle starts out with about a dozen members. It will take up the course in Universal History for the first year's work.

Word has just been received announcing the immediate return to America of Dr. W. N. Fowler, who went to Africa last fall with Bishop Hartzell in the interest of the missionary society of the M. E. church. The doctor has been very ill with the African fever and there has developed a serious organic heart trouble so that the physicians who attended him send him home at once to recover his health, as the enervating condition of the climate there causes all forms of heart trouble to become speedily fatal. The many friends of the doctor will be sorry to hear of his illness but will be glad to see him and hope he will soon recover his health.

Wednesday evening a little after five o'clock as Mobbs & Co's delivery man was making a trip, in turning from Ottawa street east on Logan, Judith, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Crane, in crossing the street, not seeing the team nor the driver seeing her, the curtain on that side of the wagon being down, ran against the horses hind legs and was thrown to the ground, the horse stepping on her. Fortunately the horse did not kick and, although the child was seriously hurt, having a rib and collar bone broken, it was almost miraculous that she was not killed. While no blame is attached to the driver it was most unfortunate. Thus far the little one has been doing nicely and it is hoped will make a speedy recovery.

The Indian Show company gave their last entertainment Saturday night. A committee consisting of Messrs. Stevens, Doolittle and Earl Updyke considered Miss Iva Elliott the handsomest lady in the room, consequently she received the prise—a nice album containing photos of the entire company. Failing to find three ladies with nerve enough to scrutinize the masculine portion of the audience for the homliest man, that portion of the program was of necessity omitted. Tom Holdway's was the first name drawn out of the box for the pig but he refused to go to the stage for it so another name was drawn and Ray Brownson drew the pig. He was not slow in securing it and holding it in his arms took his seat. Mr. Pig resented his change of quarters so forcibly that the little pen was sent down to him and after that he did not so much as grunt. The company are at Clinton this week.

Marvelous Cures!

—BY—

Dr. W. C. Walker

The Eminent Physician and Surgeon, of Detroit, Mich. formerly of N. Y., will make the following regular monthly visits:

Tecumseh, Lilley House,

Friday, April 23.

Adrian, Hotel Emery,

Thursday, April 22.

The most Successful Method of Treatment of all Diseases and Deformities known to the Latest Medical and Surgical Experience.

Consulations and Examinations Free to all.

Dr. Walker will not treat any unless there is a possibility of a cure, and will so inform you.

Examination by Reflection.

By the latest scientific researches, both by improved instruments and methods, the doctor is enabled to discover the true nature of the disease and locate the organ or parts affected, and many diseases and complications which have heretofore proven most obstinate to the medical profession, yield like magic under his skill and systemic treatment. The doctor is endowed with the wonderful gift of being able to diagnose without questioning and will discribe with the greatest accuracy your aches and pains wherever located, tells better how a person feels than they can tell it themselves.

There is no need to live in constant misery It costs nothing to see him. The fullest examinations are free and his prices for treatment are within the reach of all. He is a friend to the afflicted and will turn none away unaided. The merchant mingles with the artisan while seeking relief at his hands and hundreds are cured every year.

READ WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

One of the most respected ladies in this vicinity, after being treated by all the best physicians, and pronounced incurable, was advised by a former patient of Dr. Walker's to call and consult him. She says: For the past fifteen years I have been a great sufferer with heart trouble and nervous prostration. The least exertion would cause my heart to flutter and become very irregular and so weak, causing complete exhaustion. I felt as though each day would be my last, and were it not for leaving my little ones, death would have been a relief. After three months' treatment with the Doctor I feel as well as I ever did. My heart beats regular and strong, and that tired feeling has entirely left me. What joy and sunshine health restored.

MRS. E. J. B.

Miss Addie Smith says: "I was sick for many years. My case was known for miles around. Was helped to Dr. Walker's office, now I am able to walk there. I have been under the Doctor's treatment two months and have gained twenty pounds. I feel well. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the Doctor for what he has done for me. I had female trouble, weak lungs and nervous prostration."

REMEMBER DATE OF VISIT.

Wm. Redman says also, that he has been afflicted for ten years with Asthma and Hay Fever, the result of catarrh; has doctored with only temporary relief. He is now a well man, not a vistage of the dread disease remains. He feels grateful to Dr. Walker.

Mrs. W. S. Rogers cured of cancer of the breast. She was a great sufferer.

Charles J. Preston cured of catarrh of the stomach and blood poisoning, says he would not be in his former condition again for $5,000.

Mrs. W. M.——, after being barren for ten years, says, "He cured me. We now have two little children. Suffice to say our home is a happy one.

Epilepsy (or fits) positively cured by a recent scientific discovery.

Mrs. C. M. Stutzman cured of blood and skin disease of twelve years standing.

Mrs. L. E. Lambert cured of varicose ulcers on limb.

Miss Ella Crane cured of bronchial trouble and lung disease.

Miss B. H. cured of female weakness after being treated by many noted physicians.

Dr. Walker's specialities are diseases of Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and all chronic, private and nervous diseases and deformities, as Granulated Lids, Cross Eyes, Deafness, Discharge of the Ears, Bronchitis, Chronic Cough, Goitre (big neck) Fever Sores and Ulcers, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Heart, Stomach and Nervous Diseases; Chorea (St. Vitus Dance), Epilepsy (fits), General Debility, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and all diseases due to bad blood; also rectal diseases.

I will give special attention to difficult cases and to cases other physicians have failed to cure.

Bank references.

Persons applying for treatment will please bring from two to three ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

Question blanks sent on application. Enclose stamp for reply. Those unable to see the doctor can address

Explanation of Signs Used in the Table.

● To be sown in open ground without transplanting. Plants to be thinned out to proper distances apart.

1. Sow on seed bed in garden and transplant into permanent place.

2. Make two sowings to open ground during the month.

3. Make three sowings in open ground during the month.

4. Sow in greenhouse or hotbed, and plant out as soon as the weather is favorable and ground dry

5. Sow in open ground as soon as it can be worked

6. To be grown only in hotbed or greenhouse.

7. Sow in cold frame. Keep plants there over winter with protection Plant out as soon as weather is favorable.

8. To be grown in open ground and protected with litter during winter

9. Plant in frame, when cold weather sets in, cover with sash mats and shutters, admit fresh air whenever weather with permit.

10. Plant in cellars, barns or under greenhouse benches that are free from draughts, with equable temperature.

11. Few may be started in pots for early and transplanted as soon as ground is warm

12. Sow every week to greenhouse or frame for constant supply

NOTES.

Egg plant, tomatoes, peppers to early spring should have sufficient heat to grow without check, and grown separate from other and hardier varieties, as cabbages.

For last planting of beans, sweet corn, peas, lettuce select earliest varieties as for first early plantings

Salsify and parsnips may remain undisturbed over winter and will be in prime condition, if sufficient protection of litter be given to facilitate digging during severe weather

CURCULIO SHEET.

Catching the Pest and Crushing It Is the Only Sure Cure.

All the spraying mixtures have been tried on plum trees to destroy the curculio, but with little success. Dusting with various mixtures and fumigating with smoke of hay, straw, rotten wood, corn cobs, tar compounds, etc., have served only as a temporary relief—driving them away it may be for a little time. It seems that catching the "little turk" and destroying him (or her) bodily is the only "sure cure."

FRAME FOR CURCULIO SHEET.

To do this, take a sheet of any thin, cheap stuff—as cheese cloth—of suitable size, say three yards square—secure it over a frame of light slats made as indicated in the cut, Fig. 1. The three sides AAA, are full length; the other side has an opening to allow the device to be placed under the tree. To secure rigidity, add two slats as braces, shown at BB. Cords are secured to the outer slats at CC; passing back they unite at D, the purpose being to enable one person to handle the device readily by grasping the slat A with one hand and the united cords D with the other hand. The dotted lines O indicate the opening in the sheet which allows the same to be projected under the tree. The space between the dotted lines may be covered when the sheet is placed upon the ground by means of a flap.

Fig. 2 represents a wooden block, H, with springs attached in such manner as that it may be readily and securely attached to any part of the body of the tree to be jarred. The block H should be padded so as to prevent injury to the tree when it is struck with maul. The operator supplied with such an outfit as indicated may go rapidly over the plum orchard of cool mornings when the curculio are dormant. Jar them down upon the sheet and destroy them. —G. W. Waters, in Ohio Farmer.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Keep suckers from growing around the base of the trees.

There is no necessity for any kind of shade in the garden.

The time to shape the heads of the trees is when they are young.

In selecting trees take those with a smooth, healthy-looking bark, with small fibrous roots.

If trees are planted for a wind-break care should be taken to have them of a close-growing habit.

If the trees are washed in the spring with strong soapsuds or lye, many insect pests will be destroyed.

With seeds that are slow to germinate in the garden it will often be a good plan to sow a few radish seed.

One advantage in having fruits growing on well-drained land is that the fruits will come to a maturity earlier.

To prevent rot in grapes commence spraying early, using the Bordeaux mixture, so as to kill the disease before warm weather sets in.—St. Louis Republic.

SOIL FOR RASPBERRIES.

Different Varieties Demand Entirely Different Ground.

As to soil for raspberries different varieties demand different soil in order to do their best. The red and white kinds require a deep, rich moist soil and one that is rather compact. Generally they do poorly on sandy soil, though in the extreme north they may show an exception to the rule. The black raspberry will do well in either light or heavy soil, but they will do best on soil that is light. In the selection of plants we will remember that no variety of the raspberry is other than biennial. That is to say, one year they produce wood, the next year fruit, and that is the end of them. We need not look, therefore, for two or three-year-old plants. It is best to get one-year-old plants for transplanting always. But while the wood is short lived the roots are long lived, often being several years old. Before planting the raspberry, in any way, thoroughly prepare the soil. In selecting plants get those with plenty of small fibrous roots, and set no deeper than they originally were. If the ground is poor manure in the hill, at the time of planting, and afterwards on the surface, working it with plow or cultivator. Keep the soil as level as possible, and free from weeds. The raspberry receives very little pruning. In field culture none is given, except to cut off the old wood after fruiting. It would often prove beneficial, however, to prune more.—Western Plowman.

Purifying Beet Sugar.

M. Baudry, the manager of a Russian sugar factory, proposes to purify beet sugar by single electrolysis. He has been so successful that he has discarded all other methods. He finds that the electrolytic method gives a reduction of 50 per cent. in the amount of lime used, elimination of salts of lime; reduction from one hour to 35 minutes in time required for carbonation; more rapid evaporation and increase of from 20 to 25 per cent. of daily work of factory; reduction of coloration of juice from 100 to 23, and complete suppression of fat in carbonation. The filter press which formerly was too weak is now too powerful. The process is simple. Lime is added to juice after diffusion. It is then filtered and electrolyzed. The consumption of zinc is 30 kilograms per day for 500 tons of beets.

Experiments with Cabbages.

From the Maine station come notes on experiments in cabbage culture. Three varieties were compared to test the effect of size of seed on the heads. In two varieties the larger seed was found to produce much heavier heads. Tying up the outer leaves was found to have no influence upon the maturity of the head, as is popularly supposed, while it caused a marked decrease in size, and the moisture collecting within the leaves almost invariably caused the heads to decay. Mulching the plants with swale hay produced heads slightly larger than were borne by unmulched plants used as checks. But little effect on the size of the heads was produced by deep cultivation, but plants so treated appeared to mature more uniformly than when shallow cultivation was given.

Hint for Apple Growers.

Valuable lessons may be learned from the experience of apple growers the past season. One is that fruit packed and placed in cold storage in too ripe condition will not turn out satisfactorily in the spring. Large quantities put away last fall as fine, and counted as long keepers, are turning out poorly. Such fruit as was stored in best condition is now selling at top prices of the season. If the rule holds that a year of great abundance and over-bearing is followed by a moderate yield the next season, the apple crop of 1897 will prove much more manageable. Spray your trees intelligently and thoroughly, that profits accruing from the sale of choice fruit next fall may make up for losses the past season.—Orange Judd Farmer.

The Labor of getting 1095 Meals

Confronts some one in every home each year. Whoever the work devolves upon should know about

ONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

It's a labor-saver—a woman-saver. Without the long and weary-ing peeling, chopping, boiling, seeding and mixing, a woman can quickly make mince pie, fruit pud-ding, or fruit cake that will be the de-light of her household. Since None Such is sold everywhere there is no excuse need of making your own mince meat than of making your own yeast. Try one package—10 cents. Take no substitutes. Send your address, name of this paper, & we will send you free a book, "Mrs. Pop-kins' Thanksgiving," by one of the most popular humorous writers of the day.

BURROWS A CANDIDATE

Will Endeavor To Be Re-Elected to the Senate.

OTHER CANDIDATES IN THE RACE.

If Burrows Does Succeed Himself It will Be Only After a Sharp Contest—Ex-Governor Rich in Washington in the Interest of Dollar Lumber—Secretary of War in Favor of the Mackinac Island Scheme—Fourth-Class Postmasters.

Washington, April 20.—"It is almost too early to talk about the senatorial succession," says Senator Burrows. He added: "And my successor will not be elected until the legislature meets in 1899, and that is twenty months in the future. Many things may happen in that length of time. I do not mind saying, however, that it is my present intention to be a candidate to succeed myself, if I live."

It has been understood for some time that Senator Burrows will be a candidate before the next legislature, and it is also known that his election can be achieved only after a sharp contest, because there are other candidates.

Ex-Senator John Patton, of Grand Rapids, who was appointed by Governor Rich to succeed Senator Stockbridge and who served in the senate for six months, was a member of that august body long enough to become enamored of that branch of public life; and he will undoubtedly endeavor to secure his election to succeed Senator Burrows. It is known, however, that ex-Congressman William Alden Smith, of Grand Rapids, is not inclined to support Senator Patton. Personally, they are very warm friends, but Congressman Smith realizes that, if ex-Senator Patton should be elected to the senate, that fact will render nugatory all of the senatorial aspirations which Mr. Smith may entertain for the future. Therefore it may be difficult for ex-Senator Patton to secure the solid Kent county delegation.

Olds May Be a Candidate.

Schuyler S. Olds, of Lansing, who for many years was the political manager of Senator Stockbridge and whose political sagacity is well known to all the Republican leaders, was a formidable candidate before the legislature at the time of the election of Senator Burrows, and it is most likely that he will be a candidate before the next legislature. Some of his friends in Washington say that he is at work even now in planning for the future, with the senatorial toga in view.

Ex-Governor John T. Rich, and Messrs. Churchill, of Alpena, and Mould, of Sheboygan, are in the city again in the interests of dollar lumber.

Senator Burrows has been to see the secretary of war about re-ceding Mackinac island to the general government. It is the desire of the people of Michigan to have the historic fort regarrisoned, and it believed by them that it is a matter of such international interest that it should certainly be made a matter of national interest. The secretary of war assured Senator Burrows that he is heartily in favor of the project.

Phil T. Colgrove and Marshal L. Cook, of Hastings, have been here in the interests of Judge Clement Smith, who wants to be United States judge for the Sixth federal district. This office cannot be created until next winter.

E. W. Sparrow, of Lansing; A. O. Wheeler, of Maninstee, and J. S. Stearns, of Ludington, have been working during the past week with the members of the senate committee on finance in favor of a $2 schedule for lumber.

Less Protection No Protection.

Henry M. Loud, of Au Sable, was here during the past week working most industriously in favor of the $2 schedule. He says that less protection than that would be no protection at all.

The appointment of Henry M. Duffield to be historian of the Chickamauga Park association, was made by the president, principally because of the urgent recommendation of Secretary Alger.

Gil R. Lovejoy, of Lennox, has been in Washington during the past week urging the senators to personally present his papers to the president and request his appointment as the collector of the port at Port Huron.

William Jones, a prominent furniture dealer of Grand Rapids, has been here for a few days with his son. They have started on their return journey home.

There are only five Michigan congressional representatives in the city, all of the others having gone home. Those who remain here on duty are Congressmen S. M. Smith, Crump, Spaulding, Hamilton and Mesick. It is generally believed that the house will soon order the return of all absentees.

Boards of pension examining surgeons within the civil service classification are those at Detroit, Grand Rapids, East Saginaw, Lansing, Ionia, Kalamazoo, White Cloud, Flint and Owosso. All other examining boards are out of the classification, and appointments can be made without reference to the civil service commission.

Fourth-Class Postmasters.

It is well for all aspirants to know that the president has decided that no removals of fourth-class postmasters shall be made until the present incumbents shall have served four years. Of course, when cause is shown, removals will be made; but the postoffice department will not consider trumped-up charges merely for the sake of making removals.

Willard F. Keeny, of Grand Rapids, has been in Washington several days on private business in the executive departments. S. B. Harris and wife, of Hancock, have been Capitol callers for several days. Hon. D. A. Blodgett is on his way back from his Florida trip, and will pass through Washington during the coming week.

"Uncle James Monroe" and Theron Giddings, of Kalamazoo, will be in Washington during the coming week. "Uncle James" has long been the trusted friend and political manager of the campaigns of Julius Caesar Burrows, and the junior senator holds him in high esteeem.

John J. Coon, of Flint, has made a second visit to Washington to see the president and urge his appointment to the position of consul general to Mexico. The Michigan senators have recommended this appointment verbally and in writing. The president, however, has given no indication of his intentions in this case.

Among the new applicants of the week came Ransom C. Johnson, of Flint, who filed a large number of indorsements with the secretary of state. He wants to be appointed consul general to Melbourne, Australia. There are many other Michigan men who want consulates, but the civil service orders of President Cleveland have limited the number of available places, and there will be many disappointments.

During the past week H. Call Joiner, of Hillsdale, and Eber Ward, of Detroit, have filed their applications for the position of appraiser of the port at Detriot; and there are others.

C. F. Kimball, of Pontiac, who was formerly appraiser, is regarded as a very formidable candidate in this instance.

Andrew Fyfe, of Grand Rapids, a prominent gold Democrat, who has been surveyor of custom, has filed an application for appointment to that position. A vancancy will occur on the 11th of May.

Tax Should Be Fair to All.

Senator Allison of Iowa, who is in charge of the bill now being formulated by the senate committee on finance, says that by whatever name a tax may be called, it can have no excuse for its being if it is not a fair one—fair to all. A tax which is imposed upon one class of producers and which is not levied upon another class equally obliged to help to support the state and able to pay its quota of taxation, is an unfair and an unjustifiable tax. In the making of a tariff the question of fairness and impartiality should be the crucial one.

There are in the United States so many persons engaged in the sheep-raising industry; there are so many persons engaged in the cattle-raising industry. The former have demanded and received from the ways and means committee higher duties on some grades of wool than have ever been conceived by any tariff. In order to make it possible for those manufacturers, whose raw material is wool, to continue in business, correspondingly high, or so-called "compensatory" duties, are to be levied upon their manufactures.

Is Perfectly Fair.

This balancing of duties, as between the growers and manufacturers of wool, is perfectly fair and in strict accordance with the primal principle of taxation, which declares that taxes shall be uniform and equitable. The tax on wool and woolens is not less fair in the abstract, because it will increase at least 25 per cent. the prices to the millions of consumers of every article of their clothing, their bedding, their carpets, their furnishing, made wholly or partly of wool. This is a necessity of protection, or, at least, the ways and means committee believe it to be so; neither is it less fair because the Dingley tariff, in its present form, is not, except incidentally, a revenue, but a protective tariff. If it were the former instead of the latter, it would tax, or tax more heavily, those things which are universally recognized as being the most appropriately subject to taxation for revenue—such things, for instance, as tea and coffee, which are on the free list; spirituous and malt liquors, tobacco, raw and manufactured, which are already taxed to some degree. Sugar being taxed, so should tea and coffee be, upon which so low a duty could be put that while it would scarcely effect the cost of these table necessaries to consumers, it would yield a desirable amount of revenue.

Pernicious Luxuries.

An additional tax on those pernicious luxuries—spirits, beer and tobacco—would yield a much larger amount of revenue and materially assist in placing the government's finances upon a wholly satisfactory foundation.

The Dingley tariff, however, is directly a protective and only indirectly a revenue measure, precisely as it appears to be indirectly a trust-promoting measure. Such being the case, why should not imported hides and skins, as well as imported wool, be made to pay a fair protective duty?

Senator Mantle of Montana, representing the sheep-raisers of the west, has prepared an amendment to the Dingley wool schedule which is practically prohibitory of certain grades of foreign wool; and as the votes of the western senators will be needed to pass the bill, Mr. Mantle's amendment will probably be adopted. The hides and skins product of this country is a more valuable one than the wool clip, and is certainly as fully entitled to protection. The farms of A. and B. are divided by a wire fence. A. raises cattle, B. sheep. Why should B.'s product be protected by high or prohibitory duties and A.'s be denied any protection by being put on the free list? A. and B. should be dealt with alike.

Some Angry Protests.

The New England and New York dealers in hides and skins and the manufacturers of leather goods are angrily protesting against the proposal to place hides and skins on the dutiable list. And unless "compensatory" duties are given the manufacturers of leather goods, their protest should have weight. But, having the same right to "compensatory" duties as the manufacturers of wool, they should, and no doubt will, be given the full measure of protection which such duties afford. A large part of our enormous export trade in leather goods will probably be lost to us, but that is also a necessity of the situation. Besides, what are foreign markets to our manufacturers? What they demand is the "home market," and if the Dingley bill passes as it left the house, they are likely to get the home market and no other.

Time Ripe for Action.

With the credit of the government established, with the assurance of ample revenue to meet all the demands of the treasury, and with the tariff policy of the nation absolutely settled for at least four years to come, there is no reason why men of energy and credit should not take advantage of the cheap money markets of the country and enlarge our industrial operations whenever there is a promise of fair returns. We have the chief elements to give success to industrial advancement. We have general confidence throughout business circles in the stability of our productive industries; we have established credit; we have a protective tariff policy assured, and there is no reason why there should not be an early and very large employment of the idle capital of the country in channels which would give increased demands for labor and greatly quicken our movement toward substantial prosperity. DUNBAR.

RAILROAD BILLS.

The House Takes Action on Several of Them.

Two-Cent Fare Measure Not Yet Finally Acted Upon—Flint Charter Bill Passed Over the Governor's Veto—Other Capital News.

Lansing, April 19.—There was, as expected, a very warm battle in the house over the railroad bills. The more radical of these were introduced by Col. Atkinson, understood to be the personal representative and close adviser of Gov. Pingree, and place additional burdens upon railroads, both in freight and passenger traffic. Bills were agreed to, to which there was practically no opposition, compelling railroads to accept bicycles as baggage under certain provisions, and a bill providing for a system of automatic bell signals at highway crossings in the discretion of the railroad commissioner. The tug of war was upon one of the Pingree bills which prohibited discrimination in freight and passenger traffic. After a discussion occupying nearly the entire session the bill was amended so that it should not apply to passenger traffic by a vote of 47 to 34. Further consideration of the railroad bills in the house which were not acted upon under the special order of Wednesday was, on motion of Mr. Atkinson, the promoter of the measure, postponed until April 27.

By a unanimous vote, joined in by 23 senators, the Flint charter bill was passed over the veto of the governor in the senate. Senator Moore made a protest against passing the bill over the governor's veto, but it had no effect, and the vote was 28 to 0 against the veto.

The Lusk-Gordon resolution, which contemplated an amendment to the constitution providing home rule in cities without coming to the legislature for charters or amendments thereto, was resuscitated in the house after its defeat of two weeks ago and barely escaped a second defeat by being referred to the committee on judiciary.

Favorable reports were made in the senate on bills providing for uniform text books, prohibiting sparring matches and creating the county of Lincoln from the south half of Ontonagon county. The latter measure the senate refused to pass.

The policy of placing women upon the boards of trustees of insane asylums has been inaugurated by Gov. Pingree by the appointment of Mrs. Jane M. Kinney, of Port Huron, to the board of the eastern asylum for the insane at Pontiac. She will succeed Judge W. W. Stickney, of Lapeer. The wife of Col. A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, was also reappointed upon the board of managers of the industrial home for girls at Adrian.

The Donovan bill providing for the ringing of the curfew bell in cities and villages as a signal for children under 15 years of age to seek their homes after eight o'clock in the evening has passed the senate and has gone to the governor for his signature.

The Michigan legislature will in a few days receive a request from the legislature of Wisconsin asking for the appointment of a commission to work jointly with a commission appointed by the legislatures of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois to devise uniform game and fish laws for the four states mentioned. The commission will comprise five members of the senate and house, and the work provided for will be done after the close of the present session and before the opening of the legislature of 1899.

Hereafter every package containing fruit sold in or shipped from this state will be branded so as to show the quantity of its contents. This branding will show either weight or measure down to half pints, the object being to prevent short weights and measures.

The Bates bill, which provided that it should be unlawful for fraternal insurance societies to incorporate in their contracts of membership any provision which should prohibit beneficiaries from resorting to the courts to secure the allowance of death claims, was killed in the lower house.

The right of the state sanitary live stock commission to slaughter cattle suspected of having tuberculosis without compensating the owner for the full market value of the animals will be tested in the supreme court in an important action commenced Saturday O. W. Shipman, of Detroit, was the owner of a large herd of valuable Jerseys. The state live stock commission applied the tuberculosis test and found that 28 of the best looking animals in the herd were afflicted with tuberculosis. The animals were slaughtered and Shipman was tendered one dollar each for the animals, which he refused. He demanded their market value, which was $3,000. He also claimed that the remainder of the herd was so reduced in value that, although they were worth $3,000, he was compelled to sell them for $500. The proceeding brought Saturday is an application for mandamus to compel the state to pay the market value of the animals. Some of the questions at issue are whether tuberculosis is a dangerous, infectious and contagious disease. The constitutionality of the law is also assailed.

Gov. Pingree's attempt to give women representation on asylum boards of control bids fair to fail, the senate having held up the nomination of Mrs. Jane M. Kinney, of Port Huron, a trustee of the Pontiac asylum. All other nominations made last week were confirmed.

A bill passed the house prohibiting shooting of prairie chickens for the period of five years.

Senator Merriman, of Hartford, has prepared a bill providing for an increase of one per cent. on the specific taxes of railroads. He has gathered a mass of statistics and will present his conclusions to the railroad committee before long. EMMETT.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the City of Adrian, on the 31st day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Bumbett Pennington, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Claribel Pennington, administratrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred have been fully paid, and that she is now ready to close said estate and to render her final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to law and that she may be discharged and her bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of April next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is Further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in THE TECUMSEH HERALD a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee; for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

In the matter of the estate of George E. Adamson, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court of said county, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the law office of Fred'k B. Wood in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1897, and on the 29th day of September, A. D. 1897, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the 28th day of March, A. D. 1897, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

MERRIT E. CONKLIN,
JAMES A. BOYD,
Commissioners.

Dated, the 31st day of March, A. D. 1897.

PROGRESSING SLOWLY.

Conditions Do Not Prove Favorable to Advancement of Farm Work.

Chicago, April 21. — The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Ohio—Cool, cloudy and rainy weather retarded plowing and planting. Wheat, rye, meadows and pastures made some progress, but other vegetation is backward. Some oats rotting. Clover and timothy looking well. Gardens are slow. None of the fruit thought to have been seriously affected by the low temperature that prevailed.

Michigan—Wet weather has caused continued delay in plowing and seeding and very little such work accomplished. Few oats sown and some plowing for corn started. Winter wheat and rye and meadows continue to improve and look generally good. All fruit buds except peaches look promising.

Indiana—Cool, cloudy, wet weather and occasional frost delayed plowing, seeding and gardening. Wheat and grass improved little and slowly. Rye, clover and timothy in good condition. Fruit apparently still safe.

Illinois—Cool cloudy week with less rainfall than previous week; land drying slowly; plowing more general; oats and spring wheat seeding continues, also gardening and potato planting. Early sown oats are rotting in few cases: winter wheat unimproved and few fields will remain; grasses advancing; roadways gradually improving. Fruits are in blossom in southern section.

Wisconsin—Week very unfavorable for farm work. Frequent rains during early part of week and heavy snowstorm on Thursday and Friday. Vegetation made little progress. Warm dry weather needed. Little seeding done. No improvement in winter wheat; rye generally fair; clover badly winter killed.

Iowa—Temperature unseasonably low, but since 15th drying winds and sunshine greatly improved condition of soil and good progress made with seeding. Farm operations now rapidly pushed in all districts. No damage reported from freezing.

Minnesota — Snow on 12th and generally cool weather most of week delayed seeding, but drying condition in latter half improved prospects of seeding becoming general by 20th. Considerable wheat sown and owing to lateness of season much of it in wet soil, but large areas still too wet. Flood in Red River valley receding in upper half. Winter grains not wintered well in southeast.

A Judge Resigns.

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—George W. Brown, of Wheaton, has forwarded to Gov. Tanner his resignation of the office of county judge of DuPage county, and the county clerk has asked the governor to order the issue of a writ for a special election to fill the vacancy.

Guerrillas Burned.

Havana, April 20.—A band of 55 Spanish guerrillas that had murdered 40 insurgents was entrapped by the Cubans at a small town near Palacos and burned to death.

Death of the "Lone Fisherman."

Baltimore, Md., April 17.—James S. Moffit, the original Lone Fisherman in "Evangeline," died here Friday at the Johns Hopkins hospital after an illness of four weeks.

Benton Harbor, April 20.—The temperature has dropped ten degrees below the freezing point and will kill all the earlier blackberries. Peach buds are not far enough advanced to be seriously injured.

ELECTIONS.

Illinois Cities and Towns Choose Municipal Officers.

Chicago, April 21.—Cities and towns in Illinois on Tuesday elected municipal officers. Dispatches announce republican victories at the following points:

Centralia, Bloomington, Pontiac, Joliet, Decatur, Elgin, Braidwood, Carlyle, Carmi, Cerro Gordo, Charleston, Clinton, Havana, Kewanee, Newman, Ottawa, Streator, Tuscola, Carthage.

Democrats were successful in the following cities:

Freeport, Kankakee, Litchfield, Peoria, Jacksonville, Anna, Carlinville, Carrollton, Edwardsville, Geneva, Hillsboro, Jerseyville, Jonesboro, Kansas, Lacon, Lincoln, Matteon, Mendota, Minonk, Nashville, Shelbyville, Vandalia, Watseka, Petersburg.

In the following towns license went Watseka, Warren, El Paso, Tolono, Marcs, Yorkville, Monticello, Morrison, Crystal Lake, Nunda, Farmer City, Flora, Marshall, Hillsboro, Tiskilwa, Jonesboro, Pittsfield, Salem, Piano, St. Charles, Benton, Mount Sterling, Shelbyville, Princeton, Carbondale, Cambridge, Fairbury, Bement, Exeter, De Kalb, Carmi, Lawrenceville, Petersburg, Mowequa.

In the following towns no license won:

Gibson, Milford, Carrollton, Kirkwood, Dwight, Martinsville, McLeansboro, Newman, Urbana, Assumption, Galva, Monmouth, Roseville, Louisville, Lexington, Sorrento, Winchester, Bluffs, Naples, Glasgow, Greenville, Paxton, Toledo, Eureka, Pawnee, Robinson, Ashley, Ramsay.

IN LABOR'S BEHALF.

American Federation Leaders Confer with the President.

Washington, April 20.—An important meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is being held in this city at federation headquarters. The books are reported in excellent condition and the finances and membership of the association flourishing. By previous arrangement, the executive council called upon President McKinley at the white house, where a conference was held lasting an hour. Various propositions of interest to labor and legislation in the interest of the wage-earners were discussed.

The most important subject to be considered at present is the agitation in favor of an eight-hour working day. The plan agreed upon contemplates simultaneous mass meetings throughout the country May 1 to discuss and agitate the question, and the selection of a member from each of the national unions of the country in affiliation with the federation to act as an advisory board.

Tortured by Masked Men.

Findlay, O., April 19. — The famous Blakeslee family of misers and owners of valuable oil lands were robbed of large sums of money. Twelve masked robbers broke into the house, bound two men and women, and burned their feet and tortured them until they revealed the hiding place of the money. Nearly $1,000 was secured.

His Life Spared.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21.—The board of pardons recommended commutation of the death sentence imposed upon James B. Gentry for the murder of Actress Madge Yorke to imprisonment for life. Gov. Hastings approved the recommendation. Gentry was to have been hanged next Thursday.

DAM BREAKS.

Much Damage by Collapse of a Reservoir at Pinckney.

Pinckney, April 20.—The mill dam broke away at four o'clock Monday morning. A torrent of water poured through the gap, carrying away the large bridge south of the reservoir and the new bridge on South Howell street. The bridge on the Dexter road was demolished and the other five bridges between here and Portage lake were carried away. Fences, trees and buildings along the course were torn down and carried away. The principal losers are: Thomas Birkett, loss on mill property, $20,000; town, on bridges, $15,000; K. H. Crane, on buildings, $1,000; Senator G. W. Temple, buildings, $1,000; Teeple & Cadwell, $500.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Young Man and Woman Killed Near South Lyon.

South Lyon, Mich., April 20.—A train on the Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western railway at the first main highway crossing west of South Lyon depot struck a vehicle, instantly killing Harry Clark, son of Rev. E. P. Clark, Presbyterian minister of this city, and Miss Sarah Fisher, of Ypsilanti, who was visiting friends here. Miss Ethel Just, daughter of the banker of this place, was injured, one foot being badly crushed. The body of Miss Fisher was terribly mutilated, both legs being cut off. Clark was a student at Ann Arbor and Miss Fisher attended the state normal at Ypsilanti.

LETTER FROM LANSING

Legislative News Gathered by Our Correspondent.

THE PINGREE RAILWAY BILLS.

Three of Them Were Considered Last Week and Two Passed, but Not Until Amended So as To Be Mutually Satisfactory—Michigan's New Deputy Attorney General—Move for Uniform Game Laws—Legislative Inconsistency.

Lansing, Mich., April 20.—The prediction made last week that there was little, if any, show for the passage of the so-called railroad bills has been more than verified by the proceedings of the past few days. During last week three of these railroad bills were considered and two were passed, but not until they had been amended so as to be mutually satisfactory. One of these bills, which was given immediate effect, requires that bicycles be carried free as baggage, but it limits the company's liability to damages resulting from actual carelessness, the company being exempt in all cases where hooks or other proper devices for holding the wheels en route are supplied. The second bill passed originally sought to make it obligatory upon all railroad companies to maintain a warning bell at all crossings, both in and out of municipalities. This would have entailed an expense of several million dollars. Before being passed the bill was amended so that the bell system must be petitioned for by twenty-five taxpayers, and then need be put in and maintained only in case the railroad commissioner decides that the crossing is a dangerous one and so orders.

Bill Made Quite Harmless.

The anti-railroaders showed their hand most effectively when the Atkinson anti-discrimination bill came up. This bill provides that there should be no discrimination in either freight and passenger rates. Inasmuch as discrimination in freight rates is already prohibited by law, this feature of the bill was not antagonized. The other provision rendered it unlawful for the company to give to one person a rate between two points that it would not give all other persons. The effect of such a law would be to do away with the sale of mileage books and also excursion rates, and it was argued that, instead of lowering the passenger fares, the bill would do away with special rates and make a flat 3-cent fare. The result of the discussion was that the passenger fare provision was stricken out by a vote of 47 to 34, thus making the bill quite harmless from a railroad point of view. In this discussion the members went over the flat 2-cent fare question, and the vote above noted quite conclusively seals the fate of the 2-cent fare bill when it is reached on the calendar. There still remain nine railroad bills to be considered. They will be taken up on the 28th inst., to which time the special order has been postponed. This bill has not come up for final passage.

Vote On Constitutional Amendments.

The result of the vote on the two constitutional amendments, which were submitted to the people this spring, very effectually disposes of the proposition to amend the constitution so as to provide for the initiative and referendum. One of the amendments voted on this spring was a purely local measure for Kent county, permitting that county to have a board of county auditors. It could not possibly have the slightest effect on any other section of the state yet county after county rolled up a big majority against it and it was buried out of sight. It is safe to say that not one person in fifty who voted against the proposition had the slightest reason for doing so. The result demonstrated conclusively that the people cannot be depended upon to inform themselves as to the merits of these propositions, and for this reason whatever hope their was for the submission of the referendum scheme has gone glimmering.

The manner in which the people insisted on voting no on the Kent county amendment brings to mind the case of the two members of the legislature of 1883 who religiously voted no on every bill in which they detected anything savoring of a dollar mark, so intent were they on establishing a reputation for economy.

Demonstrated Their Sincerity.

It will be remembered that the year previous there had been a special session of the legislature for the purpose of making an appropriation for the fire sufferers up in the Huron and Sanilac county region. It happened that, after the relief committee concluded its labors there was still a balance in this fund, and the money having been appropriated for a special purpose, it could never be used until covered back into the general fund of the state. Accordingly a bill was introduced making the transfer, but the two gentlemen mentioned above demonstrated their sincerity of purpose by voting against it.

Since last Friday Michigan has had a new official. This is a deputy attorney general, the bill creating this office with a salary of $2,000 per annum having been approved by Governor Pingree on the day named. Heretofore the legislature has allowed the attorney general $3,000 per year out of which he was obliged to pay his assistant and the several clerks needed for the proper transaction of the business of the office. The law did not recognize any such officer as assistant or deputy attorney general, but the new statute does. Attorney General Maynard has appointed Henry E. Chase of Van Buren county his deputy. Mr. Chase has been his able assistant for the past two years.

Farmers Finally Triumph.

A bill which the farmers of the state have been bravely battling for for the past six or eight years has finally become a law. In their efforts to secure this enactment the farmers have always encountered the determined opposition of a powerful lobby, the law in question prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine or other butter substitute so as to resemble genuine butter. A queer feature of the contest has been that the bill was defeated at several previous sessions although there was not a single oleomargarine factory in Michigan.

The movement inaugurated last fall by the game wardens of Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin to secure uniform game and fish laws appears to be about to bear fruit. It has been announced that the legislature of this state will shortly receive a request from the legislature of Wisconsin that a commission be appointed to work in conjunction with commissions to be appointed by the other states named to prepare uniform laws on these subjects. It is proposed that the commission from each state be composed of five members of the legislature, and that the work proposed be done after the close of the present legislative session and before the legislature of 1899 convenes.

House Severely Criticised.

The Bates bill providing that an appeal to the courts may be taken from the decision of the arbitrators provided by fraternal benefit associations of death claims, met with a sudden and emphatic end in the house last Friday, being killed by a vote of 62 to 22. The house is being severely criticised for the course taken with reference to this bill. On Thuraday eevning it was considered in committee of the whole, and the house took a recess for an hour or more while outsiders interested in the bill spoke for and against its passage. While avoiding the technical charge of giving lobbyists the privileges of the floor during a session by taking a recess, it is claimed that the rule on this subject was violated in spirit if not in the letter, and many members feel greatly chagrined because of the action taken.

The action of the senate in refusing to pass the joint resolution submitting to the people a constitutional amendment making the regents of the university subject to the direction of the legislature in their management of the university, is taking to mean the defeat of the bill providing for the removal of the homeopathic department of the university to Detroit. It is sought to coerce the regents into making the change by attaching to the bill a rider providing that the one-sixth mill tax for the support of the university shall not be available unless the college is removed. A majority of the senators believe that if the regents were made subject to the direction of the legislature, they would have to adopt an entirely new plan every two years, and that there would be nothing like stability in either the courses or management of the university.

May Not Get Fees.

If the senate indorses the action taken by the house last week the county officials with the exception of sheriff, who are inducted into office Jan. 1, 1899, will have to get along without fees. Although obliged to collect every fee prescribed by the statute, and thus deprived of the chance to make themselves solid by remitting fees as is now extensively done, all this money must be paid into the county treasury. The only change made in the bill as introduced by Representative Kimmis was to exempt all sheriffs in the state and all the officers of Kent and Wayne counties, and cut out the maximum salary that the supervisors may pay the various officials. A minimum salary is fixed in each instance, the counties being grouped according to population, but the supervisors may put the stipend as high as they see fit. The history of boards of supervisors warrants the prediction that the salaries will hover very near the minimum figure fixed in the bill.

Legislative Inconsistency.

A very striking example of legislative inconsistency has been furnished the people of Michigan during the past ten days, and so far as any expression of opinion is concerned, none of the legislators themselves appear to have noticed the matter. The Meister anti-convict contract labor bill occupied the attention of the house for several hours a few days ago, precipitating the most earnest and long drawn out debate of the session. The result was that the proposition to abolish contract labor in the prisons, or, in fact, any save labor on state account, was defeated by a vote of two to one. The consideration involved in the defeat of this measure was that the prisons should be made as nearly self-supporting as possible, and in order to accomplish this, the convicts should be worked to the best possible advantage. Having by such an emphatic vote made this decision it is a trifle astonishing that the same legislators should, but five days later, have by a practically unanimous vote and after very little discussion passed a bill requiring that all prison or convict made goods offered for sale or manufactured in this state be branded or labeled so as to reveal their place of manufacture. The only possible purpose of such branding is, of course, to deter people from purchasing this class of goods. Here then we have the refreshing spectacle of a body of legislators saying one day that it is absolutely essential to the welfare of the state and the prisoner as well, that the latter be kept constantly at work at some productive industry, and on the next endeavoring to destroy that industry by persuading the public not to purchase any articles the convicts make. By destroying the demand for prison-made goods the legislators will simply render it impossible for prison managers to sell the labor of the prisoners, and thus will one law nullify the other. Truly the ways of the average legislator are past finding out.

Shades Not Pulled Down.

The senators seem to think they have a good one on Governor Pingree. For several weeks during the early part of the session, when the governor and senators were having such lively times about the confirmation of the former's appointments, Governor Pingree had a great deal to say about executive sessions, and he rang the changes quite constantly about pulling down the shades at the senate chamber windows, etc. Of course the shades were not pulled down, although the floors and galleries were cleared of all visitors and the doors locked before the senate went into executive session. The senators' glee just at present is due to the fact that thick heavy shades have appeared on the inside of the glass section of the door leading from the corridor into the governor's general office, and also before the two decorated windows which grace that section of the capitol. These are not outside windows, neither are they windows at all, for all are of frosted glass through which it is impossible to detect more than the bare outline of a person or object under the most favorable circumstances. The curtains are drawn about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and they stay down until morning. The senators are extracting a great deal of satisfaction from the situation.

Jacksonian Relics Burned.

Cincinnati, April 13.—Fire on Monday greatly damaged the dwelling in Clifton occupied by James Jackson, a relative of President Andrew Jackson, and an inheriter of relics of the deceased president. Among them was Gen. Jackson's carriage, the wheels of which were made of timber taken from the old war frigate Constitution. This carriage was stored in the garret and was nearly destroyed, along with some other relics in the shape of furniture. The entire lot of relics was valued at $30,000, but a portion had been recently shipped to Washington, thus escaping damage or destruction.

Quarantine Against Texas Fever.

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—Gov. Tanner has issued a proclamation upon the recommendation of the state live stock commission, scheduling the territory described by the secretary of agriculture of the United States against Texas or splenic fever, and prohibiting cattle therefrom shipped into this state between February 15 and December 1, of each year, in accordance with the regulations of the state live stock commission. The regulations and territory prescribed are about the same as published for 1896.

A Valuable Gift.

Winona, Minn., April 12.—Ellen Windom, widow of Secretary William Windom, has written a letter from Washington to the Winona free library directors, presenting the new Winona Laird library with several hundred volumes, formerly the private library of her husband, who for many years was a resident of this city.

Would Not Recognize Requisition.

St. Paul, Minn., April 13.—Frank Hense was in charge of the sheriff Monday, charged with the embezzlement of $1,690.12 from Mary A. Borst McKee, of Lewis county, Wash. A requisition from the governor of Washington was presented to Gov. Clough, who declined to recognize the document.

Condition of Winter Wheat.

Washington, April 12.—The report of the department of agriculture for April makes the average condition of winter wheat 81.4, against 99.5 on December 1; 77.1 last April and 81.4 at the same date in 1895.

High School Happenings.

Bliss Hand returned to school Monday after an absence of two weeks.

The members of the arithmetic class are studying interest this week.

Prof. Hudson, of the University, inspected the high school Wednesday.

Lester Heesen was absent from his place in the A room Wednesday afternoon.

The members of the geometry class are deep in the mysteries of cones and pyramids.

Dr. North, S. W. Anderson, Misses Bessie Spayde and Hattie Hurry were A room visitors Tuesday.

Another member has been added to the ranks of the senior class, Miss Lillian Waring having joined last week.

Two or three of the teachers were absent part of the day Wednesday, attending the Coddington—McDermid wedding.

Miss Hattie Hurry, formerly a pupil here, has been home from Ann Arbor for the past week and has been visiting the pupils of the A room.

The sophomore class held their business meeting and were entertained at the home of Prof. and Mrs. L. M. Kellogg Wednesday evening.

High school students, don't forget Leigh Lynch and the steriopticon. Tickwill be on sale at the opera house for ten cents to students only.

Miss Bullock went to Detroit yesterday afternoon to attend a concert given by Madam Corrinne. C. F. Field taught the B room during her absence.

Henry Calhoun and Frank Stead, both members of the class of '93, were visitors in the A room Wednesday. Charlie Hurry, class of '96, also dropped in for a short call.

AT GRANT'S SHRINE.

Columbia Dedicates the Tomb of Her Soldier Hero.

President McKinley and Gen. Porter Address the Vast Multitude—Sixty Thousand Persons Take Part in the Parade.

New York, April 28.—When the sun rose over fair Manhattan on the day of days in her history of patriotic pegeants he found a cloudless dome awaiting him. Flags there were by the hundreds of thousands, from the huge emblem with its 50 feet of fly and 90 of hoist to the tiny emblem which decorated the collars of the truck horses; flags in the great thoroughfares and in the narrowest alleys; from tenement windows and on the staffs of public buildings; from the stalls of street venders and the facades of mighty hostelries and the loftier office buildings; from the spars of merchant ships and from the bows of the humblest canal boats.

GEN. ULYSSES S. GRANT.

The ceremonies proper began at sunrise, when from the tall flagpole near the tomb was flung the immense American flag furnished by the Daughters of the Revolution. There it will fly night and day in fair weather and foul until the winds have worn it away and the sun has faded its colors. At the same time the marines on the war ships were piped to quarters and landed on shore to stand and receive the head of the land column.

The initial step in the parade was made almost on schedule time, and by 9:40 o'clock the presidential procession was on the move.

The order of this procession was:

1.—Squadron "A."

2.—President McKinley, Vice President Hobart, Mayor Strong and Gen. Porter.

3.—Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, Col. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris.

4.—Mrs. Jesse Grant, Miss Nellie Grant, Master Chapman Grant.

5.—Five carriages bearing the rest of the Grant family.

6.—Ex-President Cleveland and Richard Watson Gilder.

7.—Maj. Gen. W. S. Rosecrans, Maj. Gen. C. C. Augur, Maj. Gen. B. G. Wright, Maj. Gen. J. C. Parke.

Cheers greeted the distinguished party as it moved through the decorated streets, the enthusiasm being so noteworthy that President McKinley's face was joyous and his hat was in a state of constant salute. Mrs. Grant and her family to the third generation were objects of special attention and the widow of the hero was visibly affected at the great popular demonstration.

The visitors got a chance to see a million people. The unbroken wall of humanity six miles long was an inspiring sight.

THE DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

Positions Which They Occupied in the Grand Stand.

It was precisely 10:30 o'clock when the carriage bearing the president and vice president and the members of Grant's family and the foreign representatives arrived at the grand stand. The president and vice president were under the escort of squadron A, N. G. S., N. Y., while the family of the dead heroes were escorted by mounted companies of the Army of the Tennessee, New York commanders of the military order of the Loyal Legion with four comrades of George G. Meade Post No. 1 G. A. R., department of Pennsylvania, in carriages.

The order in which the various dignitaries took their seats in the stand was: President McKinley to the right of the speaker's platform, where he was soon joined by Speaker Thomas B. Reed, who remained in animated conversation with the chief magistrate for some time; ex-President Cleveland and Mayor Strong conversed together to their left.

The first row immediately back of the platform was occupied by the Grant party, Col. Fred Grant being on the end, escorting his mother. Immediately back of the Grant family were seated the members of the president's family, including Mrs. McKinley, Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley and Miss Maud McKinley.

GEN. GRANT'S TOMB.

The third row was occupied by the ladies of the cabinet, many members of their families and their friends in general.

THE EXERCISES.

"America" Is Sung and President McKinley Speaks.

The exercises commenced with the singing of "America."

A solemn silence then fell on the dense crowd as the venerable Bishop John P. Newman invoked the blessing of Heaven on the ceremonies. Many of the people joined in the "Our Father," which concluded the bishop's prayer.

As soon as the prelate had taken his seat the hymn of thanks, "Old Netherland Folksong," was sung by the choristers.

Another mighty cheer arose as President McKinley, after the singing of the hymn, moved to the railing of the speaker's stand to deliver his address. He was introduced by Mayor Strong.

President McKinley said, in part:

"A great life never dies. Great deeds are imperishable; great names immortal. Gen. Grant's services and character will continue undiminished in influence and advance in the estimation of mankind so long as liberty remains the corner-stone of free government and integrity of life the guaranty of good citizenship. Faithful and fearless as a volunteer soldier, intrepid and invincible as commander in chief of the armies of the union, calm and confident as president of a reunited and strengthened nation, which his genius had been instrumental in achieving, he has our homage and that of the world.

"But brilliant as was his public character, we love him all the more for his home life and homely virtues. His individuality, his bearing and speech, his simple ways, had a flavor of rare and unique distinction, and his Americanism was so true and uncompromising that his name will stand for all time as the embodiment of liberty, loyalty and national unity.

"Victorious in the work which under Divine Providence he was called upon to do, clothed with almost limitless power, he was yet one of the people—patient, patriotic and just. Success did not disturb the even balance of his mind, while fame was powerless to swerve him from the path of duty. Great as he was in war, he loved peace, and told the world that honorable arbitration of differences was the best hope of civilization.

"With Washington and Lincoln, Grant has an exalted place in history and the affection of the people. To-day his memory is held in equal esteem by those whom he led to victory and those who accepted his generous terms of peace. The veteran leaders of the blue and the gray here meet not only to honor the name of the departed Grant, but to testify to the living reality of a fraternal national spirit which has triumphed over the differences of the past and transcended the limitations of sectional lines. Its completion, which we pray God to speed, will be the nation's greatest glory.

"It is right, then, that Gen. Grant should have a memorial commensurate with his greatness and that his last resting-place should be in the city of his choice, to which he was so attached in life and of whose ties he was not forgetful even in death. Fitting, too, is it that the great soldier should sleep beside the native river on whose banks he first learned the art of war and of which he became master and leader without a rival.

"But let us not forget the glorious distinction with which the metropolis among the fair sisterhood of American cities has honored his life and memory. With all that riches and sculpture can do to render the edifice worthy of the man, upon a site unsurpassed for magnificence, has this monument been reared by New York as a perpetual record of his illustrious deeds, in the certainty that as time passes around it will assemble with gratitude and reverence and veneration men of all climes, races and nationalities. New York holds in her keeping the precious dust of the silent soldier; but his achievements—what he and his brave comrades wrought for mankind—are in keeping of 70,000,000 of American citizens, who will guard the sacred heritage forever and forevermore."

The vast crowd listened with keen attention to the president's words, and at intervals broke into cheers when some incident in the dead soldier's career was alluded to by the distinguished speaker. Even those who were too far removed from the speaker to hear a word seemed to be as much interested as those who were within earshot.

At the conclusion of the president's address Col. Fred Grant advanced and shook him warmly by the hand. The two men stood in the foreground of the wonderful picture the spectators applauded.

The Orator of the Day.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was played by the band, after which Gen. Horace Porter was introduced by the mayor. The orator of the day was accorded a warm reception. More discreet than the president, Gen. Porter kept his hat on while speaking. He read his address from typewritten manuscript.

Gen. Porter spoke at length on the personality of Gen. Grant, his career as a soldier, and his great service to the country as president, graphically contrasting the condition of the government at the time of his first inauguration with that at the completion of his second term, and reciting the obstacles which he overcame.

In closing his address Gen. Porter said:

"He reached the highest pinnacle of human distinction. Men have dwelt upon his achievements till they know all by heart. The record of his deeds rises to the sublimity of an epoch. The story of his life is worth the contemplation of ages. He needs no eulogists; his services attest his greatness; he did his duty and trusted to history for his meed of praise. The more history discusses him, the more brilliant becomes the luster of his name. He was a natural leader; he was born to command. No one can rob him of a single laurel. No one can lessen the measure of his renown. He honored the age in which we live, and future generations will be illumined by the brightness of his fame.

"His countrymen have paid him a tribute of grateful hearts, that have reared in monumental rock, a sepulcher for his ashes, a temple to his fame. The fact that it has been built by the voluntary contributions of the people will give our citizens an individual interest in preserving it, honoring it; it will stand throughout the ages upon its conspicuous promontory, this ideal site.

"They have reared his monument to a majestic height; but if it towered above the eagle's flight it would not reach as high as the summit of his fame. Its flawless granite is typical of the spotless character of his reputation. Its delicate lines and massive proportions will remind us of the childlike simplicity which was mingled with the majestic grandeur of his nature. The hallowed memories clustering about it will recall the heroic age of the republic. Its mute eloquence will plead for equal sacrifice should war ever again threaten the nation's life. In this tomb which generosity has created and which his services have sanctified, his ashes will henceforth rest, but his true sepulcher will be in the hearts of his countrymen."

The Hallelujah chorus from Handel's Messiah and the doxology were sung, and this concluded the ceremonies at the speaker's stand. The president and other officials and the distinguished guests then retired to the tent in the rear of the tomb, where an elaborate luncheon was served.

THE MILITARY PARADE.

Magnificent Pageant That Traverses New York Streets.

With military promptitude and perfect discipline the land parade started from Twenty-fourth street and Madison avenue on the minute—at 10:30 o'clock. Maj. Gen. Granville M. Dodge, followed by a staff of celebrated soldiers, led the column, the military band from Governor's island coming next.

The veteran Gen. Merritt, one of the world's famous leaders of cavalry, commanding the division of the Atlantic, the first division and the natty West Pointers, called for salvos of cheers as they followed. Engineers, artillery, cavalry, infantry, in picturesque but orderly variety, tramped by, each brigade headed by a veteran of note. Not least among the honored troops were the tars of Uncle Sam's navy. Besides these regulars there were the citizen soldiery and the naval militia.

But enthusiasm reached its climax when the division led by Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard marched into view. The old veterans were given the greatest honor of all the marchers. As a relief from the constant blue came the independent companies, the gray-clad cadets, the Italenia-covered banners, lent, religious and temperance orders.

GEN. HORACE PORTER.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans, who were to arrive at the tomb at 3:30 o'clock and place a floral wreath with crossed swords on the sarcophagus, were an hour late in reaching the scene. They were headed by James R. Branch, commander in chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

The tokens were reverently laid on the sarcophagus by Gen. John B. Gordon, while his comrades stood by with uncovered heads.

Detachments of the national guard, or governors and their staffs from the following states marched in the parade in the following order: Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Hampshire, Virginia, Rhode Island, Vermont, Ohio, Illinois, District of Columbia.

About 60,000 Men in Line.

According to careful estimates, made some time after the parade had started for review, there were between 58,000 and 60,000 men in line. Of this aggregate United States regular land and naval forces numbered 4,000; national guard of New York, 12,000, and national guard of other states, 12,850. The G. A. R. veterans in line were computed at 10,000.

THE NAVAL DISPLAY.

Big War Ships Gay with Colors Attract Much Attention.

The war ships which lay at anchor in the river in sight of the tomb claimed the attention of the crowd before the arrival of the dignitaries and the commencement of the services of dedication. At six o'clock orders flashed from the flag ship for the fleet to dress for the day's festivities. A few moments later a rainbow of colors began going up from the bow of the New York. Immediately every vessel in the fleet followed suit.

The big ships made a magnificent showing in their gala attire, with rainbows of bunting from bow to stern. The naval grand division was under the command of Rear Admiral Francis H. Bunce, U. S. N.

The marine division, which was scheduled to leave the lower bay at two o'clock, was divided into four divisions, each commanded by a commodore.

The moment the president boarded the lighthouse boat Daisy the police boat Patrol, assisted by several launches from the war ships, began to force the tugs and steamers back, and a fairly clear space was visible when the Daisy reached the starboard side of the Dispatch, and the presidential flag broke from the mainmast. The president set foot on the deck of the Dolphin, the presidential salute of 21 guns was fired, and the fleet of steamers blew whistles until the sound of the firing was scarcely audible.

At 5:30 o'clock the Dolphin started down the river, followed by the immense fleet of steamers, which had awaited the arrival of the president. The New York was the first vessel passed by the Dolphin, and President McKinley doffed his silk hat and bowed as the first gun of her salute boomed across the waters. Next came the Indiana, and then the guns of the British cruiser Talbot welcomed the president. The Texas was the next to greet him, and the two Spanish ships, the Maria Teresa and the Infanta Isabella, the French corvette Fulton, the Italian cruiser Dogali, and the Raleigh, Columbus, Amphitrite and Terror, of the White Squadron, saluted in quick succession as the Dolphin steamed by.

Close of the Great Day.

When night fell, and the greatest of military, naval and civic parades ever seen here was at an end, the city assumed a gala aspect. The streets were full of bright uniforms of all nations, while a sightseer from every part wandered from place to place and discussed the wonders of the day. Once in the history before has such a ceremony been enacted over the reinterment of a great man, this only other instance being when the body of Napoleon was brought back to Paris from St. Helena. The scenes of the day recalled those in Paris, when royalists and republicans alike joined in one great triumphal pageant. At midnight all was quiet. The war ships' lights were no longer reflected by the placid Hudson, and the gray tomb on the eminence above stood out boldly against the black sky, at last a fitting monument, erected by a grateful nation to the soldier-president, who, through victories and war brought peace, and with peace brought honor.

It Is Bankrupt.

Detroit, April 17.—There is a strong probability that the plan of holding the state fair at Detroit will be abandoned. At least $50,000 is needed and only $5,000 has been raised. This sum was subscribed by the hotels. If the fair is held in Detroit a stock company will be organized for ten years. If not held in Detroit there will be no state fair until 1898. Meanwhile the State Agricultural society is bankrupt.

Lake Barge Sinks.

Ludington, Mich., April 19.—Tow barge Charles N. Ryan went to the bottom a quarter of a mile off this port in 25 feet of water Sunday. In trying to make the harbor the current carried her onto the north pier, breaking a hole in her bow. Her crew reached land in safety.

Killed While Resisting Arrest.

Ironwood, April 27.—Gust Rom, a Finlander, was shot and instantly killed by Gust Miller, the village marshal at Wakefield, a small mining town near here. The marshal was trying to arrest Rom when he resisted.

HIS ABSENCE BRINGS WOE.

Financial Disasters at Loda, Ill., Due to a Banker's Disappearance.

Loda, Ill., April 28.—The disappearance and supposed suicide in Chicago of John S. Sheldon, banker and capitalist, has brought disaster and financial ruin on this town. Nearly one-half of Loda is in the hands of receivers. What remains of the town is temporarily paralyzed by the shock consequent upon the failure and the mysterious disappearance of the banker. Nine assignments were entered in the Iroquois county court Tuesday, as the result of Sheldon's disappearance. The number of farmers and others in this community who will be seriously affected by the sudden and unexpected collapse of Sheldon's bank is estimated at 400. The deposits in the bank at the time it closed are roughly estimated at $75,000. The amount of the bank's assets is only vaguely guessed at.

A Worthy Object.

Chicago, April 27.—The Forward Movement, a beneficent organization in this city, is arranging to take 1,000 boys and girls to the country this summer for a two weeks' vacation. Any person who will receive one or more of these children may address Mrs. W. M. Green, secretary, 1015 Forest avenue.

Bankers Fail.

Norfolk, Va., April 28.—N. Burruss, Son & Co., one of the most prominent and widely known banking firms in the south, failed for $350,000.

Gadd, Sr., who died Tuesday night at 10:30, at the age of 67 years. The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at their home in Bridgewater township.

Frank D. Lancaster now drives one of the closest matched and finest driving spans of pacers in Southern Michigan. He purchased of J. E. Woodward the last of the week, Mollie W. the speedy little pacer, and she resembles the one he had so closely, that it is difficult to distinguish them. Frank loves good horses, and gives them the best of care.

Judging from the number of bicycles received here daily, one would think, Clinton a distributing point for a large territory. However such is not the case but the community is experiencing a bicycle craze such for the past two or three weeks, it has bothered the dealers, to supply the demand. We should not be surprised to see Uncle Roswell Randell catch the fever. Pleasant evenings, the streets are filled with wheels, propelled by men, women, and children, and foot passengers are scarce.

WAS OFFERED MONEY.

Legislator Claims to Have Been Tendered $25 for His Vote.

Thorough Investigation to Be Made of the Charge — Anti-Cigarette Measure Passed—Other Interesting Legislative Proceedings.

[Special Correspondence.]

Lansing, April 28.—Although the legislature has been in session nearly four months, there has been no hint of corruption until now, when a charge has been made by a member that he has been offered a bribe of $25 to secure his aid in passing a bill which is now before the public health committee. The member has made an affidavit to this effect, and steps will be taken at once to investigate the matter. In his affidavit he affirms that he was approached by a lobbyist, whose name is withheld from the public, and was offered the sum named above if he would promise to support and vote for the bill in question. He refused to consider the proposition and proceeded at once to inform the public health committee of the fact. It is said that when the name of the alleged bribe giver is made known it will cause a sensation.

The house agreed to the bill prescribing a severe penalty for the sale of cigarettes to persons, under 21 years of age, or of tobacco in any form to persons less than 17 years of age, and also providing for the punishment of persons of these classes who purchase the prohibited articles.

The long fight over bills permitting townships on the east shore to grant franchises for a railroad and permitting suburban electric lines to transport farm produce and other light freight ended Thursday with the passage of all the bills, which have been held up in the senate for the past week, all having already passed the house. The bills were amended so as to give the railroad commissioner supervision over these roads, but the proposition to substitute specific for local taxation was abandoned.

A movement on the part of surety companies to engage at wholesale in the business of furnishing bonds for liquor dealers who will be required to furnish new bonds May 1 was nipped in the bud by the passage by both houses of a bill rendering such bonds illegal for this purpose.

If a bill which the house agreed to Friday becomes a law the practice of paying employes in store orders, checks, etc., which has obtained to a great extent, will cease in Michigan. The bill makes it unlawful to pay employes in this manner unless they so request.

The house received a remonstrance extensively signed by railroad employes against the passage of the bill providing a flat two-cent railroad fare. The petitioners said that the passage of the bill would mean reduced wages for them.

The house has been considering appropriation bills for several days, and action thus far taken indicates that all bills appropriating money for whatever purpose will be cut to the quick.

The indications are now that before the legislature adjourns it will have made arrangements to furnish the capitol, also all the state institutions in Lansing, with heat, light and power without patronizing the city or any private corporation. Early in the session bills were introduced for appropriations for the construction of electric light plants at the various institutions and the capitol. Now there is talk of one large plant.

In the future the house will have a session every morning, commencing at ten o'clock, instead of two o'clock in the afternoon. There will also be a session in the afternoon, and committee meetings must be held during the evening. This was a necessary move, if the members expect to get half through before time comes to adjourn.

The house liquor traffic committee has reported a bill providing a stamp tax of 64 cents upon barrels of beer, 32 cents upon half barrels, 16 cents upon quarters and 8 cents upon eighths, 1 cent upon quarts and one-half cent upon pints of ale or porter manufactured or sold in the state. It is estimated that the bill will yield an additional revenue in excess of $1,000,000.

The Buskirk bill has been finally agreed to by the committee and reported out. It provides that the local option feature shall be submitted at every state election when petitioned by 25 per cent. of the electors. This is the only liquor measure that has received any consideration during the session, and the amendment to compel petitions is considered as a victory by the saloon men.

The house passed several appropriation bills Thursday. The state soldiers' home was given $176,000; the home for the feeble-minded at Lapeer, $76,788. The bill appropriating $5,000 for a park at Mackinaw island was killed. The next bill to come up was one appropriating $2,500 to allow the state board of health to do the work of educating school children as to dangerous diseases. The amount was allowed with but little discussion. There was no appropriation for this purpose two years ago. For the state industrial school for girls there was allowed $91,968.80, which is $8,251.40 less than two years ago.

Gov. Pingree has signed the osteopathy bill and it is now a law. He had spoken favorably of such a bill before the legislature convened.

A senate caucus has decided that there shall be no increase in the present uniform liquor tax of $500.

The house on Tuesday defeated the Oberdorfer bill, appropriating $6,000 for an agricultural and horticultural station in the upper peninsula. Bills were passed by the house prohibiting fire insurance companies from making any combination, preventing open and free competition in the matter of rates; prohibiting fishing with nets in the Lea Cheneaux channel, except to take minnows for bait; prohibiting the shooting of prairie chickens for a period of five years.

Bills were passed by the senate Tuesday requiring railroads to carry bicycles as baggage; designating the apple blossom as the state flower; authorizing the incorporation of the Finnish Temperance Friends Association of America; authorizing the incorporation of companies to insure against burglary and the loss of securities or money in transit by registered mail. The house anti-cigarette bill was amended in committee, confining the prohibition of sale of tobacco and cigarettes to minors under 17 years, instead of 21, as it passed the house. There is likely to be a deadlock upon this measure, resulting in no legislation looking to the prohibition of the use of cigarettes.

CYCLONE AT OMER.

Buildings Demolished and Several Persons Injured.

Saginaw, April 25.—A special to the Courier-Herald from Omer, Aranac county, says that a cyclone struck that town at 5:30 Saturday evening, completely demolishing the general store of W. R. Clouston, whose residence was also torn down and his shingle mill wrecked. Mr. and Mrs. Hagley were blown 60 feet into the air and both were fatally hurt. Mr. Clouston received a serious scalp wound and is thought to be fatally injured. Mrs. John T. Balkie and her brother, John Cannally, of Port Huron, were in the upper portion of the store building when it collapsed. They were buried under the debris, but escaped serious injury. John Campbell's building, under course of construction, was blown down and completely wrecked. The Hagley residence was blown to pieces and not a board can be found within 200 feet of its former location. Mr. Clouston's loss is $1,200 on buildings and $3,000 on stock. The Presbyterian church was damaged to the extent of $500. The cyclone lasted but a moment and was followed by a terrific rain. The cloud was funnel-shaped and took a northeasterly direction. When it reached the woods trees were uprooted and carried into the air.

Swept by Fire.

Kalamazoo, April 22.—Fire broke out in Charles E. Gibson's bakery at Bloomingdale on the South Haven railroad, leaving but two business places standing. There was no fire protection except buckets and it was with great effort that any of the business places were left standing. The loss is about $20,000 with small insurance.

MANY THINK!

when the Creator said to woman, "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children," that a curse was pronounced against the human race, but the joy felt by every Mother when she first presses to her heart her babe, proves the contrary.

Danger and suffering lurk in the pathway of the Expectant Mother, and should be avoided, that she may reach the hour when the hope of her heart is to be realized, in full vigor and strength.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

THE FOUR SEASONS,

As Viewed by the Doctor Rather Than the Artist.

We often see in the magazines reproductions of famous paintings representing the Four Seasons. They are generally personated by beautiful women, and the typical spring is generally a young girl. She is bouyant and elastic, her eyes are full of fire, her form lissom and graceful. Her cheeks flush with health and there breathes from the canvas the impression of radiant health.

It is true, we sometimes see our young women in such a state of health in the springtime; but it is the exception. Depression and languor are generally in evidence and the drooping, listless figure of the schoolgirl, the dragging step of the housewife, are seen in nearly every home. Perfect health is rare at any season, but this is especially so in the spring. The great majority of the people need a tonic in the spring. There are a great many tonics and they are all taken by the people to a greater of less extent. But the one that seems most popular at this time of the year is Pe-ru-na. It strengthens the weary body, invigorates the nerves and clears the mind. It leaves no bad effect upon the system when it is discontinued. The fact of the efficacy of Pe-ru-na as a spring tonic is becoming more widely known every spring. More Pe-ru-na is being taken this spring than ever before. The people have learned that it is unfailing, and so do not experiment, but immediately buy Pe-ru-na when the old listlessness of "spring fever" overtakes them.

Any one who desires Dr. Hartman's latest book on this and kindred subjects may obtain one free by addressing The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

When a person is losing flesh and wasting away there is cause for alarm. Nothing so worries a physician. Consumptives would never die if they could regain their usual weight. In fact there would be no consumption if there was no wasting of the system. The cause of this loss of flesh is a failure to properly digest the food eaten. Nine-tenths of all our diseases date back to some derangement of the stomach.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial will stop this wasting of the body. It acts by causing the food we eat to be digested so as to do good, for undigested food does more harm than good. The Cordial contains food already digested and is a digester of foods as well.

To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield Iowa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield Ia., Aug 18 1895. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would'nt now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

TECUMSEH, MICH., APRIL 30, 1897.

The Anderson bicycle bill has passed both houses of the legislature and with the signature of the governor will become a law. It takes effect immediately and the provisions allow bicycles to go free under the same conditions as baggage except that the railroad company is not liable for damage or loss of machine except through proven carelessness of employees. The bill is all right and every state should follow suit.

In Adrian there is a regular old-fashioned "Reign of Terror." For several weeks tramps have infested the city and since the murder of Lafayette Ladd nearly every man, woman and child within the city limits carries a revolver. Reputable citizens spend their leisure moments shooting at a mark and it is understood that Ex-Mayor Hunt is about to organize a rifle club which will patrol the streets from sun down to sun up. That such a state of affairs should exist in our neighboring city is much to be regretted, but of course the force of the officers of prosecution for Lenawee county is limited, and it will be remembered that not long since a large portion of the force was unavoidably detained in New York City for several days, and perhaps in a measure Tecumseh is to blame. Last week it was rumored that boys were shooting our window panes with air guns in this village and again the attention of the prosecuting force was distracted from the capture of Adrian murderers to this more important affair in Tecumseh. 'Twas ever thus. "It never rains but it pours."

The Criminal and the Prison.

The treatment of the criminal has always been, and promises yet to be for some time, a question upon which good men may honestly differ. Human progress is not rapid nor of sudden developement in the direction of social perfection. Such progress as is achieved comes as the reward of serious and often times expensive experience. The present system of prisons and penal servitude, while protecting the community from the influence of many of the really dangerous class, serves only to emphasize the disgrace of misdoing, leaving the criminal unpunished, except as disgrace is a punishment, and making him, so far as possible, unpunishable. That the criminal is made in the prison, is a fact voiced almost daily in conversation. The really innocent person, being once sentenced to and confined in prison, becomes, almost universally, a hardened criminal. Those who are so held because of even the most trivial offences, nearly always become haters of the state and all connected with it. In hardly any instance, whether of reform school, house of correction or state prison, does the wrong doer come from confinement or servitude with any greater regard for order or good behavior for the sake of the virtue which lies in the right observance of these. He comes rather to in the quickest way possible work vengeance on those who caused him to suffer shame. Shame he most certainly should suffer, but not the scoffing and almost hatred of his fellow beings. The criminal, of all men, deserves pity and kindness. Cruelty only serves to make him more a criminal, without correcting his errors. The man sentenced to prison for a crime, usually looks about him and finds worse criminals than himself going free, petted and lauded by society. The criminal is weakened, incomplete, unhealthy, otherwise he would not have done a wrong. No person in his normal and healthy mind would commit a wrong against any one, much less a criminal act. But it is one of the diseases of society in this day, that men are subject to anger. Such a liability always betrays a weakness, an inebriety. There is a difference between anger and a righteous indignation as there is a difference between vengeance and kindly correcting. Those who are subject to anger are the dangerous class. They are weak morally; they may seem strong physically, but almost universally a close examination betrays a weakness there as well. Society demands, and most rightly, a protection against these moral dyspeptics. In no case would one possessed of sense open the prison doors and turn the inmates loose upon unprotected society. But the criminal is a human being, possessed of human instincts and deserving of human compassion, not hate. The love and compassion which the good Nazarene always displayed, even in his indignation, works more cures in the morally diseased, than the harshness of prisons ever can. Beyond protection from his misdeeds, the state has no claim against the criminal. This protection the state claims and must have, as much from the criminal as from the insane or the idiotic, but it seems to me, no more. As it is no part of an individual's right to work a work of vengeance, so neither is it a part of the rights of the state. The parent owes to the erring child a correcting and reproving love, but a love for all its correction and reproof. A like debt the state owes to each of its erring children, but it owes them no vengeance. It seems to me that the great wrong seen in our treatment of this unfortunate class, is that as a rule we send them to punishment as the angry driver flogs his horse. We need to let kindness rule in our treatment of these unfortunates as the treatment of the insane of today is kinder than the treatment of that class in the middle ages. ELMER C. ANDRUS.

Mr. Thomas Breen and Miss Minnie McKeehan were married by the Rev. W. R. It was a very pleasant occasion and the young couple have the best wishes of all for future happiness. They received many fine presents.

To the ladies of the Research circle are the citizens of Tecumseh indebted for one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season and no doubt the large and appreciative audience last evening fully recompensed them for their efforts as well as being complimentary to the lecturer. Leigh Lynch is a man of generous proportions, imposing appearance and a pleasing speaker. His lecture "Hunting Freaks" was interesting and very instructive as his description of the countries and inhabitants was made most forcible by stereoptican views of great merit. The ladies netted thirty dollars.

Mother Goose Party.

The last of the series of parties given by the fourteen ladies was last Friday evening, and the entertainers were Mrs. P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, Miss Minnie Corey and Miss Katherine Anderson, at the residence of A. L. Brewer. The party was "Mother Goose" from start to finish, each guest representing some character from the well known fables. A feature of the evening was an hour spent in the mysteries of legerdemain by E. C. Adams, a guest from South Bend, Indiana. Mr. Adams' tricks would rival those of the most clever professional and were enjoyed to the extreme by the whole company. This, the last of a most unique and entertaining series of parties, was full of enjoyment to every one and reflected much credit upon the hostesses for the novel and delightful manner in which the guests were entertained.

Ernest Kemp.

The funeral of Ernest Kemp, whose remains reached here Monday night, was held Wednesday at 10 a. m. in the Methodist church, and was attended by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The floral tributes were beautiful beyond description. The occasion was an extremely sad one, death coming in the way it did—so unexpectedly, so far from home and friends, and just in the prime of young manhood. Ernest was a bright, exemplary young man, 23 years of age and the only son. The parents and sisters have the deepest sympathy of the entire community in their sorrow, which time alone can mitigate.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Frank Bauer, Will Ingersoll and L. B. Samsen Thrown from a Carriage and Severely Injured.

L. B. Samsen is a son of F. W. Samsen, proprietor of the Tecumseh News, on which account the HERALD is pleased to quote from the News the account of the accident, supplementing only the fact that this (Friday) morning the three young men are all doing nicely and will be among us in a day or two, and to congratulate the participants that they escaped so luckily.

"While out riding last evening, the horse driven by L. B. Samsen became unmanageable and he, with the other occupants of the buggy, Will Ingersoll and Frank Bauer, were thrown out at the corner of Kilbuck and Pearl streets. All three were more or less hurt. Frank Bauer and L. B. Samsen were picked up in an unconscious state and carried into Mrs. Montgomery's. Bauer sustained some painful injuries to his face and remained in a dazed condition before being able to realize his situation. Samsen received a deep cut on the top of his head that penetrated to the skull, besides several other cuts about the head and body. Will Ingersoll was severely shocked and, as he had but a few days before come from a sick bed, the accident may cause him to suffer further trouble. The young men are today resting more comfortably, Samsen suffering from slight concussion of the brain and a fever, and Mr. Ingersoll some internal pains. While serious the accident might have terminated worse. The horse is not a vicious one, but became nervous at the playing of the band. As he started to run, the driver partially slipped from the seat, and Mr. Ingersoll also grasping the lines, the horse swerved to one side of the street, the buggy colliding with a large stone. Mrs. Bailey and Miss Hattie Montgomery rendered every assistance possible and kindly furnished material for the use of the Doctors—Jenkins and Catlin.

About a year ago a Clinton lady lost her dog down in Tecumseh. On Wednesday she found the dog but the lady who had kept this same dog for a year, claimed ownership, on the ground that possession is nine points of the law. A coolness sprang up between the two women, the dog barked, the reporter politely stepped around the corner. The dog now wears a stump tail and will not own either woman as his mistress.

If ever there was a disgusted and crestfallen company, it was the eight couples who attended the McDermid-Coddington wedding and, supposing the bridal pair was going via Jackson to Detroit, drove to Clinton in the evening stocked with rice, etc., intending to board the train and give them a surprise. So far so good. They were at the station in the height of expectation. The train came, they boarded it, entering the train with a rush, but to their surprise the looked for couple were conspicuously absent, they having driven to Britton and taken the Wabash. The joke was on them and it will be a long time ere they hear the last of it.

His was a verification of the saying "Death loves a shining mark."

The workmen are doing great execution in preparing the road bed for the Lima Nothern. The big cut is nearly finished, as is the long stretch on Geo. Tiltons, which required to be filled in. Billington & Wood understand their business thoroughly, but are handicapped by the reluctance, with which property owners are giving right-of-way. N. M. Sutton came to an agreement with the company yesterday morning, and no doubt in a few days, the grade across the old Patterson farm, will be completed, which will bring it to the village.

During the winter of 1896-7 the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle held their regular semi-monthly meetings at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Conkling, Prof. Kellogg being President. Their last meeting for the season, a social, was held at the residence of their charming hostes, Mrs. A. Hardenburg on Union St. Tuesday evening, April 27th. Refreshments were served early in the evening, and the remaining time was delightfully spent by the Circle and their guests, in modeling animal and marine objects and in guessing portraits of distinguished persons. At the last regular meeting the Circle adjourned, to meet at Mrs. Wm. Orr's, Mouday, Aug. 30th. 1897. at 7. 30 P. M.

DELIGHTING THE EYE.

TREASURES OF USE AND BEAUTY DISPLAYED.

OUR LADY READERS ESPECIALLY INTERESTED.

General Invitation From L. B. King & Co., China Merchants, Detroit.

In none of the many magnificent and beautifully arranged business emporiums which make Detroit famous, can the visitor derive more pleasure, than in the establishment of L. B. King & Co., the wholesale and retail dealers in china, glass and crockery ware, 103 Woodward avenue, that city. The house is one of the oldest in Michigan and the West. Half a century ago, as R. W. King & Co., it was the base of supplies to the then sparsely settled region which now numbers millions of residents. It has the trade of the grandfathers of the present generation, as it had that of their fathers, and it keeps the confidence of the present descendants of the pioneers. These facts are of easy explanation.

One of the chief reasons why this establishment has been able to hold its trade and to extend it, in the face of active competition, is the absolute reliability of its goods. From the beginning of its efforts and all along in its career to this day, the goods sold by this firm could always be depended upon. In these days of imitations, more numerous and deceptive than of old, it is a comfort and a satisfaction to know where one can procure the finest and best of those delicate goods, with the assurance that they are exactly as represented. Very few people outside the trade, and not all in the trade, are fully competent to judge correctly in this matter. They would like to be sure of possessing the genuine article. It is only required that it be procured at "King's," to guarantee this.

The immense and carefully selected stock of this house comprises everything in china, cut glass, queensware, and kindred articles. Every novelty and everything of beauty in these lines may be seen there. Retail dealers in Michigan and the West will learn what is new and popular by visiting "King's." They will find such a visit highly profitable, be their requirements much or little.

Young housekeepers (and old ones as well) will derive much pleasure and satisfaction from an inspection of the many beautiful articles displayed in this veritable palace of art. We live in an age of culture and taste, and all who can possibly afford it wish to fit up their homes with elegance, and according to the prevailing styles. Our readers who desire to have their pantries, sideboards and dining tables furnished as they should be, should call at "King's" and look around. They are invited to ask questions, and they will have all information given them by persons whose business it is to know, and whose success in business is a proof that they know.

Scattered all over Michigan and States adjoining, in the homes of the wealthy and humble alike, are souvenirs and heirlooms bought at "King's" in Detroit. These articles of use and beauty have endured because they were "good," outlasting much that was only supposed to be.

The season of spring replenishing is at hand. The long-established character of this house, and its well-known facilities, make it the mart for spring buyers of china, glassware and crockery. The firm extends a personal invitation to every reader of these lines to call at 103 Woodward avenue, when in Detroit.

FRUIT LOOKS WELL.

Excellent Prospect for a Larger Crop Than Ever.

St. Joseph, April 26.—The present indications are that there will be a larger crop of all kinds of fruit in this section of country than last season, which was the largest crop of fruit ever gathered in the fruit belt. It was reported that the entire crop of peaches was killed last winter, but many farmers have examined their trees and find that two-thirds of the buds are alive and this is more than the trees can hold. Many farmers are glad that part of the crop was killed because last season many trees broke down with the weight of the crop and the farmers had to hire help to pick off the peaches when they were green and small.

Another reason why the crop will be larger than last year is because many acres of young orchards will bear for the first time. The berry crop will, according to present indications, be larger than last year, as many acres were destroyed by the dry weather of last season. Last season the pear crop was short in this locality, but this year the yield will be greater than any other year in the history of the fruit belt.

BOTH TELL OF JOY.

Two Young People Miraculously Regain the Power of Speech.

Perrington, April 26.—Addie Altenberg, the 14-year-old daughter of W. J. Altenberg, of this place, is the happiest girl in the state. Seven months ago she suffered a complete paralysis of the vocal organs, caused by diphtheria, and has not spoken a word since until Sunday evening, when her voice returned instantly. She went nearly wild with joy.

Hudson, April 26. — Fred Markey lost his voice when he was a little boy. One day last week, while plowing, he struck a snag and got a poke in the ribs that made him yell with pain. This surprised him greatly and he yelled for joy, forgetting all about his lacerated rib. Since then he has used his voice with telling effect.

Furniture Plant Sold.

Hastings, April 26. — The furniture factory in this city, which has long stood idle and which cost $60,000, has been sold to the Cedarine Manufacturing company, an incorporated concern in the east, and will immediately start up with a force of 100 men.

FARM & GARDEN.

FINE SOD CUTTER.

Can Be Made by Anyone Having a Little Ingenuity.

In reply to a request for directions for making a sod cutter, I offer the following, which is very easy to construct by anyone having ordinary ability in the use of tools and who may have use for such an article as a sod cutter. It is for use with a horse, and will cut sod at a very rapid rate, and will cut of a uniform thickness and width. By using a spade that is sharp to follow and cut out the lengths, it is easy to get any sized piece that may be desirable to handle.

To construct it, procure a piece of pine or oak two inches thick by six inches wide and seven feet long. Cut in the center and shape one end of each piece like Fig. 1. For the top use a piece of pine two inches thick, 14 inches wide and three feet long. Spike or fasten the top board firmly to the side pieces or runners as though making a sled, as in Fig. 4. It will require two steel cutters about eight inches long and firm enough to be substantial, like Fig. 2. One steel cutter (3), the bottom to be flat and about 1½ inches wide, the length of which must be width of sled, but which must be fastened to the sled on an angle so that the knife or cutter which is fastened upright in front will be in advance of the other. This cutter must be well made of good steel, with good stout upright ends and well bolted to the sides so it will project below the bottom of the runners about 2½ inches, or whatever thickness is deemed best to cut the sod. Have it well sharpened across the width. Place the two upright knives, well sharpened, just in advance of the uprights of the just in advance of the uprights of the knife or cutter, allowing their points to project half an inch below the cutter bar. Fig. 4 shows the cutter complete with the bottom up. Rings can be put in front and a short chain attached to hitch the horse to.

In cutting, drive straight and stand on the cutter over the knife. It is best to cut crosswise at each end of the strips and remove it, and there will be less trouble to start it each time. The whole expense of such a cutter ought not to exceed a dollar, and if well made will last a lifetime and be very easy to lend, but harder to keep trace of.—S. L. Harper, in Ohio Farmer.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

No other instrument is so well adapted to pulverizing small clods as the plank drag.

A great man once said that the most important secret of success with crops is to remember to stir the soil.

Even half a dozen sheep are better than none, as they will keep down the weeds and prevent the farm from being seeded with such pests.

Feed up the corn fodder, millet and other cheap forage as closely as may be and save the timothy hay, which is a cash article, while the others are not.

Not only must the soil contain food elements, but they must be thoroughly mixed and incorporated in the soil to become available as plant food. Therefore, let the ground be heavily manured and every square inch for a foot in depth well pulverized.

Farmers who sowed crimson clover last fall will have an excellent fertilizing material for plowing under. No nitrogenous fertilizers will be required where crimson clover has grown, but application of phosphates and potash will be beneficial. They cost but a small sum, however, compared with the substances containing nitrogen.

It is seldom that a farmer can accumulate a sufficient amount of wood ashes for a large field, but on farms where wood is used there is a limited supply, which can be put to good use on the garden or on the young clover. Ashes are excellent also on all grass lands and in orchards. They are applied broadcast, in any quantity desired, as many as 100 bushels per acre having been used on certain soils.—Prairie Farmer.

The Curse of Farming.

The first great lesson that we must learn to avoid waste. That has been the curse of farming. We pay taxes on land that we do not farm; we only half cultivate our fields, and so waste both land and labor; we have a large percentage of a crop in a field; we waste time and capital raising inferior animals; we waste money in buying what we should raise ourselves; we waste energy in trying to do more than any one man can do right; we waste opportunities to improve our condition by staying away from institutes and by neglecting to read papers; we waste—in a thousand and one ways we waste, and then we are ready to say that "farming doesn't pay."—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

PLANTING THE CORN.

Have the Soil Mellow and Fine and Stirred Deep.

If a good stand of corn is secured, care must be taken first to have good seed and then to plant under such conditions as will bring a quick germination of the seed and a thrifty start to grow. Plants, like animals, are easily stunted when young, and no after treatment will wholly overcome the effects of stunting.

While it is best to plant reasonably early, it is of no advantage to plant when the soil is wet or cold, or before it has been carefully prepared. Better delay the planting rather than to plant under unfavorable conditions. Corn is a crop that should germinate in a short time after the seed is planted, and the plants should make a steady growth to maturity.

Plow deep and thorough. If the ground has been plowed during the fall or winter go over it with a disk or spading harrow. It is an item to have the soil mellow and fine and stirred reasonably deep.

Taking one year with another, deep plowing or stirring of the soil before planting should be the rule, with shallow, thorough cultivation afterwards. It is only occasionally that it will be best to plow or cultivate deep after the plants are up. Generally thorough stirring of the soil keeping down the weeds, and the soil fine and mellow, will give better results than to plow or cultivate deep.

Rather more and better corn can be grown by planting in drills than in hills, but it is nearly always done at an increased cost. In nearly all cases it will cost more to give clean cultivation with drill-planting than with hill. But where the land is free from weeds, so that the cost of cultivating is not increased too much, drill planting will give the best growth and yield.

But in an average soil, it is usually more economical to plant in hills far enough apart each way, so that cultivation can be given both ways. One advantage in using only good seed and planting under the most favorable conditions is that just the number of plants wanted in each hill, that many kernels of corn can be dropped.

While it is better to thin out than to replant, both of these may usually be avoided by using good seed and taking care in planting. When the soil is warm and dry deep covering will be best. If the soil is rather wet or cold, it will be best to cover shallow. The fertility of the soil must determine the number of stalks in each hill. It is better to have one or two strong, vigorous plants than three or four small, unthrifty ones. It is better to thin out than to let the plants stand so thick as to stunt their growth.—St. Louis Republic.

TRAP FOR SMALL GAME.

It Is Just as Good as the Most Expensive Contrivances.

This trap can be made by any farmer's boy; a is a trap door held up by two cords attached to lever b, which rests on fulcrum c; e, a trigger, is a short stick made as illustrated, and is attached to the end of lever by a short cord. The trigger passes through a small hole in the top of the trap, and catches on the front edge. The sketch shows the trap set. Grain is used for bait, but carrots or cabbage are much liked by rabbits. Place the bait in the further end of the trap so that it cannot be taken out without touching the trigger, which flies up and down drops the door, caging the game. — G. L. Kuney, in Farm and Home.

Early Potato Blight.

The early blight of potatoes does not cause the tubers to rot. A more or less rapid drying and curling of the leaves and stems marks the presence of the disease. The edges of the leaves are first visibly affected; the color changes to a yellowish brown, while the central parts of the leaflets gradually become lighter green, or even yellow, and more or less spotted. The early blight of potatoes may be treated with partial success by means of the Bordeaux mixture. The vines should be sprayed when about two-thirds grown, and the application should be repeated as often as necessary, the foliage at all times being well covered with the mixture.—Western Plowman.

Clover Pasture Is Best.

The best pasture for colts, calves, lambs and pigs is clover, but it is still better to have a variety of pasturage plants, such as blue grass, orchard grass, red top, timothy and red clover. Let these seeds be well mixed and carefully sown and those best adapted to the soil will soon assert themselves and give largest and best growth of pasturage. Now is the time to scatter the seed. Plow well, harrow finely, sow the seed, let it become well established and you will have pastures that you will be proud of.—Rural World.

This Is Worth Remembering.

A wagon box ten feet long, three feet wide and 25 inches deep will hold 27.8 bushels of ear corn and 50.2 bushels of shelled corn. A crib ten feet wide, ten feet high and 16 feet long will hold 711 bushels of ear corn. Of ear corn, one bushel is contained in 2¼ cubic feet. In figuring shelled corn or grain, the same space will hold 1 4-5 times as much grain as it will of ear corn. A crib that will hold 800 bushels of corn will hold of shelled corn or of other grain 1,440 bushels.

Calumet Baking Powder

has turned the tables on high price baking powders. The directions on High Price cans are the same as on Calumet cans, viz.: 2 teaspoonfuls to a quart of flour, but they say that one can of High Price will go three times as far as any other. Can any claim be more ridiculous? The frantic cry of adulteration, danger and poison made by the high price baking powder people is a blind to intimidate the public and induce them to pay fancy prices for their goods—also to divert attention from this defect in their own goods.

WE WANT TO TELL YOU

Why Your Back Is Lame—Why It Aches and Pains, and How to Cure It.

Do you know what it is to have a back that is never free from aches and constant pain, a lame back, a sore back, an aching back, in fact, a back that makes your life a burden? What have you done for it? And does it still keep you from the happiness that perfect health brings to all? We know full well if such is your condition a cure for it will be a blessing you no doubt desire. Plasters won't do it, but may assist in bringing strength. Liniment won't do it; for, while it may give temporary relief, it does not reach the cause. The cause, there's the point; there's where to make the attack. Most backaches come from disordered kidneys, therefore you must correct their action if you would be cured. Read the following from D. D. Cook, whose address is No. 18 Michigan Street, Grand Rapids. He says:—

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and wish to say it is a truly great medicine. Thirty years ago I had nervous prostration while in the army, where I served for over four years. I think it was during this service that the seeds were sown which have caused all my trouble. Severe bilious attacks bothered me, and at such times my kidneys were worse. It is almost impossible to describe the pain which so often lamed me. I have been so lame that to stand up after I had been sitting down required a great exertion. Walking was at times an impossibility, even at night I did not rest, being forced to get up during the night. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and wondered if they could make an almost lame man well? I got some, and soon after taking them began to feel their good effects. I used them for some time, my lameness all left me and I have not felt it since. Doan's Kidney Pills have done me an inestimable amount of good."

HONOR FOR MICHIGAN.

Senator Burrows Made Chairman of Finance Committee.

THE BEST MAN FOR THE POSITION.

His Long Service in the House as a Leading Member of the Ways and Means Committee Gave Him Practical Experience on Financial Matters—Dissatisfied Michigan Wool Growers Sending Petitions to Congress.

Washington, April 27.—The entire state of Michigan has been honored by the honor which has been conferred upon our junior senator, Julius Caesar Burrows. After more than a month of diligent effort on the part of the steering committee of the senate an agreement has finally been reached and the committees reorganized, so that the senate can proceed to do business.

The most important stumbling block in the pathway of success in the formation of committees was the selection of a man to serve on the committee on finance in the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Sherman of Ohio, who became secretary of state. Senator Sherman has been regarded as an authority on financial and revenue matters for more than half a generation, and he had been a member of the senate for thirty years. A number of the older senators were ambitious to succeed to the vacancy on that important committee, but, after due deliberation, by unanimous consent of the entire senate, it was agreed that Senator Burrows is the best equipped man for the position. His long service in the house of representatives as a leading member of the committee on ways and means gave him practical experience on financial and revenue matters, so that he is exceptionally well qualified on the tariff and kindred questions, and, therefore, best fitted of all the members of the senate for membership of that committee, which now has charge of a revenue measure.

Petitions to Congress.

The city and county officials of Midland recently prepared a petition to the congress requesting that a duty of 1 cent per pound on chloride of lime, or bleaching powder, be imposed in the pending tariff bill. They also sent a written argument in favor of the proposition. Both of these documents were presented to the senate in due course of time by Senator McMillan, and referred to the committee on finance, where they will receive consideration. Sundry lumber companies, doing business at Manistique, and a number of citizens of Sherman City, have requested the Michigan senators to secure the adoption of the lumber schedule as it passed the house of representatives. They also remonstrate against any rebate on lumber coming from Canada. Senator McMillan presented these documents to the senate, and had them referred to the committee on finance.

The cigarmakers of this country are opposing any increase of the duty on imported tobacco, classed as wrappers and fillers. Petitions and memorials have come from every section of the state of Michigan and from all over the country, and only a few days ago a petition came from seventy-two cigarmakers of Lansing alone, and Senator Burrows presented many of these documents to the senate and had them referred to the committee on finance; and, inasmuch as the senator is a member of that committee, he will be able to see to it that the matter receives proper consideration.

Dissatisfied Wool Growers.

All of the Michigan representatives and both of the senators from our state are receiving letters and petitions from wool growers who are dissatisfied with the proposed wool schedule of the new tariff bill. They asked legislation which will give protection to sheep husbandry and specified textile fibres. These Michigan men who are interested in sheep husbandry have the co-operation of the National Wool Growers' association, which represents about 1,000,000 people. The wool growers of the country are an isolated class. They have no official organ, and no trained, well-paid lobby, as the wool manufacturers have. Heretofore they have had no special friend upon the committee on finance to look after their interests, but they may all be now assured that Senator Burrows will see to it that their rights are protected.

Bert W. Kennedy of Grand Ledge is one of the conspicuous figures upon the floor of the house of representatives daily. He was born at Grand Ledge in March, 1873, and is yet a young man, looking younger than he is, for he has a very boyish face. He lived on a farm until eight years of age, and attended the Grand Ledge public schools until he was appointed page in the Michigan legislature in 1887, and served in that position during the sessions of 1887 and 1889. He came to Washington upon the recommendation of all of the Michigan state officers and members of the Michigan house of representatives and senate, and was appointed to a place as page boy in the national house of representatives of the Fifty-first congress.

Made Assistant Doorkeeper.

During the Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses, when the Democrats had a majority of the house, a position was created for him at the request of the Republican minority, and he was retained there until the Republicans took possession of the house in the Fifty-fourth congress, when he was unanimously chosen by the Republican members of the house for the position of assistant doorkeeper. He was reappointed to that position recently for the Fifty-fifth congress, and fills it in a manner acceptable to the house of representatives. The Michigan members are all proud of him. The salary of the position which this young Michigan man has attained is $2,000 per annum. Upon the strength of this advancement in position and salary, he felt warranted in taking unto himself a helpmeet, and recently married one of the best girls in the Third district of Michigan, who is here now with him, trying to aid him in his ambition for further political preferment.

Senators Burrows and McMillan are receiving many letters of commendation for supporting the president in his selection of President Angell for the mission to Constantinople. The senators are particularly commended by the university men.

Uncle James Monroe has returned to his home, and is now in Kalamazoo. He spent a delightful week in Washington, and on the day of his leaving the city he was accompanied to the White House by Senator Burrows and had a pleasant interview with President McKinley. While here Uncle James went over the list of postoffices in Kalamazoo county and made recommendations for the appointments of proper postmasters. It is believed that his recommendations will be followed.

A great many officeseekers are exhibiting impatience with the senators because they do not more promptly decide pending cases. There are numbers of applicants for each office, and the senators propose to take time to deliberate and reach proper conclusions before making recommendations in any case for the action of the president.

The Dingley bill places a duty of 11 cents per pound on skirted wool. Two pounds of the skirted fleece imported would pay 22 cents duty; but the two pounds would be equivalent to three pounds of the American product. Therefore, the Dingley bill duty would in reality be only 7 1-3 cents a pound. Senator Burrows appeared before the committee on finance and explained this matter so clearly that the senators will grant adequate protection to the American product by raising the duty at least 16 cents per pound on skirted wool.

McKinley as a Politician.

"Those men in public life who do not realize the fact that William McKinley is a politician, know very little of the man," says Congressman McMillin of Tennessee. "I had known McKinley for a number of years in the house of representatives, and had no occasion to take notice of him as a politician until last year, when I was designated to prepare the Democratic campaign book. I personally went over all his record, and, with the assistance of others, ferreted out and read all of his speeches, long and short, in the Congressional Record. I tried to prove that he was a gold man, and succeeded in that; but, in every speech that was made by him I also found that he was a silver man, and that that fact could be demonstrated.

"When I began to read and analyze his public utterances I discovered at once that he had been looking for the presidency all his life, and had carefully guarded every public utterance on every public question except the tariff. Upon the subject of a protective tariff he was outspoken on all occasions, and his record was perfectly clear. Upon all other questions I discovered that his record was blurred by all sorts of paronomasia and dialectic tricks. His speeches indicated that he was on all sides of the financial question; on all sides of the Behring sea dispute; on all sides of the subject of arbitration, and on all sides of the subject of appropriations. Not a thing could be found in his record which could be used in the campaign against him.

"Of course, I excerpted from his speeches those paragraphs which indicated that he believed in the gold standard; but the makers of the Republican campaign book were perfectly able to take from the same speeches which McKinley had made paragraphs showing a friendly disposition towards silver. He is one of the shrewdest politicians this country has ever produced, and those who think otherwise are very greatly mistaken."

Sure of His Appointment.

Within half an hour after the conversation with Mr. McMillin, in which he made this statement, I met a gentleman who is a candidate for a prominent diplomatic position, and he said:

"I have been looking over the situation very carefully, and have come to the conclusion that McKinley is a great politician.

"I know that he is going to appoint me, and am confident that there is no reason to doubt that the appointment will be made. But it is a singular fact that McKinley has required both of my senators and all of the representatives from my state, and several gentlemen of prominence from other states, to call upon him and personally urge my appointment. I know that twenty-four leading Republicans have called upon him in my behalf, and to each of them he has made the statement that if it was a matter of personal desire on the part of his caller, he would consider the matter favorably. I have heard from all of these friends of mine, and my conclusion is that he intends to tell each one of my senators and each of my particular friends that when he makes my appointment he does it as a personal favor to each one of them. Thus, when my nomination is sent to the senate, there will be at least twenty-four leading Republicans who are under personal obligations to President McKinley for that particular favor. When they come to him for other favors he will remind each of them of the fact that he has done a special favor in making my appointment. It will thus appear that four prominent appointments will put about 100 leading Republicans under obligations to the president."

If that is not shrewd politics, then I do not know the meaning of the word.

How to Treat the Mississippi.

The weather bureau officials say that the present remarkable flood in the Mississippi will settle the policy of the government in the future for the control or direction of the river. If the levees stand the strain of this phenomenal flood, the levee system will be continued. If the levees give way, then the levee system is likely to be abandoned.

Existing conditions remind the writer of a conversation held a number of years ago with Professor Edward Fontains. The learned and experienced scientist said that he had for many years traveled on horseback and afoot over the Yazoo basin of Mississippi, and over the greater part of the state of Louisiana. He said that the old Indians, centuries ago, discovered how to treat the Mississippi river, just as the Egyptians, many centuries ago, learned how to use the Nile. The Egyptians until this day dig canals and take advantage of the great downpour of waters each year by diverting those waters over vast areas, thereby rendering fertile and productive what would otherwise be a barren region. Centuries ago the Indian residents of the Mississippi valley digged canals, and there are many canals yet traceable over that entire section. Instead of trying to control the vast bodies of water which nature provides for irrigation purposes; instead of endeavoring to force those waters out into the sea, the Indians diverted them, as the Egyptians have always done the waters of the Nile, and thereby made fertile a vast tract of country. BEHEADS HER VICTIM.

Michigan Woman While Insane Kills the Mother of Her Husband.

Lansing, April 24.—When Alfred Haney, a young laborer residing in the village of Williamston, 16 miles east of this city, went home to dinner Friday he was horrified to find the bloody head of his aged mother, Maria Haney, on a platter on the dining table, while her mutilated body lay on the floor, while he was summoning help neighbors detected fire in the house and found that the body had been saturated with kerosene oil and set on fire. The flames were extinguished before the body was burned to any extent. Investigation established the fact that the deed was committed by young Mrs. Haney, who has given evidence of a deranged mind for some time. Application had been made for her commitment to an asylum and her case was to be acted upon by the authorities today. She admits the killing, but gives no reason for it. She killed the old woman, who was 80 years of age, with an ax and chopped her head off. The murderess is 32 years old.

DECIDES IN FAVOR OF PINGREE

Supreme Court Reverses the Decision in the Tryon Damage Case.

Lansing, April 28.—The case of ex-Secretary Tryon, of the Detroit fire commission, against Gov. Pingree for malicious prosecution will have to be tried over again, the supreme court having, in a unanimous opinion, reversed the judgment of the lower court in favor of Pingree and ordered a new trial. The case grows out of the sensational attempt made by Mayor Pingree in 1894 to get possession of the books of the fire commission. He was put out of the office by Tryon, whom he had arrested and locked up. Tryon sues for $25,000.

PROGRESSING SLOWLY.

Conditions Do Not Prove Favorable to Advancement of Farm Work.

Chicago, April 21. — The reports as to the condition of the crops throughout the country, and the general effect of the weather on the growth, cultivation and harvest of the same, were Tuesday made by the directors of the several climate and crop sections. The reports received at Chicago were as follows:

Ohio—Cool, cloudy and rainy weather retarded plowing and planting. Wheat, rye, meadows and pastures made some progress, but other vegetation is backward. Some oats rotting. Clover and timothy looking well. Gardens are slow. None of the fruit thought to have been seriously affected by the low temperature that prevailed.

Michigan—Wet weather has caused continued delay in plowing and seeding and very little such work accomplished. Few oats sown and some plowing for corn started. Winter wheat and rye and meadows continue to improve and look generally good. All fruit buds except peaches look promising.

Indiana—Cool, cloudy, wet weather and occasional frost delayed plowing, seeding and gardening. Wheat and grass improved little and slowly. Rye, clover and timothy in good condition. Fruit apparently still safe.

Illinois—Cool cloudy week with less rainfall than previous week; land drying slowly; plowing more general; oats and spring wheat seeding continues, also gardening and potato planting. Early sown oats are rotting in few cases; winter wheat unimproved and few fields will remain; grasses advancing; roadways gradually improving. Fruits are in blossom in southern section.

Wisconsin—Week very unfavorable for farm work. Frequent rains during early part of week and heavy snowstorm on Thursday and Friday. Vegetation made some progress. Warm and freshet overflow. Little seeding done. No improvement in winter wheat; rye generally fair; clover badly winter killed.

Iowa—Temperature unseasonably low, but since 18th drying winds and sunshine greatly improved condition of soil and good progress made with seeding. Farm operations now rapidly pushed in all districts. No damage reported from freezing.

Minnesota — Snow on 18th and generally cool weather most of week delayed seeding, but drying condition in latter half improved prospects of seeding becoming general by 20th. Considerable wheat sown and owing to lateness of season much of it in wet soil, but large areas still too wet. Flood in Red River valley receding in upper half. Winter grains not wintered well in southeast.

HER TREASURE.

A Georgia Woman Who Has a Sock Full of Gold.

Mary Odom, a sexagenarian, residing somewhere in the neighborhood of Auraria, is the happy owner of a sockful of gold, says a southern exchange. When a girl of 16 she adopted a profession, gold-panning about in the branches during her leisure hours, and she became so well acquainted and infatuated with the king metal that she finally adopted the panning business altogether, and has kept it up ever since, always being as assiduous to business as a judge of the supreme court. When she made gold panning a profession she found the lovely metal wherever she scooped her shovel under the gravel of the branches. At times innumerable this woman has made four and five pennyweights a week, making it a rule in every instance to hoard away one-half the amount of gold made. For instance when she panned out 50 cents' worth of gold and needed $1 in goods from the store, she would pay the merchant 25 cents and have the balance entered upon his books against her until she struck a richer streak. By this method of doing business the woman has kept out of debt, made a good support, and now has a sockful of shining gold to dream over at night. And now, after the age of 60, she stills pans about in the branches, and saves half the gold she makes for her heirs to scramble over after she has crossed in her batteau the wide river on the other side. There has been a great deal of mining in this country and articles not herein numbered written on the subject, but Mary Odom's historical career in the gold mining business surpasses anything we have ever become aware of in this line.

SHE NEVER KISSED.

The Old Man Was Certain About His Daughter.

"I reckon if I wus to ketch my daughter kissin' of a man I'd just natchelly cut him into mincemeat ground fine," said the old man from the swamps of the Bracken hills, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Then your daughter won't kiss the boys?" ventured a Dover youth with spectacles.

"Yell; I reckon not, young man," and the old man gave him a look that dazzled his specs.

"But—ah, you know, some girls—who are engaged—you know—sometimes kiss their—their—boys—you know—and—it's right and proper—and—"

The old man looked at him real hard, and, after watching the youth wilt like a tobacco leaf in an August sun, thundered out: "Well, my daughter never kissed a livin' man, not even her pap—ner a poodle dog, ner a cat, ner nothin'."

"But there's no harm—and why—er—why—er?" stammered the brave youth.

"Well, I reckon the most principalest reason why my daughter never kissed nothin' is that I never had any daughter."

And the thoughtful silence of the young man was so dense that you could hear the price of farm lands drop quietly, drop by drop, while the farm products hanging in the tobacco shed tier by tier.

It Is Bankrupt.

Detroit, April 17.—There is a strong probability that the plan of holding the state fair at Detroit will be abandoned. At least $50,000 is needed and only $5,000 has been raised. This sum was subscribed by the hotels. If the fair is held in Detroit a stock company will be organized for ten years. If not held in Detroit there will be no state fair until 1898. Meanwhile the State Agricultural society is bankrupt.

Lake Barge Sinks.

Ludington, Mich., April 19.—Tow barge Charles N. Ryan went to the bottom a quarter of a mile off this port in 25 feet of water Sunday. In trying to make the harbor the current carried her onto the north pier, breaking a hole in her bow. Her crew reached land in safety.

MICHIGAN'S TAX LAW.

It Causes Professional Delinquents to Hunt Cover.

WHAT AUDITOR GENERAL DIX SAYS

If the Present Legislature Does Not Interfere with the Delinquent Tax Feature of the Law the State Will Be the Gainer by $1,500,000—Thomas R. Smith the Busiest Man in Michigan—Trolley Line Bills Disposed of by the Legislature.

Lansing, Mich., April 27.—"I have no doubt," said Auditor General Dix a day or two ago, "that if it could be assured that this legislature will not interfere with the delinquent tax feature of the present general tax law, there would at once be set in motion operations which would insure to the state the receipt, within the next year or two, of fully $1,500,000 of taxes which now stand delinquent upon our books. We now have the best tax law that was ever upon the books of this state, and coupled with the decisions of the supreme court to the effect that it behooves a man to pay his taxes if he does not want some one else to get his property by virtue of a stat- leed, this law has had the effect to cause the professional delinquents to run to cover and pay their taxes. They had been waiting for the legislature to enact a clearance sale law so that they might buy the state's interests in these lands, which they had been permitted to become delinquent for this very purpose, for an average of one-twentieth of what their taxes amounted to. One effect of the strict interpretation of the law made by the supreme court has been to increase the correspondence of this office to such an extent that we have already this year received many more letters than came to us during the entire year 1896, and all our correspondents desire to pay taxes.

Connor's Clearance Bill.

"If the so-called Connor's sele arance bill is not passed, syndicates, which are now forming, will purchase from the state its entire interests in most of these delinquent lands, some of them standing ready to purchase entire counties, taking the good with the bad. They will, of course, pay the state the entire tax due as well as all interest and costs, and the sum mentioned by me will be poured into the state treasury before the next session of the legislature convenes. Our present law provides that lands delinquent for taxes for three successive years shall, upon petition of the township boards in which they are located, be subject to homestead entry, the homesteader to pay 10 cents per acre for them, and have five years in which to settle with the state. The plan contemplated by the Connor's bill to transfer to the land office all lands on our books which have been delinquent for three years subsequent to 1890 would take two years' time and involve an added expense to the state of $75,000. After all this were done, the professional delinquents could purchase back such description as they desired, leaving the worthless ones for the state to carry for a mere tithe of the taxes assessed against them.

"If the legislature desires to advance the interests of the state," concluded the auditor general, "it will not pass the Connor's bill, but will leave the present law undisturbed."

Thomas R. Smith a Busy Man.

The busiest man in Michigan at the present writing is Thomas R. Smith of Lawton, who will succeed State Oil Inspector Neal McMillan of Rockford July 1. Mr. Smith has a force of twenty-two deputy inspectors to appoint and he is finding the task both difficult and unpleasant. He spent a couple of days here last week in consultation with Governor Pingree whose wishes will, of course, be potent in this connection. There are an average of no less than thirty candidates for each place at Mr. Smith's disposal, and he was well-nigh distracted when he left for home after looking over the heap of applications and indorsements which he and the governor had received. This office, with its long list of deputies, furnishes an excellent opportunity for building up a powerful political machine, and great care is always taken to see that all appointments are made to insure the best possible results of a political nature. In this case, as in all others, it has been found that in not a few instances ante-convention promises sadly conflict, and how to straighten out these knots without leaving sore spots that will assert themselves hereafter is a problem that is giving both the governor and Mr. Smith no little concern.

Trolley Line Bills.

The so-called trolley line bills, which were hung up in the senate for a number of days, have finally been disposed of and are now in the hands of the governor awaiting his approval. Those permitting townships in St. Clair, Sanilac, Tuscola, Huron and Bay counties to grant the right of way for the construction and maintenance of these roads, were amended so as to eliminate steam as a motive power and bring the roads under the supervision of the commissioner of railroads. The plan to require them to pay a specific tax was abandoned and they will be taxed locally. The Lusk bill providing that all suburban electric roads may carry farm produce and other light freights has also been passed by both houses, after being amended so as to give the railroad commissioner supervision over all of this class of roads. It is believed that this provision will prove a great boon to farmers and gardeners along the line, as it will enable them to get their produce to market in the larger cities in time for the early morning shoppers and get back home without the loss of much time.

House Inaugurates a Change.

Until last week the house and senate had been meeting but once a day, the mornings being given over to committee work. A few days ago, however, the house inaugurated a change, and hereafter both morning and afternoon sessions will be held, except on Monday, when no morning session will be attempted. The folly of holding Friday afternoon sessions has been demonstrated again and again, but for some reason they are still held. They are, in fact, worse than foolish, for the reason that after the first few minutes of the session less than a quorum of the house is present. Last Friday afternoon the house, in committee of the whole, agreed to a number of important bills when every one knew that but thirty-five members were in the hall. It will thus be seen that when the other sixty-five members come to vote on these bills on their final passage they will know very little concerning them.

Edgar Bill Favorably Reported.

The Edgar bill designed to prevent epileptics, idiots and certain classes of criminals from reproducing their kind has been favorably reported, and is causing considerable discussion. It provides that the classes of unfortunates mentioned, who are inmates of our state institutions, especially the home for the feeble-minded, shall, after their mental decay has been established by a board of competent medical examiners, be unsexed. It is possible that this provision of the bill may be upheld, but it is contended by some very well informed persons that the other provision is unconstitutional. This provision is that persons convicted a second time of a felony or of ravishing females under certain conditions shall be similarly treated. Those who believe that this provision is invalid point to the provision of the constitution of the United States which, in substance, is that no state shall inflict inhuman or unusual punishment on criminals. The punishment provided by the bill is by these persons denounced as both inhuman and unusual.

Dissatisfied with the Price.

It looks as if the state was about to execute a long-threatened plan in connection with furnishing the state house and other state buildings in this city with light and water. For several years the board of state auditors has been dissatisfied with the price charged by the city for water and electric light, and by the local company for gas. This year the house committee on public buildings and grounds was induced to investigate the matter. As a result the committee secured an amendment to the charter of the city of Lansing giving the state the right to lay water mains and erect poles in the street, and now the committee on ways and means has favorably reported a bill appropriating $2[illegible] for the purpose of supplying both of these commodities. All of which demonstrates that even a worm will turn eventually.

Uniform Text-Book System.

Much interest centers in the fate of the bills providing for a uniform text-book system, one of which is now pending in each house. That in the senate is the further advanced, having been discussed for a couple of hours in committee of the whole, after being favorably reported by a majority of the committee on education. Inasmuch as it carried an appropriation of $1,000 it was, under the rules, sent to the appropriations and finance committee where it still is. The house measure is a substitute bill reported jointly by the state affairs and education committee. It exempts all districts where the free text-book system prevails, and there are some 1,200 of these in the state. The senate bill provides for the appointment of three county school commissioners to act with the state board of education in selecting the uniform system, and for letting the job of furnishing the books to the lowest bidder.

In discussing this question with your correspondent, Hon. David A. Hammond of Ann Arbor, for six years a member of the state board of education and for many years a superintendent of school in this state, said: "What we are eventually coming to in this and other states is an absolutely free text-book system. This is the ideal system, and not until we establish it will the public school system be free as it should be. Now we furnish free tuition only.

Shall Be Supplied Free.

"In Michigan we have a local option free text-book law. It has been adopted at a large number of places throughout the state and has worked admirably wherever tried. Our law also provides that all pupils whose parents are unable to purchase books therefrom shall be supplied free by the district. This applies to the entire state, but you will notice that it requires parents to first make an affirmative showing of poverty before the books can be furnished their children. American people are proud, and the very ones who should be benefited by the free-text book plan are the last to become mendicants. If the law were such as to provide that free books should be furnished every child who attends our public schools all would be put on an equal footing, and this very substantial objection to the present system would be overcome. The trend of public opinion is noticeably in favor of absolutely free text-books in our public schools and it will not be long before this system will generally prevail."

The legislators from the rural districts are expected to put up a rather stiff fight against a bill which received a favorable report a few days ago. This bill provides that all the stock of a bank shall be assessed in the place where the bank is located, instead of the place where the owner resides at present. Under the present system the township assessors occasionally get a whack at bank stock owned by parties residing in their townships, and it is not believed they will take kindly to the change, which will deprive the townships of the tax and send it all to the cities. The objection to the present system is that many non-resident owners of bank stock escape taxation thereon altogether.

Buskirk Local Option Measure.

The liquor committees have been moving very slowly, but that in the house has finally made a report on the Buskirk local option measure. This provides that this question shall be voted upon at general instead of special elections, as now, thus insuring a much larger attendance at the polls. It also puts greater restrictions on the sale of druggists in local option counties, by requiring that sales shall be made by them only on physicians' prescriptions, that a record be kept of each sale with the quantity and name of the purchaser, and that a transcript of this record be sent each week to the prosecuting attorney of the county by whom it shall be preserved. It is promised that other stringent liquor bills will be forthcoming. It is understood, however, that at a caucus of senators a few evenings since it was agreed that the present uniform retail tax of $500 should not be increased. The other provisions of the law, especially that relating to sales by druggists, it was agreed needed strengthening, and it is not improbable that the manufacturers' license fee may be readjusted. At present a manufacturer who turns out 2,000 barrels of beer a month pays an annual tax of $65, which is the same amount required of those whose output is but twenty barrels per month. This seeming injustice may be remedied by a tax of so much per barrel.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The Finance Committee Reports the Measure to the Senate.

Great Changes Are Made from the House Bill—A Synopsis of Some of the Most Important Features.

Washington, May 5.—The tariff bill was reported to the senate yesterday and Senator Aldrich announced that he would call up the measure Tuesday May 18. The time for the bill to take effect is made July 1, 1897. The important portions of the measure are:

Sugar not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, tank bottoms, strups of cane juice and beet juice melada, concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses testing by the polariscope not more than 87 degrees, 75 per cent. ad valorem. Molasses, testing above 40 and not more than 56 degrees, four cents per gallon, testing 56 degrees, and not above 70 degrees, eight cents per gallon.

Maple sugar and maple strup, four cents per pound; glucose or grape sugar, 1½ cents per pound; sugar cane in its natural state of manufacture, ten per cent. ad valorem; saccharine, one dollar per pound and ten per cent. ad valorem. Sugar candy and all confectionery valued at 15 cents per pound or less, four cents per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem.

A duty is levied on tea at the rate of ten cents per pound until January 1, 1900; after 1900 it is admitted free of duty.

The following is the provision in regard to hides, which are transferred from the free list:

Hides of cattle, raw or uncured, whether dry, salted or pickled, 1½ cents per pound; provided that upon all leather exported made from imported hides there shall be allowed a drawback equal to the amount of duty paid on such hides.

In the coal and shale schedule the word bituminous is stricken out, and all coal made dutiable at 75 cents per ton.

Duty on Beer Increased.

The senate has increased the internal revenue duty on beer by changing section 3,339 of the revised statutes to read as follows:

Until January 1, 1900, there shall be paid on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter and other similar fermented liquors, brewed or manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or sale within the United States, by whatever name such liquors may be called, a tax of $1.44 for every barrel containing not more than 31 gallons, and after January 1, 1900, there shall be paid a tax of one dollar per barrel on every barrel of such beer, lager beer, ale, porter and other similar fermented liquors. (The present rate is one dollar.)

Retaliation for Reciprocity.

The entire house provision relating to reciprocity has been stricken out and the following section substituted:

That whenever any country, dependency or colony shall pay or bestow, directly or indirectly, any bounty or grant upon the exportation of any article of merchandise from such country, dependency or colony, and such article or merchandise is dutiable under the provisions of this act, then upon the importation of any such article or merchandise into the United States, whether the same shall be imported directly from the country of production or otherwise, and whether such article or merchandise is imported in the same condition as when exported from the country of production or has been changed in condition by manufacture or otherwise, there shall be levied and paid in all such cases, in addition to the duties otherwise imposed by this act, an additional duty equal to the net amount of such bounty or grant, however the same be paid or bestowed. The net amount of all such bounties or grants shall be from time to time ascertained, determined and declared by the secretary of the treasury, who shall make all needful regulations for the identification of such articles and merchandise and for the assessment and collection of such additional duties.

Lumber Schedule.

The lumber schedule is changed by adding after the word timber the words "hewn, sided, squared and round timber," and the duty fixed at the rate of one cent per cubic foot, as in the house bill.

The rate of two dollars per ton on all sawed boards, etc., is retained, but when planed on one side the additional rate is made 35 instead of 50 cents per 1,000 feet board measure, when planed, tongued and grooved, the additional rate is made 70 cents per 1,000 feet board measure, instead of one dollar; if planed on both sides and tongued and grooved, $1.00 per 1,000 instead of $1.50.

Woolen Schedule.

Many and important changes were made by the senate tariff subcommittee in the wool and woolen schedule as passed by the house. First-class wools were reduced from 11 cents per pound, as provided in the house bill, to eight cents per pound, and second-class wools from 12 to nine cents, whereas the duties on wools of the third class were raised. The dividing line in this latter class was placed at ten cents value, wools under that value being made dutiable at the rate of four cents per pound, instead of 32 per cent. ad valorem, as in the house bill. Wools valued at more than ten cents per pound were placed at seven cents per pound, instead of 50 per cent. ad valorem. The wool growers failed to secure all the changes they desired in classification, but it is understood that the rates fixed on the wools themselves are satisfactory to them.

The duty on oranges, lemons and citrus fruits is raised from three-quarters to one cent per pound, and reduced on prunes, raisins, plums and dried grapes from two and one-half to two cents. Cattle valued at less than ten dollars a head are dutiable at four dollars a head, and over ten dollars at six dollars.

The addition of hides to the dutiable list, made necessary various changes in the bill concerning leather and articles made therefrom. A substitute paragraph was prepared in regard to belting leather, the provisions of which are as follows: Band or belting leather and sole leather, 20 per cent. ad valorem; calf skins, tanned, dressed upper leather, including patent, enamel, etc., chamois skins and other skins not specially enumerated, 20 per cent. ad valorem; book binders' calf skins, kangaroo, sheep and goat skins, including lamb and kid skins, dressed and finished, 20 per cent ad valorem; skins from morocco, tanned but unfinished, ten per cent. ad valorem; pianoforte leather, 20 per cent. ad valorem; boot and shoes made leather, 25 per cent. ad valorem; provided that leather cut into shoe uppers or vamps shall be classified as manufactures of leather and pay a duty accordingly.

Agricultural Products.

The rate on cattle importations is changed so as to provide for a duty of four dollars per head on cattle not valued at more than ten dollars, and six dollars per head where the value is greater. The house bill made a uniform rate of six dollars.

The rates on rice were generally reduced, putting cleaned rice at 1¼ cents per pound instead of two cents; uncleaned rice at eight-tenths of a cent instead of 1¼ cents; rice flour, one-fourth instead of one-half cent per pound.

Beans are reduced from 40 to 40 cents per bushel; hay from four dollars to $2.50 per ton; hops from 15 to 12 cents per pound; dried peas changed from one cent per pound to 20 cents per bushel.

Potatoes are reduced from 25 to 10 cents per bushel; flaxseed or linseed from 30 to 25 per bushel, and seed of all kinds not specifically provided for from 40 to 25 per cent. ad valorem.

Free List.

The following additions are made to the house free list: Benzole, carbolic, oxalic, salicylic and valerianic acids; all fast-black coal-tar dyes, argots or crude tartars and lees crystals, crude beauxite, manilla twine measuring 600 feet to the pound, bolting cloths composed of silk imported expressly for milling purposes; books, maps, music, engravings, photographs, etching and charts, printed more than 20 years before the date of importation; all hydrographic charts and scientific books devoted to original scientific research and publications issued for their subscribers by scientific and literary associations, or publications of individuals for gratuitous private circulation and public documents issued by foreign governments; books printed exclusively in foreign languages or for the blind; books, maps, etc., especially imported, not more than two copies in any one invoice, for the use of any society or institution established solely for religious, philosophical, educational, scientific or literary purposes, or for the encouragement of the fine arts, or for the use of any college, school or public library and not for sale; brass or Dutch metal; bromine, crude liquid camphor, charcoal, underground chickory root, copper not manufactured and not specially provided for, farina, fashion plates, fish, except salmon, caught in the great lakes or other fresh waters, by or for citizens of the United States; berries, fruit in brine, tropical fruit plants for propagation, white glass, enamel for watch dials, hones and whetstones, lemon, lime and orange juices; loadstones, orange and lemon peels not preserved, paintings, original drawings and sketches, engravings and statuary, not otherwise provided for; paraffine, philosophical and scientific apparatus for schools, libraries and societies; professional books, implements and instruments and tools of trade or occupation in the actual possession at the time of persons arriving in the United States, regalia and gems, statues, casts of marble, bronze alabaster, where specially imported in good faith for the use of any society, school or library; salop, sauerkraut, beet, canary, cauliflower, coriander, mangel-wurser, radish and spinach seeds and bulbs, not edible; skins of all kinds, raw, not specifically provided for; tapioca, poplar and other pulp woods, heating bolts, stave bolts, railroad ties.

DEATH OF EX-GOV. PORTER.

The Distinguished Statesman Passes Away at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 4.—Albert G. Porter, ex-governor of Indiana, and minister to Italy under Gen. Harrison's administration, died at his home in this city Monday morning, aged 74 years.

Gov. Porter has been confined to his room almost constantly for two years. The immediate cause of his death was paresis.

[Albert G. Porter was a native Indianian, having been born at Lawrenceburg April 20, 1824. He completed his education at Asbury (now De Pauw) university, and after graduation he entered upon the study of law. In 1855 he was elected supreme court reporter by the democrats. At the birth of the republican party in 1856 he cast his fortunes with that organization, and was elected to congress in 1858. Two years later he was elected for another term, but after this service declined renomination and resumed the practice of law in Indianapolis, and for several years was a member of the firm of Harrison, Porter & Fishback, Gen. Harrison being the senior member. Soon after the election of Mr. Hayes as president, Secretary Sherman called Mr. Porter to the position of first comptroller of the treasury, which he held until elected governor by the republicans in 1880. Retiring from the office in 1884, he devoted himself to writing a history of Indiana, but in 1889 laid aside this work to accept the Italian mission, remaining abroad four years. Upon his return to Indianapolis he resumed his labor on his history, but his health was so shattered that he made but little progress with it, and it is now unfinished.]

Victims of a Fiend.

Larimore, N. D., May 3.—August Norman cut the throats of four children of Knute Hillstead, a farmer near here, who was away from home, assaulted Mrs. Hillstead and escaped.

Fire at Caldwell.

Columbus, O., May 5.—Fire at Caldwell, Noble county, destroyed $60,000 worth of property in the center of the business portion of the town. Insurance about $40,000.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Daily Summary of Proceedings in Senate and House.

The Finance Committee Reports the Tariff Bill—Work in the House at a Standstill—Other Washington News.

Washington, April 30.—Senator Allen introduced a proposed amendment to the tariff bill in the senate yesterday providing for the abrogation of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty on July 1, 1898. A resolution was offered by Senator Morgan and adopted requesting the president, if not incompatible with public interests, to transmit to the senate all correspondence with the consul general and consuls in Cuba since the beginning of the war not heretofore published. Adjourned until Monday.

Washington, May 4.—In the United States senate yesterday Senator Chandler (N. H.) introduced a bill for the issue of certificates of indebtedness up to $50,000,000 to meet deficiencies in the revenues. The free homestead bill was considered, and in executive session the Anglo-American arbitration treaty was discussed. The nominations of William R. Day, of Ohio, as assistant secretary of state, and William A. Jones, of Wisconsin, as commissioner of Indian affairs, were confirmed.

Washington, May 5.—The senate finance committee reported the tariff bill to the senate yesterday. The new bill is radically different from the Dingley bill, practically amounting almost to another measure. The bill to provide free homes on the public lands for actual and bona fide settlers known as the free homestead bill was passed. The Morgan Cuban resolution again went over. The sundry civil bill was considered, but was not completed.

The House.

Washington, April 30. — No business was transacted in the house yesterday, and an adjournment was taken to Monday.

Washington, May 4.—In the house yesterday by a two-thirds vote, Speaker Reed was sustained in his attitude in declining to appoint committees during the pendency of the tariff bill. A senate resolution appropriating $50,000 for the congress of the Universal Postal union was adopted, and Mr. Showalter, the republican chosen at a special election to represent the Twenty-fifth Pennsylvania district, was sworn in.

Coinage in April.

Washington, May 3 — During the month of April the total coinage at the United States mints was $10,410,080. Of this amount $8,800,400 was in gold, $1,535,000 in silver and $74,680 in minor coins.

Government Receipts.

Washington, May 3.—The government receipts during April were $37,812,135 and the expenditures $32,072,097, leaving the surplus for the month $5,740,038, against a deficit for April, 1896, of $4,704,488.

The Public Debt.

Washington, May 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business April 30 the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $998,244,132, a decrease for the month of $5,718,068.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

The News Regarding the War in Europe Leaves One in the Dark.

London, May 5.—The Athens correspondent of the Times says: The cabinet sat till daybreak (Tuesday) hearing the reports of the ministers from the front, and finally resolved to continue the war. The decision of the government is momentous, but it is difficult to say whether it is absolutely final.

London, May 5.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail says the ministers of war and of the interior have returned from Pharsalos and made their report to the cabinet. It is understood that as the result of their inquiry the war will be discontinued.

London, May 5.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says that the foreign ministers have tendered the intervention of the powers to Greece, but the government has reserved its reply. A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Pharsalos, dated Monday, says it is rumored in the Greek camp that peace will shortly be proclaimed.

To Be Called In.

Washington, May 1.—The Carlisle notes—the new one, two and five-dollar silver certificates issued last year—are to be withdrawn from circulation as rapidly as possible and destroyed. So much complaint has been made against them by bankers and others who are compelled to count them rapidly and in large quantities that Secretary Gage has ordered new designs made. Although complaints about them come from all quarters, the merchants and bankers of New York and Chicago were the most vigorous in demanding that they be withdrawn.

New York, May 4.—A. E. French, who is accused of having on February 1 last, at Williamsport, Pa., established a private express for the conveyance of letters and packages over post routes in violation of the revised statutes, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal McCarty at Newburg, N. Y. The complaint upon which the arrest was made was sworn out by Hugh J. Gorman, post office inspector at Philadelphia. French's hiding place was discovered by the postmaster at Newburg. The prisoner was brought to this city for examination.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

THE SECRET.

How Doctors Protect Themselves From Contagious Diseases.

Doctors rarely catch contagious diseases. Almost everybody knows this, but few know how they escape. Many believe that the doctor has some charm or antiseptic which protects him. Dr. Hartman lately made the truth of this matter public, that all might realize its benefit.

Contagious diseases are conveyed by minute organisms known as disease germs. These germs find their entrance into the system through the mucous membrane. If the mucous membrane is healthy, they can not get into the system. If the mucous membrane is affected by catarrh the germs find easy access. Catarrhal secretions furnish exactly the material upon which they thrive and multipiy. To get rid of the catarrh, and thus preserve the mucous membrane healthy, is the only way to be safe from contagious diseases. This explains why it is that some people catch diseases easier than others. Every one is exposed just the same. Not every one, however, falls a victim to contagious diseases. A disease germ can not enter the system through a perfectly healthy mucous membrane. Doctors know this, and therefore guard against it. This is all the secret there is about it.

The best cure or preventive known to the medical profession up to date for catarrh in all its conditions is Pe-ru-na. During the uncertain weather of springtime it is an unnecessary hazard for any one to neglect to guard himself from taking disease, by taking Pe-ru-na.

Send for free catarrh book. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

LITERARY NOTES.

Theatory of the pursuit, capture and death of J. Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Lincoln, has been told a number of times and in several ways; but McClure's Magazine for May will give a version of it which promises to be the first really full and accurate one. It is written by a relative of Col. Baker and Lieut. Baker, the detectives who organized and led the pursuit, effected the capture, and disposed of Booth's body after his death; and it embodies their account, never before published, of all these transactions. The article will be fully illustrated.

The czar-like rule exercised by Speaker Reed has been the occasion of much comment and criticism of late. Endowed with a plentitude of power beside which the President of the United States seems mean and insignificant, Mr. Reed is today the autocrat of Congress. The threatening danger of this one-man power is clearly and forcibly indicated in and article which will appear in the May Forum from the pen of Mr. Henry Lichfield West, an authority on national politics.

The literary and artistic balance of the May Atlantic is maintained not only by interesting installments of Charles Egbert Craddock's novel of the Tennessee mountains and of Paul Leichester Ford's "Story of an Untold Love," but also by a study of Great Diaries by Miss Repplier, a review of recent books of fiction including the writings of Barrie and Crockett and an interesting group of literary papers under Men and Letters by John Burroughs, H. C. Merwin, and Kenyon West.

In the year 1862 Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" was published simultaneously in Paris, Berlin, London, St. Petersburg, Milan, Madrid, New York and others of the leading capitals of Europe and America. Few books of the nineteenth century have had such immediate and universal success. It was eggerly read all over the civilized world, by rich and poor, high and low, learned and unlearned.—Prof. L. Oscar Kuhns, M. A., in The Chautauquan for May.

In the academic department of Harvard there are nowadays nearly eighteen hundred young men. Rather more than half of them come from places so near Cambridge that they can spend their Sundays at home. Pretty nearly half come from Boston and the towns and cities immediately tributary to it. Six or seven hundred come from outside of New England, and of these about one hundred and fifty or seventy-five come from New York and its suburbs. New England, outside of eastern Massachusetts, sends the rest.—From "Undergraduate Life at Harvard," by Edward S. Martin in the May Scribner.

In solving "Problems of Young Men" Edward W. Bok, in the May Ladies' Home Journal, to an inquirer contends that opportunities for promotion (in business) are more numerous in large cities than in smaller communities, but they are not better. "To my way of thinking, a moderate business success in a small community means more to a man in point of living and absolute satisfaction, than a greater success in a larger city."

All who remember Mr. Stephen Bonsal's brilliant services last winter as Cuban war correspondent of the New York Herald will be interested in his statement of "The Real Condition of Cuba To-Day," which appears in the May Review of Reviews. This is the latest authentic summing-up of the Cuban situation that has been given to the press, and it should be read by all who care to know the facts—horrible as many of them are—connected with the heroic struggle for liberty which Gomez and his brave compatriots are making. Mr. Bonsal's article gives us a realizing sense of the truth that we have an Armenia at our very doors.

Harper's Weekly of May 1st promises to be of really historical interest. It will be devoted largely to an elaborately illustrated article on the dedication of the Grant monument, and to a review of General Grant's career. The number will contain also fiction by Mary E. Wilkinn and by other popular writers.

The outbreak of hostilities between Greece and Turkey renders extremely mely the paper "The Modern Greek as a Fighting Man," by Professor Benjamin Ide Wheeler, of Cornell University, in the May number of the North American Review. "The Greek" says Professor Wheeler, "is no doubt lacking in adaptation to the finer tactical discipline, is impulsive, unduly excitable, and somewhat given to bluster and vanity, but no one who has read the story of the Greek revolution can deny him the right to be called a brisk, brave, and savage fighter."

A large number of carrier pigeons, received from Detroit Sunday, were given their freedom and while most of them started directly for home, some seemed to loose their reckoning, and hovered over the town. Word was received, to shoot, but not to kill, and see if they would not strike out for the city. The boys did so, but their aim was either too true, or the shot scattered, for most of them dropped, and were eventually served up in pies.

Last Friday, Franc Yates and Art Curtis, started East in a buggy, drawn by the formers span of cleveland bay colts. All went well until a mile had been traversed, when the colts to relieve the monotony, took it into their heads to cut cross lots, and they did it so quickly and rapidly, that Art was thrown into the ditch, and shortly after, Franc struck the soft earth in none so graceful manner. The buggy was a wreck, and the boys looked as though they had taken a mud bath. They say Art was so excited, that he struck out for Dundee, taking the ditch for it.

Samuel Barlow, who has been in poor health from stomach trouble for several months, passed away a little before noon Sunday. At the funeral services, held at the home Wednesday afternoon, a large gathering of neighbors and friends were present to pay their respects to a highly esteemed citizen and neighbor. Rev. H. Cansfield officiated. At the head of the casket a large bank of flowers and potted plants was very tastefully arranged and the casket was covered with smilax, palms and flowers. The remains were laid to rest in "Evergreen" cemetery. Samuel Barlow was born May 18th, 1818, at Cheshire, England, and united in marriagb to Miss Sarah C. Forest, April 22nd, 1850. They immediately came to America, arriving in Adrian June 8th, 1850. For a few years they lived in Raisin and Tecumseh townships, finally settling in Ridgeway township on a farm in the "English" settlement where they lived until the spring of 1883 when he purchased the farm of J. C. Freer. Living there until the spring of 1888, he bought the village property of E. C. VanVleet where they have since resided. Four children blessed their home: One son dying in infancy, Mrs. Ella Gripton, living near Britton; James, on the farm near the village; and Mrs Belle B. Bush, at Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Barlow was the last of a family of fourteen children.

Montie Florance, who has been sick for the past eight months with consumption, fell asleep Thursday evening just as the sun was setting. Although for some time his sufferings had been intense, the end came peacefully, and he fell asleep leaving the assurance that all was well, as he had expressed perfect submission to his Father's will.

At two o'clock Sunday afternoon, many who had known and esteemed Montie in life gathered at the stricken home to mingle their tears with those bereft, and gave evidence of regard for the departed and sympathy for the living. Beautiful floral tributes of cut roses, carnations and other flowers voiced, as words could not, the love of many friends. Simple services were conducted by Rev. H. Cansfield, who spoke words of comfort and assurance to the afflicted family and sorrowing friends, and appropriate selections were rendered by a male trio. At Evergreen cemetery the mortal remains were consigned to their last resting place by the side of a brother in the family lot, there to await the Resurection morning.

Montgomery E. Florance was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Florence. He was born May 10th, 1871, and lived with his parents until of age, since which time he has worked in Adrian at different times and spent a part of one season on the lakes with Captain Chilson, always making it his home with his parents on the old farm where his boyhood days were spent. His genial ways made him many friends and won for him the place of a favorite among his young associates.

CARD OF THANKS.—Words but feebly express our heartfelt appreciation of the kindness of our neighbors and friends who rendered such valuable assistance during the illness and death and at the funeral services of our beloved son and brother; also for the beautiful floral gifts and to the youug men for their appropriate music.

We would like to look into the pleasant face of some one who has never had any derangement of the digestive organs. We see the drawn and unhappy faces of dyspeptics in every walk of life. It is our national disease, and nearly all complaints spring from this source. Remove the stomach difficulty and the work is done.

Dyspeptics and pale, thin people are literally starving, because they don't digest their food. Consumption never developes in people of robust and normal digestion. Correct the wasting and loss of flesh and we cure the disease. Do this with food.

FOR over a year I suffered with complete nervous prostration as the result of La Grippe, writes Mr. Ball of Lake Placid, N. Y. Doctors did all they could but their efforts were without results, and I grew worse. My trouble affected my mind, but kind nature came to my relief by helping me to think, 'If I only had a helping hand to aid nature to build me up slowly and surely.' The result was I refused all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully retored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

Same old Dingley bill, same old senate, same old speeches, same old nonsense. It is really wonderful that those old chumps would not do something. To be sure this Dingley bill amounts to but very little so far as relieving the financial distress of the country is concerned, but anything that will settle the question of tariff for four years will help. The manufacturers in this country will soon adapt themselves to circumstances and business will go on if the senate will only "saw off."

LETTER FROM LEIPZIG.

Interesting European Letter from Claude VanTyne.

Leipzig, Germany, Apr. 11, '97.

DEAR MR. EDITOR;—

We have changed our local habitation, perhaps you and Tecumseh people would like to know how we migrated from the sunny south to the chilly plains of North Germany. Having sent our trunks ahead by freight, we just loafed along and zigzagged from point to point from Heidelberg to Leipzig. The old castle, the old fass and the old fossils, who spend their lives bragging about it, are a memory, half fond, half humorous. We bid them goodbye tearlessly, almost exultingly, and were dragged slowly up the Neckar valley by a "blitz"-train or lightning express(?) as the Germans are pleased to call the train of little horse-cars drawn by an infant engine which can whistle about as loud as a small boy signaling his chum. One feels as if the engine were running in its stocking feet, it goes so noislessly compared with our great puffing monsters which hurl trains across the continent at a speed that "fires the brain."

We rubbed the steam from our apartment windows, chatted about the beauties of the Neckar. Suddenly we were whirled madly(?) across the stream and looking out to see why, we saw across the river the great dome of the Delsberg, upon whose windy summit is the little walled town of that name. Its old castle was once a prison for refractory Heidelberg students. You may judge what the horrors of its stern dungeons were by the story about some travelers who visited the ancient castle and asked to be shown the dungeons. The castellan expressed his regret at his inability to gratify their request saying that the students were in the forest hunting and had the keys with them.

The next moment we rushed to the opposite window to get a glimpse of the four Steinach castles whose ancient owners were called "The Scourges of the Land." Those old rascals would build their great fortressed homes in the heart of a paradise and then suck the life blood of the people and exhaust the very riches of nature. Their portraits which one may see in their great halls are proof of their gluttony and arrogance. Sneering, bloated faces and forms more than portly reveal the brutal spirit which animated them. As we ascended the valley, castle after castle came to view with the ever present humble village nestling at the base of the proud rock which bears the tyrant's home.

At last we left the Neckar valley, turning at right angle into the "Mossback" valley, as my wife chose to pronounce the German name, simply because it made the valley seem more like home. When we reached Osterburker, I grew pedantic and explained to my awed life-partner that we were upon the site of an old Roman camp where the soldiers were stationed who guarded the great boundary wall which ran from the Danube to the Rhine and kept the barbarian Germans out of Gaul and the Agri Decumatae, as the land about Heidelberg was then called. I am supposed to know all human history so this condescension was humbly noted and the train moved on.

The country was rolling and monotonous and we saw little except a church which contains some tombstones of famous old Knights of Rosenberg. These are said to have been good knights, at least they are now, for they are dead if a tombstone is any reliable sign, and a "dead Injun is a good Injun." I should have gone to sleep if Belle had not asked me why they had those soda water fountains in front of every station. I looked and saw a switch arrangement with a system of levers so built that a very young innocent might think of soda water, but my wife!—I couldn't sleep any more.

However, as a historical crank, I was glad to be awake when we passed the scene of Gotz von Berlichingen's brave defense against the Swabian league in 1519, and the picturesque village of Konigshofen where the insurgent peasants were defeated in 1525. One may see the hillside where they struggled with their pitchforks and clubs and that curious weapon like a flail with spikes in the business end. Poor fellows, they were beaten down by their oppressors then and the effect of their subjection lives today in the wretched life of their descendants. Even Luther said at the time that they were only beasts and must be pounded into obedience. Such sentiments from the great reformer, what must we think of the hard landowners who fought these struggling wretches!

We were tugged along up the wooded and grassy valley of Greenbrook, as it would be in English, past the handsome castle of Reichenburg and after a few miles of monotonous hills reached Wurzburg. This is a very pious city, always was pious since its earliest youth way back in 741 when it was baptised by Bishop Burkardus who had been consecrated and sent here to start a church. Burkardus was popular and knew how to get his salary. He and his successors were very devout and grew very rich incidentally. About 1120 they had money enough to go out of the bishop business and become Dukes of Franconia. Frederick, the Red Bearded, needed their money and influence, therefore confirmed their title in 1168. They ruled until 1803 when Napoleon began operating with the European chess-board and he gave the city to Bavaria just to get its good will. In 1805 when Napoleon built his Rhinish Confederation, Wurzburg was made the capitol of a grand duchy. Its vicissitudes ended in 1813 when it became the capitol of Lower Franconia. This venerable city in the vine clad valley of the Main must furnish us amusement for 24 hours. We strolled down to the Luitpold fountain as a starting point. Franconia, a large sized girl and fairly handsome for a German stands on a pedestal and at her feet sit Walter von der Vogelweide, the greatest of Germany's early poets, (died 1320) and two other men not so well known. We thought she had attention enough and passed on to the vast pile called the Palace.

Concluded next week.

Railroad Wreck.

Houston, Texas, April 27, 1897.

EDITOR HERALD:

Mother, Mabel and myself left Austin at 8 p. m. the 26th inst. via the Houston & Texas Central R. R. We were due here (Houston) at 5:10 this morning. The train was running on at the rate of 20 miles an hour. When 13 miles from Houston at just 4:30 a. m. the train was ditched. Fortunately the sleepers became detached as soon as they tipped over and consequently stopped. The engine and two baggage cars did not leave the track. The smoker and day coaches were dragged two or three blocks before the train could be stopped. They are completely wrecked.

We all escaped without a scratch although mother is considerably shaken up and is taking needed rest at this good hotel. The sleeper passengers all escaped from the wreck, but the unfortunate occupants of the forward coaches suffered injury. Although these coaches were fairly well filled and the coaches badly wrecked, there was but one man killed. His name is H. S. Goldberg. He was in the smoker and thrown into forward, downward corner of the car. As the car dashed over the ties the end was smashed in and he thrown under the coach. When I reached him he was conscious, telling me his name, etc. He lived about twenty minutes. His wife, a Paris, France, educated musician, was on the train. She received bad cuts on her legs which prevented her being at the side of her husband when he died. She is a musician of very high order. They had given a concert at Brenham that evening. Had only been on the train two hours.

The accident was caused by some vandal removing the nut from the switch connecting rod. As I lay in my berth at Hamestead I heard two men talking below the window. One man said, "This ——— coach will not run but a ——— short distance." I am convinced that I heard these words but the officials think it imagination.

A Mr. McCarty, of Wilbur, Texas, suffered a broken leg and ankle. Considering the rate of speed and weight of the train, it is a wonderful escape. Had the accident happened an hour earlier there would have been more injured, as they could not avoid being hurt by being thrown from their berths.

RECEPTION AND BANQUET.

A Grand Affair Tuesday Evening, Attended by the Band, Every Member of Co. C and a Number of Invited Guests.

The reception and banquet tendered to Capt. W. H. Hayden at the Co. C armory last Tuesday evening, was an event which will long be remembered by Capt. Hayden, members of the company and all others present.

Capt. Hayden has been identified with Co. C for a number of years and as captain has been the means of making the company one of the best in the state and that his work and efforts have been fully appreciated is evidenced not only by the good cheer with which he was welcomed home from his winter's sojourn in Texas, but by the regular attendance at drills and interest taken on every occasion by every member.

On the evening in question the boys had spread the tables and placed the plates for 50. After music by the band, guests and members of the company took their places, fully enjoying the banquet which consisted of a nicely served menu of three courses. Gen. F. B. Wood, as toastmaster, made the address of welcome to Capt. Hayden who responded with brief but well chosen remarks. This was the beginning of a general good time of speech making and toasts were responded to by Walter C. Burridge, Lieutenants Farley and Kies, Rev. E. C. Andrus, Dr. F. O. Tefft, Col. Kyle and others. Truly a royal good time in honor of a royal good fellow.
